NOMINEES' POLL SHOWS RISING WET STRENGTH

Candidates' Replies Are Published.

Tabulations of the results of The Tribune's poll of candidates on the wet and dry issue will be found on page 22.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Nearly all of the regular nominees for congress and for the general assembly of Illinois who replied to the prohibition questionnaires sent them by THE TRIBUNE are ready to vote for changes in the liquor laws.

The poll closed at noon yesterday, more than a month after registered letters were sent to all the winners of nominations for seats in the national and state legislatures in the April primary. On Sept. 25, more than a week ago, telegrams were sent to all those who had not replied up to that time.

It has been recognized that many of the drys would refuse to show their colors and the results of the poll published in today's issue show many drys silent and some refusing to tell the voters where they stand. But the replies show a big anti-prohibition trend among the prospective lawmakers.

The Questions Submitted.

The questions sent to the nominees for congress were the following:

"Do you favor repeal of the eighteenth amendment?

"Will you favor repeal of the eighteenth amendment if the vote of your district in the state referendum of Nov. 4 favors repeal?

"Do you favor modification of the Volstead act?

"Will you favor modification of the Volstead act if the vote of your district in the state referendum of Nov. 4 favors modification?"

The questions submitted to the nominees for the state senate and the state house of representatives referred only to the state law. They were as follows:

"Do you favor the repeal of the Illinois prohibition law?

"Will you favor repeal of the Illinois prohibition law if the vote of your district in the state referendum of Nov. 4 favors repeal?"

A Test for the Drys.

These queries were worded as simply and directly as possible and the results are thought to have brought out clearly the stand of nearly all the candidates. A few known wets failed to reply, but in nearly every instance of silence or refusal to answer the questions the nominee is considered an extreme dry—particularly because of his failure or refusal to say whether he will abide by the result of the referendum in his district.

Some of the responses of known drys who refused to mark the questionnaire already have been published as indicative of the position taken by that element, but scores of letters also have been received which denounce present conditions and demand a change.

Letters Reply to Church.

Similar letters came from many aspirants to the general assembly, some of them replying to an already published telegram from Representative Ralph E. Church of Evanston. Since the appearance of that telegram in THE TRIBUNE, Mr. Church has complained that the statement he sent collect was in error. Unlike most of the telegraphic respondents, Mr. Church paid for his own message. He also complained of the omission of part of his argument reading as follows:

"To assume that the majority vote should be binding on all three [state] representatives from each district would lead to the absurdity of a minority Democrat, elected by cumulative voting from a Republican district, feeling forced to vote with the Republicans in the house, or vice versa."

28 Congress Candidates Reply.

Of the fifty-three candidates for congress, including four nominees for congressman-at-large, there were 28 who replied to the questions submitted by THE TRIBUNE. Of that number, 22 voted for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and five more said they would vote for that repeal if the referendum is in favor of it. Not a single candidate said that he would still oppose repeal if the referendum carries.

The results from these candidates on modification of the Volstead enforcement act were approximately the same. But where there were two who recorded themselves as against the repeal of the amendment there was only one who listed himself as opposed to modification of the enforcement act.

The Assembly Candidates.

Only the odd numbered districts of the state elect senators this year and

Armed Slayer Foiled in Jail Break

PRISONER UNDER DEATH PENALTY AIDED BY GUARD

Plot Is Exposed by Lingle 'Confesser.'

William Lenhardt, convicted murderer, doomed to die in the electric chair, prepared yesterday to shoot his way to freedom from the Cook county jail.

He had obtained a pistol. Steel saws had been smuggled in to him, and he sawed away a section of his cell door. A coil of rope was at hand with which to tie up the lone guard on duty in the tier.

An accomplice was outside the jail, waiting with a taxicab to speed the killer from the scene.

Guard Smuggles in Pistol.

A jail guard had smuggled the weapon, 15 cartridges, the saw blades and the rope into Lenhardt's cell.

The hour for the escape was set at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, an hour when the visiting time at the jail expires, and when visitors are streaming through the outer jail gate to the outside. This gate was to be the only obstacle to Lenhardt's escape. It is guarded by a single jail attaché.

The plot was foiled when Frank H. Bell, a prisoner in the same tier with Lenhardt, informed Sergt. Frank Donohue, investigator for Coroner Herman N. Bundesen, of the full details of Lenhardt's desperate plan. Lenhardt had planned to take Bell with him.

Bell previously had confessed to Sergt. Donohue and Coroner Bundesen that he participated in the murder of Alfred Lingle, and Bell's story of that crime had been under investigation by the coroner's office.

Tells Coroner and Warden.

Sergt. Donohue acted as soon as Bell told him of the jailbreak plan. Coroner Bundesen and Warden David Moneypenny were notified.

A search of Lenhardt's cell disclosed his tools of escape and the sawed cell door.

The accomplice, Howard Soske, was arrested while sitting in a taxicab he had hired, awaiting Lenhardt on California avenue in front of the Criminal court building. Soske confessed the entire plot, and declared he had obtained the pistol, a .38 caliber automatic, from the condemned man's mother, Mrs. Julia Glovka of Cleveland.

A warrant for Mrs. Glovka's arrest was telegraphed by Sergt. Donohue to t' Cleveland police.

Names Guard at Jail.

Soske declared he had obtained the rope, the saw blades, the gun and the cartridges, and had taken them to the home of Joseph Connior, a guard at the county jail, who lives at 2240 Canton street.

Connior, 62 years old, the father of seven children, confessed that he had smuggled the packages into Lenhardt's cell, and that the killer had given him about $19 in payments of 50 cents, $1 and $2. The guard, however, insisted that he had no idea that the packages brought to him by Soske contained the things they did.

Put in Solitary Cell.

Lenhardt was placed in solitary confinement, and Warden Moneypenny said he would stay there.

Soske and Connior were taken by Sergt. Donohue to the detective bureau, where they were formally charged with aiding and abetting a prisoner in an attempted escape. The penalty for this offense smacks of "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," for the law provides that those who so aid a prisoner may be sentenced to serve the same penalty inflicted upon the prisoner himself. But Soske and Connior do not face the supreme penalty, for the law specifies that the maximum penalty in any case shall be life imprisonment.

Special Guard for Bell.

Bell was given special protection, for Warden Moneypenny and Coroner Bundesen were fearful of the consequences when the inmates of the jail learned of his confession. Bell, said the coroner, already had been threatened with death for confessing participation in the Lingle murder, in which he implicated Joe Traum, Hoosier gang chief, and Richard Sullivan, now a prisoner at the county jail and partner of Bell in numerous acts of banditry.

Bell notified Warden Moneypenny at noon yesterday that he desired to talk with Coroner Bundesen or Sergt. Donohue. The latter came at once to

CARDINALS BEAT ATHLETICS, 5-0; SOX TRIM CUBS, 8-2

St. Louis Cardinals shut out the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 0, yesterday at St. Louis for their first victory of the world series. The Athletics now hold a lead of two games to one. Wild Bill Hallahan held Philadelphia to seven hits, while the Cards pounded three Athletic pitchers for ten.

The White Sox evened the city baseball series at two games each by beating the Cubs, 8 to 2, in the fourth game of the series at Wrigley field yesterday. Thomas allowed the Cubs only six hits.

The football season was in full swing yesterday with practically every team in the country in action. In the only game between Big Ten teams Ohio State defeated Indiana, 23 to 0. Scores of other outstanding games:

CAPONE BECOMES A FOOTBALL FAN (WITH 6 GUARDS)

Al Capone, chief of the public enemies, listed by the Chicago crime commission, has become a Cicero football fan. A week ago yesterday, according to the report of a Chicago crime commission investigator, Capone visited the game between Morton High school of Cicero and Harrison High of Chicago, at 59th court and 24th street.

But Capone, at play, was still surrounded by his bodyguard of six. All watched the game from the vantage point of the gate.

This appearance, at least, solved the problem of the gang chief's whereabouts, but it is of small benefit to Chicago police men who are seeking to serve Capone with a vagrancy warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle. Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission, pointed out that the Chicago police may not go beyond the city limits with a Municipal court warrant and the Cicero police cannot arrest the gangster and turn him over.

Well known as he is in his suburb, Capone was readily recognized by spectators at the game, the investigator reported. Murmurs of "There's Al Capone," and "Look at his bodyguard" ran through the crowd. Two uniformed Cicero policemen were standing about, but they seemed oblivious of Capone's presence, said the investigator.

OFFICIAL OF AIR RACES INJURED IN PLANE CRASH

Cliff Henderson of Chicago, business manager of the National Air races held here last summer, and two companions, believed to be Major Luke Christopher, well known flyer, and Bill Henderson, brother of Cliff, were injured in a plane crash late yesterday near Alamogordo, N. M. Cliff Henderson was critically injured, it was said, and was taken to Marcia, a nearby logging camp.

The crash occurred in the Sacramento mountains 26 miles east of Alamogordo. Men working in a logging camp witnessed the fall of the plane, and went to the rescue.

Major R. W. [Shorty] Schroeder was notified here of the accident. He said that he last saw Henderson Wednesday and that Henderson, his brother, and Maj. Christopher left at that time for St. Louis by train. They were to fly from St. Louis to San Francisco in the interests of the 1931 national air races.

Will of Sayre Gives Candy to 109 Persons

The strange will of Rockwell Sayre, eccentric real estate operator, who was shot and killed by his son, Sidney Sayre, wartime aviator, in his office at 5116 Indiana avenue on Sept. 26, was filed for probate yesterday. The will reveals that Mr. Sayre, who was believed to be wealthy, was in fact insolvent and left no estate.

Another son, Paul Sayre, professor of law at the University of Iowa, filed the document with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. It was admitted to probate by Edwin S. Scheffler, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. The two sons and the invalid widow, Mrs. Susan Sayre, 5755 Kenwood avenue, are named as heirs.

Much Poetry in Will.

The will was typewritten by Mr. Sayre and consists of 35 pages bound in cloth boards. It is replete with poetry and essays on such subjects as prohibition, pacifism, birds, cats, capital punishment, and war.

Outstanding among the bequests are one pound boxes of candy for 109 persons. One box, the bill says, is to be given to Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, "who killed the White House cat for us to save Coolidge and the children from cat disease and to save the mama song birds."

Another box is to go to Michael Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, of whom Mr. Sayre wrote: "Hard, they say, but never a softer smile or arm around than his'n—if he could take the degrading dishonesty out of the Irish and send them back to Ireland, wouldn't he be the saint of America?"

Others named to receive candy are "Honest Judge Edmund K. Jarecki," Honest State's Attorney John A. Swanson, the superintendent of the Yellow Cab company, the University of Chicago, and the Anti-Cigarette league.

Antipathy to Cats Shown.

Mr. Sayre's antipathy for cats became known thirty years ago when he announced to the newspapers a plan "to wipe every cat out of existence by 1925." He promised to pay ten cents each for the first hundred cats killed and a grand prize of $5 to the person who killed the largest number."

His will bequeaths the mildew and death damp to any one "who would keep a cat to kill mice when a dozen clean snap traps could be bought for a few cents."

One of the essays in the will was about lawyers. "Lawyers," he wrote, "are a disease—incurable and contagious—and unnecessary"

Sidney Sayre has been held to the grand jury for the murder of his father. He told police that he had suspected his father of carrying on a love affair with a nurse. The elder Sayre was 83 years old.

R-101, GREAT DIRIGIBLE, CRASHES OVER FRANCE

NOTABLES OF ENGLAND DIE IN AIR DISASTER

Of the dead among the 46 victims, including many prominent in British affairs, only the body of Lord Thomson, air minister, has been identified.

Other notables on the airship were:

SIR W. SEFTON W. BRANCKER, director of civil aviation.

SQUADRON LEADER W. PALSTRA of the Royal Australian air force.

SQUADRON LEADER W. H. L. O'NEILL, representing the secretary of state for India.

WING COMMANDER R. B. B. COLMORE, director of airship development.

LIEUT. COL. V. C. RICHMOND, designer of the R-101.

MAJ. G. H. SCOTT, former commander of the R-34, and an officer on the R-100's flight to Canada.

FLIGHT COMMANDER H. C. IRWIN, captain of the R-101.

SQUADRON LEADER E. L. JOHNSON, navigator.

Christopher Birdwood Thomson, P. C., C. B. E., D. S. O., was created first baron of Cardington in 1924. He has twice held the post of secretary of state for air in Great Britain and had a brilliant record as a soldier and statesman. He was a subaltern in the Boer war and a brigadier general in the world war.

Born April 13, 1875, the son of Maj. Gen. David Thomson and Emily Birdwood Thomson, he was educated at Cheltenham college and the Royal Military academy at Woolwich.

After the world war he was military attaché and chief of the military commission to Rumania. He was also a member of the British supreme war council at Versailles.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

The following airship disasters have occurred since the war:

July 15, 1919—British airship NS-11 struck by lightning when over the North sea, killing 12.

July 21, 1919.—A dirigible balloon exploded and fell on the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank building in Chicago, killing 10.

Jan. 29, 1921.—British airship R-34 wrecked in gale in England, but no casualties.

Aug. 24, 1921.—The ZR-2 collapsed and exploded over Hull, England, causing the death of 42 persons, including United States naval officials.

Feb. 21, 1922.—The U. S. Roma blew up over Hampton, Va., killing 34.

Dec. 21, 1923.—The French airship Dixmude was apparently struck by lightning and later the engine and several bodies of the 53 aboard were found in the Mediterranean ocean.

Sept. 3, 1925.—A thunderstorm destroyed the navy dirigible Shenandoah over Ava, O.; 14 members of the crew were killed.

May, 1928—The Nobile expedition balloon descended on the return trip to Spitzbergen from the north pole; seven were lost.

Lord Thomson, Air Minister, Dies; 7 Injured.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (Sunday) (U. P.)—The British dirigible R-101, largest airship in the world, crashed near Beauvais, France, while making her maiden flight from Cardington, England, to Karachi, India, early today.

The dirigible had 53 persons aboard. Authentic reports said all perished except seven.

The dead included Lord Thomson, British air minister.

Crashes Into a Hill.

The police commissioner at Beauvais said the R-101 exploded at 2:06 a. m. over the village of Allone, near Beauvais, and crashed into a hill. The airship burst into flames and was destroyed, he said, only seven members of the personnel being rescued.

It was said those rescued included the members of the crew named H. J. Leech, H. J. Banks, and V. Savory, all civilians. Three others, whose names were not given, also were reported rescued.

Falls in Flames.

H. J. Leech, a member of the crew, talked to the United Press by telephone from Beauvais after the crash. He said the crash occurred at 2:06 a. m., British summer time (7:06 p. m., C. S. T.).

The dirigible crashed in flames. The rescued persons were taken to the Hotel Dieu here; the others were trapped in the wrecked cabins, Leech said.

The weather was stormy when the vast dirigible came to grief. When Leech left he said the wreckage was still in flames.

Flames snapped through the wreckage of the airship, and just before dawn there was nothing left of the craft but a blackened mass of metal framework. Apparently the passengers who did not escape were trapped in the interior of the airship and burned to death.

Farmers rushed to the scene, but were kept back by the scorching heat.

On a 6,000 Mile Flight

The last report the air ministry received from the airship was at 1 a. m. (7 p. m. C. S. T.). The ship reported her position as being over Abbeville, France, and that all was well. Abbeville is about 50 miles north of Beauvais.

The great airship left Cardington at 7:36 p. m. and headed for Karachi, India, a flight of from 5,000 to 6,000 miles. She flew safely across the English channel and headed southeastward through France when she encountered a storm.

High Air Officials Dead.

It was feared that in addition to Lord Thomson the dead included Sir W. Sefton Brancker, director of civil aviation of Great Britain; Squadron Leader W. Palstra of the Royal Australian Air force; Squadron Leader, W. H. L. O'Neill, representing the secretary of state for India; Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore, director of airship development of Great Britain; Lieut. Col. V. C. Richmond, designer of the R-101; Maj. G. H. Scott, former commander of the British dirigible

CAROL REQUESTS MANIU TO FORM NEW CABINET

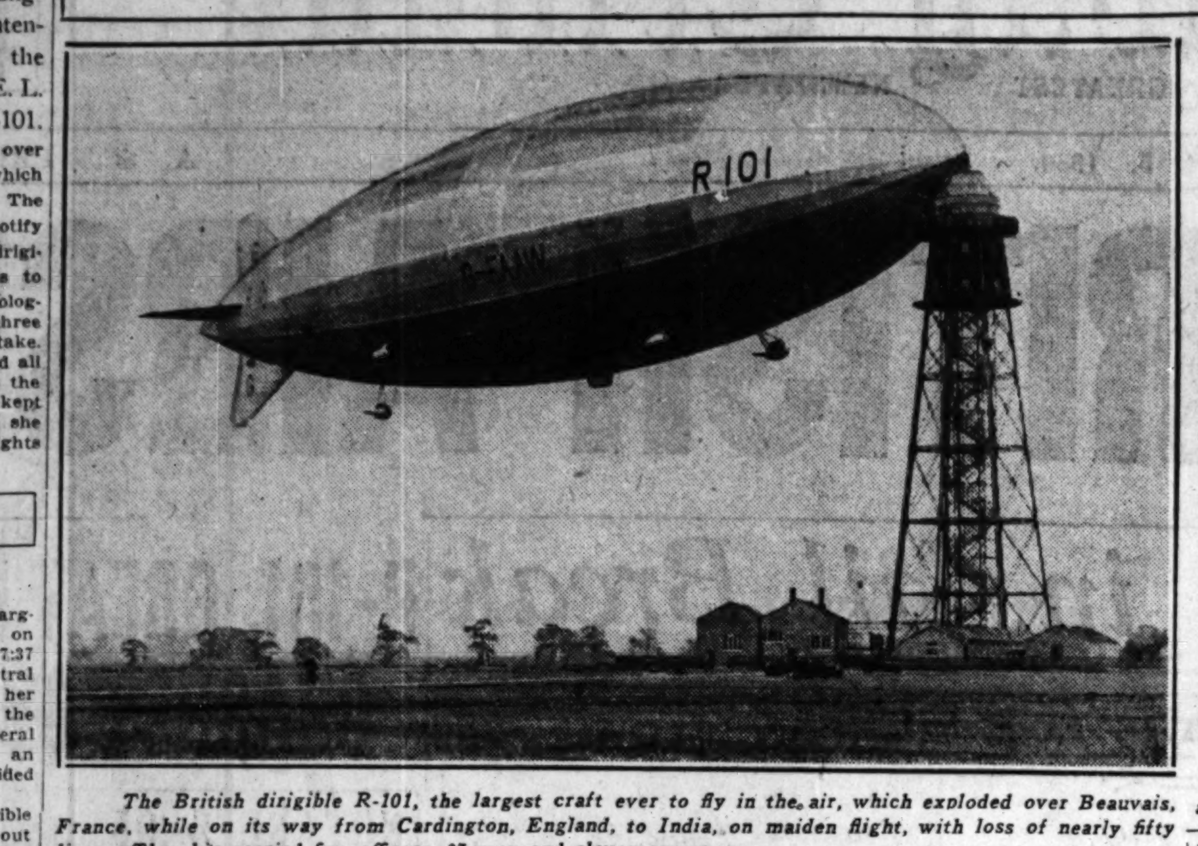
NEARLY 50 KILLED AS R-101 EXPLODES ON ITS MAIDEN FLIGHT



The British dirigible R-101, the largest craft ever to fly in the air, which exploded over Beauvais, France, while on its way from Cardington, England, to India, on maiden flight, with loss of nearly fifty lives. The ship carried five officers, 37 men and eleven passengers. [Associated Press Photo.]

R-34 and recently an officer on the flight of the R-100 from England to Montreal; Flight Lieutenant H. C. Irwin, captain of the R-101, and Squadron Leader E. L. Johnson, navigator of the R-101.

The dirigible fought her way over France in a violent rainstorm, which broke shortly after midnight. The British government failed to notify the French air ministry of the dirigible's exact route—the route was to have been dependent upon meteorological conditions—and outlined three possible routes the airship might take.

The French nevertheless ordered all flood lights and searchlights on the Paris to London air route to be kept burning all night. It is believed she was following the air route lights when she crashed.

BRITISH CHEER R-101

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The world's largest airship, the British R-101, is on her way to India via Egypt. At 7:37 o'clock tonight [1:36 p. m. central standard time], she cast off from her mooring mast at Cardington for the 6,000 mile flight. A crowd of several hundred persons gave the R-101 an enthusiastic farewell as she glided away with her lights twinkling.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the dirigible appeared over London on her way out over the coast. Crowds of Londoners craned their necks to see the illuminated vessel.

Will Refuel in Egypt.

After passing over the south coast the R-101 is expected to follow a course between Rouen and Paris, thence southwest via Tours to Bordeaux. A course has been set over the Mediterranean for the north African coast towards Bizerte, then south of Malta to Isma'iliya, Egypt, but the route may be varied according to meteorological information received by radio.

The first stage of the flight to Isma'iliya is a distance of between 2,390 miles and 2,810 miles. The landing in Egypt is for the purpose of refueling the ship.

Just before the airship left Cardington a silver painted nine gallon cask of English beer was carried aboard the vessel. It is understood the contents were for the personal consumption of three of the ship's officers.

"We hope to reach Karachi, India, in four or five days and Simla in another day, where we will stay for two days," Lord Thomson said before the dirigible sailed. "I have promised Prime Minister MacDonald I will be back by Monday, Oct. 20."

LEVIATHAN OF AIR.

The R-101, sister ship of the R-100 that recently made a successful round trip from England to Canada, was hailed as the leviathan of the air when she was launched at Cardington, England, on Oct. 12, 1929. Although originally she had sleeping accommodations for 100 persons these were reduced recently to 52 as part of an extensive program of alterations designed to give her greater lifting power. Her lifting power after the alterations was estimated at 172 tons, compared with 156 tons for the R-100.

These alterations, which were made during a six month period, increased the ship's length by 35 feet and her gas capacity by 500,000 cubic feet to a total of 5,500,000 feet. In order to carry them out the ship was cut in two and new central bays installed between the separated halves. The change made practically no difference in the streamline shape of the craft, except to give emphasis to her speedy lines.

Marvel of Luxury.

Visitors who looked over the airship when the work was completed described her as a marvel of luxury. The gangway was in the nose and led down along an inclosed corridor slightly larger than that of a continental train, along the longitudinal girders to the two passenger decks.

The ship's two berth staterooms compared favorably with those of many ocean liners, while the spacious lounge that extended across her entire breadth was held to be the last word in airship luxury. Wide windows on either side permitted passengers an excellent view of the terrain below, while there was also a broad promenade equipped with deck chairs.

The spacious dining room was lighted by large celluloid windows in the ship's sides. Beneath it was the electric kitchen equipped with electric cookers and aluminum stoves. All the water containers and pipes were of the same material.

The smoking room, an interior compartment fed by forced air circulation and isolated from the general ventilation of the ship, was its most sound proof room. The R-101 was the first passenger airship provided with a smoking room. Both the smoking room and lounges were liberally supplied with comfortable chairs.

Another feature of the R-101 was its grill, installed so that the ship could "breathe," and relieve itself naturally of any excess pressure within the envelope. A current of free air circulated through the ship continually and this was expected to sweep away any possible accumulation of fumes.

The control car constituted a "well," sunk from the lower deck of the airship's middle portion and the controls were duplicated above in the captain's room. Only the officer of the watch, together with the steering and elevator coxswains, occupied this car ordinarily. But it was provided with every essential control, such as ballast relief, engine telegraphs and voice pipes to the forward mooring position, the observation platform on top of the ship, and the auxiliary control post in the stern.

Best of Instruments.

It was also equipped with sensitive instruments for instantly recording rises and falls in altitude and variations in the temperature of the outer air and inner gas, all matters of importance. Above the control car was the chart tables and wireless operator's room, from which the airship was able to communicate with earth stations a distance of 2,000 miles away.

When the decision was made to "rejuvenate" the ship, it was also decided to equip her with new crude oil engines in place of the gasoline burning engines with which she was originally equipped. Of the five original engines one was used for maneuvering astern, but all five of the new engines could be used for forward power.

The only gasoline carried was just enough to start four of these new motors. But the new engines created a new problem. They were too heavy to be swung over by hand. Gasoline had to be used to start four of them, while the fifth was equipped with a new mechanical starting device that proved so successful it was planned ultimately to use it on all five motors. The only gasoline taken along on the Indian flight was just enough for the four auxiliary gasoline engines, used for starting purposes.

It was claimed that these new motors would eliminate all danger from fire hazards, either from the motors or tropical heat.

The R-101 also was equipped with a complete new skin before she started out on her Indian flight. The new skin was made of a special fabric chemically treated in position. It was put on the ship after the original skin proved unsatisfactory and a similar skin on the R-100 caused like dissatisfaction during the latter ship's flight to Canada. It was then decided to revert to the old war-time method of treating the fabric in position on the hull, so as to make it gas tight.

Negro Mine Union Leader Called from Bed and Slain

Providence, Ky., Oct. 4.—(AP)—A Negro mine union leader, Sullivan Wolf, 44, was called from his home early today and shot to death. His wife said an automobile drove up about 4:30 and several men called her husband from bed. She said she heard him say: "Well, I'll get my shoes," then a volley of shot.

2 Richest Austrian Bankers Sent to Prison for Fraud

VIENNA, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Richard and Arthur Kola, brothers, richest of postwar Austrian bankers, today went to prison together to serve sentences of two months for their connection with the fraudulent bankruptcy of the industrial bank, which two years ago caused losses to many working people.

U. S. VICE CONSUL FIGHTS BIG BEAR IN INDIAN JUNGLE

CALCUTTA, Bengal, Oct. 4.—(AP)—L. Rutherford Stuyvesant, United States vice consul, had a hand to hand fight with a giant bear and has lived to tell the tale. Last Tuesday while hunting in the Jaleswar jungle he encountered a large bear and wounded him with a shot at close range. The bear was made angry rather than disabled by the shot and rushed Mr. Stuyvesant, clasped him in his big paws and threw him to the ground.

The bear gnawed Mr. Stuyvesant's arms and inflicted severe injuries on one arm. Using his other arm, however, the vice consul obtained his gun and continued striking the bear's nose until the animal, in pain, ran away.

Alan Stuyvesant, the vice consul's brother, who accompanied him on the hunting expedition, found him later and brought him to Calcutta, dressing his wounds en route.

HUGE CRUCIFIX GUARDED FROM DIXIE VANDALS

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Armed guards tonight paced a lonely spot fourteen miles north of here, standing watch before a bronze crucifix that gleamed in the darkness above them.

For several nights, ever since notes threatening destruction were received by workmen on the monument, the guards have been keeping watch. Last night as an auto sped by its occupants fired a volley of shots at the figure but no harm was done.

The monument is a memorial marking the spot of the first Catholic settlement in America, established by Giles Brent and a small band in 1647. Tomorrow the monument will be dedicated. It stands 30 feet high, and from its crucifix is suspended a nine foot figure of Christ.

Bargains for Banquets
Where popular demand reduces prices
"One policy of your company which gives me the greatest satisfaction," writes an A&P customer, "is that you do not take advantage of a special demand for a product to profiteer.
"For example, on the third of last July my A&P store sold good quality watermelons from 25c to 55c below other stores in town. A&P, realizing that many people enjoy a nice melon for Fourth of July picnics, put them within reach of everyone."
A&P believes in making it as easy as possible for people to get what they want when they want it most. That is why A&P provides special bargains in fruits and vegetables at the height of their season, in turkeys at Thanksgiving and Christmas, in delicacies during the Holidays, and in eggs at Easter.
The usual custom is to charge a little more when people for one reason or another are pretty sure to buy anyhow. A&P thinks these are just the times to make the cost of high living as low as possible.

BRAZILIAN REVOLT SPREADS; REBELS CAPTURE CITIES

State of Siege Declared in Three States.

BULLETIN.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Dispatches to La Nacion from towns on the Brazilian frontier of Argentina report that the insurgent movement in Rio Grande do Sul, triumphant throughout the state, had spread to the states of Santa Catharina, Parana, Matto Grosso, Pernambuco, Piauhy, and Ceara. The last two states are in the north of Brazil and marks the extension of the insurgent power from its southern strongholds.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A state of siege in three of Brazil's great states where revolutionary movements are reported was approved today by the Brazilian chamber of deputies. The vote was 120 to 1. The states affected are Rio Grande do Sul, Minas Geraes and Parahyba.

Rebels Capture Entire State.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 4.—A revolution with the object of preventing the inauguration of Julio Prestes as president of Brazil was reported in dispatches reaching here late this afternoon to have been successful throughout the Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul. The rebels are in possession of all important cities, including Porto Alegre, the state capital. At Porto Alegre Gen. Gil de Almeyda, federal commander, and his entire staff were captured after a two hour battle. Other cities captured by the rebels include Uruguayana, Alegrete, and Rosario.

The outbreak in Rio Grande do Sul has been agreed upon as a signal for a simultaneous uprising in Minas Geraes, Parahyba, and other states.

Headed by Prominent Men.

Several nationally prominent Brasilians are at the head of the revolutionary movement. The commander of the rebel forces is Gen. Joao Francisco Pereya da Souza, a prominent political leader in the state, who has been actively associated with several previous revolts. Federal Senator Flores da Cunha is the leading civilian at Santa Ana, and Marshal Diaz Lopez is directing the movement in the Uruguayana district.

Uruguay has sent troops from Salto and Durazno to Rivera and the adjacent frontier to prevent a repetition of the 1924 incidents when thirteen rebel soldiers who had sought refuge in Uruguayan territory were followed by loyal troops, who captured and executed them.

Planned for Months.

The revolution in Rio Grande do Sul had been carefully planned for several months.

The Fifth cavalry regiment and battery of artillery at Uruguayana, with all but a few officers, went over to the rebels without resistance. At Santa Ana do Livramento all the officers of the Seventh infantry regiment and the battery of the Fifth artillery of federal troops were captured in their hotel, after which 8,000 well trained and well equipped state troops and police surrounded the federal troops, who, having no officers, surrendered. Several federal officers were killed resisting the revolutionists.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in Room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

the jail, and for twenty minutes Bell conversed with the investigator on trivial subjects.

"What makes you so nervous, Bell?" Donohue asked.

The prisoner swallowed several times and then said: "There's a gun on this floor."

"Where?" asked Donohue.

"In Lenhardt's cell."

"What's the idea, Bell?"

"Donohue, there's going to be a jail break at 3:30. Lenhardt's going to bolt for it."

Bell then told the sergeant the details of the plot, how Lenhardt's mother had furnished the gun, that Lenhardt planned to throw a coin to the floor outside his cell, call the lone guard, James Ryan, over to pick it up, and then push out the sawed portion of the cell door, slug Ryan and obtain his keys. Bell told of the accomplice who was to wait outside the jail.

Sergt. Donohue went at once to Warden Moneypenny, and then notified Coroner Bundesen, who with Sergt. Charles Reynolds, hastened to the jail.

Finds Gun Under Pillow.

Meanwhile the warden had made a search of the fourth floor tier in which Lenhardt, Bell and forty other prisoners were confined. The contraband was disclosed. The pistol was under Lenhardt's pillow.

"I wasn't going to shoot anybody, warden," said Lenhardt. "Here, take these, too." And he opened his fist, disclosing a handful of cartridges. The pistol was fully loaded. The coil of rope was found in Bell's cell, and Bell declared Lenhardt had told him to use it to tie the guard.

Assistant Warden George Gibson and Jail Clerk Hugo C. Pfeuffer were dispatched to the street, where they noticed a man sitting in a Yellow cab. They drew weapons and ordered the man to come out of the cab. It was Soske, and Gibson recognized him at once as a former inmate of the jail, who had been visiting Lenhardt frequently.

Cab Driver Absolved.

Coroner Bundesen examined the Yellow cab chauffeur, Philip Marker, 1618 South Hamlin avenue, who satisfied the coroner that he was an innocent actor in the plot. Marker said Soske had hired the cab by the hour, and had instructed Marker to wait outside the jail.

The coroner then questioned Soske, who stands six feet two and is powerfully built. At first Soske protested that he knew nothing of the plot, but under questioning by Dr. Bundesen and Warden Moneypenny he began to break.

He admitted going to visit Lenhardt's mother in Cleveland.

Coroner Bundesen, with a sudden movement, pulled the automatic from inside his coat and dropped it with a clatter before Soske's eyes. Soske, startled, almost leaped from his chair.

"Where did you get that gun?" the coroner demanded.

"I never saw it," Soske stammered.

"Tell the truth now, quick," commanded Moneypenny.

"His mother gave it to me," Soske blurted out. Then he called the two officials aside and made a detailed confession. Later he repeated the confession in the presence of a stenographer and of Connior, the accused guard.

The questioning by Coroner Bundesen was in part as follows:

Q.—Did you meet Lenhardt in the Bridewell? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—After you got out, did you visit Lenhardt again? A.—Yes, frequently. I received a letter from his mother, asking me to come to Cleveland to help her straighten out some property difficulty she was in. I told Lenhardt about it and he asked me to go there.

Q.—Did you go to Cleveland? A.—Yes. Lenhardt had the jail clerk give me $100, money which was given him by the government for veterans' compensation. I went to see Mrs. Glovka.

Returns to Visit Prisoner.

Q.—What was said about bringing anything back? A.—She took me out on the west side and gave me a gun, telling me she wanted me to take it back to Lenhardt. I took the gun and went back to Chicago that same night. The next day I went to see Lenhardt.

Q.—Did you tell him his mother sent him something. A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you do with the package containing the gun and bullets? A.—I delivered it to an address at 2240 Canton street.

Q.—Whose place is that? A.—Mr. Connior's.

Q.—Did you deliver the package to him? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Do you see him now, and if so, will you point him out? [The witness indicated Connior.]

Q.—Did you tell him what was in the package? A.—No. I just left the package with him.

Q.—Did you see Lenhardt again? A.—I saw him yesterday. He told me I was to have a cab here at 3:30 today. He said he might escape. I told him all right so long as it wouldn't get me in trouble. This afternoon I got the cab and was waiting when Mr. Gibson arrested me.

Q.—Had you previously delivered packages to Mr. Connior? A.—Yes, sir. A package of saw blades which I had bought, at Lenhardt's request, at a hardware store on the south side.

Then Coroner Bundesen turned to Connior.

"You have heard the charges; what have you to say?"

The guard, obviously shaken, stammered that he had nothing to hide.

"I took the packages to Lenhardt, but I didn't know what was in them," he said. "The first package Soske gave me I opened, and there was some tooth medicine and specs in it. I never looked at the others. I thought they were medicine. Soske told me so."

Warden Moneypenny revealed that Lenhardt had requested that one of a number of radio instruments in the jail be sent to his tier.

The rasping of the saws against the steel cell door while Lenhardt plied his instruments was muffled by the clatter of the radio.

Lenhardt was convicted on April 11, 1930, of the murder of Milton Valasopulos in the holdup of a restaurant at 803 West 74th street. He was sentenced to death in the electric chair. He had served previous sentences for robbery.

PROBE LINGLE STORY

An exhaustive investigation was started yesterday into the story of Frank H. Bell, county jail prisoner, who told a coroner's jury on Friday night that he drove the automobile in which the murderers of Alfred Lingle rode to the scene of the slaying.

Special Assistant State's Attorneys Charles F. Rathbun and James E. McShane will cross-examine Bell tomorrow, inquiring particularly into certain flaws of his confession which have made some officials express doubt concerning the truth of the tale.

Pending the inquiry, most authorities contented themselves with remarking that the Bell confession was an important contribution to the annals of the Lingle investigation. However, Patrick Roche, special investigator in the Lingle case, declared that Bell's story would not stand analysis.

"We have investigated Bell's story, including all its particulars, and turned it down," he said. "When he told me his story early in July it varied in several details from the story he now tells the coroner's jury."

Seize Two Stills, Arrest Three in Cicero Raids

Federal prohibition agents last night raided two bungalows in Cicero, confiscated two stills and arrested three men. At 1338 South 51st avenue a 100 gallon still and 30 gallons of alcohol were found. Michael Guerin and Peter Muto were arrested. At 30 East 100th place a 300 gallon still was found and Joseph Chiaparo was arrested.

Oak Park Widow, Ill, Ends Her Life with Gas

Despondent over illness, Mrs. Genevieve Philipps, 54 years old, a widow, ended her life yesterday by turning on the gas in her home at 737 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park. She left a note explaining her suicide motive. Mrs. Philipps' body was found by her brother, William Parker, 830 North Parkside avenue.

NEW GRAND JURY WILL CONTINUE RACKET INQUIRY

Altered Police List Will Be Investigated.

The October grand jury, which will be impaneled tomorrow morning will be instructed by Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court to carry on the racketeering investigation started by the September jury. Judge McGoorty announced this plan yesterday.

Not only will the new jury continue the racket inquiry, but will also be instructed, the judge said, to investigate the charge made by the last jury that crime in general is the result of an alliance between the police department, corrupt politics, and the criminal element. The charge to the jury in this regard will be specifically directed to allegations that a secret police department list of Capone gangsters slated for prosecution for vagrancy was delivered into the hands of the hoodlums.

"Police Must Reflect Government."

In regard to the police charges Judge McGoorty made the following comment:

"I am satisfied that the police department in general and Commissioner Alcock are doing splendid work at this time and are deserving of commendation. I, of course, would like to see the police department divorced entirely from politics. The department always must necessarily, under present conditions, reflect the policies of the administration in power. If the administration is for an open town the department is bound under the present methods of organization to reflect that condition.

"In regard to the manner in which the list found its way into the hands of the Capone gangsters I can only say that it shows a close relationship between some of the police and the Capone gangsters.

Other Jury Plans Quiz.

It was learned yesterday that the September jury intended to investigate the police situation, particularly as to the manner in which the list found its way into the hands of Tony Tagenti, a Capone bondsman. The jurors, however, were so busy with the racket investigation and the regular run of business that this topic could not be taken up.

In reference to the complaint of the September jury that the sanitary district cases against Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district, and others have not been prosecuted, Judge McGoorty said:

"I took up the question of the sanitary district cases when I took office in September. It was the desire of attorneys for both sides to have the cases postponed until after the coming election so that the trial would not be tinged with political charges."

MATT FOLEY IS FREED ON BOND IN FRAUD CASE

Matt Foley, who is charged with having operated a fraudulent lottery on the Kentucky Derby as an assistant circulation manager of the Herald-Examiner, was released from his county jail cell yesterday on a Liberty bond for $1,000, which was posted by Thomas J. Mullen, 1434 North Mansfield avenue. Mullen said he acquired the bond on Friday from R. E. Fitzgerald.

Michael Walsh, Democratic candidate for congress from the Second district, who represents some of the lottery victims, indicated yesterday that he would protest the small bond and ask that it be raised to the usual figure of $5,000.

The state charges that Foley, through Herald and Examiner drivers, distributed some 50,000 tickets on the Derby. It is alleged that he issued these tickets on Dick O'Hara, a horse that was not expected to run. The tickets said that if the horse did not run then the bettor lost his money, and if the horse did run a prize of $50 was to be paid. But Dick O'Hara started and the purchasers of the tickets were not paid.

Foley is co-defendant with Hyman Goodman, formerly an Examiner driver, and Leo Schoemer, a railroad employé.

ATTACKS LYLE'S COURT METHODS; PLANS APPEAL

Attorney Raps Judge at Hearing.

Judge John H. Lyle's high bond policy in dealing with gun toters and "public enemies" was lambasted in the vagrancy court yesterday by Attorney Milton Smith who brought his cline,t James "Fur" Sammons, hoodlum, before Judge Edgar A. Jonas on a change of venue from Judge Lyle. Judge Jonas agreed that the $50,000 bond set by Lyle for Sammons seemed excessive, but he did not reduce it.

The hearing opened with Attorney Smith asking for a reduction of bail.

"How did it happen that Judge Lyle set the bond so high?" Judge Jonas asked.

Suggests Court Test.

Attorney Smith answered with a sharp criticism of Judge Lyle.

"You might just as well settle for once and all the question of bond—whether Judge Lyle has a right to set it so high," said the judge. "Why not take it to the Supreme court for a ruling?"

"Well, will you reduce the bond to, say, $10,000?" Attorney Smith wanted to know. "I don't want my client to rot in jail."

"I'm going to deny you that," Judge Jonas answered. "I've been sitting here wondering if one of you lawyers has the courage to take a case like this to the Supreme court. You've got prominent lawyers—you ought to get a ruling on it."

Lists Things as Complaints.

"I may take it to the Supreme court on a habaes corpus hearing," said Smith. "I have plenty to complain about. Judge Lyle made my client raise his chin to allow newspaper photographers to take his picture, under threat of contempt of court. But that is all right—I had a photographer there too. I had him take a picture of Judge Lyle, sitting on his bench surrounded by photographers and I had a court reporter there to take down all the things he said. They'll come in handy.

"Judge Lyle's decisions have been reversed by the Appellate and Supreme courts, but he doesn't care for Supreme court rulings and he doesn't know the constitution. I've heard him say from the bench that he doesn't care for the Supreme court."

Thinks Bond Excessive.

"I'd be glad to reduce this bond for you," said Judge Jonas. "I, too, think it is excessive; but Judge Lyle had first hearing on these public enemy cases and he set the bond, which I do not want to tamper with. If Judge Lyle is doing this to make himself notorious or to get publicity, you can more easily prove your points by taking it to the Supreme court. We'll continue this case to give you a chance to decide."

The continuance date of Oct. 13 was suggested, but Smith objected.

For the first time Sammons spoke. "Oct. 13 is all right with me," he said. "I'm not superstitious."

The date was finally set as Oct. 14.

U. S. PADLOCKS AGAIN CLOSE ABLINS' CLUB

David (Cockeye Mulligan) Ablin was forced out of the night club business yesterday for the fourth time by the federal government when Judge Charles E. Woodward ordered a padlock for the Little club at 945 North State street.

Leon Sweitzer is listed as the operator in the decree obtained by Assistant United States Attorney Lyman Sherwood, but since Sept. 11 the place has been run by the Ablins, "Cockeye Mulligan" and his brother, Sam, under the name Paroquet. Engraved invitations were sent to a selected clientele when the Ablins optimistically opened up again. Previous Ablin joints closed by the government were the Maison Ritz, the Algiers, and the Epicure.

Seven other places were ordered padlocked by Judge Woodward yesterday.

"STAMP OF THE NATIONS," A NEW TRIBUNE GAME

$10,000 in Cash Prizes to Be Paid.

The public has shown such an amazing interest in the "Interesting Letters" feature which THE TRIBUNE inaugurated some time ago, and it is so clearly apparent that distant lands and far off places have a romantic lure for men, women and children, that today THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE begins a new and perhaps still more interesting feature.

This new attraction—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE stamp album, "Stamps of the Nations"—appears in the coloroto picture section of today's TRIBUNE. It will be found there regularly for the next fourteen Sundays and will depict the cancelled stamps of many nations—some of them countries exceedingly tiny and seldom recalled, but countries nevertheless—from all portions of the globe.

The stamps will appear in composite form. The public is asked to cut them apart, put them together properly and name the nations they represent.

$10,000 in Prizes.

Cash prizes totaling $10,000 will be paid by THE TRIBUNE to those who submit the best answers. Aid in identifying the stamps will be given by clues beneath each composite stamp relating some fact about the nation which issued it, and THE TRIBUNE likewise will publish each Sunday groups of stamps in which will be shown the stamp for which identification is sought.

Interest in stamps is world-wide. Some of the foremost celebrities of every land have displayed an interest in stamp collecting. Only recently the press recorded the fact that King George of England devotes two hours every Wednesday to the arrangement and indexing of his collection of stamps which is one of the finest in the entire world.

Offer 673 Prizes.

Six hundred and seventy-three prizes are offered in all, so that one has a vast number of chances to secure a cash reward for the time spent in identifying the various nations, each of which will be represented by a stamp.

Educators to whom THE TRIBUNE'S stamp album has been explained are profuse in their praise of the historical value of the plan.

Turn now to the coloroto picture section. Check over the three composite stamps printed today. See if you can put them together properly and name the nations they represent. It's really surprisingly easy—with the aid given. Then look for set No. 2 of "Stamps of the Nations" in next SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

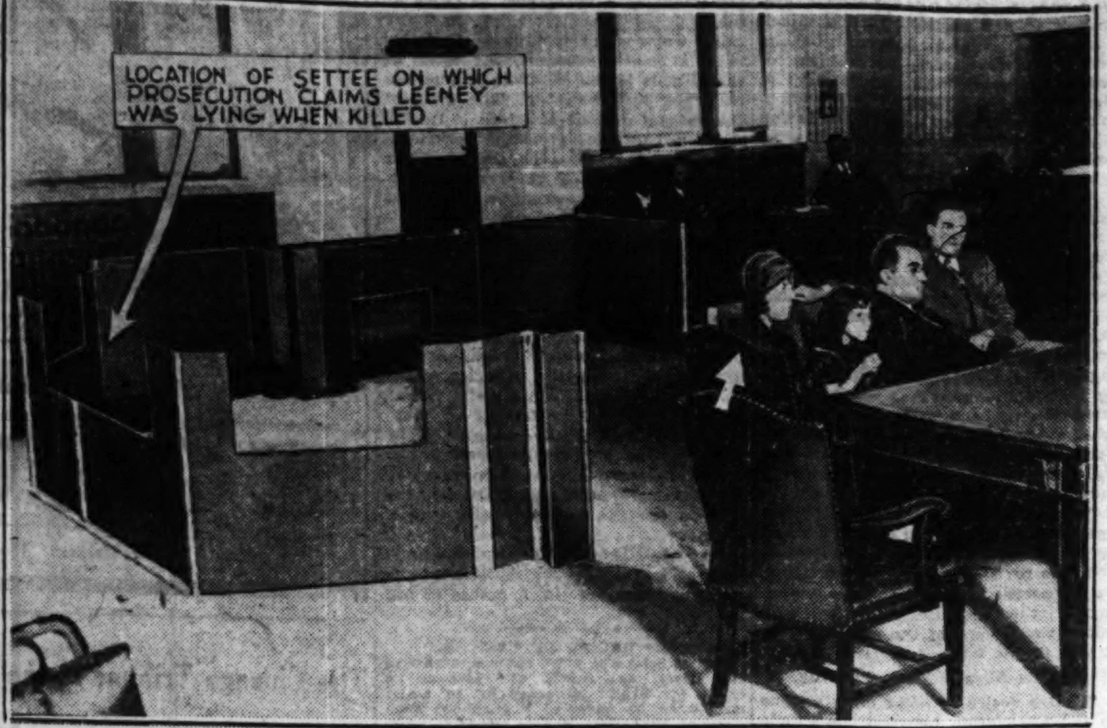
Replica of Death Room in Trial of Mrs. Leeney



LOCATION OF SETTEE ON WHICH PROSECUTION CLAIMS LEENEY WAS LYING WHEN KILLED

Scene in Judge Sabath's court yesterday when prosecution won right to use replica of room in which Mrs. Florence Leeney shot husband. The prosecution contends Leeney was slain as he lay on davenport, position of which is indicated. At right are (left to right) Mrs. Leeney, indicated by arrow; her daughter, Kewpie, and her attorneys, Sam Hoffman and Charles Dougherty. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

MODEL ROOM PUT IN AS EVIDENCE AT LEENEY TRIAL

Wife Is Accused of Murdering Mate.

Hours of argument in Judge Joseph Sabath's courtroom yesterday ended with the admission as evidence in the murder trial of Mrs. Florence Leeney, of "exhibit 4." Which means that the middle aged woman who shot her husband last New Year's day will spend the duration of her trial with a grimly reminiscent reproduction of the scene of the shooting within arm's reach.

"Exhibit 4" is a true scale model of the room in which Maurice Leeney, a trucking contractor, came to his death, at 5336 Drexel boulevard. It is of wall board, set up in the courtroom to facilitate the decision by the jury as to whether Mrs. Leeney fired in self-defense, as contended by her attorneys, Charles Dougherty and Samuel A. Hoffman, or with malicious intent while he lay asleep.

Assistant State's Attorneys George Lavin and Ross Lee Laird assert they will prove first degree murder by the angle at which the bullets struck the davenport on which they say Leeney was lying. The davenport will be placed in the model room in the courtroom during the testimony.

Exhaustive examinations yesterday of a carpenter, V. A. Matson, who constructed the model room from measurements of the original, and of David Lindstrom of the police department's drafting division, qualified the replica before Judge Sabath made his ruling. The model was made only 32 inches high to permit a view down into it from the jury box.

The defendant appeared unruffled yesterday as she watched the exhibit brought in and set up and heard the arguments concerning its use as evidence. She remained as tranquil surveying it as when her gaze roved to the face of her cousin, Mrs. Dorothy Langley, admitted paramour of Leeney, and, according to the state, the cause of Mrs. Leeney's jealousy and of Leeney's death.

The jury will hear the stories of the first witnesses tomorrow morning.

NEW CHURCH OF ST. MALACHY TO BE OPENED TODAY

This evening at 7:45 o'clock the congregation of old St. Malachy's church at Walnut street and Western avenue, will take leave of the edifice that has been a landmark there for fifty years. A religious procession following the last services in the present structure will mark the removal to the newly finished St. Malachy's, at Washington and Oakley boulevards, and the first services in the new church. Hundreds of present and former parishoners are expected to participate in the march.

Formal dedication of the new structure will be held in November, with a ceremony at which Cardinal Mundelein will be present. Tonight's service will merely mark the opening of the new church and the closing of the mission that was the last in the history of the old. Present at the closing as guests of the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Callaghan, will be the former assistant at the church.

GOVERNORS ACT FOR EXTRADITION OF DAN STANTON

Emmerson Orders Hearing in Springfield Friday.

Wisconsin and Illinois authorities, including the governors of both states, coöperated yesterday in speeding up the extradition of Danny Stanton, a public enemy, to Wisconsin under charges of the murder of Jack Zuta.

A request for the extradition of Stanton and his bodyguard, Edgar Smith, was forwarded to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson by Gov. Walter Kohler of Wisconsin. Gov. Emmerson promptly ordered a hearing to be held next Friday before him at Springfield.

Kohler Wants Quick Action.

"Every possible effort will be made to bring Stanton and Smith to Wisconsin immediately so that they may be tried for the murder of Zuta," said Gov. Kohler. "The state of Wisconsin feels that it must serve a warning to gangsters to keep themselves and their battles outside its borders.

"With Chicago warring more vigorously than ever before against the criminal element, many of the outlaws no doubt are considering hiding out for a time in Wisconsin. The speedy trial of Stanton and a conviction will be a notice that we don't want them here and Wisconsin justice will work quickly and effectively to punish them if they do seek to shift their battle grounds to this state."

District Attorney Herman Salen of Waukesha county, where Zuta was murdered, will represent Wisconsin at the hearing before Gov. Emmerson. Acting Police Commissioner Alcock will direct the Chicago end of the battle for extradition.

Stanton and Smith were arrested two weeks ago. In the side pocket of their automobile a revolver was found. When this gun was examined by Lieut. Col. Calvin H. Goddard, ballistics expert, he found that the weapon had fired one of the bullets taken from Zuta's brain.

Story of Zuta Killing.

Zuta was slain in a Waukesha county roadhouse by four men. They shot him with a machine gun and then one of the men leaned over the body and made the murder certain by firing a revolver bullet into Zuta's head. The authorities contend that Stanton was the leader of the assassins and was the man who thus made sure that Zuta had been killed.

The killing of Zuta was an aftermath of the killing of Alfred Lingle on June 9. Stanton is a south side beer runner, lately affiliated with the Capone gang.

DR. L. E. SCHMIDT ISSUES REPLY TO OUSTER DECISION

Says Association Delays Medical Progress.

Declaring that organized medicine is obstructing the progress of civilization toward the time when all the benefits of medical science will be available to the masses at low cost, Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, eminent Chicago surgeon, yesterday issued a reply to the American Medical association. The judiciary council of the association on Friday upheld his expulsion from the Chicago Medical society for unethical conduct.

His reply, Dr. Schmidt declared, was not in defense of himself, but in defense of those philanthropic institutions and members of the medical profession who are endeavoring to bring down the cost of being sick. The statement said:

"The decision of the American Medical association upholding the action of the Chicago Medical society in expelling me from membership to my view is a serious obstacle in the way of medical progress.

Will "Surmount Obstacle."

"But it is an obstacle which can and will be surmounted and in spite of it a way will be charted wherein humanity shall receive all the benefits of medical progress. The leaders of the medical societies who join in this action against me cannot stop the march of civilization. The benefits of medical learning now unavailable to the great masses of the people who have not the means to obtain them shall in the end be received by all.

"I was expelled from the medical society because as president of the Illinois Social Hygiene league I approved an association of the league with the Public Health institute. The Illinois Social Hygiene league is purely a charitable organization, which was organized to meet a social probwas affecting the health, happiness, and prosperity of many thousands of our citizens. The Public Health institute is also a philanthropic organization, profiting no one but the men and women patients who receive its efficient, thorough treatment at fees which are so low that few sufferers cannot afford to pay them. Those who cannot pay at all are treated free.

Sees Other Similar Clinics.

"Although it is conceivable that the decision of the judicial council of the American Medical association may hinder the immediate organization of other clinics which may deal in a broad sense with all the other ailments of mankind, I predict that ere long the public spirited men and forward looking organizations interested in this problem will have accomplished the organization of many such clinics and will have made available to the public immeasurable good which these systems will bring.

"Universities, charitable foundations, benevolent minded capitalists and other agencies are already embarked on this program and they cannot be obstructed by any decision of the American Medical association. For every one obstructionist in the medical profession there are hundreds of physicians who see the need for a change in the present organization of medical services and there men, working with the philanthropic lay forces, shall achieve victory.

"The decision of the judicial council admittedly did not in any sense pass upon the facts in my case. The report states that the judicial council had jurisdiction in the matter of law and procedure, but not of facts. The sole interest of the council as demonstrated in the decision was to determine whether the formal steps taken by the Chicago Medical society in presenting and trying charges against me had been according to the route of medical bylaws.

Had Complete Information.

"The council had the fullest information submitted on both side concerning whether the Public Health institute was in fact an unethical organization and whether the Public Health institute had met and is meeting not only a grave social problem but also the problem of providing expert medical attention at a low cost.

"It is elementary that in order to determine whether I was violating the canons of the medical profession that the facts must be examined to be determined whether they constituted a breach of the medical laws. It was not for the council to determine simply that a committee had met and that various bodies of the medical society had taken action and to end their inquiry there.

"The ethical code of the medical profession sets up definite and specific violations. If the facts in the case fail to come within the written laws, certainly it is necessary for the council to examine those facts in a legal way. This the council did not do. I feel confident that had the council fulfilled its duty and gone deeply into the whole structure of the case, their decision would have favored me. There can be no argument against the facts. I am frank to state that in my opinion had the facts been such as would constitute a case against me, the judicial council would not have hesitated to make that finding.

Hedged in Decision, Claim.

"It is no secret that those in charge of the Chicago Medical society have campaigned in a political way to obtain a decision against me and it appears to me that the failure of the council to pass upon the facts and the complacency of the council in deciding this case upon a mere outline of technical legal procedure may be taken as an admission that the council seized upon this to achieve a result acceptable to the medical politicians and at the same time one which would not directly affront the progressive thinkers in the medical profession and out of it.

"Without seeking at this time to set up a defense for myself, which appears to me wholly unnecessary, I desire to point out several highly important recent developments in direct connection with this controversy.

"The trial of the case against me led to an effort by the Julius Rosenwald foundation and its medical director, Michael Davis, to enlarge the usefulness of the Public Health institute. Seven physicians who are outstanding members of the profession in Chicago and whose honesty of purposes is beyond question, were invited to serve in an advisory capacity to the Public Health institute. They accepted this duty despite the opposition of the Chicago Medical society. Their first action was to retain three specialists who are nationally recognized by the profession.

Make Complete Examination.

"These men were Dr. Edwin L. Keyes, professor of urology at Cornell University Medical college, New York City; Dr. Harold N. Cole, professor of syphilis and dermatology, Western Reserve university, Cleveland, O., and Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., former assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, in charge of the division of venereal disease, now commissioner of health of New York state. These experts made a complete investigation of the Public Health institute. They rendered a report which has been published, making the following findings:

"'1. The Public Health institute appears to be run on an inherently honest basis.

"'2. The service rendered is of a lower grade than that of the best university clinics, but it is superior to that of the average public clinic or of the average general practitioner.

"'3. The outstanding item of credit to the institute is that it is the largest venereal disease clinic in this country and has demonstrated the possibility of giving efficient diagnosis and treatment on a large scale, and on a more economic basis than has been possible elsewhere.'

"It is self-evident from these findings that the Public Health institute was and is serving the public cause; that it is not in any sense a quack clinic and that it has demonstrated the proper solution for the problem of providing expert medical treatment to the middle class public. It is ridiculous to assume that an organization which could merit these findings by nationally known specialists is an unethical institution.

"It is true that the Public Health institute uses advertising in order to bring home to sufferers afflicted with venereal diseases the perils of their state and the necessity for immediate treatment. This is work in the public welfare. It is not in violation of the ethics of the medical profession which specifically provide that nothing in the code prohibiting advertising by individual physicians shall be construed to prohibit ethical institutions from a legitimate advertisement of location, physical surroundings and special class—if any—of patients accommodated.

"Following the findings of the three specialists, the medical advisory board of the Public Health institute set about to revise newspaper advertising. Any observer knows that the advertising of the institute today is, with minor exceptions, of the same type as it was in the time of my trial.

League Treats More Patients.

"I also desire to point out that due to the association between the Public Health institute and the Illinois Social Hygiene league, the charitable work of the league has progressed to a point where we are able to provide better treatment at a lower cost to twice as many patients as previously. In many other ways which cannot be discussed in this brief statement, the work of the Illinois Social Hygiene league has benefited immeasurably. The work of the league and of the Public Health institute has taken from the unscrupulous quack doctors in Chicago, the business of treating venereal diseases.

"The evil of quackery is so obvious that it should be recognized that it is the duty of the medical profession to eliminate it if possible. Advertising under proper restrictions has practically eliminated quackery in venereal disease practice. There is no reason to believe that operations of quacks in other diseases, which is one of the most violent curses of our city, could be curtailed, if not almost eliminated, were the medical profession to adopt the proper form of advertising and the organization of low cost clinics to bring the lower and middle class patients into reputable hands, delivering them from the hands of the charlatans.

"I repeat that progress in this problem is inevitable. We shall strive onward confident of the firmness of our ground."

BOSTON JAMMED WITH LEGIONNAIRES; MEET TO OPEN TOMORROW

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—(AP)—American legionnaires by the thousands converged on this city today as the hour neared for the opening on Monday of their 12th annual convention.

Thousands of them were on hand at nightfall and scarcely a train arrived that did not swell the total by hundreds.

Every hotel in downtown Boston was thronged, while suburban accommodations reserved weeks in advance, were being rapidly taken up. Legionnaires in uniform strolled the streets accompanied by their families and hardly a state east of the Mississippi, or west of it, lacked representation.

Out at the Harvard stadium in Cambridge, several thousand of the visitors availed themselves of the university's invitation to see the Crimson team dispose of its two opponents, the University of Vermont and the U. S. Coast Guard academy.

In town, a number of reunions got under way at the various hotels with many a "do you remember when?" to set the conversational motif.

ROBS DRIVER OF TAXICAB.

GRAHAM SIXES AND EIGHTS • ALWAYS FAR IN ADVANCE

A RECORD THAT MEANS SOMETHING THESE DAYS

GRAHAM SALES INCREASE 74½% in September over August

Graham Sixes and Eights made a showing in Cook County during the month of September that is an outstanding recognition of Graham values by the buying public.

Graham deliveries to buyers in Cook County during this period showed the remarkable increase of 74½ per cent over the month of August.

And this by contrast to a loss of 20½ per cent in all motor car registrations in Cook County.

This definite trend toward Graham can be attributed to just one factor—namely, that Graham cars in price, in quality, in dependability, today offer the world's greatest value.

It means that a growing proportion of the motoring public of Chicago and Cook County is realizing how much more the Graham gives, and our grateful appreciation is due to those who have enabled Graham to make this great record.

From the Graham Six Town Sedan at $845, factory, to every model throughout the line—Graham values invite comparison.

The most convincing proof is for you to visit the Graham salesroom and make comparisons yourself. Do this, and you too will understand why Graham sales made a 74½ per cent increase in Cook County during September.

EGYPT A PUZZLE AS CANDIDATES MOVE UP STATE

Southern Illinois Leaders Can't Gauge Voters.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Central and northern Illinois, the great corn belt and the smaller industrial centers draw the attention next week of Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for senator, and James Hamilton Lewis, her Democratic opponent. Southern Illinois where both Republicans and Democrats have made a drive during the last two weeks is still a battle ground.

In Egypt the politicians are trying to read the riddle of the sphinx. More than 2,000 miles of touring with the rival calvacades leaves an impression of uncertainty and unsettlement among the voters. Part of it is a great dry region, dryest in the state. Parts of it are the wettest, and in some of the regions the Democrats have always been strong.

Three Groups to Please.

The concentration of effort in Egypt has been directed at three particular elements, first the industrial vote in the great St. Louis-Alton sector, the largest industrial district outside the Chicago region, second the mining vote in the southern Illinois coal fields and third the farm vote in the areas where the drought wrought its worst.

The wet and dry question and general conditions of business agriculture and employment have been the outstanding themes. Of the four congressional districts in Egypt, two are traditionally dry—the Mount Vernon and Shawneetown districts—and two are wet—Cairo and East St. Louis districts. Tremendous audiences have been attracted by both Mrs. McCormick and Mr. Lewis. Local politicians declare the size of the crowds and the intensity of interest displayed have seldom been equalled even in a presidential year. From all indications the electorate is what the politicians call "seething," but so far as determining how the Egyptians are going to vote next month the local politicians are tearing their hair and saying they're a mile up in the air.

Anti-Saloon League Waning.

Some tendencies, however, seem to be quite protruberant. During the trouping with the rival caravans, observers have noted a waning influence of the Anti-Saloon league in counties where it used to be a strong factor in politics. In southern Illinois for the most part it is treated by both sides as almost negligible.

Churchgoers in cities visited by Mrs. McCormick and Mr. Lewis in the last two weeks south of the old National trail, spoken to outside of the meetings, have been declaring a growth of sentiment is manifest among the bone drys themselves toward liberalization in the interests of temperance and sobriety. In the dryest counties, for example, those along the Wabash, which have a reputation for chronic dryness, the usual adjustments noted in the rest of the country have taken place. In the dryest towns those who want it can get it, provided they do not make a parade.

Economic Questions Emphasized.

In many of these places wet and dry questions not making much of a ripple, economic issues being given the play. In other dry places, like Marion and Carbondale, the referendum plank of the Republicans is reported to have made headway to the extent that dry Republicans and dry Democrats are talking for it, while the wet Republicans are said to be keeping intact within their party instead of being attracted by the dripping wet plank of the Democrats.

Mr. Lewis in his argument for state control of the liquor question has been declaring that the Republican state party of New York has taken the Democratic wet plank of Illinois, and that Dwight Morrow is running as Republican candidate for senator from New Jersey on the same sort of wet plank with the support of President Hoover. Mr. Lewis in all his speeches says he is a dry, does not use liquor himself, and his arguments against national prohibition are thrown on an ethical basis, an appeal to the churchgoing vote, the drys, on the ground of temperance and sobriety, and a return to the early principles of the American government, state rights, local self government, and home rule on the question.

Political Curiosity.

Mr. Lewis, at Carbondale, in reviewing the results of the last week in Egypt, said today:

"The prevailing sentiment at present seems to be one of curiosity; the voters all want to see the candidates and, above all, they want to hear what they have to say on conditions in the way of suggested remedies and what can be done—hence the great crowds. It's a formative campaign at present."

At Harrisburg last night—in the coal fields—where Mrs. McCormick had a great audience last week, Mr. Lewis was met by a crowd that packed the city hall auditorium, and 95 per cent of it was male.

Two Views on Depression.

The Republicans have been emphasizing the argument that unemployment and the economic situation are only a reflection of a world-wide situation for which the Republican administration is no more responsible than for the spots on the sun and is making the appeal that in times of trouble the Republican party is the good old reliable for the best work. The Democrats have been calamity howling to some extent and have been chalking it up to Hoover.

Little Heard of Mrs. O'Neill.

South of the old national pike in the last two weeks' peregrinations hardly a word has been heard of Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent dry.

As yet, no indications have appeared that she has been taken up by the churchgoing Republican drys, while Democratic drys, who many conjecture might be drawn to her candidacy as betwixt and between the old party lines, where they are shifting from the old party, are reported to be saying they'll support the Republican ticket instead, regarding a vote for an independent as a vote thrown away.

D'ANNUNZIO GIVES HIS VILLA TO ITALY AS A MUSEUM AFTER DEATH

GARDONA RIVIERA, Italy, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Gabriel d'Annunzio, poet and heroic wartime figure, signed a convention today with Balbino Giuliano, minister of national education, by which he consigned his Villa Vittoriale and park with all of its historic furnishings to the State of Rome.

D'Annunzio will continue to live at Vittoriale but after his death the propety is to become a public park and museum. The poet made the first offer of the villa to the state in December, 1923, the negotiations are only now being concluded.

In the beautiful villa is a valuable collection of documents relating to the world war and particularly bearing upon the Fiume incident, in which D'Annunzio played the principal rôle.

7 CAPITALISTS GIVE $195,000 TO WET CAUSE

Crane Donates $25,000; Raskob, $30,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Seven wealthy business men, including Richard T. Crane Jr. of Chicago, contributed $195,000 to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment during June, July, and August, the association reported today to the clerk of the house of representatives.

Mr. Crane, who is president of the Crane company of Chicago, donated $25,000 to the wet cause.

Raskob Gives $30,000.

Others in the "big seven" list of contributors were:

John J. Raskob, New York, chairman of the Democratic national committee, $30,000; Pierre S. Dupont, Wilmington, Del., chairman of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co., $30,000; Lammont Dupont, Wilmington, Del., $30,000; Edward S. Harkness, New York, director of the Southern Pacific and other railroads, $30,000; Arthur Curtiss James, New York, chairman of the Western Pacific railroad and president of the Curtis Southwestern corporation, $25,000; Eldridge R. Johnson, Camden, N. J., former president of the Victor Talking Machine company, $25,000.

Twenty-two other contributors gave the association more than $1,000 each during the three months period. They included Marshall Field, who gave $5,000.

Bar Breweries.

No contributions were accepted from brewery or distillery interests, the report said.

The association reported total expenditures of every kind amounting to $583,790 for the first eight months of 1930. Of this total $160,000 or 27 per cent was reported as directly chargeable to political work.

The report showed the total receipts from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 to be $528,686 of which $413,945 was contributed by 649 members in sums of $100 or over and the remainder by 13,435 contributors in smaller amounts, including 3,403 who gave a dollar each.

Wet Forces Make Gains.

During the eight months, Charles H. Sabin, treasurer of the association, declared today "The repeal forces made impressive inroads on the dry strength in congress—with a gain already of 38 seats—and more seats will be won by repeal advocates in the election of Nov. 4."

"The difference between our report and the reports filed by the Anti-Saloon league and similar dry organizations," he added, "Is that we report every single dollar of both income and outgo of every kind, whereas the dry organizations report only a few dollars handled by special 'political committees' which they trump up each year for campaign purposes."

County Schools' Vacation Winners

PICK 3 PUPILS AS VACATION CONTEST VICTORS

Win Over 1,000 in County Schools.

Seven juvenile experts in the art of summer vacationing met yesterday in the county building to convince County Superintendent Edward J. Tobin and six judges that at least three rural school pupils are worthy of financial recognition of their successes in Cook county's first annual vacation contest.

It took just three hours of quizzing and another hour of deciding before the judges named Henry Erffmeyer, 14 years old, a freshman in Thornton Township High school, as the most proficient in utilizing his leisure hours during the summer, and having performed the outstanding vacation achievement among 1,000 county school pupils. He was awarded a prize of $50 as a savings account.

Hilda Finke, 14 years old, an eighth grade pupil in the Elk Grove school in Main township, won the second prize of $25, and Lorraine Wolf, 12 years old, in the seventh grade of school district No. 145, Oak Forest, was third with a $15 prize. Honorable mention went to Leroy Cooper, 13 years old, in the eighth grade of school district No. 136, Orland.

A hen and 19 chickens he owned four years ago probably were responsible for Henry's business success. By this summer the brood had increased to 75 laying hens, 101 cockerels and 107 pullets. He sold the cockerels this summer for $46.25. He also sold eggs, earned $18.33 for pulling onions and $25 from the sale of vegetables raised in his garden.

Hilda, rosy cheeked and golden haired, told how her acre of corn had produced over 100 bushels on the cob and 50 bushels shelled. She also raised chickens and improved her cultural project by voluminous reading.

The judges were Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, health commissioner; Dr. William A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE; Dr. A. E. Winship, editor of Journal of Education, and delegates representing Julius Rosenwald, Victor Olander, and Miss Mary McDowell.

SOFIA GOES WILD OVER BETROTHAL OF KING BORIS

Thousands Storm Palace, Shout Congratulations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 4.—The Bulgarian capital today presented the spectacle of King Boris being carried on the shoulders of the populace like a football hero as the citizens went wild over the announcement of his engagement to Princess Giovanna, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

During the wild demonstration several women and children were seriously injured in the crush. They were treated at emergency stations. Reports that six children had been fatally injured could not be confirmed.

A group of students suddenly emerged from the surging, wildly cheering mass before the palace as King Boris appeared. The students seized him and carried him across the square fronting the royal palace and back again.

"Purely a Case of Love."

A demonstration followed Premier Liaptcheff's congratulations in the name of the cabinet and the Bulgarian people, and his declaration to the crowd that the royal engagement was "purely a case of love and nothing else."

Church bells burst into a joyous clamor, and total strangers enthusiastically shook hands in the streets. Hundreds of officials registered at the royal palace, indicating their congratulations. The tens of thousands who flocked to the palace cheered wildly for Princess Giovanna.

The celebrations grew as the afternoon progressed, and late this evening took expression in a huge, tumultuous parade which was witnessed by the king and his court. The crowd was augmented by thousands of school children, who had been given a holiday.

Italy Hails Union.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 4.—The official announcement of the engagement of Princess Giovanna to King Boris of Bulgaria was greeted throughout Italy with popular rejoicing and acclaim. The wedding, according to diplomatic circles, may take place as early as Nov. 15. It will be held in the Bulgarian capital. It was announced tonight that a Catholic marriage will be performed first, and afterward the Greek orthodox ceremony. It is pointed out here, however, that there is practically no difference between the two sacraments.

The marriage between the Bulgarian sovereign and the Italian princess was made possible after much negotiation and an agreement that Princess Giovanna should remain Catholic and her future husband Greek orthodox, and that their children be baptized and educated under the Catholic faith. According to canon law, article 1060, the pope may give dispensation for the marriage of a Catholic and a Protestant.

Heir May Change Religion.

The fact that Boris and Giovanna will preserve their respective religions does not mean that their heir who may come to the Bulgarian throne will remain Catholic. According to the arrangement, the children will be Catholic. When the heir to the throne comes of age, however, he will change his religion to the orthodox faith. The Bulgarian constitution requires that the king must be orthodox.

Premier Mussolini's consent was also given to the marriage and politically it is popular in Italy, as forging a link between Italy and Bulgaria and thus strengthening Italy in her Balkan rivalries. It was emphasized, however, that the marriage is not political, but the outcome of a romance in which King Boris became convinced of his affections when he came to Rome last January to attend the wedding of Giovanna's brother, Prince Humbert, to Princess Maria José of Belgium. Political rapports, however, will be strengthened in the sphere where Italy wants to increase her influence.

MARY WALLER, ISABEL GREENLEE BECOME BRIDES

Sarah Wood Makes Bow to Society.

Two important weddings—those of Miss Isabel Greenlee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Greenlee of 7 Scott street, to John F. P. Farrar, son of Mrs. Fentress Farrar of Memphis, Tenn., and of Miss Mary Trigg Waller to James Monroe Carry—and a debutante tea given by Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood for their daughter, Miss Sarah Stires Wood, were events of yesterday.

Miss Greenlee's and Mr. Farrar's wedding took place at noon at St. Chrysostom's chapel in the presence of a small group of relatives and intimate friends, and was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Greenlee residence.

Wears Mother's Wedding Dress.

The bride wore her mother's wedding dress of cream colored lace and a tulle veil and bridal cap of seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. The two attendants, Miss Lillian Dudley and Miss Jeanette Peterkin, wore aquamarine chiffon frocks, brown velvet hats trimmed with aquamarine ostrich plumes, and carried bouquets of Talisman roses and brown orchids. Mr. Farrar and his bride are to reside at 2000 Lincoln Park West after they return from their wedding trip.

Miss Waller's bridal gown was of ivory velvet, and her veil and cap were trimmed with old family rosepoint. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. The attendants, Mrs. Arthur B. Treman of Ithaca, N. Y., the matron of honor; Miss Peggy Carry, maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Jeanne Beeson of New York, Miss Betty McCann of Short Hills, N. J., Miss Jane Martin and Miss Margaret Grassell, wore varying shades of yellow, russet, and brown, with brown velvet hats and slippers, and carried chrysanthemums.

Wed at Bride's Home.

The wedding took place at 5 o'clock at the Highland Park residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Trigg McElwee Waller, and was followed by a reception.

Miss Wood wore a dress of pale blue lace with a tracery of silver threads and held a bouquet of pink roses as she received with her mother and sisters, Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis and Miss Frances Wood, from 4 to 7 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence of her parents in Highland Park. Mrs. Wood wore dark blue chiffon, Mrs. Tullis black, and Miss Frances robin's egg blue.

SEIZE WOUNDED 'PANTS BANDIT'; HE CONFESSES

Walter McIntosh, 28 years old, 10324 South Peoria street, traced through four bullet wounds inflicted on Friday by one of his victims, confessed last night that he is the "pants bandit" who has been robbing Consumers Tea stores.

Capt. Michael Grady and Sergt. Russel Richards captured McIntosh at the home of William Sturgis, 224 West 106th street, after a canvass of drug stores had revealed the purchase by Mrs. Sturgis of drugs for treating bullet wounds.

McIntosh was shot by Jesse Dillman, manager of the Consumers store at 202 West 111th street, who had been warned of the robber's tactics of forcing his victims to undress and locking them in a wash room. Dillman placed a rifle in the wash room and then bored holes in the partition. When the bandit appeared Dillman surrendered $20, disrobed and was thrust in the wash room. From there he opened fire.

Bandits Get Hidden Money; Woman Spy Is Suspected

Two bandits last night held up the dress shop of Mrs. Fred Gode at 4712 Lincoln avenue and obtained $40 from the cash register and $50 which Mrs. Gode had hidden in a cigar box in a rear room. Mrs. Gode had gone to the hiding place a few minutes before to make change when a blonde woman customer offered a $20 bill. The police believe the customer may have been a confederate of the robbers.

JACK OAKIE IS QUIZZED ABOUT GIRL'S SUICIDE

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 4.—Wisecracking Jack Oakie, stage and screen star, today said that he "hardly knew" Mrs. Marian Lowry, a pretty divorcée who committed suicide in Toledo, O., Friday, leaving a diary in which Oakie's name figured prominently.

"I met her with a party of friends and was out with her only once," Oakie said.

The coroner's office in Toledo was attempting to communicate with Oakie to find out if he knows anything further about the suicide.

Mrs. Lowry's diary, found near her body, contained as its last entry an account of the woman's stage door meeting with Oakie and of visits to roadhouses and automobile rides.

"I was in Toledo for a week, playing at the Paramount theater, and I was introduced to the woman at the stage door one afternoon; then we were out riding together, just once," Oakie said.

It was Wednesday night they were together, he explained. The next night the divorcée borrowed a gun from her landlady and killed herself in her room.

Oakie Mystified, He Says.

Oakie said that a few hours before he left Toledo authorities asked him about his acquaintance with Mrs. Lowry.

"They had the diary then and told them all I knew," he said today. "I don't know what they want of me now. You know all I know."

Mrs. Lowry, who was 30, was the mother of an 8 year old boy.

Coroner Frank G. Kreft of Toledo announced over the phone this afternoon that he would seek a sworn statement from Oakie in connection with the death of Mrs. Lowry. According to the coroner, Mrs. Lowry and the motion picture star attended a party together Thursday night, a few hours before she killed herself.

"I will ask Oakie to make a sworn statement as to whether he attended that party and if he does not make the statement willingly I will issue a subpoena for him," the coroner said.

Landlady Tells Story.

Toledo, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The name of Jack Oakie, the talkie star, appeared several times in the diary of Mrs. Marian Lowry, 30, who was found Friday morning in her apartment, a bullet through her head.

"She told me she was mad about Oakie," Mrs. Bessie Billingsley, her landlady, told the coroner's jury today.

ELECTRIC TRAINS IN N. Y. TERMINAL PROVE BONANZA

Road's Yearly Net Return Passes $12,000,000.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Article No. 5.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The most profitable investment ever made by the New York Central railroad was the electrification of its New York passenger terminal. Profitable? Why, the word conveys but a pale and feeble notion of the facts. Electrification for the New York Central turned out to be a bonanza compared with which the Comstock lode wasn't even pay dirt.

The entire cost of electrification, including the change in motive power electric equipment, and the new, enlarged terminal, is estimated to have been not more than $35 000 000. C. C. Paulding, vice president of the New York Central, general counsel and publicity director, said it was impossible to say what the cost had been. Then he grinned that omnidental grin for which he is famous. I got the estimate of $65,)0.000 from another but not less authoritative source.

Reimbursed for Outlay.

Now it appears that the New York Central in the 18 years since electrification of the terminal was completed has been reimbursed for the outlay several times over in the volume of traffic it has been able to handle with electric trains over and above the volume it ever would have been able to handle with steam propelled trains.

But that doesn't begin to tell the story. The railroad not only electrified its terminal, but it depressed and roofed over its tracks for a distance of several miles from the station. Then on the roof of the tracks it built office buildings or leased the right to other corporations to build office buildings, hotels, apartment buildings, and other structures.

What was once an unsightly expanse of railroad yards, noisy with puffing, shrieking locomotives and hurtling trains beneath a cinder laden pall of smoke, is now the aristocratic Park avenue quarter of the metropolis. Acres of splendid office buildings and apartment palaces now tower above the New York Central's right of way, where the electric trains glide out of sight and hearing of the man in the street.

Railroad Owns Ground.

And all his ground on which these structures rise as far north from the Grand Central station as the eye can see, is the property in fee simple of the New York Central. The air rights alone which it leases to building corporations yield a princely revenue to the railroad company. Mr. Paulding again said it was impossible to say how much this revenue amounted to. And again he turned upon me that grin compared with which the smile of the cat that swallowed the canary was a frown.

According to real estate expert opinion, the New York Central holdings in the Park avenue neighborhood and the improvements thereon aggregate in value considerably more than a quarter of a billion dollars. The net revenue accruing to the railroad from this vast real estate investment resulting from electrification of its terminal is estimated at more than $12,000,000 a year. At this rate the railroad is being more than reimbursed every six years for the total outlay for electrification. The Comstock lode gave out at last, but there is no imagining the New York Central's Park avenue bonanza coming to an end.

Vice President Paulding said there are about 20 buildings erected on the road's air rights, but he said he was unable to give figures as to revenue or valuations. The city tax department lists 24 parcels of land on the New York Central right of way in the Park avenue quarter, the assessed value of which in 1903, when electrification was begun, was $13,603,000. The 1930 assessed valuation of this same land together with the improvements thereon is $179,000,000.

Did They Foresee Its Value?

Whether William K. Vanderbilt, J. P. Morgan the elder, Chauncey Depew, and the other directors of the road back in 1903 foresaw the real estate bonanza that would accrue from electrification long has been a matter of speculation. Some think that if they had foreseen it they would have been more eager from the start to electrify.

When the railroad submitted its electrification plans to the city in 1903 it was found that they provided for partial but not complete depression of the tracks. The depression was not to be sufficient to allow the opening across the right of way of the numerous east and west streets which had been closed except for the wooden foot bridges over the open railroad yards. The company proposed to purchase these closed street areas from the city. Had that plan gone through, the company would have a larger amount of ground today, but with the cross streets closed it might not be so valuable.

What happened was that E. M. Grout, the city controller, insisted that the tracks be depressed sufficiently to allow the reopening of the cross streets across the roofed over right of way. The late Ira Place, vice president of the New York Central, objected and withdrew the plans from consideration. A few weeks later he brought them back revised to meet the city's demands for complete depression of the tracks. As a result tracks were put under ground, the cross streets were opened, and that entire quarter of the city was completely regenerated.

Not Only Bonanza for Road.

Park avenue is not the only electrification bonanza possessed by the New York Central. After the public agitation of a quarter of a century the company now is electrifying its freight line on the west side of Manhattan island and removing the tracks from grade. This work is to cost the company, the state, and the city jointly $175,000,000.

As in the case of the Park avenue improvement, the freight tracks are to be roofed over. The result will be the creation of air rights almost as valuable as those in the Park avenue neighborhood. The company's freight line electrification plan calls for the erection of gigantic warehouses over these tracks as far north as 13th street. In the course of time the revenue from the lease of these air rights will entirely reimburse the company for the cost of electrification and its share of the cost of removal of the tracks from grade.

TWO WARDS JOIN IN DEDICATION OF DAMEN BRIDGE

The opening of the new Damen avenue improvement, a $3,500,000 bridge and viaduct across the south channel of the river, was celebrated yesterday by residents of the Twelfth and Twenty-first wards. Officials of the city, including Mayor Thompson, led by Aldermen Dennis A. Horan [21st] and B. J. Zintak [12th], whose wards the improvement connects, attended the dedication ceremonies.

The bridge proper consists of two spans, the one from the north bank, which will open for ships, stretching 140 feet across the river with a 26 foot clearance. The south span of 220 feet is fixed but has a clearance of 28 feet to provide a clear channel for the passage of canal barges.

The ceremonies were opened with a parade from Damen avenue and Cullerton street to the bridge. After the ribbon was cut opening the roadway, speeches were made by Charles V. Barrett, member of the board of review; Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements; Ald. Horan, and Congressman A. J. Sabath.

POLA'S PRINCE ESCORTS OPERA STAR TO LINER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Rumors that Mary McCormic will be the second Princess Mdivani were revived today when the opera singer departed on the Bremen boat train accompanied by Pola Negri's husband.

Mary's name did not appear on the Bremen's sailing list and she was only discovered by accident sitting in a compartment of the train, next to an armful of orchids, from which Prince Serge Mdivani was seen to emerge. The prince explained that he was only riding to Cherbourg to say good-by to Mary and announced he would "make a statement to the newspapers tomorrow."

Pola and Prince Mdviani were recently reconciled after a temporary separation, but friends of the couple say that Pola never intended to drop the divorce suit and that a new petition will be filed soon.

ROBBER OF LAKE FOREST HOME IS SENT TO ASYLUM

Antonio Rendon, 34 years old, 24 North Carpenter street, a Mexican, who was captured in Lake Forest early Thursday morning, two hours after he had held up the home of Mrs. Leverett Thompson, 788 Woodland road, Lake Forest, yesterday was found mentally unbalanced and committed to Elgin hospital for the insane at a hearing in Waukegan.

Rendon became violent when attempts were made to question him concerning the robbery of the William V. Kelley home in Lake Forest. Authorities said he will be brought to trial if after observation it is found he is pretending.

In the event of his recovery he also will face charges of robbing the home of Jacob Kahn at 3630 Bosworth avenue, Chicago. Both Bosworth and his wife identified Rendon and said he stopped to make himself sandwiches in their kitchen as he did in the Thompson home.

RAID BREWERY AND OFFICE AS DRUGGAN JOINTS

Men and Guns Seized with Beer List.

A brewery and an office, the latter believed to be a headquarters of the George Druggan valley gang, were raided by detectives under Pat Roche, chief investigator of the state's attorney's office, yesterday afternoon. Five men were arrested and a .32 caliber revolver and two shotguns were found.

The brewery, which included an elaborate cooperage works and complete paraphernalia for the manufacture of beer, was found at 2157 Blue Island avenue. Four men, Charles Sphabinger, 4015 West 21st street; Thomas Cline, 214 North Hamlin avenue; Alexander Kryl, 3506 West 26th street, and Vander Burch, colored, of 1342 West 14th street, were seized there.

Phone Clew to Office.

The detectives, led by David Levin, found the revolver and a telephone instrument concealed in a large packing box in a corner of the brewery. The telephone was connected by a private line with the office at 1530 West 22d street, which bore a sign, "Tilsen Iron Works."

There the raiders arrested Edward M. Cullen, 810 South Oakley avenue, and seized a bank book showing deposits of $1,300 made at the Kasper Avenue State bank by Thomas M. Vaughn in two weeks preceding Oct. 1.

Find Rum Trade Records.

The two shotguns, one of them a sawed off model, and hundreds of rounds of ammunition, were found in the supposed bootlegging headquarters. The detectives found a large number of record sheets, showing deliveries of beer in Chicago and surrounding territory, as far away as Milwaukee, Wis.

Key names were used for the beer joints to which deliveries were credited, such as "Red 5," "Widow 10," "Joe 4," etc. A card index system was also found, with the names of supposed bootleggers, of which "Phone Rôosement, 8380, ask for Petey," was typical.

The prisoners were taken to Roche's headquarters for questioning. Burch, according to the detectives, declared the brewery and office belonged to the George Druggan outfit.

DRY U. S. DRANK UP 876,320,718 GALLONS IN YEAR

Woodcock Issues First Liquor Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—More than three-fourths of a billion gallons of alcoholic beverages were placed on the market in dry America during the year ended last June 30, according to an estimate compiled by prohibition bureau experts and made public today by Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

The dry bureau statisticians, from their study of the sources and consumption of liquor, deduced that during the year there were manufactured or imported 73,386,718 gallons of "hard liquor," 118,476,200 gallons of wine, nd 684,447,800 gallons of beer, a grand total of 876,320,718 gallons.

Translated into per capita figures, these estimates would indicate that each man, woman, and child in the United States during the year had to drink about 2.5 quarts of spirits, 4 quarts of wine, and 5.7 quarts of beer.

First Woodcock Report.

In issuing the report, which is the first of its kind ever officially compiled by a government agency, Director Woodcock asserted that the figures represent "a scholarly and unbiased effort to find the truth." The studies were made by E. A. Grant and E. P. Sanford of the division of research and public information, a new branch of the dry unit created by Mr. Woodcock when he took office last July.

"It is not scientifically possible," said the report, "to ascertain the exact amount of alcoholic beverage consumed, but a fairly close estimate can be made of the amount that might be produced by surveying the production of those commodities from which liquor is made, accounting for all the legitimate uses to which these commodities are put, and assuming that the balance could be converted into alcoholic beverages.

"Whether the total amount of possible production is the same as the amount consumed, no one can tell. The figures, however, are a fair indication of consumption.

"The facts assembled are taken from reports of the departments of commerce, agriculture and census, and special surveys made by investigators of the departments of justice and the treasury."

Indicate Drop in Consumption.

The dry bureau's estimate was that the "possible production" of liquor in the fiscal year 1930 represented 40 per cent of the amount upon which taxes were paid in 1914, the last year of "normal full production" before enactment of the 18th amendment. Statements that liquor consumption is greater now than before prohibition, therefore, were labelled as "unwarranted."

The conclusions of Mr. Woodcock's experts, however, differed greatly from those of other research workers, including John C. Gebhart, secretary for the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment; Hugh C. Fox, secretary of the United States Brewers' association, and Robert E. Corradini, research secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism. In general, the Gebhart and Fox estimates were that liquor consumption was twice as large as those of the dry bureau, while those of Corradini were smaller.

The dry bureau report, a bulky volume of 80 pages, presented detailed estimates of the production of all liquor raw materials, including corn sugar, beet and cane sugar, corn and other grains, molasses, grapes, hops, and malt, as well as estimates of smuggled liquor and diverted alcohol.

A summary of the findings showed the tremendous popularity of corn sugar as a hard liquor ingredient. It was calculated that 46 million gallons of spirits were distilled from corn sugar, 10 million gallons from cane or beet sugar, 4 million from grains, 10 million from diverted industrial alcohol, and that 3½ million gallons were smuggled.

Of the wine supply it was estimated that 118 million gallons were made from grapes and raisins, while only 156,000 gallons were smuggled.

Approximately 683 million gallons of home brew or malt liquor were manufactured, the report estimates, while aproximately 1½ million gallons of malt liquor were smuggled.

Woman in Divorce Case Is Dead from Poisoning

Mrs. Nancy Ford, 25 years old, who was found unconscious from a sedative in her room at the Palmer house on Friday, died yesterday in Mercy hospital. Mrs. Ford and her husband, Dr. William K. Ford of Rockford, each had filed suits for divorce, charging cruelty, recently and the police believe Mrs. Ford took the drug with suicidal intent after a conference in Chicago Thursday had failed to effect a reconciliation. A will which Mrs. Ford made last week is said to leave her personal estate of $25,000 to Dr. Ford.

FRENCH CLEAN UP MOROCCO BEFORE PRESIDENT'S VISIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 4.—In paving the way for the forthcoming visit of President Gaston Doumergue to Morocco, the French military authorities are cleaning up regions where rebel tribesmen are quartered. An airplane squadron under the command of the famous war ace, Pelletier d'Oisy, has just returned to Marrakesh after a raid in the south Ouaouizert region, where several tons of high powered explosives were dropped on the hostile tribes to keep them quiet during the presidential tour.

REVEALS RUSSIA BUYS IN U. S. AS BAIT FOR CREDIT

America Ranks Second in Exports to Russia.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 4.—"The United States is a bunch of suckers in failing to recognize the soviet government, and everywhere I went abroad I found the argument that America should not recognize Russia, while everywhere abroad Russia is recognized and the European countries are getting all of the business."—Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

"The recognition of Russia would be the moral and sensible thing to do, but while I have not changed my mind regarding communism, Russia, to my mind, represents the greatest potential market in the world for American made goods."—S. Stanwood Menken, president of the National Security league.

"The Russian five year plan of industrial expansion is not designed to flood the work markets with cheap products, but primarily to supply the needs of the Russian people."—Officials of Arthur G. McKee & Co. of Cleveland, which is sending engineers to Russia to help build industrial plants.

America Losing No Business.

In the mass of communist propaganda flooding America it would be difficult to find three more serious misstatements of facts than the above quotations, which are taken from two articles which recently appeared in THE TRIBUNE. To the Russian correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, who has been closely watching the developments in that country for the last ten years, and who has numerous sources of accurate information as to what is proceeding within that country, all three statements are ridiculous.

From official soviet trade statistics it cannot be proved that America is losing Russian business by failing to recognize the soviet government. On the contrary, because the United States ha refused to recognize the communist dictatorship in Moscow, her trade balance with Russia is more favorable than any other country in the world which has opened diplomatic relations with Moscow. America is second to Germany in exports to Russia, and Germany occupies first place only because she is granting Russia long term credits amounting to about $200,000,000.

Pay Cash in U. S.

Most of America's business is being done on a cash basis, and what the New York banks think of Russian credit may be deduced from the fact that soviet bills for twelve months are discounted at the rate of 18 per cent and with 6 per cent added for interest, making a total of 24 per cent which the "soviet foreign trade monopoly" is paying for one year credit in the United States.

The large purchases and the favorable trade balance are only due to the fact that Washington has not recognized Moscow. The "foreign trade monopoly" has instructions from the communist party to place every order possible in the United States to impress American manufacturers with the possibilities of larger sales if recognition and resultant long term credits guaranteed by the United States government and the large banks can be obtained.

"Propaganda Purchases."

Only recently, when a movement developed in America to bar soviet exports produced with convict and forced labor, the communist party openly threatened to stop the soviet government's purchases unless soviet exports were permitted to enter American ports. It said that more favorable credits and lower prices could be had in other countries and admitted that its large purchases were being made chiefly for propaganda purposes.

As long as America continues her present policy of non-recognition our manufacturers can be sure of obtaining the lion's share of Russia's purchases abroad. And as has been the case with every European country which recognized bolshevism our trade will suffer a slump with recognition. Business is not business to a communist, business is propaganda. So Senator Wheeler's statement would read correctly if reversed into "the United States would be a bunch of suckers to recognize the soviet government."

In making the statement that "Russia represents the greatest potential market in the world for American goods" S. Stanwood Menken makes two serious blunders.

Russia is an extremely limited market. Under fourteen years of bolshevism every trace of European culture has been or is being eradicated. Russia today is Asia with Asia's standard of living. There is no market for automobiles, radios, bathtubs, or toothpaste. There are less than 3,000 motion picture machines in the entire country.

Under bolshevism the Russian, as a consumer, has reached the zero point. His most primitive needs are not satisfied by the bolshevik bureaucracy. He is underpaid, undernourished, and exists under more congested conditions than ever prevailed in any American ghetto or Chinatown.

No Potential Consumer.

To make Russia a potential consumer will require several generations of adequate education and millions of dollars worth of advertising to introduce the standards of European civilization back into that country. It will also require the collapse of the communist régime and the "soviet trade monopoly," which has erected an unscalable wall around the "red empire."

Russia today, and so long as bolshevism continues, will only purchase what she has to abroad to build her own industry and further enslave her robots. With this slave operated industry she plans to try to overturn the capitalist industry of the world.

Mr. Menken's second error in judging Russia as a great potential market is that Russia, up until now, has never produced wealth, but only consumed it. Whenever she desired to make purchases abroad she borrowed money to do it, and never paid it back.

All Wealth Confiscated.

All the wealth that poured into Russia from France, Germany, England, and America was confiscated through nationalization. The bolsheviks just wiped the slate clean and turned to the world with a winning smile and an itching palm, wanting to borrow some more. But while manufacturers have not, still the banks have, long memories and while a few manufacturers have granted Russia small credits, no loans have been forthcoming.

The only security Russia can offer at present for loans of money to make purchases is the calm assurance that all of the forces and resources of Russia are being directed towards one end, and that is to make as much trouble for the world as it possibly can with its potentialities. In return for being helped to her feet, Russia promises a world revolution.

Now as to the third statement made by officials of Arthur G. McKee & Co., assuring America that Russia is only going to produce for herself and isn't going to dump her goods abroad. Today Russia has begun an attempt to disorganize the world markets by dumping articles of every description abroad.

Here are a few concrete facts about the bolshevik's dumping policy:

In Russia there is an acute famine in soap. Workers in favored industries receive a ration of one pound of soap per month. Yet shiploads of soviet soap have been sold in England at $15 per ton cheaper than soap made in England.

In Russia no single person receives more than two pounds of sugar a month. The soviet coöperatives sell it for $20 per pound. In the Baltic states soviet sugar can be purchased at every grocery store for 6 cents a pound, and soviet candies are being sold in Germany, England, and America at prices cheaper than home made sweets.

There is also a famine in textiles in Russia, where women are only permitted to purchase six yards of calico a year. But the soviet textile trust is exporting textiles to the Baltic states, South Africa, Persia, China, and the Mediterranean countries.

The same applies to coal, rubber products, fruits, butter, eggs, poultry, and a host of other products.

Russian linen factories are closed more than half the year because of a lack of raw material. The Baltic states are flax exporters. Last year Russia suddenly upset the flax market by exporting almost 40,000 tons which it sold at $45 per ton under the market price. Latvia, with a flax monopoly, thought Russia would not go lower, so it stabilized its price at $280 per ton and made advances to its farmers on this oasis. Just now the soviets have again begun to sell flax abroad, offering it for $200 per ton. Russia has ruined the timber market in the same way.

In the "capitalistic world," to quote Moscow, all prices, quotations, schedules and costs are figured on a gold basis. The value of currency is known and it figures as the basis for all estimates. In Russia this is not so. There has been a steady inflation of the soviet currency unit, the chervonetz, for the last four years. The soviet government forces each of its 10,000,000 employés to subscribe to successive internal loans, which nationalizes the surplus money for which they have no use. In this way the communist economists can rightly claim there is no inflation.

Another trick, which greatly helps reducing manufacturing costs, is forced labor. The entire timber industry of Russia, from Vladivostok to the Leningrad district is operated with prisoners. The cost of feeding these "slaves" is less than two cents per day and the hatchets, which the Russians use instead of axes and saws, cost but little, no clothing is furnished. Since it costs almost nothing to produce soviet timber, it is now arriving at American ports at attractively low prices. The same applies to coal and oil products.

Estates Are Held Intact.

Many Americans labor under the delusion that with the revolution all of the large estates in Russia were divided among the land hungry peasantry. This is not true. The majority of the estates were held intact and are operated as sovhozi (soviet economies). Under thirteen years of communist management they haven't been able to show a profit because their produce has been taken over by the government for export or internal consumption at extremely low prices.

About 30 per cent of the 25,000,000 farms in Russia, according to Commissar Stalin, have been collectivized, that is, organized into communes with a communist bossing each. These communes operate on a factory basis, all members of the peasant's family being on the pay roll. A shepherd boy gets five cents per day and his father 25 cents, while his mother gets 15 cents. The commune's crops also are turned over to the government at prices fixed by the government to be sold abroad by the government.

The commissars are frank regarding their policy. They say that dumping industrial products abroad makes for industrial unrest and dumping grain abroad intensifies the farm problem. The result of this policy, they claim, will make both the foreign worker and the farmer class conscious and teach them to hate the other classes and join the communist party and whoop it up for world revolution.

12 INDICTED BY U. S. FOR MINE BOMBING FROM AN AIRPLANE

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The federal grand jury today returned indictments against 12 of the 14 persons under arrest in connection with the airplane bombing of coal mine properties in Webster county in August.

Those indicted are Paul Montgomery, Illinois aviator, who admitted piloting the plane; Edmond Heckelbeck and Raymond Edmund, Illinois miners, and Jasper Sigler, Carrol Vaughn, Elgin Morris, Essel Grant, Augus Merrit, Ewing Riley, Noble Harris, Harvey Davis and Mitchell Morrison, all of Webster county.

REMEMBER the days when starting an automobile was more trouble than harnessing Old Dobbin to the one hoss shay? Retard the spark, advance the gas, prime the motor, wiggle the gear shift to make sure it's in neutral. Then crawl out and tear your innards out turning over that dumb brute of an engine, only to have it cough and die out on you just as you had it started.

Well, you know what the self-starter did for motoring . . .

In radio, the Uni-Selector marks a similar advance towards ease of operation. No more frantically trying to manipulate several dials at once—every operation of the set is now centered under the fingers of one hand in one control.

Of course you'll want this new device. It's exclusive with Brunswick, and the new Brunswick, with Tone Control, the All-Armored Chassis, and the Rigid Tuning Scale, is the radio you'll want now and be glad to own for years to come.

CUBAN PRESIDENT WITHHOLDS USING HIS NEW POWERS

Signs Dictatorship Law; Goes for Week-End.

HAVANA, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The final step in legislation authorizing President Gerardo Machado y Morales to suspend constitutional guarantees in the Cuban republic was taken tonight.

Publication in the official gazette of the act of congress ratified last night following upon an all night session automatically made the bill a law, but it is understood the president has decided against putting the new weapon at his command into effect immediately.

Goes on Fishing Trip.

He was reported as intending to spend the week-end at Mariel, where he went fishing early today. The decree was taken to him shortly before noon and he signed it, but made no indication relative to the time when he would give the signal inaugurating its effectiveness.

The measure stipulates that President Machado may create a practical state of military law in Havana and suburbs, extending the condition to the whole republic at his discretion, for a period of 20 days preceding the November elections.

The decree, drafted by the president when a number of outbreaks in various parts of the island indicated Cuba might be following in the revolutionary footsteps of a number of other Latin American republics, gives him full power to use any measures he may consider necessary in case of emergency.

Discover Dynamite Plot.

National police tonight announced the discovery of a plot against the lives of a number of high government officials and placed under arrest Justo Martin of Marianao, said to be a habitual criminal, as the chief conspirator.

A large quantity of dynamite, several machine guns and a number of small arms with much ammunition were said to have been found at Martin's home when police raided it.

Martin was reported to have confessed planning to use the dynamite to destroy the Regla aqueduct.

YOUNG AVIATOR BREAKS JUNIOR FLIGHT RECORD

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Robert Buck, 16 year old Elizabeth, N. J., aviator, flying his own biplane, landed here today at 10:28 a. m. (Pacific standard time) after a total flying time of 28 hours 33 minutes, breaking the junior transcontinental flight record set recently by Eddie Schneider of Jersey City, N. J., by 1 hour and 8 minutes.

On the last stage of a seven stop flight Buck took off from Kingman, Ariz., at 8:06 a. m. (Pacific standard time) this morning, covering the distance to Los Angeles in 2 hours 22 minutes. The lad began his flight last Monday at Newark, N. J., and made stops at Martins Ferry, O.; Columbus, O.; Indianapolis, St. Louis, Wichita, Kas.; Albuquerque, N. M., and Kingman.

"I'm sure happy to have beaten the record," Buck said. "I'm going to try to beat Schneider's west to east record some time next week."

Married in New York

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Marc Connelly, Broadway wisecracker and author of the current theatrical hit, "The Green Pastures," and Miss Madeline Hurlock, a motion picture actress, were married by City Clerk Michael J. Cruise in the chapel of the municipal building shortly before noon today.

Little is known of the bride, who gave her age as 30 and her birthplace as Federalsburg, Md., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hurlock, reside. She gave her home as the Hotel Gotham, this city.

Connelly is the author and co-author of half a dozen Broadway hits of the last few years.

POLICE CHIEF'S SON GETS 18 MONTHS.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Glen Farrar, son of the chief of police of Beardstown, Ill., was sentenced to 18 months in the federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O., by Judge Louis Fitzhenry in the federal court here today for violation of the Volstead act. Court records show that Farrar had been convicted previously on liquor charges.

DOMINIONS UNITE TO FIGHT BRITISH RULE OF COURTS

Demand Privy Council Be Kept from Interfering.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Ireland has won the first round at the imperial conference. It has secured an agreement among the heads of the delegations to the principle that the judicial committee of the privy council shall have no right in the future to interfere with the decisions of the courts of any of the nations of the British commonwealth.

This means, so far as self governing nations are concerned, that the privy council disappears, although it will be retained for the use of Great Britain and the colonies which have not reached the stage of self government.

The new empire tribunal which J. H. Thomas, secretary of state for dominions, announced at the opening of the conference would be set up, now looks like it is to be a panel of dominion judges from which a court may be drawn when needed to decide disputes between member states of the empire.

Patrick McGilligan, minister of external affairs of the Irish Free State and leader of the Irish delegation, made it perfectly plain, however, that Ireland will not in any case surrender its right to an ultimate appeal to The Hague court. He is supported by Gen. James Barry Hertzog, premier of South Africa.

No meetings of the conference or committees were held today. The work will be resumed Monday, and Wednesday and Thursday will see, from an economic point of view, the most important meetings of the whole conference. These two days will be devoted to a plenary session at which the chiefs of the various delegations will set out their views and proposals, which they intend to bring before the conference.

It is understood both Canada and South Africa are coming out strongly for something resembling Lord Beaverbrook's empire trade policy. It will not be free trade they will recommend, but the extension of large preferences in customs duties among the states of the empire.

Trouble is certain to arise, however, over the question of taxing food coming into Great Britain. This is the only sort of preference most dominions are interested in, but the British Labor party is committed against any taxation of food, and the Conservative party is split wide open on the issue.

Without a tax on foreign food, however, it is impossible for Great Britain to give the dominions any effective preference. The Labor party has been playing with the idea of bulk purchase of food from the dominions, but there is no suggestion that this should not be at the world price, which is of little use to the dominions.

It is true that a section of the trade union movement in England has been flirting with the idea of protection, and the matter is certain to be discussed at the Labor party's annual conference at Llandudno Monday. This conference will be attended by Prime Minister MacDonald, who will return here in time for Wednesday's meetings of the plenary session of the imperial conference.

HEAD OF LOUISVILLE CLUB IS INDICTED FOR DRY LAW VIOLATIONS

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Sam H. Stone, president of the exclusive Pendennis club of Louisville and head of a cotton brokerage firm bearing his name, was indicted together with four former employés of the club by the federal grand jury here today on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Others indicted were E. Jutt, suspended manager of the club; Martin J. Cuneo, locker room attendant; Gunnar Kranstad, former athletic director, and William J. Benninger, former cigar counter attendant.

The indictments were the sequel of a sensational raid on the Pendennis club the night of Aug. 11, when federal dry agents said they seized a quantity of whisky in the locker rooms.

Mr. Stone is a brother of James C. Stone, vice chairman of the federal farm board.

Tia Juana Isn't Tia Juana; Gambling Casino Closes

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The doors of the Foreign Club at Tia Juana, oldest and largest gambling casino in lower California, were closed today, and that border city was without open gambling for the first time in its history.

FootTroubles
Cause Bad Health

They affect the body in many different ways. The feet swell, burn, ache, sharp pains under heels, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on marbles; corns, calluses, ingrown nails and bunions; excessive perspiration with offensive odor, overdeveloped ankles and legs, varicose veins, legs cramp, knees stiffen; pains in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulaton, with a weak and nervous feeling.

THE FARM PROBLEM AND THE CITIES.

Though Russian wheat gone bolshevist may depress the farmer's market more or less, the real farm problem is much farther down in the dark and too fertile soil of America. On the one side of the farm problem is a way of life and a set of social values long loved as a deep part of America's character and being. On the other side is industrial efficiency in producing crops. The one is social, the other economic, and, though the rural way of living has lost much of its authority as America moves cityward, few would wish to see it wholly disappear. Men still love the land, and their wish for ownership and rural independence and mastery of their own business leads them to endure economic handicaps and maladjustments in respect to modern industry in order to hang on. Though America has moved from 95 per cent ruralism to less than 30 per cent, many still hang on. Americans as a whole hope that somehow they can and will.

Our soil produces more than we know how to use, and an adjustment strictly economic would result no doubt in fewer farms and farmers. It would convert our countryside perhaps into a new suburbia where tracts of land are managed with industrial efficiency not in reference to a rural way of life with powers, wealth, and population widely distributed and individualized, but solely to supply the cities with required food and produce. Plantation methods in a new form, subject to the cities, probably would appear, and the old farm and fireside of the northern states would go forever.

But life is not strictly economic. Though we must adjust our lives to the industrial system that dominates this era, we may adjust our industrial system, at least to some extent, to desired ways of living. This we have done in important ways and will do more, if we retain human mastery over our agencies of living. The present farm probably cannot remain, but men still will want living on the land. The farm problem today lies in this struggle between a way of living with its own pattern of social values and an industrial method. It is a profound problem of adjustment between conflicting agencies and human interests.

The trouble with the farm is many things and diverse burdens, but all of it arises in America's change and growth and overbalanced productive power. On the demand side, says E. G. Nourse, strong competitors have arisen, especially in the cereals and live stock, while unrest in Europe, Russia, China, Mexico, and elsewhere has retarded the normal expansion of the market. In domestic consumption, dietary habits, fashions in clothes, well heated houses, even closed cars, have combined to reduce demands for farm products, and the decline of draft animals before the power of motors has curtailed further this demand.

On the supply side has come more land and more intensive use of land to enlarge the surplus, Nourse continues in the President's report on economic changes; new and efficient methods of scientific agriculture have been learned, and the mechanization of the farm has "stepped up" the productivity of man labor more than enough to offset the number of workers leaving agriculture. And in the farmer's market are higher freight rates, only in part offset by water transportation; increased handling and selling charges, and higher costs of containers, labor and facilities used in packing, storing, and processing products on their way to the consumer.

The farm problem is many problems, indeed; it is a group of difficulties that can be met not by tactical success in one issue but only by a strategic and far reaching policy aimed to adjust the rural way of living to our industrial system. Jefferson and his wide dreams and drems of western settlement and expansion founded America's rural system, so far as one man can found it. To reestablish America's rural life will take no less than Jeffersonian intelligence and vision.

Though the impact of the urban way of life and its industrial system of coal and steel and mass production has brought rural America to a low state, few Americans, even in the cities, would wish to see it totally destroyed. Without the farm and the small farmer and the villages dependent on him America would lack in balance and stability what it would gain in flexibility, sophistication, and in speed. History reports that lands where urban living supersedes entirely the rural way of life are headed for disaster and decay, their youth and youth producing areas gone, their potentialities and reserves drained away. And life in most men will report a story much the same. To save America's rural way of living as a vital element in the whole becomes a first problem in our statesmanship.

GENERALSHIP IN THE LATE WAR.

"Observe, my son," said the great Swedish statesman, Oxenstierna, philosophizing one day for the instruction of his offspring, "with how little wisdom mankind is governed." A reading of Capt. Liddell-Hart's book, "The Real War," suggests the same remark with a narrower application, for the brilliant British military student's summary of the strategy and tactics of the late war will impress the reader with a strong sense of the mediocrity and worse of generalship on both sides.

Perhaps modern war in its enormous scope and complexity makes it impossible for genius to develop and make itself effective throughout the vast mechanism it must control. But we distrust such a generalization, for costly blunders occurred where responsibility was direct and power adequate. Hindsight is, of course, easier than foresight, but one cannot but be impressed with errors of judgment which indicate a lack of a grasp of rudimentary military principles and the common sense which after all they express.

Most important of the lessons to be gained from the survey as a whole, we think, is that the staff system of higher control must be radically modified. A ghastly toll of life enforces the lesson that officers who are far from the fighting front, whose theories of an attack are often uncorrected by actual knowledge of the terrain, of the material means disposable, and of the moral factors involved, should not be empowered to send men into battle. Time and again the higher command launched offensives foredoomed to sanguinary failure because it not only did not take a wise long view but even lacked the necessary knowledge of physical and moral factors at the front involved. The third battle of Ypres or Passchendaele is a case in point. Capt. Liddell-Hart tells of one of the higher command who had been most insistent for the offensive in this sector, that after its breakdown he visited the ground for the first time. Confronting the huge sea of mud through which the troops had floundered to their destruction, he exclaimed, "My God, did we send men into that!" and burst into tears. Passchendaele not only dismally failed but because it was pressed stubbornly after its hopelessness should have become known to the faulty theorists far to the rear, it destroyed reserves that a little later were desperately needed to stem the German onslaught of March 21, 1918.

This was not only incompetent generalship. It was one of many illustrations of the shortcomings of a system which had made of the staff a military aristocratic caste, supposed to be specially fitted to direct while other men did the fighting. In past time it was the fighting general and the fighting men who had the high honors and high prestige, as they had the danger and the responsibility. But the modern staff system divorces the fighter from the director and puts him on a lower professional level.

Making all due allowance for the necessity which the scope of modern operations creates to keep the directing agency from the confusion and complication of the front, to give the higher command a reasonable security and freedom from distraction, the principle has been overdone and has been allowed to separate planning and theorizing from that knowledge of governing military realities upon which success depends.

No commander or staff, planning theoretically at a safe distance from the front, should have the authority to override the protest or the judgment of the combat officer on the ground who knows the tactical situation and the moral and material resources he must employ in an attack. The larger views of strategy may be, must be, left to higher command, but a tactical offensive should be determined upon and organized only with the collaboration and assent of the command which must carry it out. The higher staff's power should be restrained and its prestige deflated.

ADVICE TO THE WRECKERS.

The wreckers are at work again in Washington, on the streets this time, and wartime "tempos" and old shacks and ruins from even earlier dates are going down to make way for new marble grandeurs.

Americans will welcome their activities in our capital and will only wish the work extended further. With a steam shovel and a gang of men prompt benefits could be obtained by work on the Kellogg treaty and a good deal of tariff legislation. Large areas of the senate and the house of representatives could be cleaned off and planted out to corn. Some ancient bureau methods could be razed to make way for modern modes. Diplomatic and official dinners and the shacks of precedence and snobbery no doubt need the shovel and the wrecker's bar. Washington is full of needed business for the wrecking gang.

Editorial of the Day

"AL FOR ALL."

[Los Angeles Times.]

Recent dispatches coming out of Chicago quote Judge John P. McGoorty as saying that racketeering must be stamped out forever and "Scarface" Al Capone as responding by rallying the underworld to a fight to the finish. "Fight together or perish together," is the gangster's edict.

Will Chicago listen to judge or gangster?

Supergovernments are un-American. Sometimes they stick up their ugly heads in high places and sometimes they thrust their fangs from the underworld. But whether from greed or gang, they must be scotched.

Admonishing the grand jury, the judge said, "Let Chicago through you take the leadership among the great cities of the United States in fearlessly and unceasingly fighting these racketeers so long as the rights of labor and industry are threatened."

"Al for all and all for Al" is the battle cry of the gang.

"Al for all" has a lofty and engaging sound. It will catch the unwary. It is bait. "All for Al" is the hook and it will catch many poor fish. Al Capone is not in the racketeering business for his health nor for anybody else's health. He is a bandit and not a benefactor. Chicago business is estimated to be losing $136,000,000 annually to these parasites. Never was more ~~hateful~~ tribute levied upon any people. Business has sunk so low in the Windy City that firms pay these pirates to live. Unless industry unites to throw off the yoke it will be bled for yet huger sums. Some men may have to be martyrs to save the city. Sacrifices may have to be made commensurate with the depth to which that city has sunk. Here is a good chance for heroism. If Chicago be Al Capone's city, our boasted democracy is in jeopardy. How much farther can audacity hurl itself than "Al for all and all for Al"?

And some weaklings toy with this fireband in Los Angles!

OBVIOUSLY.

AMERICAN HEROES

JACOB BROWN

A Brief Review of His Contribution to Our Country.

(The articles of which the following is the twentieth are intended as five minute sketches of early Americans of particular achievement and distinction, each flashed briefly against the background of the times and conditions in which the subject made his contribution to the nation. Their names may be well or may be little known now to the generation which has inherited the benefits of wise, laborious, and, in many instances, heroic work.)

(Picture in Rotogravure Section.)

IN one of the dubious undertakings which characterized the second war between the United States and Great Britain on the Canadian frontier Sir James Yoe, in charge of the British fleet in Lake Ontario, and Sir George Prevost, in command of the troops at Kingston, took advantage of an opening to attack the American counter post at Sackett's Harbor, then exposed with a small garrison. Old Gen. Dearborn, worn by illness and low in spirits, was in charge of this field of action. He, with the American naval commander, Chauncey, was 150 miles westward, suffering mortification from the miscarriage of plans and from repulses encountered in attempts against Hamilton, Ont.

Kingston is old Fort Frontenac, at the head of the St. Lawrence river, where it flows out of Lake Ontario, recognized as the base of control of the lakes and of the Mississippi valley. It was the doorway to these regions and their depot of supplies. The whole chain of communications depended on it. Ontario was held by it. Sackett's Harbor was a half day sail from the British base. It was the American post for operations against the upper St. Lawrence.

Fortunately for the American issue in the affair, Yoe was not a man of resolution. He found light or adverse winds a cause for delay costing a full day. Neighborhood militia came to the support of the forts, but, still more fortunately for the defense, a veritable prodigy was uncovered by the emergency. His name was Brown, Jacob Brown, a militia officer, the son of a Pennsylvania Quaker family that had removed into New York, to Jefferson county. He was a Quaker by birth and upbringing and a school teacher by early profession, but he rates with Andrew Jackson as one of the fight'n'est fighters the United States army ever knew. Like Jackson, he could make other men fight. In personality alone he was worth several regiments. Gen. Dearborn must have had some preception or premonition of his worth, because when he departed for the west he had asked Brown to step in if an emergency arose.

Yoe took Prevost's troops aboard the night of May 26, 1813, and was in sight of Sackett's Harbor early the following morning, with the American unreadiness inviting an immediate landing and attack with every promise of success. Yoe found too many wind difficulties and did not near the fort until night, by which time Brown had taken over command and had disposed his forces for defense. In accordance with a frequently used practice, the militia, about 500, was placed as the first line and the regulars as the second, with the forts in the rear.

The British advance, led by the 100th regiment of grenadiers, dispersed the militia without firing and forced the regulars back on the support of a block house and a thirty-two pound gun, with a flanking of log barracks and fallen timber. There the advance was stopped and Prevost decided he could not take the works. One attack had succeeded in getting under the cover of the American barracks, but Brown's fire was so steady and galling that no further advantage could be gained and the position could not be held. Prevost ordered a retreat. His casualties were one in three.

The post was saved, but the lieutenant in charge of the shipyard concluded from what he learned of the early fighting that the day and the field were lost and set fire to the naval barracks, shipping and storehouse, causing a great loss and Brown's great anger.

A new fighter had been introduced to the American army. With him came a new spirit and it is said of him that no body of American regulars was ever defeated by British troops after he took charge of them.

(Jacob Brown was born May 9, 1775, in Bucks county, Pa., and died in Washington Feb. 24, 1828. His services brought him a gold medal from congress, "emblematical of his triumphs." He was made a major general at the close of the war of 1812 and remained in the army, being commander in chief in 1821.)

He was made a regular army brigadier, and had the assistance, in training and in action, of a gallant young soldier he could trust for any enterprise, Winfield Scott. Scott trained officers at Buffalo, Brown had a training school at the Harbor, and the miracle the two men accomplished was to produce out of raw material within three months a little army which willingly attacked the disciplined British line, of superior force on occasion, and never was defeated.

"So famous did Brown's little army become," says Henry Adams, "that the details of its force and organization retained an interest equaled only by that which attached to the frigates and sloops of war. Although the existence of the regiments ceased with peace and their achievements were limited to a single campaign of three or four months, their fame would have insured them in any other service extraordinary honors and sedulous preservation of their identity."

The forgotten army consisted of three brigades, one being of Pennsylvania volunteers, and an artillery corps. The regiments were Aspinwall's 9th of Massachusetts men, McNeil's 11th of Vermont, Brady's 22d of Pennsylvania, Jesup's 25th of Connecticut, Ripley's 21st of Massachusetts, led by James Miller when Ripley took command of the brigade, and McFarland's (or Brooke's) 23d, raised in New York. (Seditious New England, although politically threatening secession, furnished most of the men in this army.) The artillery was in command of Maj. Hindman and the Pennsylvania brigade of volunteers, under Peter B. Porter, had six hundred militiamen and six hundred Iroquois warriors. ("Nearly the whole military strength of the Six Nations." After the revolution the British had removed many of the Iroquois into Ontario to protect them.)

This army fought the battles of Chippewa, Lundy's Lane, and Fort Erie on the Niagara peninsula in the summer of 1814. At Chippewa Scott attacked a superior force, the 100th and the Royal Scots, a troop of dragoons and artillery, on an open field with a creek at his rear and an exposed flank, broke the British line, and threw the enemy back to the support of prepared lines, from which Brown dislodged him two days later. It was apparent that Brown in something like three months had made an army.

At Lundy's Lane Brown and Scott again attacked and again broke the British line, the action beginning just before dusk and continuing into the night. After five hours' fighting the Americans withdrew to their camp with their wounded unmolested.

This Canadian battlefield is marked as a British victory, to which verdict the American partisan will bow with a smile. That night the troops were well satisfied to stop. The victory was made afterwards. The successful defense of Fort Erie against an equally gallant and desperate assault rounded out the Niagara campaign, barren of substantial results but invaluable to the rediscovery of American military quality in a war of mortifications.

Brown the Quaker was a fighter and where he was the army could fight and did, he having the peculiar quality of leadership which dissipated in the mind of his troops all idea that they were not equal to what they were set to do.

DIET FOR KIDNEY STONES.

THE kidney stones composed of oxalates are important numerically and in the suffering they cause. If a person is subject to oxalate stones he should diet continuously for the remainder of his life. The diet he should follow is about this:

Avoid: Cranberries, strawberries, gooseberries, currants, grapes, plums, figs, dates, rhubarb, olives, sorrel, spinach, celery, tomatoes, carrots, radishes, pepper, asparagus, cabbage, cauliflower, turnips, endive, liver sausage, sweetbreads, gelatine, and calf's foot jelly.

He may take the following in limited amounts: Bananas, cherries, avocados, grapefruit, lemons, oranges, raspberries, blackberries, lettuce, onions, parsnips, broccoli, leeks, turnips, cucumber, cress, eggplant, sprouts, okra, pumpkin, squash and milk.

He should live principally on all kinds of meat, fish, poultry, and game; all ordinary flours and cereals; apples, apricots, peaches, melons, pears, pineapple, beans and peas, potatoes, artichoke, yams, frijoles, rice, and cakes.

Some of the vegetables forbidden by Drs. Grant and Simpson do not contain much oxalates. It is customary to forbid alcoholic beverages, condiments, spices, and cocoa, chocolate, tea, and coffee. If the examinations of the stones show phosphates in excess and one-half the stones to be of this group, the diet should be as follows: Foods to be avoided are beans, peas, beets, carrots, almonds, prunes, and raisins. The following foods are allowed, provided they are eaten in moderation: Bread, eggs, meat, vegetables, and fruits. The foods which should make up the bulk of the diet are: Breads, cereals, eggs (and particularly the whites), meats, fish, butter, cream, nuts, rice, and oil. There are those who say a diet rich in vitamin A prevents the formation of phosphate stones.

A small proportion of the kidney stones are composed principally of cystin. However, cystin is generally mixed in stones with other minerals, acting as something of a binder for them. The hope of dissolving stones lives in dissolving this binder. Success in this is problematical. The diet advised for the purpose is one that is low in protein. The urine must be kept alkaline. This may be done by giving alkaline waters or by giving alkalis.

Where an opening has been made into the pelvis of the kidney and washing through this is done it is claimed that flushing with hot alkaline solutions will dissolve cystin stones.

KEEP THE CHILD QUIET.

M. C. writes: What causes a six year old girl to leap and kick all night in bed? During the day she is full of life and seems to be healthy.

REPLY.

Start about 5 p. m. slowing child down. After that hour permit no movies, no play on the street, no excitement. Let her run down slowly until she becomes drowsy, then quietly to bed in a quiet place. Also, remember the need of quiet parents and a quiet home. Little girls who leap and kick in their sleep generally have parents that indulge in fireworks some way.

POPPING OF THE JAWS.

Worried writes: What causes a popping sound in the mouth, as if a bone in the jaw was misplaced, when the jaw is moved from side to side? Can this be serious? There is no pain, but sometimes the jaws have a tired feeling. What would have to be done to remedy this?

REPLY.

You have nothing to worry about. At the same time there is nothing you can do. The popping is in the jaw joint. It is possible you have a little arthritis in that joint.

NEED OF TRAINING

E. N. writes: I am very nervous and it is difficult for me to control my nerves. When in the presence of company I break out with sweat and later get ice cold. This is very embarrassing. I am 17 years old and weigh 96 pounds; am 5 feet 3 inches tall. Would you suggest a nerve tonic?

REPLY.

Your problem is one of training. Taking a tonic will have no effect.

MAY FORCE SALE.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Ten years ago our father died leaving five houses in Iowa to four girls and two boys. The one son died, leaving no children. The wife has since died. The attorney for her heirs wants an immediate settlement. 1. Are they entitled to a full share? 2. Must we sell the houses to settle with them?

J. J. E.

1. Yes. 2. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NEEDS NO PAPERS.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—[Friend of the People.]—Recently I applied for citizenship papers, having received a declaration paper. Since that time I have been informed that I am a citizen owing to the fact that my father is a naturalized citizen and I arrived in this country before reaching the age of 21, although I did not apply for papers till after I was 21.

J. M.

The naturalization law provides that minor children of a father dwelling in the United States at the time of the father's naturalization derive citizenship through such naturalization, but children who were over 21 years at the time of the father's naturalization did not become citizens.

H. L. ROETHE,
Acting District Director.

LET ATTORNEY COLLECT.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I did some electrical work for a party several years ago, upon completion of which I was told to present my bill, but I did not do so. I have been out of work and would like to know if lapse of time would prevent me from collecting this bill now as the party refuses to pay voluntarily. Please advise me.

E. S.

We advise you to place your claim in the hands of an attorney for collection.

BERLIN.—The following official announcement was made: "In the siege of Antwerp, Forts Wavre, St. Catherine and Dorpweld have been taken and Fort Waelhem has been invested. Termonde, an important strategical point, has been occupied."

LONDON.—The Morning Post's correspondent at Antwerp says: "The Belgian field artillery is coöperating effectually with our heavy artillery. Our infantry is entrenched on the near bank of the Nethe, opposite the main German forces. Two German attempts to cross the river have been smothered by our artillery." This dispatch is the first intimation that English forces have gone to Antwerp to coöperate with the Belgians in defense of that city.

ANTWERP.—The German general commanding the army besieging Antwerp informed the American minister at Brussels, Brand Whitlock, that it is the desire to preserve the famous churches and historical monuments and museums of Antwerp from destruction by shell fire during the bombardment. He promises that if the Belgians will give formal assurance that these places will not be used for military purposes German gunners will endeavor to avoid damaging them. The Belgian foreign office promptly agreed to give the assurance desired.

CHICAGO.—From more than 1,000 church meetings the voice of Chicago joined in the nation's mighty prayer for peace yesterday.

LONDON.—Paris announces that the "allies have made progress in the region of Soissons, where some of the enemy's trenches have been captured," but does not claim that any decisive action has been won in the great battle raging in France.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 5, 1900.

NEW YORK.—Albert T. Patrick, attorney for William M. Rice, the Texas millionaire who died suddenly more than a week ago, and Charles S. Jones, Rice's secretary and valet, were arrested on the charge of forging documents connected with the dead man's estate. The day after Mr. Rice's death Patrick took to the banking house of S. M. Swenson & Sons a check drawn in his favor and signed by Mr. Rice for $25,000, another for $65,000, and two on the Fifth Avenue Trust company for $25,000 and $135,000, respectively. At the time the bankers did not know of Rice's death and telephoned to the Rice home to verify the signatures. The valet, Jones, answered that his master was asleep and could not be disturbed. A will found today leaves nine-tenths of Rice's estate, estimated at $7,500,000, to Patrick.

CHICAGO.—President John I. Jones and members of the town board of Cicero were charged to their faces at a meeting of the Fellowship club of Oak Park with having taken money from the race track officials at Hawthorne to acquiesce in the continuance of racing and gambling at that place.

CHICAGO.—Miss Florence L. Engel, daughter of Mrs. F. F. Engel, 95 42d place, and Henry Heller of New York were married at the Lakeside club by the Rev. Dr. Stolz.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 5, 1880.

DUBLIN.—At a land meeting in Armagh there were cries of "Shoot the landlords!" "Down with the queen and government!" Leaders of the meeting afterward made inflammatory speeches at Newry and great excitement prevailed.

HAVANA.—There were 78 deaths from yellow fever in September.

CHICAGO.—Ald. Lorenz introduced an ordinance in the city council the purpose of which is to protect city employés from being assessed for "political, religious, charitable, or aldermanic star and horse and buggy subscriptions or assessments."

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Gen. James B. Weaver, Greenback candidate for President, spoke before an audience of from 1,200 to 1,500 here. Many Republicans and Democrats came out of curiosity.

NEW YORK.—The Garfield and Arthur club of the central committee has arranged for a massmeeting in Cooper Institute tomorrow evening at which John Jacob Astor will preside.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE WORLD!

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Your editorial of Sept. 15, "What's Wrong with the World?" criticizing the Potomac synod of the Reformed Church of America, seems to the writer unfair. John Maynard Keynes wrote an entire book, "The Economic Consequences of the Peace," pointing out the wrong which would be increased many fold and which existing phenomena all over the world only demonstrate that he knew in a general manner whereof he spake.

The most trenchant paragraphs seemingly to the writer are on pages 19, 20 and 22, chapter II., section 3, "The Psychology of Society," although the whole chapter arraigns the existing economic system: "Thus this remarkable system depended for its growth on a double bluff or deception. On the one hand the laboring classes accepted from ignorance or powerlessness, or were compelled, persuaded, or cajoled by custom, convention, authority, and the well established order of society into accepting, a situation in which they could call their own very little of the cake that they and nature and the capitalists were coöperating to produce. And on the other hand the capitalist classes were allowed to call the best part of the cake theirs and were theoretically free to consume it, on the tacit underlying condition that they consumed very little of it in practice. . . . Thus the bluff is discovered; the laboring classes may be no longer willing to forego so largely, and the capitalist classes, no longer confident of the future, may seek to enjoy more fully their liberties of consumption so long as they last, and thus precipitate the hour of their confiscation."

The Potomac synod only voiced what Keynes stated after he resigned from the disgraceful job of being responsible for alleged "Terms of Peace," which has simply intensified the existing economic conditions, as pointed out by the Potomac synod.

JOEL HENRY GREENE.

TILDEN BOYS AGAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—I feel that this is an opportune time to defend a school that takes more abuse than any other school I know of. This is the Tilden Tech High. The school, a beautiful and the most modern school in the country, with an excellent corps of teachers, situated in a very undesirable part of the south side, back of the yards, has probably the majority of the finest lads of any school. Their conduct on the street cars is not any worse than any other school; in fact, outside of a few rowdies which any school harbors, they are very well mannered. Tilden was the first school to have a loading system, which speeds up traffic and keeps order while boarding a street car. Other schools have since followed in line. The papers, too, are inclined to give as little publicity as possible to this school, and yet they turn out championship teams and in the business world turn out leaders. As a graduate I would like to apologize for the ill manners the few boys complained of have shown, as they do not show the true spirit of a real Tildenite, and, too, a school composed of several thousand true blue boys should not be misjudged by a few in the minority.

IRVING FUCHSBERG, '27 GRAD.

DUCKS, PHEASANTS, CATS, ETC.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Gaar Williams' cartoon shows one of the reasons why our wild life is so near extinction. All people seem to think about is killing. A flock of ducks going over is about one of the prettiest sights in the world, but man seems to think it is hard luck that he hasn't a gun to kill part of them. People seem to have some kind of grudge against wild life.

I often take trips through the country with men that never did any hunting. We often see quail and sometimes a pheasant. The first thing out of them is, "O, if we only had a gun." No difference, in season or out.

If we pass a prowling cat that ought to be killed, they never say a word; for some reason most people seem to think that game birds should be killed on sight.

I was a deputy game warden under Mr. Stratten. When driving through the country I always carried a twenty gauge with me. If I saw a prowling cat away from a house I always shot it, as the law allows me to do.

This new law, thirty ducks in possession, is going to help, providing they make provision to enforce it. If the present laws were enforced the ducks would, or might, hold their own.

HENRY GALLOWAY.

FEES FOR NIGHT SCHOOL.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—In Monday's Voice of the People a writer, H. W. H., voiced a protest against Chicago's public night school fees. I have received all my business training at Chicago's public evening schools, and am now taking my college work at a popular university night school, and I would like to protest against H. W. H.'s unjust criticism of the fees being raised to $5 from $2. The $5 fee existed long before hard times came. In the four or five years during which I attended steadily I had my share of sickness and unavoidable absences and have never missed a refund. I now pay nine times $5 for only a semester's work with no refund and consider it well worth the money spent.

The private night schools for high school subjects charge on the average of $10 a month with no refund, and you do not get nearly the thorough training that you get at the public night schools. What does H. W. H. think the teachers do at night school, work for sweet charity? The opportunities which are offered and the benefits derived from the public night school are so far beyond the amount charged that I am ashamed to think any one should voice such a protest. I'm talking from experience, not theory.

C. LIVINGSTON.

POLLING PLACES.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Some time ago the city and county were asking for tax laws to enable them to meet expenses. There are quite a number of public buildings that could be used as polling places and thus save money for the taxpayers, but private homes [often basements] and stores are used instead. There is a park building at Altgeld park, the playground building in the 7th precinct, and the Erickson school building in the 8th precinct of the 29th ward that could be used. These are only a few, and I am sure there are many more.

THE BEARER OF THIS CARD

Scott and Fetzer
SANITATION SYSTEM

is a graduate of the Scott & Fetzer School of Home Sanitation and a trusted employe of the Chicago Branch of the Scott & Fetzer Company. Permit this gentleman to demonstrate the new Scott & Fetzer System of Sanitation in your home . . . and you will be well repaid for your time and courtesy.

G. H. Scott
President

As the originator and leading manufacturer of Home Sanitation equipment, the Scott & Fetzer Company maintains direct factory branches in the principal cities. Headquarters in Chicago comprise the 15th and 16th floors of the new Chicago Motor Club Building at 66 East South Water Street. The card ★ reproduced above, when properly dated, identifies the gentlemen who represent this institution. Men so designated are bonded and trustworthy.

MADAM, BE SURE TO SEE THE GENTLEMAN WHO SAYS:

"I REPRESENT THE FIRM OF SCOTT & FETZER"

I come to show you how to fight "Rug Diseases." These diseases are generally known as colds . . . Tuberculosis . . . Chronic Bronchitis . . . and Sinus Infection. They are caused by invisible germs, in the form of dust. They infest the deep nap of your rugs, draperies, overstuffed furniture, mattresses and bedding.

You and especially your children are subjected to these dreadful diseases every day in your own home, unless you know how to fight them . . . and fighting them is my business.

As a Home Sanitation expert, I come to you to introduce the latest and best approved methods for ridding your home of disease-spreading dust. Chemistry and Science and Engineering achievement have made my work possible.

You will marvel at the system that I demonstrate . . . It's so simple, so easy, so effective, and so economical that you will want to adopt it for your home. 35,000 other progressive housewives in the Chicago Tribune area are already using the Scott & Fetzer Sanitation System in their homes with remarkable success.

My demonstration costs you nothing and does not obligate you in the least.

I'll also show you a new and better way to protect your clothes and woolens against the ravages of moths.

This service too is FREE and takes but a few minutes of your time.

When I call at your home to demonstrate, you'll know me because I'll say, "I represent the firm of Scott & Fetzer," and show you my card of credentials. The name Scott & Fetzer appears plainly on the system that I demonstrate. Look for this name as it is your assurance of my responsibility and your protection against frauds and substitutes. May I have the courtesy of a brief interview? I promise that you will be well repaid for your time.

REBELS OF INDIA HOOT AS ENVOYS SAIL FOR LONDON

Delegates Vow They'll Win Dominion Status.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 4.—Disowned by Mahatma Gandhi's National congress and discouraged by the sour attitude Indian business interests have taken toward them, the vanguard of India's delegation to the round table conference sailed for London from here today, vowing that they would bring back a full dominion status and all the attributes of self-government.

They promised to win by friendly argument what Gandhi and 30,000 followers "think they are getting by rotting in the nation's jails."

This city, the center and inspiration of the present struggle, protested the departure of the delegation by observing a complete hartal.

The streets were deserted. There was no business in the markets, bazaars or the various exchanges. Forty-six mills also were closed down.

Call Off Protest Demonstration.

Congress leaders intended to stage a monster demonstration with 100,000 patriots marching down to the docks to wave flags at the departing delegates. But it was feared the demonstration would lead to bloodshed and it was called off. Hundreds of police were on hand to protect the delegates at the dock.

The "war council" believes the round table conference can only result in a farce, since Great Britain has no intention of granting a dominion status, or any other kind of self-government just now.

"Self-Government or Nothing."

Among India's 60 odd delegates are 28 title holders, and the majority of whom have stood aloof from the Nationalist struggle and eagerly coöperated with the British government. About a dozen represent Liberals and Moderates, and they are the outstanding members of the delegation.

With one voice they affirmed today that they would bring back self government or nothing.

"May God give the Britishers enough wisdom to realize that they are in the same position today in relation to India as they were 150 years ago with regard to America before the war of independence," declared Dr. Moonje, Hindu leader, who is discredited by Gandhi's followers.

Demands United Free India.

His religious enemy, Moulana Ali, Mohammaden leader, said:

"I want a united free India and I am prepared to die for it."

"India will not be satisfied with any status lower than other dominions," said Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, moderate leader.

In the meantime the struggle goes on. The monotonous series of arrests, convictions, and civil disobedience throughout the country continue with occasional violence, such as today's firing at Khan Mahadur Abdul, prosecutor in the Vahore conspiracy question, and two constables by revolutionists. The prosecutor was unhurt. In this city the Nationalists are attempting to set up their own court system to replace British justice and talk about raising a "military army."

Police Battle 6,000 Rebels.

ALLAHABAD, India, Oct. 4.—(AP)—An unconfirmed report today from Roorke said that there had been a number of casualties in an encounter between police and 6,000 nationalist volunteers, who insisted on holding a political meeting despite a police ban. The police charged with their laths, or staves, and two constables and several demonstrators were injured. Police ended the clash by firing on the crowd. It is reported 25 persons were sent to hospitals and that 30 were arrested.

Five Wounded in Riot.

TALMUN, Bengal, India, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Five constables were injured today in rioting in the village of Choulkhola. A mob stoned the police who, finding their staves ineffective, charged, firing three rounds of Buckshot into the crowd.

SERVANTS CARRY LORD BIRKENHEAD ASHES TO GRAVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Old servants today bore the coffin containing the ashes of the late Lord Birkenhead along a winding road at Charlton, by Newbottle, Oxfordshire, to the cemetery.

There were only two wreaths on the coffin, one from the widow and children and the other inscribed "In memory of a good master from Groom Rogers." Many other wreaths were placed around the church. At the request of Lady Birkenhead, the service included only one hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," Lord Birkenhead's favorite.

There was a human note in the departure from Marylebone station, London, when the mourners boarded a special train from Charlton this morning. Jane, the late earl's favorite terrier, was led along the platform by a butler and accommodated in one of the carriages.

CHICAGO BURIAL FOR EX-PASTOR WHO KILLED SELF

The family of Victor Dahlin, former Swedish Baptist minister who killed himself after shooting a woman in Grand Rapids on Friday, made arrangements yesterday to bring his body to Chicago for burial. In her home at 7935 Coles avenue, a son, De Witt, 16 years old, said that his mother and father had not been living together since March.

On Wednesday Dahlin called his wife on the telephone but seemed incoherent and after trying to understand him, she hung up, the family said. Traveling for a paint and varnish company his whereabouts were rarely known to his family, the son said. He was reluctant to speak of Mrs. Etta Pearson, whom his father wounded before he killed himself, but it was learned the two had met several years ago.

Mrs. Pearson's husband, Arthur Pearson, 1218 North Central avenue, went to Grand Rapids yesterday to see his wife. She was reported to be recovering from her wound. Dahlin left the ministry eleven years ago.

Mrs. John Hill Jr. Dies; Widow of Grain Dealer

Mrs. Nellie M. Hill, widow of John Hill Jr., a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, died last night at the North Shore sanitarium where she had been a patient for three years. She was 67 years old. Her husband was one of the earliest members of the board and gained prominence 20 years ago by his fight against bucket shop operators. Surviving Mrs. Hill are two daughters, Mrs. W. H. McCaulley of Winnetka, and Mrs. James R. Henry of Glencoe.

CHINA'S ARMIES DECIDE TO FIGHT TILL REBELS QUIT

Deaf to Plea for Leniency to 'Christian' General.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 4.—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek today transferred his field headquarters from Kaifeng to Honan, and despite pressure from various quarters, including certain groups of missionaries, announced his intention to continue military activities until the Christian general's Kuominchun army surrenders unconditionally and Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang himself agrees to surrender or leave the country.

It became known to day that a group of American missionaries in north China, still believing in the Christianity of Gen. Feng, sent representatives here urging the Nationalist government to display leniency toward Gen. Feng, permit him to "confess his sins," and resume his position with the government.

Fears Russian Alliance.

Due to Gen. Feng's past record Gen. Chiang suspects treachery, hence he notified Nanking today that he considered it the best policy to make a clean sweep in order to assure Gen. Feng's elimination, due to the belief that Gen. Feng is only trying to return to his old base in Shensi province in order to plot a new rebellion, or possibly to make an alliance with soviet Russia.

In order to prevent Gen. Feng's retreat to Shensi Gen. Chiang has cut the Lunghai railway west to Gen. Feng's base at Chengchow and gradually hemmed in the Kuominchun rebels, numbering about 100,000 men, into the small sector between Kaifeng and Chengchow, leaving Gen. Feng only an outlet to the north across the Yellow river.

Chang Refuses to Aid Feng.

Last week a number of Gen. Feng's subordinate generals under pressure from Gen. Feng sent emissaries to Mukden and tried to induce Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang to accept command of the Kuominchun. Marshal Chang is reported to have refused the offer and advised Gen. Feng to surrender.

According to reports received today Gen. Feng is trying to ferry his forces across the Yellow river. Since Gen. Chiang captured Kaifeng he believes that Gen. Feng cannot hold out more than a few days longer, but will try to move northward to join his ally, Gen. Yen Hsi-shan.

Martial Law in Hankow.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 4.—[U. P.]—Martial law was proclaimed in Hankow today following an explosion there in the Steam Boiler Power company, which killed five persons and injured nineteen. The blast, of mysterious origin, created rumors that a radical intrigue was afoot there. Fear of a communist uprising was expressed.

Anna, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—William A. Smith, retired official of the Atlas Powder company, died here today, aged 70. He was credited with a number of patents and inventions now in use by the Atlas Powder company.

FOUR MEN CONFESS TO SLAYING CHILD AS MOTHER STANDS BY

New Martinsville, W. Va., Oct. 4.—[U. P.]—Four men, one of them a government worker, assertedly confessed to police today to the murder of 3 year old Garlan Bailey, whose body was found on Grandview island in the Ohio river early Monday morning. The boy's mother, Eva Bailey, 40, was implicated in the confession.

Ray Henry, light tender on the island for the government; his brother, Charles, and Clyde McBee and James Dunn, both of Grandview, O., signed confessions admitting the killing, police said.

The confession was a cold blooded story of how the four men and the woman, who was divorced from Garlan's father, took the child to the island last Sunday afternoon during a drinking party and deciding to "get rid of the kid."

The men took the screaming child in their hands and twisted the body until it was lifeless. They then sought to tear it apart by sheer force, police said the confession stated. After this failed the body was thrown into the river, later drifting back to shore.

KILLED AS SHE STEPS BETWEEN 2 PARKED AUTOS

A woman was killed yesterday when she was crushed between the bumpers of two autos as the driver of one of them was maneuvering to leave his parking place at the curb. The victim was Miss Rose Heitmann, 45 years old, 502 South Oakley avenue, and the accident occurred at 17th street and Union avenue. She was crossing the street when she stepped between the cars. Joseph Muran, 23 years old, 2820 South 51st avenue, Cicero, was the driver.

Injuries received in an odd accident last Sunday caused the death yesterday of Motorcycle Policeman Robert L. Payton of the west park force. He was riding behind the machine of R. Burns, 118 South Kostner avenue, in Jackson boulevard when Burns stopped suddenly to avoid a collision with another car. Payton crashed into Burns' automobile and one end of the handle bars struck him in the stomach. Payton considered his injuries slight and continued riding. He was taken to the Lutheran Memorial hospital several days ago. Payton lived at 3446 Chicago avenue.

These deaths and two others yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll for 1930 to 782. The victims:

Frank Cook, 30 years old, 1913 North Leavitt street. Died in the Auburn Park hospital three hours after his automobile collided with another driven by William Nolan, 7518 Perry avenue, at Wabash avenue and 75th streets. Nolan was held.

Frank Jacobs, 58 years old, 254 Burling street, a guard at the Shedd aquarium. Died in St. Luke's hospital of injuries received on Sept. 17 when he was struck in front of the aquarium by the auto of Fred C. Luders, 6655 Greenview avenue.

GEORGE HERBERT MERRYWEATHER TAKEN BY DEATH

George Herbert Merryweather, resident of Highland Park for 32 years and for many years a leader in the wholesale coal business in Chicago, died suddenly yesterday in a hospital at Oconomowoc, Wis., where he had been a patient for two months.

Mr. Merryweather, who was 60 years old, came to Chicago with his parents in 1880 from Brooklyn. His father, George Merryweather Sr., who died in 1924, was a civil war veteran.

Until his retirement two years ago, Mr. Merryweather was president of the Waubun Coal company, and in 1925 was president of the Wholesale Coal Dealers' Association of America.

Mr. Merryweather is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mabel Bell Merryweather, and two children, Margaret and John. Private funeral services will be held at the family home, 250 Maple avenue, Highland Park, at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Lake Forest cemetery.

Funeral Rites Tomorrow for Veteran Insurance Man

Funeral services for Charles Willard Olson, 820 Reba place, Evanston, veteran Chicago insurance man, who died Thursday after a lingering illness, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston. Dr. Ernest Tittle will conduct services. Mr. Olson, who was 68 years old and a native of Sweden, had been in the insurance business for 43 years and was prominent in church and charity circles. He is survived by his widow, two sons and three daughters.

CONVICT THREE GERMAN OFFICERS IN TREASON PLOT

Army Men Get Eighteen Months in Fortress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LEIPZIG, Oct. 4.—Fascists started a wild demonstration both inside and outside of the courthouse here today, when three army officers were found guilty of attempted treason by the Supreme court in connection with spreading Fascist propaganda in the reichswehr. As the trial ended the court ordered the three officers sentenced to 18 months of fortress imprisonment.

When sentence was pronounced a woman Fascist leaped to her feet in the courtroom and cried, "Where can justice be found in Germany?" She was evicted by bailiffs.

Mounted Police Charge Mob.

"Wake up, Germany!" was the shout taken up by a throng outside the courthouse. The mob tossed Fascist swastika emblems into the air. Mounted police charged the crowd, dispersing them to side streets, where the disorders continued. Several arrests were made.

The three sentenced men, all former lieutenants, are Hans Lulin, Richard Scheringer, and Fredrich Wendt. The court deducted six months and three weeks, the period the men have already been in custody awaiting trial. Scheringer and Ludin were dismissed from the army from which Wendt already had been discharged as "unsuitable for promotion." Fortress imprisonment does not involve the loss of honor.

Dr. Sack, attorney for the defense, telegraphed a petition for pardon to President von Hindenberg, pleading that the defendants' situation was "due to that great love for the fatherland, which inspired the soldiers in the old army, under the leadership of Field Marshal von Hindenbug, against a world of enemies."

Judge Reviews Testimony.

In reviewing the testimony Judge Baumgarten declared that the court was satisfied that the accused were acting concertedly against the constitution. Whether the Fascist planned to overthrow the government by force played no rôle, he said. He admitted that the accused acted from conviction of youth, but that such propaganda by lieutenants was impossible in the army, "which must be the reliable instrument of the reich."

The sentence ended a trial of great political importance. Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists [Fascists], was a voluntary witness and outlined his party's ideals.

Hitlerites Attack Jews.

COLOGNE, Germany, Oct. 4.—[U. P.]—The first violent anti-Jewish outbreak by National Socialists [Fascists] since the elections occurred today when the Kolitsri cabaret was raided by Hitlerites after Jewish artists in the place had commented satirically on the Fascists' policies.

The Fascists, wielding beer mugs and truncheons, beat two performers, the elder of whom, Urbach, collapsed bleeding. Panic ensued and shots were fired. The Fascists had cut the telephone wires and police arrived late, but made several arrests.

ESTIMATE BRITISH POPULATION UP BY 110,000 IN 1929

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The population of Great Britain and Ireland showed a gain of 110,000 last year, reaching a total of 48,684,000 persons, according to estimates for 1929 issued by the registrar general today.

In England and Wales there was a rise of 126,000 to a total of 39,607,000, but in Scotland there was a drop of 1,000 to a total of 4,884,000. Northern Ireland's figures remained stationary at 1,250,000, while the Irish Free State dropped 6,000 to 2,943,000. The figures issued today are of special interest because they are the last estimate before the official decennial census to be taken next April.

The marriage rate for 1929 was the highest since 1921 with 313,316 marriages solemnized in England and Wales. The birth rate continued the steady decline which has been evident in all recent years except 1928.

Unearth Portugal Revolt Plot; Seize Conspirators

LISBON, Oct. 4 — (AP) — The arrest of several soldiers and civilians accused of preparing a revolutionary movement against the dictatorship of President Oscar Carmona was announced tonight in an official note saying that evidence had been obtained of a plot scheduled to break out very shortly.

LEAGUE SESSION ENDS IN AIR OF DISSATISFACTION

Failed to Make Progress in War Against War.

GENEVA, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Dissatisfied but not discouraged, the league of nations assembly concluded its eleventh annual session today after grappling for three and one-half weeks with obstinate international problems.

There were various reasons why the leaders of 52 nations leaving Geneva tonight were not entirely satisfied with the results of this sitting. Most keenly felt, perhaps, was the failure to accomplish the amendment of the league covenant so as to close its existing war gaps and thus advance the stage in international dealing expressed in the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact.

Postponed for Further Study.

The delegates found, in facing revision, that some changes suggested might affect the present status of the sanctions in the covenant, some fearing that these sanctions might be extended and others wishing that such would happen. The question, therefore, was referred to the governments for further study.

Disappointment also was felt that the revised statute of the world court was not brought into force, since it contained measures purporting to adjust the court's machinery to new conditions and guaranteeing a provision that league leaders believe would facilitate the entry of the United States into the tribunal. This provides that no judgment may be taken in a case involving an American interest without consent of the United States.

Dissatisfied Over Disarmament.

Few of the league's directing members were fully satisfied with the assembly's disarmament work, but they felt that some progress had been made. The assembly asked its preparatory disarmament commission to make the November session its last and to complete a draft for a general disarmament treaty.

It also requested the council—its executive body—to call a general conference on reduction and limitation of armaments "as soon as possible." This cautious phrase was deplored by some, notably the Germans, who tried unsuccessfully to have the conference date fixed for next year.

Great satisfaction was taken, however, in the conclusion of a convention for financial assistance to a member state which may be attacked. This is regarded as an addition to a number of measures discouraging war.

SPONSORS YACHT

MISS HELEN HOWELL.
[Paul Stone-Raymor Photo.]

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Sponsored by Miss Helen Howell, Chicago society girl, the Thalia, largest yacht built on the great lakes this year, was launched here this afternoon. The ship is owned by Thomas M. Howell, 2708 Lake View avenue, Chicago, member of the Board of Trade of Chicago, father of Miss Howell.

The yacht was built at the Defoe Boat and Water Works of Bay City and is 160 feet long, with a 24 foot 6 inch beam. It is steel constructed and driven by two 600 horsepower Winston Diesel motors, capable of a speed of 18 to 20 knots an hour.

Those at the launching were the owner, his daughter, Mrs. Howell; J. R. Meyer of Chicago, and Arthur Decordova of New York. Miss Howell, who is 18 years old, was presented at court in Buckingham palace last May.

NO RACKETS, NO GANGS BOTHER BELGIAN POLICE

And Also No Grafting Officials.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 4.—The different mentality of Americans as compared to Europeans is responsible for the greater crime figures in the United States, according to Belgian authorities with whom I have discussed the matter.

Some doubt is expressed here as to whether crime is more rampant in the United States than it is on the continent. The opinion is held that serious, sensational outrages, involving the theft of huge sums of money and attented perhaps by several killings, are more numerous in America, but classed numerically, it is stated the crime statistics in America would not seriously exceed those here, proportionately.

Publicity Is Blamed.

Publicity concerning crime is given as a reason for increased activities by lawbreakers in the United States. Belgian newspapers grant very little space to criminals and their exploits. The recent case of Jack [Legs] Diamond, who landed in Antwerp and was deported into Germany at Aix-la-Chapelle, received only short paragraphs in the newspapers, and there was no rehash of the gangster's record in America. His troubles in Germany at Bremen and Hamburg were not even published in the Brussels press.

"That's one reason why Belgium abandoned capital punishment," I was told. "We came to the conclusion that execution by hanging or beheading added a certain glamor to the fascination of criminals, and that mentally deranged men were tempted to commit murder for the sordid notoriety they obtained, and that life imprisonment at hard labor has proved a serious deterrent to this class of criminals."

Belgian officials believe that the police force in the little kingdom is more efficient, generally, than that in most of the large cities of the United States, although it is admitted that their work is made easier by the fact the system is centralized for the entire country and not divided into separate, independent organizations in the various provinces and cities, as it is in the United States.

No Organized Gangs.

M. F. van Ipperzeele, high commissioner of police in Belgium, said:

"Suppose a band of men attacked one of the motor trucks which carry the gold shipped from the United States from Antwerp harbor, where it is landed, to the vaults of the Belgian National bank here in Brussels. Let us suppose the insufficiently guarded truck—which is not armored but only guarded by two men besides the chauffeur, carrying revolvers—were attacked by a gang of bandits, say ten miles outside of Brussels.

"As soon as news of the holdup reached police headquarters here it would be flashed to the constabulary and municipal and state police all along the line, for the gendarmes to be on the lookout for the car carrying the gangsters.

Check on New Comers.

"If the gangsters were foreigners they would be caught if they were hiding with friends. Streets in even the biggest Belgian towns, including Brussels, with 800,000 inhabitants, are inspected daily by special police who make inquiries about every new face. If they see a stranger or a foreigner who is not registered with the police the man is suspect at once.

Foreigners Must Register.

"Every foreigner must register with the police within 48 hours of his arrival. No one can hide long in towns which are so well watched. Even foreigners who do register with the police, but whose doings somehow arouse suspicion, are the immediate object of an investigation, and inquiries are made from the country they hail from. If they have a bad record they are taken to the frontier as undesirables.

"Foreigners registered with the police are watched four months before they are permitted to remain.

"Police in Belgium have nothing to do with politics. They cannot be bribed. They cannot be changed with every change in the municipal government. The constabulary is an organized semi-military body, absolutely uncorruptible. Discipline is extremely severe."

Teach Cops Criminology.

M. E. E. Louwage, chief judiciary police official at the palace of justice, believes that the school of criminology, maintained by the police to teach gendarmes their business, has increased the efficiency of the Belgian constabulary to its present high point. He also stresses the necessity of no connection between politics and police, he said:

"Laboratories in American police departments are elaborately equipped, but in many cases the men employed there do not know how to use the material at their disposition. Or, if they do, they fall down on their job when the detectives bring them the material. The education of detectives is sadly deficient in the United States.

"Detectives here learn both the practical and theoretical end before they let loose. The old method was to take former city policemen, but they have a professional weakness. They believe in and rely on stool pigeons instead of concentrating on symptoms and clews on the spot of the crime. Our entire service is specialized. Each of us has his own class of crime. In the intensive training we give, it equals the experience of 15 years on the street."

Laws Are Strict.

Every person living in Belgium has an "etat civil" or identification card. After two weeks residence in Belgium, a foreigner must register with the municipal authorities, and if he fails is liable to a week's imprisonment and expulsion from the country.

Every birth must be declared by the father and the persons who witnessed it, within three days. If this delay is passed the child is considered "non existant" and a lengthy and costly civil procedure is necessary to have the birth properly registered. No child can be baptized without having been declared.

All marriages must be celebrated and registered with the municipal administration and no religious ceremony can be held before the civil marriage has taken place. Violation of this law would land the clergyman or priest in jail.

Every death must be declared and no body can be buried without permission of the mayor.

Must Carry Cards.

The movements of a Belgian throughout his or her entire life can be checked from the addresses noted on the identity card which every subject must carry and be prepared to show to the police authorities whenever asked. Taking another name is punishable by three months prison and 3,000 francs fine. Only the king can grant permission to change a name, or even to change the spelling of a name.

Everybody must register at a Belgian hotel, and the hotelkeeper is fined if he fails to maintain his records correctly. "Pensions," boarding houses, and even private individuals housing friends or relatives must declare their guests within 48 hours.

Thus the Belgian police organization forms a network for the control and repression of the petty criminal, and is aided by government measures for identification and overseeing of all individuals, a system which is nonexistant in the United States.

COP CAPTURES FOURTH TRUCK CARRYING BEER

Detective Sergeant John Kratzmeyer of the Chicago avenue station, who on Sept. 29 revealed that he had received threats of death and bombing as a result of his activity against beer runners, yesterday seized another loaded beer truck at Clark and Chestnut streets. This is the fourth beer truck he has seized.

Kratzmeyer said two men on the truck recognized him and fled at his approach, leaving the truck with five barrels of beer.

The truck, which bore the name of the "United Tobacco Supply company," was turned over to federal authorities. During September Kratzmeyer captured three beer trucks with eight men.

Many Charities to Share in Proceeds.

Chicago will see stars tomorrow, and buy them. Small stars to wear in the coat lapels. Small stars that will bring to thousands of children in orphanages, homes, and nurseries food and shelter for the winter, and some of the playtime joys that are the heritage of every child, no matter his race or color or creed.

The Chicago Children's Benefit league is one of the first organizations permitted by the city council to raise money by street tagging. Every one of the league's member charities is endorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Tomorrow women volunteer workers—thousands of them—will try to raise $150,000 needed to assure a home and health for orphans, waifs, the crippled—children who have never known in their meager lives a home of their own.

Children Need Your Help.

When the tagger offers you his wares, reader, forget that you have recently contributed to other tag day funds that are just as worthy, the disabled soldiers and the helpless aged people in homes and institutions. These handicapped children need your help, too, for they cannot become the good citizens of tomorrow without a lift.

Taggers will be on all Chicago and suburban streets from early morning till late for the following institutions. The receipts will be divided among the league members according to the amount raised by the workers of each.

$175,000,000 KING IS FOUND; NOW LIVES IN POVERTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASRA, Iraq, Oct. 4.—Dispatches from Kabul, Afghanistan, report that the former amir of Bokhara, who was ejected in 1920 by the bolsheviks, has returned to Kabul and is living in extreme poverty.

He was once a powerful ruler and was reported to have poisoned or otherwise murdered 20 of his rivals or caused them to emigrate. He kept a harem of 110 women and had a fortune of $175,000,000 in gold ingots, not counting his jewels.

He was threatened by the bolsheviks and offered to join the British empire, but was turned down. When the bolsheviks entered the walled capital he escaped through the gates as a camel driver. He was once a handsome bearded man, but is now filthy and unkempt, cadging for a living.

RELICS OF MANDANS' EMPIRE ARE FOUND ON WESTERN PLAINS

The story of the culture of the Mandan tribe of Indians, once head of a confederacy of 35,000 aborigines that dominated the western plains, is to be preserved for future generations through studies made for the Logan museum of Beloit college.

A. W. Bowers, a graduate of Beloit, came to Chicago yesterday after a visit of six months in the Mandan country in North Dakota. In furtherance of his plan to study the language, the religion and the customs of this people, Mr. Bowers went through the ceremony of adoption by one of the surviving six full-blooded members of the tribe.

"The Mandans," he said, "headed the confederacy which included the Hidatsa, the Crows and the Awachawa. For 400 or 500 years they ruled a vast territory centering in the Missouri river valley. It may have been longer. There are legends in the tribe that reach back for a thousand years.

"Their power began to wane about 1780, when an epidemic of smallpox wiped out 85 per cent of their number."

Important collections of pottery and flints have been made on the sites of 55 Mandan villages, Mr. Bowers said.

All the exhibits will be held at the Logan museum, which is financed by Frank G. Logan, vice president of the Chicago Art institute.

13 MONTH YEAR PARLEY TO DRAW FROM 26 LANDS

Conference to Be Held at Geneva.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Twenty-six nations, including the United States, will send delegates next year to the international conference at Geneva to discuss the new thirteen months calendar, the national calendar simplification committee announced today.

The object of the conference will be to agree upon the best of several plans which have been proposed to improve the calendar by inserting another month and making days in the week conform to dates. The delegates will have power to draw up a protocol or treaty embodying its decisions for submission to the respective governments, after which another conference probably will be called. A resolution is pending in congress directing the President to sponsor such a meeting.

Delegates Meet Next October.

The Geneva conference, to be held next October, was arranged at a recent meeting of the transit committee of the league of nations which has charge of the undertaking. For organization purposes the league will employ the machinery of the fourth general conference on communications and transit.

A meeting of a preparatory committee composed of calendar experts from different countries will be held next May or June.

National committees at work in a dozen countries will send reports to Geneva not later than March 31, 1931. The report of the American committee, headed by George Eastman, head of the Eastman Kodak company, and the first to be formed, was transmitted to the league through the state department last August.

Editor Heads British Body.

Lord Burnham, editor of the Morning Telegraph, heads the British committee which is composed of British leaders of industry, labor, law, education and politics. An equally distinguished German committee is headed by a member of the ministry of economic affairs while the French committee consists of members of the national economic council, presided over by the premier. Premier Mussolini has appointed an Italian committee with Prof. Amedeo Giannini representing the national council of research and including a spokesman from the Vatican. A Japanese committee is being formed.

Other countries to be represented at the conference are Belgium, Holland, Hungary, Poland, Sweden, Mexico, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Peru, Costa Rica, Cuba, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama and Salvador.

Girl Scouts' Convention Will Be Held in Buffalo

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The National Council of Girl Scouts voted today to hold its next annual convention at Buffalo, N. Y.

HARVARD DECLINES RUDY VALLEE'S OFFER TO CROON ITS SONGS

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Rudy Vallee, whose crooning of the University of Maine song made it a nationally sung college anthem, will not be allowed to advertise Harvard's songs.

The Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily newspaper, says that Rudy, radio crooner and Yale graduate, tried without success to get permission to use three of Harvard's famous songs.

According to the Crimson, he had hoped to make "Fair Harvard," "Gridiron King," and "Up the Street" as popular as the Maine "Stein Song." University authorities refused to make exceptions to the copyrights and turned Vallee down.

Persian Volcano Spreads Ruin; Heat Repulses Plane

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Persia, Oct. 3.—Severe earthquakes have occurred in the region of the former extinct Damavand volcano in the Damavand mountains, destroying the houses of the surrounding towns and villages. Several deaths are reported. Urgent calls for tents and supplies have been received in Teheran where a slight quake was also felt Thursday evening. Telephone lines are down and the heat of the volcano drove back a plane sent to investigate.

THREE MEN AND WOMAN KILLED IN GANG ATTACK

Braddock, Pa., Oct. 4.—[U. P.]—Two men stepped from an automobile in front of a small grocery store here today, opened fire with either automatic pistols or a hand machine gun and killed the grocer, his wife, his brother, and a customer. The killers made their escape in an automobile believed to have been driven by a woman.

Joseph Lobianco, 26, the grocer, died instantly. Mrs. Lobianco, who was to have become a mother soon, died within a few minutes. Efforts to save the life of the unborn child failed.

Carmen Lobianco, 25, a brother of Joseph, lived six hours. Louis Tomani, 65, a customer, died in a few minutes.

The discovery of a 500 gallon still in Carmen Lobianco's home, which police say may indicate Braddock's "liquor interests" are involved, is the nearest known reason for the tragedy.

Poland Nabs 16 Ukrainian Members of Former Diet

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Sixteen Ukranian deputies, members of the former diet, were arrested today. Among them was the priest Kunicki, confidant of the metropolitan of Szeptycki, head of the Ukrainian church. Breaking with an old friend, Marshal Pilsudski also ordered the arrest of Jan Kwapinki, associated with the marshal for the last 24 years. No reason was given for his arrest.

THE NEW FORD

Everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price

THE more you see of the new Ford, the more you realize that it brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Its substantial beauty of line and color is apparent at a glance. Long, continuous service emphasizes the value of its simplicity of design and the high quality that has been built into every part.

The new Ford accelerates quickly and it will do 55 to 65 miles an hour. It is an easy-riding car because of its specially designed springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. It has fully enclosed four-wheel brakes and the added safety of a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield. Operation and up-keep costs are low and it has the stamina and reliability that mean thousands of miles of dependable, uninterrupted service.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. Check up every point that goes to make a good automobile and you will know that it is a value far above the price you pay.

NOMINEES' POLL SHOWS RISING WET STRENGTH

Replies from Candidates Are Published.

there are 50 candidates for those twenty-six seats. Thirty-eight of these answered the question of THE TRIBUNE. Thirty-two declared for repeal of the Illinois enforcement act. Only one declared against it. In addition to the thirty-two who said they favor repeal there were five others—making a total of 37—who will favor repeal if the referendum carries in their districts.

Questionnaires were sent to 176 candidates for the lower house. Eighty-six replied, 72 of them saying they now favor repeal of the state prohibition law. In addition there were eight others who said they will favor repeal if their districts vote that way. There were seven who declared themselves personally against repeal of the Illinois statute and one of these said he will favor repeal in the assembly if his district votes "Yes" on the question on Nov. 4.

BACKERS OF GILL FOR COURT CLERK ASSAIL KEARNS

A newly organized independent committee supporting Joseph L. Gill, Democratic nominee for clerk of the Municipal court, is sending out letters criticizing the Republican incumbent, James A. Kearns.

"Under the present clerk," read a letter distributed yesterday, "the so-called social service positions have been filled through the usual political method, ignoring utterly the qualifications and training essential for real social service work.

Mrs. Harvey A. Tyler is president and Mrs. Irvin McDowell is secretary of the new committee. Under its auspices there will be a luncheon for Gill at the Morrison hotel next Thursday noon, when the speakers will be Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge, Miss Henry W. Hartough, Miss Harriet Vittum, and Miss Agnes Van Driel. Among those at the speakers' table will be Miss Jane Addams, Prof. Graham Taylor, Mrs. Henry Solomon, and James Mullenbach.

Individual headquarters of the Democratic candidates for local offices were opened yesterday in the City Hall Square building.

AVERAGE HOME BREW IS 3.4 PCT., U. S. TESTS SHOW

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[U. P.]—Hundreds of tests of home brew seized in prohibition raids indicate an average alcoholic content of 3.4 per cent, the federal prohibition bureau reported today.

A content of 2.75 per cent is the basis of most of the wet proposals for modification of the Volstead act.

Chairman George W. Wickersham of the President's law enforcement commission recently said 2.75 per cent beer did not provide "sufficient authority" to satisfy the American appetite.

House Candidates in Wet-Dry Poll

Following is a tabulation of the responses from nominees for the Illinois house of representatives to the poll on prohibition taken by THE TRIBUNE. The first question was whether the candidate favored repeal of the Illinois prohibition enforcement act. The second was whether he would favor the repeal if the vote in his district on the state referendum of Nov. 4 is in favor of repeal. The replies and the failures to reply were as follows:

HOOVER OFF TO BOSTON TODAY FOR 2 SPEECHES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover will leave Washington tomorrow on a speaking trip that will take him to Boston and Kings Mountain, N. C. He will return to the capital Wednesday. He will deliver two speeches in Boston Monday, one before the American Legion in the morning and another before the convention of the American Federation of Labor in the afternoon. The Kings Mountain speech on Tuesday will feature the sesquicentennial celebration of that historic battle.

Mrs. Hoover will accompany the presidential party. She went to the Rapidan camp today for a short rest.

STATE SENATE ASPIRANTS GIVE DRY LAW VIEWS

Below is a table of the results of the poll of nominees for the Illinois state senate on the prohibition issue taken by THE TRIBUNE. The first question asked was whether the candidate favored the repeal of the Illinois prohibition enforcement act known as the search and seizure act. The second question was whether he would favor that repeal if the referendum vote in his district on Nov. 4 favors repeal. The record of replies and failures to reply follows:

Poll of Congress Candidates on Wet Referendum

Herewith is a tabulation of the results of THE TRIBUNE'S poll of candidates for congress on the prohibition question. The two major questions were whether the candidate favored the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and favored modification of the Volstead act. The alternative questions were whether he would favor repeal of the amendment and would favor modification if his district votes affirmatively on either or both of these questions in the state referendum. The record of replies and of failures to reply follows:

Illness Keeps Morrow from Nephew's Wedding

Englewood, N. J., Oct. 4.—[U. P.]—Illness today prevented Dwight W. Morrow from attending the marriage of Miss Mary Emma Landenberger to his nephew, Richard B. Scandrett Jr., at Cornwall, N. Y. Although he is not confined to bed, Mr. Morrow decided to remain indoors.

HONOR WOMEN CANDIDATES FOR COUNTY BOARD

Women from all parties, from all parts of the city and from the suburbs attended a tea yesterday at the Palmer house in honor of the four Democratic women who are nominees for the county board. Mrs. Olive Rabe, chairman of the Women's Committee of All Parties, which maintains headquarters in the hotel and is promoting the candidacy of the quartet, introduced the four, Miss Amelia Sears, Miss Mary McEnerney, Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb and Mrs. Edward J. Fleming.

Miss Sears, who for many years has been an officer of the United Charities, cited the number of men out of work to support her contention that the county board would profit by the acquisition of herself and her fellow candidates, all experienced social workers.

Dr. G. G. Davis Sued for Divorce on Cruelty Charge

Dr. George Good Davis, chief surgeon of the Illinois Steel company, yesterday was sued for divorce in the Superior court by Mrs. Mary Robins Davis of 211 East Delaware place. The bill, drawn by Socrates & Davis, charges cruelty. Dr. Davis and his wife were married March 28, 1922, at Crown Point. They separated in May, 1927, according to the bill. Mrs. Davis asks alimony of $1,500 a month, declaring that her husband has an annual income in excess of $40,000. The physician lives at the University club.

YCHOANALYST RGES MEDICAL CURE FOR CRIME

rlin Scientist Tells of His Experiences.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

r. Franz Alexander, noted Berlin choanalyst, who has just arrived the University of Chicago to lecture medical, legal, and social science nts, gave his views yesterday on application of psychoanalysis to field of criminology.

his is a subject to which he has special study for the last five in the work of the Psychoanaly-l Institute of Berlin, where many , lawyers, and students of crime gone to hear him. He has been d upon frequently to assist the s in disposing of convicted crim-
, and it is here, he thinks, that method has great and growing ness to society.

A Light on Crime.

Psychoanalysis is often a light in agnosis of criminal personali-
Dr. Alexander said. "It is what be called a general science, as y be used in the study of eth-y, in the arts, in sociology, edu-n, religion, as well as in the field which it is best known, that of tic minds.

ociety is not interested in neucases, such as that of a man is compelled to wash his hands few minutes, or who must count or take half a day in dressing.
ut society must take notice when rson is compelled to steal or to ther unsocial acts. Yet the causes be traced to the same source, deep repressions and fixations of unconscious mind, and the cure

Many Border Line Cases.

Criminal personalities may be creby environment, and these we to the sociologist. A great pertage of criminals, however, are der line cases pathologically, and should be treated as such. We only beginning to do this in pe. We have not the money and not able to experiment and do gs as you can in America.

Statistics show that 50 per cent of criminals in Europe are of this rline type. That is, they need al treatment, instead of stern re-ive measures in prison. In this only can they be restored whole iety.

Perhaps the percentage would be in America, where the people so law abiding.

A criminological institute that d include the use of psychoanalys one of its functions would be of t benefit. It should also operate he training of those who must adster justice.

He Gives an Illustration.

Let me illustrate with a case or with which I have dealt at the ret of the courts in Berlin.

A young man in the postal service caught opening letters and taking
y. A severe sentence attaches to ction for this offense. The clerk married and had children, came good family and was of good rep-
n. It was found that he had spending the money which he in buying cigarets and in dining pensive restaurants alone.

A study of his history showed that was the victim of an infantile fixa-
He had shunned independence responsibility all his life. He was at heart at his mother's breast, re he had found his first complete faction in this world.

Finds Solution in Treatment.

He had taken a low salaried posi-for this reason. He never dared out for himself. At times he seized with an uncontrollable deto smoke many cigarets and revel the comforts of a good cuisine.
n I explained this to the judge suspended sentence in the case and the defendant to an institution proper treatment.

There are many vestiges of the ile in the normal person's be-
r. Smoking is one of these.

The difference between the normal the abnormal, or neurotic person, t one is in control of his sub-ous mind and the other is cond by it.

When these repressions and fixaare brought to the surface and lysed, the patients are often able rcome them. It takes time and and more time.

Case of Another Young Man.

There was the case of a young in Berlin who persisted in cheattaxicab men by taking cabs for rides, then running away and reg to pay. He was always caught.
came into court at last and there a question of his punishment. I d that since he was a small boy had been addicted to running away himself and riding in vehicles.

It came upon him as a sort of ulsion and always after a quarrel
h his mother, or a violent scene at home. I applied the principles of psychoanalysis to his case and explained it to the court. The judge said the young man was ill and should not go to prison and he was freed, although I warned that he would do the same thing again. And, after a few months, he stole some money and went out again for many rides. This time he was sent to an institution for treatment.

"There is an actress I know, successful in her work, who was once a confirmed kleptomaniac. She was cured.

Urges Court Psychoanalyst.

"There should be a psychoanalyst in consultation before sentence is passed upon criminals. This is for the protection of society as well as in justice to the criminal. He may have been compelled to his crime, helpless under the dictates of his subconscious. It should be possible to determine within two weeks whether a person is of this type or not."

Dr. Alexander studied medicine at the University of Budapest, Gottingen, Germany, and in the Physiological institute at Cambridge, England. He early became interested in brain physiology, and after the war, during which he served as a physician at different fronts, he became an assistant at the psychiatric clinic at the University of Budapest.

"My interest gradually turned to the psychological understanding of the insane," he said. "I studied the works of Sigmund Freud and soon became convinced that for the future development of psychiatry and of all medicine, this new point of view and new method of approaching mental and biological processes would be of decisive importance. I was convinced that the next step in solving the connection of mental and brain processes could only be taken from the psychological side, and that psychoanalysis was the science to take these steps. So I devoted myself to this study.

Applies Study to Criminals.

"In 1919 I went to Berlin, to the Psychoanalytical institute opened by Dr. Max Eitingon, and here I was impressed by the riches and depth of the new insights into mental processes. In 1924 I became a lecturer in the institute and in 1925 began the study of the application of psychoanalysis to criminology, that is, for the understanding and diagnoses of criminal personalities.

"I found in the person of Hugo Staub, a lawyer, a valuable co-worker, and in 1929 we started a criminological seminarium for judges and lawyers in the institute. Soon we had a number of the leading judges and jurists as members of the seminary.

"These studies brought me nearer to the sociological aspect of psychoanalysis, and I consider working in this field, beside further research work on the medical application, as one part of my future scientific program."

Refuses Details of Oil Charges

J. P. LOONEY DENIED PARDON IN MURDER OF ROCK ISLAND MAN

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—John P. Looney of Rock Island, reputed vice ring head, serving a 14 year term in Joliet penitentiary for murder, was one of 26 convicted slayers denied pardons or commutation of sentence by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson upon recommendation of the pardon board today.

Looney, and two companions, George Buckley and George Holsapple, also denied pardons, were convicted of the murder of William Gabel, a saloon keeper, in a Rock Island vice cleanup.

Following are the denials in Cook county murder cases:

Edward F. Cronk, Albert Glenz, Oscar McKenney, Casimir Pietrowski, George Rabineau, William T. Russell, John Smothers, David Wilinkin, Albert E. Miller, Ed Williams, Leonard Young, and Harry Zdancewsicz.

Denials in other Cook county cases were:

Robbery, armed—Clarence Hawkins and Roy Reed.

Petit larceny—Henry Cynchiner.

Assault with deadly weapon—Sammie Hill.

Contempt of court—Leona Coine.

Denials in cases outside of Cook county were:

KELLEY DENIES HE'S 'EXPLOITED' IN OIL CHARGES

Falls in Designing Hands, Wilbur Charges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The verbal battle between Secretary of Interior Wilbur and Ralph S. Kelley, suspended chief of the field division of the general land office at Denver, over the manner in which the interior department administered oil shale reserves in Colorado, continued unabated today. Mr. Kelley, with a 500 word statement denying Mr. Wilbur's latest assertion that his subordinate was being "exploited" by designing persons, had the last word today.

The Kelley charges that the interior department was guilty of favoritism and misfeasance in the handling of oil shale lands valued at 40 billions of dollars are now scheduled to be amplified in a New York newspaper beginning Monday morning.

Wilbur Issues Statement.

It was after the department of justice announced that Mr. Kelley had declined to aid the department in its investigation of the maladministration charges and instead intended to turn his allegations over to a newspaper that Mr. Wilbur issued a statement asserting that the officer was being exploited.

"Mr. Kelley evidently fell into the designing hands of those who could use him to their advantage," Mr. Wilbur said. "He is being exploited. He prefers this to being given every opportunity to cure the ills of which he complains.

"In charging me with 'attempts to placate and appease the oil interests at the expense of the rights of the public,' Mr. Kelley must base his charges on my official acts, more than three-fourths of which were taken on his recommendation."

In his answer today Mr. Kelley denied that he was being exploited and said that he had experienced difficulty in persuading a newspaper to handle his charges. He said, in part:

"Mr. Wilbur has charged me with making 'false and reckless statements,' and now says 'Kelley evidently fell into designing hands of those who could use him to their advantage. He is being exploited.' I wish to avoid unseemly controversy and the hurling of epithets. I have never talked or conferred with a single person about the matters mentioned in my letter of resignation except for arrangements made for the publication of a series of articles. So far from being 'exploited' by these publishers, it took considerable persuasion on my part to induce them to publish the articles."

$75,000 CHURCH BURNED.

Ionia, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The city's costliest fire in years occurred this morning when the Methodist Episcopal church, the largest church in the city, and the home of the city's town clock, was destroyed. The loss exceeds $75,000.

WANTED FOR NEW TERRITORY

Who may live at HOTEL SHORELAND

One reason Hotel Shoreland is "select" is that in our clientele we have always been selective. What one can pay is no measure, here, of desirability. It is not our aim to have The Shoreland known as Chicago's highest priced hotel—though it is Chicago's finest. New and higher standards of service—Character—Distinction—have brought us a noteworthy clientele of those who appreciate the best in hotel living, and demand it. A clientele that knows the art of living—that seeks a cultured environment—that asks for value in its finest sense as well as in price!

SAYS KNOWLEDGE OF ARMY DEFECTS LED U.S. INTO WAR

Caused Ignored Protests, Summerall Writes.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Military unpreparedness to back up its national policies abroad forced the United States into the world war in 1917, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, army chief of staff, states in an article stressing the needs of adequate defense forces, appearing in the current number of the Infantry Journal.

Gen. Summerall asserted that the United States could have effected peace without the shedding of a single drop of American blood if this country had maintained an efficient army of adequate size to back up its naval forces. He added that the known unpreparedness of this country for war furnished the reason why the central powers ignored the state department's protests against the repeated encroachments on the rights of American neutrals on the high seas.

Could Have Been Arbiter.

"From 1914 to 1917," wrote Gen. Summerall, "our government uttered protest after protest; in our comparatively unarmed condition on land our words were unheeded. The belligerents were evenly matched. It was believed then and it appears certain now that if we had had an efficient army of adequate size to back up our efficient naval forces, our country would have been the arbiter of peace without the shedding of a single drop of American blood.

"Our reputation was that of weakness; we were looked upon by those who did not know us as a people who worshiped the dollar. These impressions gave the central powers more confidence and increased the arrogant and dictatorial tone of their notes. As a result we were morally and physically forced into the world war and sacrificed 224,082 men in killed and wounded in convincing the enemy that we were a power to be reckoned with—a people who held honor as their most precious possession.

Not Ready at Start.

"The declaration of war in April, 1917, found us almost unprepared to wage war on the scale it had assumed in France. Slowly but surely we expanded our army to four million men. It was comparatively easy to get the men, but in order to convert them into an effective combat force we had to procure and train more than 180,000 officers. The experience gained in producing those officers convinced congress that in the college men lies the source of supply of leaders able and willing to shoulder the manifold responsibilities that fall to the lot of one who commands men and is charged with their training and welfare."

Gen. Summerall continued by stating that as a nation the United States has been traditionally opposed to preparedness for aggression, but he asserted the United States should support at all times a military establishment commensurate with its risks.

Offers Reward of $100,000 for Son Held by Ex-Wife

Capt. Christian Gross, secretary of the American legation at Berne, Switzerland, has offered a reward of $100,000 for the return of his son, Peter Christian, 7 years old, who is now in the custody of Capt. Gross' former wife, Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross. The reward was made known in a cablegram yesterday to Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr. Capt. Gross was granted a divorce here on Aug. 8 and given the custody of the boy and another child, Barbara, 6 years old. Under a separation agreement created in 1928, which Superior Judge Gentzel has invalidated, Mrs. Gross was to have the custody of Peter.

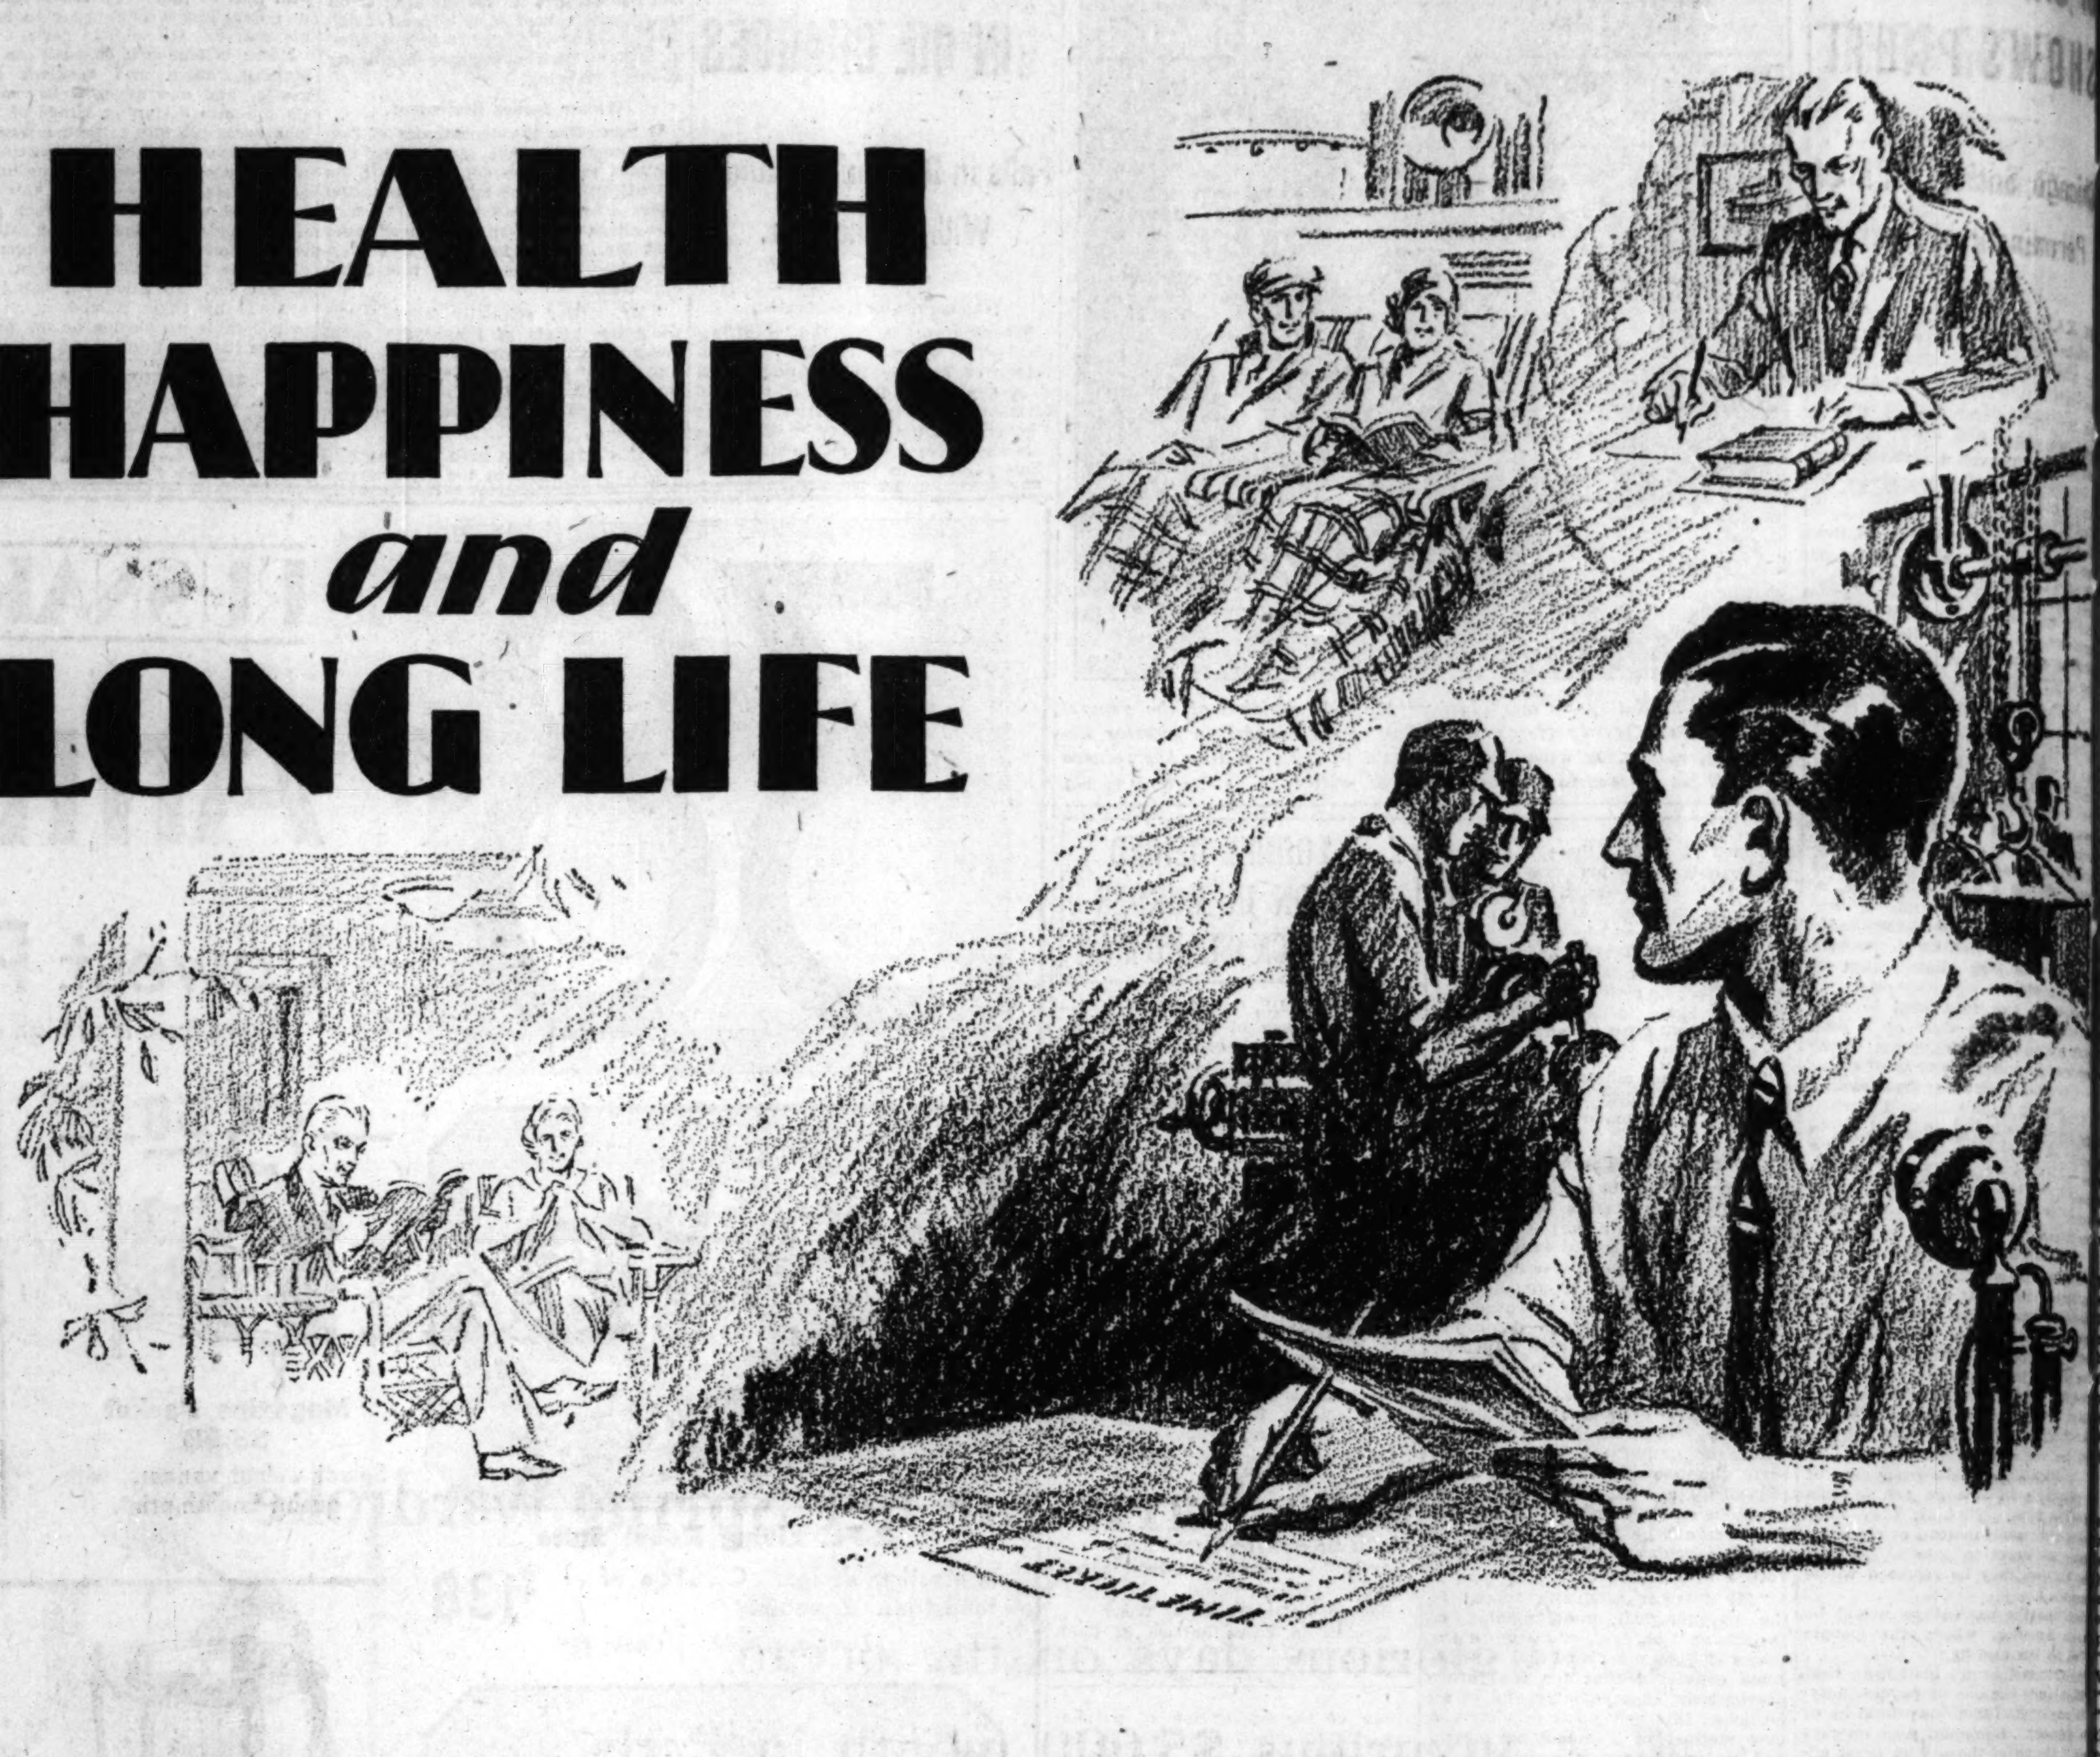
HEALTH HAPPINESS and LONG LIFE



WHAT greater blessings can life offer than health, happiness, and long life? As good health is the principal factor in happiness, and most essential to long life, every precaution should be taken to insure its protection.

In protecting health, neither of the so-called "Social Diseases", syphilis and gonorrhea, can be overlooked. The hazards of syphilis are better known, but gonorrhea, also a grave menace to the health of men, women and children, is often considered lightly by uninformed persons, causing others to underestimate its risks.

Here are some of the statements made by medical authorities—read them and you will know why physicians consider this disease a great health enemy:

"Gonorrhea is one of the most prevalent of all diseases. It affects all ages and all classes. It is responsible for many cases of blindness, especially of the newborn. It is the cause of certain chronic diseases of the joints, bladder and generative organs. It is responsible for many surgical operations on women. It often causes sterility in both men and women. After it gains a lodging in the body it is a most difficult disease to control."

Recent health surveys show that 679,000 new cases of gonorrhea come under medical care each year in the United States. Many additional thousands remain untreated, or, what often proves worse, attempt self-treatment.

Early medical advice and treatment are necessary for any infected person. Treatment in time may prevent disaster; neglect is dangerous.

Good medical treatment and care of "Social Diseases", (gonorrhea and syphilis) including Wassermann and Kahn blood and other necessary laboratory tests, can be secured within your means from an experienced family physician or from the Public Health Institute. Treatment is available also, through the Institute and in many free clinics, for those without funds. No one need go untreated.

The Institute was organized more than ten years ago to combat "Social Diseases" in Chicago. Every facility necessary for competent and reliable medical service has been provided. Members of its medical staff are experienced and are registered by the State. All treatment and advice are given by these men and women physicians. The fees are within the reach of all—for treatment is available to those without immediate funds. No one is turned away because of inability to pay.

Announcement . . . This advertisement has been submitted to and been approved by the Medical Advisory Board which has been formed at the invitation of the Trustees. It is published by a health agency established for public service to inform the public of the dangers of "social diseases," of the importance of securing good medical care, and the facilities whereby this can be obtained.

DRAMA SEASON OF SHAKESPEARE SHOWS PROFIT

Chicago Society Is Made Permanent by Clarke.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Shakespeare has scored again! Modern play after play was wrecked on the reefs of the last theatrical season, but the trim craft of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare society sailed on and on into tranquil financial waters. Corroboration of the glad news came yesterday from Harley L. Clarke, backer of the enterprise to the tune of $230,000, who took advantage of the occasion to assure the Chicago public that, come profit or come loss, the Civic Shakespeare society is from now on a permanent institution. Rumors had been that its future was based on results of the first three seasons.

More Popular in Other Cities.

Sad to say, Chicago's enthusiasm for these beautifully staged classics was exceeded by the eastern cities in which they played during the tour that followed the close of the local season. New York was loudest in its acclaim and first in attendance. Then came, respectively, Pittsburgh, Washington, Boston, Philadelphia, and last—Chicago.

It was the road shows, more than the Chicago presentations, company books reveal, that put the venture on a dollars and cents basis. Figuring all of the seats filled for every performance in all cities, Mr. Clarke pointed out, the percentage of attendance was 80. In Chicago it was 73.

Net Profit of $146.

Gross receipts for the season were $207,469. All expenses, including depreciation, totaled $207,323, leaving a net profit of $146. The company closed its initial season with assets in excess of $250,000, of which $168,171 was in cash.

"This being an organization not for profit, nobody got the surplus cash," explained Mr. Clarke. "That goes back into the society to help us out next season. We've taken on a number of new people, and the outlook is fine. The company will open on the road this year, spending three weeks out of town before opening in Chicago. Our first performances will be given Oct. 27."

Keep Score on Plays.

Discussing the relative popularity of the plays in the Chicago company's repertoire, he continued with the statement that "Hamlet," as usual, had been the best drawing card, the attendance being 84.8 per cent. The others were listed in this order of popularity: "As You Like It," 67.2; "Twelfth Night," 66.7; "Merchant of Venice," 65.6; "King Lear," 64.4; "Macbeth," 62.4; "Othello," 59.3; "Richard III.," 52.7, and "Taming of the Shrew," the least liked, 48.2 per cent.

"We didn't play 'Romeo and Juliet' last year because we hadn't just the cast for it," reminisces Mr. Clarke, who, as head of the fifty million dollar Utilities Power and Light corporation, has numerous other things on his mind beside Shakespeare but whose enthusiasm is unflagging. "'Romeo and Juliet,' you know, is almost the most popular play ever written."

Mr. Norton Goldberg

Chicago Illinois
U.S.A

Letter received by Norton Goldberg 456 East 83d street, Chicago.

Mr. Goldberg writes:

"The letter came from Jenner Bastien, a professor in Cap-Haitien. The terrible storm in the West Indies passed that port. I promised to send the young man a camera and he tells me that only a camera with anastigmatic lens will be of any use to him, on account of the torrid climate.

"Jenner relates incidents in his college, where the French language is spoken. He says the natives are anxious to learn, but that if they for any reason dislike an instructor they immediately strike. He says it is still his good fortune to retain his job. He also says his pay is $30 a month.

"At present the island is undergoing a severe strain on account of political riots and unemployment. He wants to come to Chicago, in hopes of increasing his bank roll. I have written him suggesting that he put off his trip until we find jobs for our men.

"He closes his letter by telling that the tremors of the storm were felt at Port-au-Prince, without doing any damage."

Baby Stolen from Crib Is Found Drowned Near Home

Waynesburg, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP)—A four months old child who was reported kidnaped from her crib last night was found drowned in a milk storage house near her home today. Paul Lewis, the father, told police he went to his daughter's crib during the night and found the bed empty. The child's body was found within 50 yards of the home.

M. E. CONFERENCE EXPECTED TO O.K. BIRTH CONTROL

Committee to Report on Marriage Relations.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Birth control is expected to receive the indorsement of the Rock river conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which is holding its meeting at Wilmette. A report of the social service commission, composed of fifteen pastors, will be presented to the conference by the commission chairman, the Rev. Carl D. Gage of Edison Park.

The report holds that voluntary parenthood is both scientific and Christian. It urges that courses of study be developed by the church, setting forth the "spiritual and practical value of marriage." The report then refers to the increasing difficulties besetting present day matrimonial ventures. It points to the social and economic independence of modern women ditions their foremothers faced."

A warning is given against the use of contraceptives "for selfish reasons," but the report refers to circumstances under which the coming of another child into a family "is almost, if not quite, a domestic tragedy." The birth control section of the commission's report is one of a long list of warnings and recommendations the conference will be asked to consider.

Old age pensions are indorsed in the report and "yellow dog" contracts for labor are condemned. The formation of a new political party is urged in order "to voice the aspirations of the underprivileged." The commission holds that prohibition should be tried for at least one more generation before a decision on its value is made.

The Rev. James A. Wilson, former Mendota pastor, recently sentenced to one to 14 years in the penitentiary for assault with intent to kill, was suspended from the ministry of the church pending his appeal before the Appellate court. Dr. W. L. Whipple of Geneva, chairman of the committee on conference relations, read his committee's report on the Rev. Mr. Wilson's case. The report, adopted by the conference, asked "that the conference become the custodian of Brother Wilson's parchments, voluntarily given up by him, pending the results of his civil case."

The Mendota pastor was convicted on April 14 of assault with intent to kill when a jury found him guilty of shooting his sexton, Amos Elliott. The sexton refused to relinquish a letter the pastor had written to a woman parishioner. The shooting occurred during a struggle between the two men for the possession of the letter.

BOSTON CHURCHMAN DEFENDS PURITANS; PRAISES THEIR FAITH

The present generation errs when it thinks of all early Puritans as thin lipped, sanctimonious hypocrites. So said Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, son of Charles W. Eliot, late president of Harvard university, when he arrived in Chicago yesterday to be the chief speaker tonight at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall.

Dr. Eliot, who is the president of the Boston federation of churches, regards the founders of the Massachusetts Bay colony as a much maligned people. Although pictures of ducking stools, blue laws, witchcraft inquisitions, countless prohibitions, endless sermons, and doleful psalm singing come to present day minds when Puritans are mentioned, Dr. Eliot defended his forebears by indicating that these were incidental matters and not the basic characteristics of the group.

The outstanding characteristic of the Puritans, Dr. Eliot declared, was a moral virility and a spiritual intensity that ought to be more at work today. On the other hand, the Boston churchman denied prohibition to be Puritanism's main contribution to the nation by asserting that the fundamental conceptions of American democracy originated in Puritan minds.

Dr. Eliot pleaded for a return of the "faith that impassioned the Puritans' minds and energized their wills" to meet some of America's most baffling civic problems.

Northwestern coached by Dick Hanley. Tulane coached by Bennie Bierman.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Northwestern university's football wheel of victory made its first revolution at Dyche field yesterday before [illegible] spectators. In the wake of that wheel were the New Orleans boys of Tulane university, widely heralded southern champions of 1929. Northwestern's superiority was well reflected by the score of 14 to 0, representing two touchdowns, both of which were acquired in the second period.

This Purple wheel, picked in many quarters to roll on to a Big Ten title, had as its hub a powerfully functioning line and for its rim Capt. Hank Bruder, injured early in the last two previous seasons. It was the line, both on offense and defense, and Bruder as a ground gainer which broke the heart of the visitors, sending them home surprised and saddened, although they never quit trying for a score even after it became apparent the issue itself was lost.

Purple Line Stops Tulane.

Northwestern's line stood out the more in value because Tulane had a veteran line and relied on its forward wall to make effective the end running and passing attack of its less experienced backs. But Tulane's veterans could not prevent Northwestern's veterans from sifting through and breaking up formations before they started. Appreciating early that Tulane could make no progress through the forward wall, Northwestern strategists spread their defense against passes and end runs.

Capt. Bruder himself silenced all doubts whether he had recovered from his broken leg of last year. He carried the ball brilliantly and consistently for sure yardage, punted for long distances, except on one occasion when he was hurried, and put up a hard and sound defense. It was his interception of a Tulane forward pass, from which he reeled off a 54 yard run for the first touchdown, which was the turning point of the game. Up to that point Northwestern had looked slightly better, but had not proved it.

If it be necessary to single out other individuals among a group performing unusually well for so early in the season, Guard Woodworth was all over the field on defense and even down into Tulane territory under punts. Purple ends and Purple secondary showed their value and their experience in breaking up an end running attack, refusing except on two occasions either to be sucked in or outflanked.

Breaks Against Tulane.

Tulane had the worst of the breaks. There is no question of that. It was a break perhaps, but a break caused by alertness, that Bruder counted the first marker. It was a bad break against the Olive and Blue, however, in the fourth period, when Tulane was making its valiant fight for at least one counter, that a completed forward pass to the Purple 8 yard line was called back because both teams were offside.

Allowing for these breaks and appraising Northwestern's superiority at two touchdowns is justified by the fact that when the Purple had a margin of 14 points Capt. Bruder was packed in blankets for the second half and that every one on the campus went in as a substitute, until rooters half expected to see President Walter Dill Scott himself take a place in the lineup.

Northwestern's second string outfit held the tiring but game Tulane warriors about even during the second period, which became rather dreary

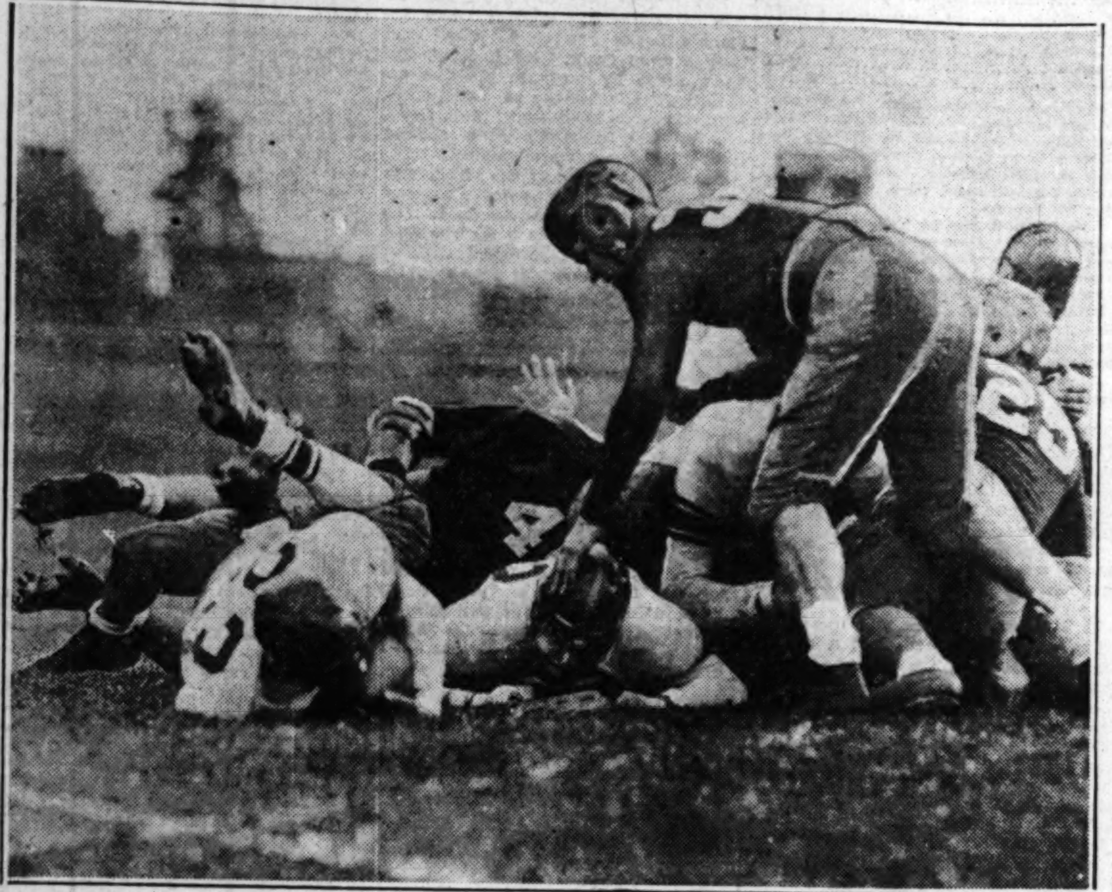
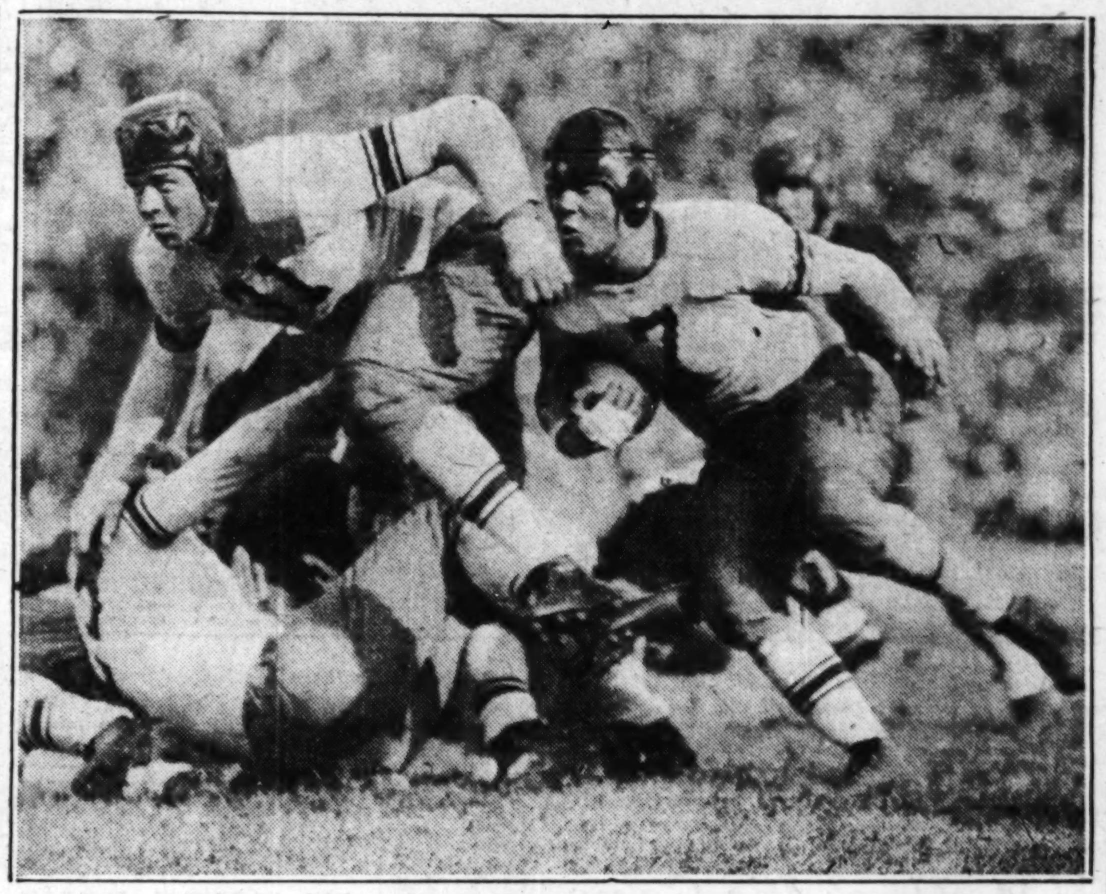
WHEN NORTHWESTERN TURNED BACK THE GREEN WAVE



Ernest Rentner, sophomore full back, plunges across for Northwestern's second touchdown against Tulane at Dyche stadium. A few minutes earlier, Capt. Hank Bruder had run 54 yards to the goal line after intercepting a pass. This dash, together with Rentner's plunge, and two drop kicks by Bruder, made the score 14 to 0 for the Purdue. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



Reb Russell, Northwestern quarter back, whirled around end in the third quarter, but his mates were unable to block effectively enough to make a long gain possible. Dallas Marvil, huge Purple tackle, is leading the interference. Throughout the second half, Tulane kept the Wildcat backs from running wild, something it failed to accomplish in the second period when Northwestern scored twice.

AERIAL IN FINAL MINUTES WINS FOR NOTRE DAME

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 4.—A hard riding band of Texans from Southern Methodist university this afternoon raced up and down the sod of old Cartier field, now transplanted in Notre Dame's new stadium. Their spectacular, accurate tossing nearly ruined the informal dedication of Notre Dame's gray brick bowl, but the home boys managed to eke out a 20 to 14 victory.

Far into the final quarter the red shirted Texans battled the Irish squad with honors even, 14 to 14. The Red Shirts, led by Bruce Kattman, whose pitching arm rarely failed to spiral the ball to a speeding end or back, scored in each period of the first half. They crashed through Notre Dame's shock troops, and then in the second quarter repeated the score against the first eleven.

Crash Over in Last 4 Minutes.

But Notre Dame also had crossed the Mustangs' goal in each quarter. Thus the players came back to wage a battle which Notre Dame repeatedly threatened to win, but couldn't. Then came the last four minutes, four minutes in which the Irish, responding to the steady, roaring cheers from the west stands, went on to victory.

Twice before Notre Dame had been stopped, thrust back by the desperate resistance of the Mustang line. Then again the ball belonged to the Irish just two yards from midfield. The setting sun long since had blanketed the field with shadow, creeping up the eastern stands until its rays reached the top sections, where all afternoon the Mustang band had blared encouragement to the Red Shirts.

Many of the 20,000 spectators believed Notre Dame must accept a draw verdict. But there was no such thought in minds of Notre Dame men. They rose to their feet, imploring.

Passes Pave Way to Victory.

Marchy Schwartz dropped back. Then he passed to Ed Kosky, who was tackled on the Methodist 27 yard line. Again Schwartz spiraled the ball, this time to Capt. Tom Conley. Conley leaped and as he leaped Gene Hamister, who had replaced Weldon Mason at half back, sent him sprawling to the turf. The officials ruled the pass completed and Notre Dame had the ball four yards from the goal line.

Quickly Carideo called one more signal. Schwartz, behind perfect interference, rushed over the prostrate linesmen, cut sharply inside to left end and plunged full length with the ball an arm's length across the goal. Carideo's placement failed, but the roaring stands knew the victory was assured.

Southern Methodist performed to the expectations of the hundreds who had followed them on their invasion. The regret Texas had in defeat was that Bob Gilbert, its quarter back, could play only the final two minutes because of an injured shoulder. The regular backs, Mason, Kattman and Ira Hopper, carried the burden on offense. Nearly every play revolved around a pass, whether it was a short pass to a runner plunging inside of tackle, or a 50 yard throw down field.

Mustangs Score Quickly.

Southern Methodist scored its first touchdown in four plays. The third play, a pass from Mason to Kattman, gained 48 yards and put the ball two

BUFFALO TAKES ST. PAUL'S PLACE IN ICE LEAGUE

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The American Hockey league will operate as a seven team circuit this season, with Buffalo, N. Y., replacing St. Paul, while the second new city on the circuit will be Chicago.

A franchise to the Buffalo, N. Y., Amusement company was granted by directors of the league at the annual meeting here today after approval was given for relinquishing the franchise of the St. Paul club.

Teams representing Buffalo, Chicago, Minneapolis, Tulsa, St. Louis, Kansas City and Duluth will constitute the league, the name of which was officially changed at the meeting today to the American league from the American Hockey association. There were six teams in the circuit last year. The St. Paul club dropped its franchise because of an inadequate ice arena, Al Warre, president of the association and official of the club, announced.

Buffalo has obtained seven St. Paul players: Stark, Conroy, Thorsteinson, Sande, Rennie, Morrison and Manager Wilson.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Al Thomas' failure to win during the regular campaign is no longer a mystery. He was in training all the time for the city series. His little scheme was revealed yesterday at Wrigley field when, before almost 30,000 partisans, he checked the occasionally powerful Cubs on six hits. Meanwhile his White Sox mates hammered the ball so freely and profited so extensively by errors that the American leaguers were able to even up the municipal baseball event at two victories apiece. The score was 8 to 2.

Mr. Thomas, although shaky in spots and assisted nobly by industrious fielders, displayed just about all the pitching detected during the nine innings of exhibition. Three Cub pitchers endeavored to do as Thomas was doing, but two were a failure. They were Guy Bush and Bob Osborn, one with a sad start and the other with a sad ending. In between this pair old Jess Petty threw five and a fraction innings which were at least worthy of mention.

Sox Take 4 Run Lead.

Bush's introduction and unimpressive exit were completed in less than two innings, during which the Sox hopped away with a four run advantage. Three of these would have been avoided in the second if Blair hadn't selected a bad time in which to boot one. While Petty was parading his southpawing between the second and seventh only one American leaguer scored and this, too, was due to an error. Then, because a pinch hitter had been employed, Osborn was asked to assume charge in the eighth. Before he had had time to take a deep breath the Sox had frisked him for three runs, two resulting from Smead Jolley's desire to see whether he could hit one over the north side wall.

Thomas accomplished his best work in the fore part of the battle and various jams into which he pitched himself in the second half indicated that he might have thrown himself out, or at least close to it. For four innings he disposed of the Cubs so handily that the south side enthusiasts couldn't resist taking advantage of the occasion. They wasted about two crates of lemons, most of them on jovial Hack Wilson. However, Hack came dangerously close to returning the attention in a more painful way.

Reynolds Makes Great Catch.

When Thomas suffered his first bit of serious inconvenience in the fifth, Hack came up after what proved the Cubs' only runs had scored and two men were on the paths. Thomas threw one and Hack swiped it mightily. It sailed like a bullet to right and there was reason to suspect it would stop only after going into the bleacher. But Reynolds, backed against the screen, leaped with his hands stretched above his head and came down with the ball. Without that startling catch the Cubs would have been one run to the good and

It Doesn't Cost So Much to Furnish a Home Today

People used to get their furniture from the cabinet maker, that is, all the furniture that couldn't be whittled out at home. If a table or chair was wanted and there was no one about the house who could do the job, the only thing to do was visit the cabinet maker, place an order, and wait. Often it was a pretty long wait. Often the product left a lot to be desired when it finally was ready for delivery.

That was a long time ago, of course. Nobody remembers the name of the enterprising cabinet maker who first hit upon the idea of making up some pieces in advance of their sale, but he performed a service of incalculable benefit to the public. Nowadays you can go into a store that sells furniture and choose from an amazingly wide variety of pieces just the sort of furniture that fits in with the scheme at home. In a few hours it's delivered and put in place.

Moreover, good furniture doesn't cost nearly as much as it used to. And bringing the comparison down to modern times, furniture prices in Chicago stores today are just about half of what they were in 1920.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Wild Bill Hallahan, the only athlete who has been able to set blasé fans jabbering with enthusiasm this year, this afternoon did just what his National league boosters said he would do. He stood the proud Athletics on their heads—thrashed them pretty with a shut out in the third game of the world series. The score was Cardinals, 5; Athletics, 0; and tonight the Red Bird, which came home a sparrow, again is warbling a sweet song.

Wild Bill was wild at times, of course. But apparently that wildness is what makes the cuckoos rave about him. Somehow, the average baseball customer likes to sit and be showered by alternate baths of hot and cold water. And Wild Bill kept turning the hot and cold faucets this afternoon with even more charm than usual.

Strikes Out Six Macks.

There have been days when Bill struck out more than he did today. He fanned six, three in the first inning, but he employed a different technique in many instances. But in the end he came back to the strikeout to clinch the victory. Jimmy Dykes stood and let the third one whiz by to bring the game to a conclusion.

Of course, it was more than just a victory for Hallahan and his mates. It put the National league back in the world series. It was the second National league victory in the last 16 world series contests. It was the first world series shutout for either league since Jess Haines of these same Red Birds blanked the Yankees by a 4 to 0 score in 1926.

The series, now 2 to 1 in favor of the Athletics, will be resumed tomorrow with the pitchers who started the series in Philadelphia again locking horns. Burleigh Grimes, the old devil man, probably will be in there firing against that suave and rapid artist, Lefty Grove, although Manager Street may send out old Jess Haines.

Crowd Sees Mack Signal.

Connie Mack, usually hidden in the recess of the dugout, was out in front of the crowd today because of the construction of field boxes which protrude far in front of the benches. The customers were given a treat. They saw the old wizard wigwag his famous score card as no crowd ever has seen him wigwag it before. And in this special semaphore performance were the signals which dismissed Rube Walberg in the fifth inning and Bill Shores in the seventh. Finally Connie called on a spit ball thrower approximately his own age—Mr. Jack Quinn.

The rollicking spirit that carried the Cards through their sensational National league drive in August and September was being revived, the chesty Philadelphians were being cast down immeasurably. The rah-rah boy spirit which causes the A's to embrace each other and carry heroes about on their shoulders was sadly absent. Kid Gleason is said to be the only member of the A's who wears garters. The nine rahs and a tiger died in Philadelphia throats this afternoon.

Of course today's game didn't decide the world championship. The Cubs won the third game of last year's series and look at what happened to them. But the Cubs had to carry on on a foreign field and the Cards are at home and will be until Monday's game goes in the books. On this condition are the Cardinals basing their new born optimism.

Bishop Gets 3 Hits.

But forgetting the future, the fact remains that this afternoon Hallahan held the A's to seven hits and was never in danger after the first inning. Three of the hits were made by a left handed, ordinary batter, Max Bishop. All of Max's shots were good singles, though left handed, ordinary batters aren't supposed to hit Wild Bill.

Two of the hits, a double and a single, were socked by Al Simmons. One was a scratch by Jimmy Foxx and the other was a sound effort, a

The University of Chicago football team, using an offense which consisted almost entirely of passes, opened its season yesterday by passing its way to a double victory at Stagg field, the varsity defeating Ripon, 19 to 0, in the opener, while the Maroon reserves trimmed Hillsdale college, 7 to 6, in the second game. A crowd of 20,000 saw the doubleheader.

The Maroons opened their attack with both forward and lateral passes and kept throwing them all over the premises throughout the afternoon. In the absence of Capt. Erret Van Nice, who is recovering from an injury to his side, Paul Stagg did most of the passing, with Knudson, Cowley, and Wien alternating on the receiving end.

In the Ripon game the Maroons completed 13 out of 21 passes for a total gain of 230 yards. As a result, Chicago made twelve first downs to four for the Wisconsin eleven.

Score in First Quarter.

The Maroons scored first in the middle of the first quarter. With the ball in midfield Temple shot a pass to Cowley for a first down on the Ripon 35 yard line. A line buck and a short pass failed, but Stagg again passed to Cowley and put the ball on the 20 yard line. Knudson found an opening through right tackle and dashed to the 2 yard line, where he was forced out of bounds. Temple crashed over the goal line on the third attempt. Stagg missed the drop kick for the extra point.

Late in the second quarter Temple got off a low, skimming kick that rolled out of bounds on Ripon's 13 yard line and Cunnington punted on the first down to Ripon's 43 yard line. On the first play Stagg flipped a lateral pass to Knudson, who scampered straight down the field to the 17 yard line. Knudson plunged through right tackle for a first down on the 5 yard mark, and scored a moment later to give the Maroons a 12 to 0 lead. Mackenzie missed the place kick for the extra point, as the half ended.

Fumble Stops March.

A series of passes carried the ball to the Ripon 9 yard line, just as the third quarter ended, but at that point Temple fumbled, Steinman recovering for Ripon. Cunnington punted out of danger, but the Maroons began a steady barrage of passes that took the ball to Ripon's 15 yard line where Martin intercepted a short lateral pass. Kanne returned the compliment on the next play by picking off Mangen's throw on the Ripon 21 yard line, but the Maroons missed another chance to score when Knudson dropped Stagg's pass as he was stepping over the goal line, Ripon getting the ball on its 20 yard strip.

The Wisconsin eleven opened up with passes in a desperate attempt to score, but four straight throws were wild and the Maroons took the ball on downs. On the first play Stagg tossed a pass to Wien, who stepped across the goal line for the final touchdown.

Hillsdale Scores First.

Hillsdale scored first in the second game when Capt. Reynolds intercepted Wallace's pass in midfield and romped to the 6 yard line before Birney caught him from behind. Reynolds carried the ball over the goal line three plays later, but Davis missed the attempted drop kick that ultimately cost his team a tie.

In the middle of the third quarter Birney passed 40 yards to Wallace, who dashed the remaining eight yards across the line for the tying score. Birney's drop kick sailed between the uprights and gave the Maroons their 7 to 6 margin.

Stanford Piles Up 20 to 0 Victory Over Santa Clara

Palo Alto, Cal., Oct. 4.—(AP)—A pair of fleet half backs, Phil Moffatt and Harlow Rothert, led Stanford university to a 20 to 0 victory over Santa Clara here today. Seeking to duplicate their surprise victory of 1929 the Bronchos battled the Cardinals to a scoreless deadlock in the first half, but were unable to match the swift thrust of Stanford in the second. Moffatt scored one touchdown and Rothert two.

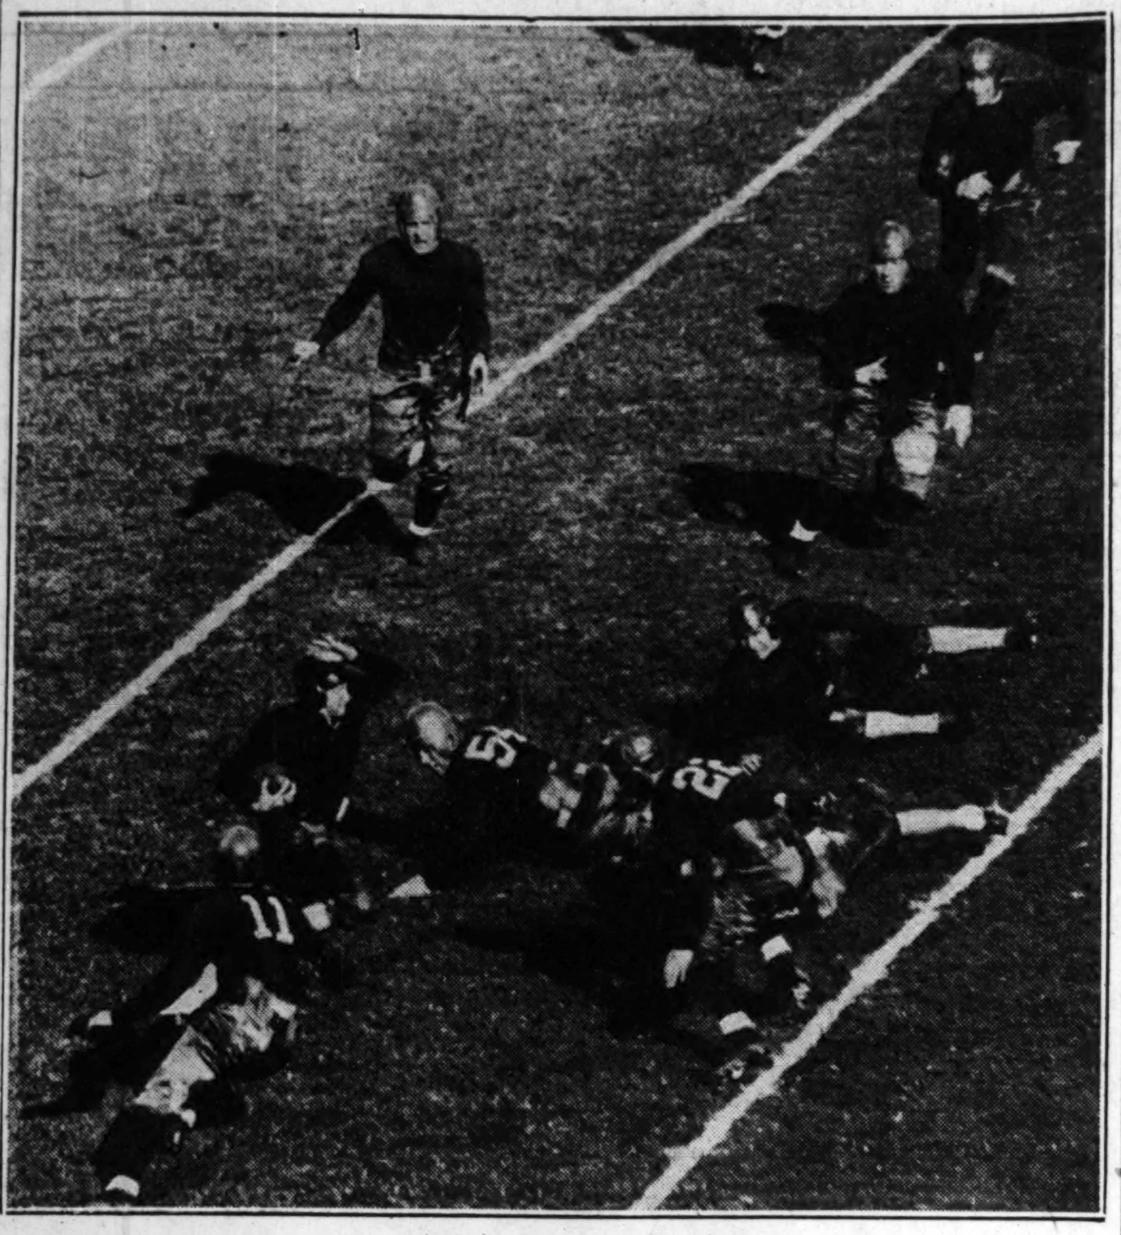
TEXAS MUSTANG GOES ON A GALLOP



Weldon Mason finds an opening in Notre Dame's line during Southern Methodists' march to a touchdown in the first quarter of the thrilling 20 to 14 battle won by the Irish at South Bend yesterday. The Mustangs employed line smashes merely to vary their passing game, which made two touchdowns possible.

yards from Notre Dame's goal line. Hopper followed with a thrust over tackle for the six points and Long place kicked for the seventh.

The touchdown was accepted complacently by Notre Dame's fans, for they are accustomed to seeing the shock troops scored upon. Only a minute later Joe Savoldi, the curly haired Italian, received the kickoff, fumbled momentarily, and then raced down the center of the field 98 yards for a touchdown. Notre Dame's players blocked as only they can block, and Joe picked a path around the fallen foe. Chuck Jackwhich, Carideo's understudy, kicked the point.

Early in the second quarter Larry Mullins broke through the Mustang line and ran 60 yards to the goal, but the score was nullified by Notre Dame's holding. A bit later Frank Carideo returned a Mustang punt and the second touchdown was manufactured. A penalty for holding had shoved S. M. U. back so that Kattman punted from behind his goal line. Carideo took the ball and raced 29 yards to the S. M. U. 11 yard strip. Two plays, the second a five yard slice off tackle by Schwartz, crossed the final chalk mark. Carideo place kicked the point.

Mustangs Tie Score.

With a few minutes of the half remaining, Mustang passes accomplished a second and tying score. Kattman tossed from his own 20 yard line to Long for 16 yards. Then he sent another which was ruled completed because of interference at Notre Dame's 38 yard line. A third time Kattman passed. Koontz, running wide, grabbed the ball just out of Carideo's reach and staggered the remaining six yards. Long's placement tumbled high over the crossbar.

Statistics show Notre Dame made 14 first downs and Southern Methodist 13. Eleven times the Irish made their distance by running and plunging. One lateral pass, a forward pass and one pass completed by penalty accomplished the others. Southern Methodist twice made first down by straight football, nine times on passes, and twice on passes completed by penalty.

Exclusive of distance lost because of successive incomplete passes, Notre Dame was penalized 25 yards and Southern Methodist 20.

OKLAHOMA A. & M. PASS BEATS IOWA IN LAST QUARTER

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Unable to halt an aerial attack launched in the final period by a substitue back field, the University of Iowa football team lost its intersectional contest with the Oklahoma Aggies here today, 6 to 0.

With Clarence Highfill, substitute half back, doing the tossing and Duane Fisher, relief quarter back, on the receiving end, the Aggies scored in the last four minutes of the game.

Taking an Iowa punt on their 38 yard line, the Aggies swept down the field by the aerial route, but lost the ball on an incomplete pass over the goal line. Starting again from Iowa's 45 yard line after a Hawkeye punt, the Highfill to Fisher combination scored on a 15 yard pass over the goal line.

The lighter Oklahoma line repulsed frequent Iowa scoring attempts, holding the Hawkeyes on four tries inside the 6 yard line at the close of the third period after the Old Gold eleven had pounded its way down the field for 65 yards.

Iowa outgained the Aggies from scrimmage, 192 yards to 66, but completed only four out of eleven passes for 45 yards, while the visitors made good half of their 15 tries for 129 yards.

Stout Fumbles on 18 Yard Line; Stevens Pt. Wins, 6-0

Menominee, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Taking advantage of a Stout fumble, Stevens Point Teachers' college eleven won today, 6 to 0. Stout fumbled on its 18 yard line, and the Pointers pushed it over in the first play of the second quarter. Stout lost heavily on penalties in the first half. The Pointers failed to cash in on three chances at drop kicks in the last quarter from the 15 and 25 yard lines.

CHICAGO CARDS PLAY TINY LEWIS' ELEVEN TODAY

The Chicago Cardinals professional football team, led by Ernie Nevers, will play Portsmouth, O., in a league game today. The Portsmouth eleven is led by Tiny Lewis, former Northwestern star.

The Cards play at Newark in a night game Wednesday, and meet the Providence Steamrollers next Sunday. Benny Friedman's Giants will be played in a night game at New York on Oct. 15. The Cardinals return here to play the Bears on Oct. 19.

Nevers has practically recovered from the bad ankle which kept him out of all but a few minutes of the Green Bay game.

The Bears will play Minneapolis at Minneapolis today.

CALIFORNIA IS UPSET BY WASH. STATE TEAM, 16-0

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Washington State turned in a big upset here today by decisively defeating California in a Coast conference game, 16 to 0. Washington scored its first touchdown in the first quarter, added three more points in the second quarter with a field goal, and got another touchdown in the final period.

PARKING SYSTEM AT NOTRE DAME GIVEN APPROVAL

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The Rockne traffic and parking system for Notre Dame's new $700,000 stadium was tried out for the first time today and with a little more refining should perform for next Saturday's visitors to the Navy game with the clockwork efficiency of the coach's football teams.

Thirty-five hundred automobiles were steered into the convenient and ample parking spaces this afternoon for the Southern Methodist game over well marked and policed routes that dodged the local traffic in the South Bend business district. With police guidance to eliminate stops for through streets in South Bend, twelve thousand cars should be able to get to the stadium with a minimum of delay next Saturday.

Hundred Miles from Chicago.

The mileage here from the Tribune Tower was 99.8. The route followed was over the outer drive and South Shore drive, following the U. S. 41 marker, over Indianapolis boulevard and turning south with this marker in Hammond, Ind., thence to Indiana 6 Ridge road to Westville, Ind., 2 to U. S. 20, and thence following the "to stadium" signs posted by the Chicago Motor club.

Knute Rockne personally supervised the traffic and parking arrangements, appreciating the fact that attendance at football games depends to an appreciable measure upon facilities for automobiles. He hobbled over the grounds this summer with George Barton, traffic engineer for the Chicago Motor club, located approaches to the storage lots, lanes for moving vehicles and directions for entrances and exits. After seeing the system in operation today, Barton was nearly satisfied with what a football coach can devise in traffic engineering.

Two Routes Available.

Motorists from Chicago have two routes to enter the city, over U. S. 20 and over Indiana 2 which becomes Lincoln way west of South Bend. The latter is longer by about a mile, but will probably be less congested on days of big games because it is less known.

Policemen, firemen, and Boy Scouts aid in urging a continuous rapid movement of traffic, and little encouragement is needed for motorists who attend football games. Fifty-five and sixty miles an hour are common speeds with the fans in the open country and thirty-five to forty miles an hour is held by many within the city here.

Parking is prohibited on football days on some of the South Bend streets—a Rockne innovation—and one way regulations are contemplated for the big crowds.

At the parking lots, there is one way traffic at the entrances. The cars are stopped with their radiators headed in the direction for departure. They leave over the routes they enter.

GEORGIA TECH DEFEATS SOUTH CAROLINA, 45-0

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Georgia Tech solved South Carolina's tricky triple pass formation and smashed its way to a 45 to 0 triumph today.

Although seldom within scoring range, the Carolina eleven was always threatening with a long distance passing attack.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Illinois' green youngsters gave a much better account of themselves than was generally expected today when they defeated Iowa State, 7 to 0, in their opening game.

Matched against a team which presented a great deal more experience in its personnel, the Orange and Blue line held its own without much apparent difficulty and on the one occasion when Iowa State had a chance to score stopped the Cyclone attack handily.

Offensively the young Illini never got together until their opportunity came in the third period, when they uncorked a quick and speedy attack which resulted in the winning touchdown.

Discarding the double wing back formation which was used so effectively in the last three years, the Illini turned to other formations more suited to the material. Usually Yanuskus or Berry dropped back to a punt formation from which runs or passes were sprung.

Yanuskus Goes Over.

The break of the game came in the third period when Bodman kicked off for Illinois. Wells of Iowa State was tackled by Hunter Russell, sophomore end, on the Iowa State 15 yard line. Walker fumbled and Schumacher, Illinois lightweight center, fell on the ball on the 24 yard line.

Peewee Perrine, midget quarter back, called his plays with celerity. With Berry and Yanuskus carrying, the Illini moved right along, Yanuskus finally skirting the Iowa State right side for the score.

In the fourth period Clark Rott, replacing Perrine, returned the ball on Bowen's punt for 40 yards, which put the scrimmage on the Iowa State 30 yard line. The Illini were hot, it appeared, but a bad pass from center and a fumble proved disastrous and Berry's pass over the goal line was unsuccessful.

Iowa Threat Stopped.

Iowa threatened in the closing minutes when Bowen intercepted a pass and the Cyclones took the ball on the Illinois 37 yard line. Trauger darted to the 17 yard line but was stopped on three more trials and Bowen's pass was incomplete.

The first half was uneventful, chiefly given over to punting in which Bowen excelled Yanuskus. Illinois made ten first downs against four by Iowa State, and gained 144 yards through the line to 134 by their opponents. They gained 45 yards around end while Iowa State made but three. Illinois gained 5 yards after completing passes and Iowa State none.

Yanuskus was the chief ground gainer for Illinois, with Schultz and Berry next. Trauger was the chief reliance of the Cyclones.

Buckeyes Whip Hoosiers, 23-0, To Open Conference Season

Columbus, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Held to a field goal in the first half, Ohio State came back strong in the final quarter of its first Big Ten game today to whip Indiana, 23 to 0.

Almost every advance of the Buckeyes was repulsed by the inexperienced line of the Hoosiers during the first three quarters. Indiana didn't have enough good reserve material to replace the tiring regulars and the Buckeyes shoved across twenty points in the fourth quarter to turn the game into a virtual rout.

Ohio had seven sophomores at one time in the lineup, and when the majority of the scoring was done in the last quarter Fesler was the only Ohio player in the game who started. The game also marked the return of Fesler to his old position at right end, where he received all-American honors for the last two years.

Fesler Stops Hoosiers.

Fesler went back to his old position late in the second quarter when Indiana's backs started to run wild around that flank. He had, at full back, made 24 yards in his five attempts at carrying the ball, averaging almost five yards on every play. Needless to say, Indiana's runs around Ohio's right end were stopped.

Fesler, until sent to the flank, was the key man in the intricate passing attack employed behind the line. The wing back attack in use for the first time at Ohio State worked without a flaw. The passing was done smoothly and there was plenty of deception in the plays.

Penalties marred the play. Ohio State, often within scoring distance in the first half, was continually checked by offside and holding offenses. In the whole game the Ohioans were penalized 85 yards for nine separate penalties, while Indiana was set back 35 yards on three misplays.

In the field the Buckeyes were clearly the masters of the Hoosiers. They gained a total of 288 yards through the line to 139 for the Hoosiers, chalking up 17 first downs to four for Indiana. Fourteen of the Buckeyes' first downs came through scrimmage, two from passes, and one from a penalty. All of Indiana's came through rushing.

Ohio Better in Air.

In the aerial game the Buckeyes also were superior, trying nine passes to Indiana's six, completing four, having one intercepted and four knocked down. Indiana completed two short heaves, had one intercepted, and three were incomplete.

Lewis Hinchman, a sophomore meeting his first Big Ten opposition, gained the most ground of the game. He alone accounted for 107 yards while carrying the ball, while Benis and Carroll came next with 33 yards each.

Saluski, another sophomore, playing his first game for Indiana, showed up as the best ball carrier for Indiana, gaining 44 yards through the line.

Indiana takes on Oklahoma Aggies at Bloomington next week, while the Buckeyes journey to Evanston to engage Northwestern.

Mizpah, Doris Race Today for Rich Cup

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 4.—A $5,000 cup awaits the winner of tomorrow's 83 mile Lake Michigan race between the Mizpah and the Doris, Chicago owned yachts. The trophy was decided on today after a final conference between the rival yacht owners, Commander Eugene McDonald and Capt. William Hofnauer.

Both yachts tonight were moored here at the Milwaukee Yacht club, where the start will be made tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Just as the craft neared the Navy pier a signal from the lighthouse keeper caused the Doris to come about. A broken gas line in an outboard motorboat had stranded a lonely fisherman. The Doris turned about and picked up the angler, returning him to the coast guard station, causing a forty minute delay in its running time.

Despite the 20 foot difference in the length of the entries no allowance will be made for the smaller boat, the Doris. Both boats will get away to an even start.

All unnecessary gear and fuel not needed for the actual race has been stowed. The crews likewise have suffered. Minimum weight is an important factor in a race of this type. The only boundaries will be that the course will be outside the harbor buoys. The boat to be adjudged the winner will be the first to crcoss the front of the harbor light at the foot of Monroe street in Chicago.

Lipton's Captain Tells Why English Yacht Was Beaten

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Some of the reasons why Shamrock V. did not lift the America's cup this year as Sir Thomas Lipton had hoped were explained to interviewers by Capt. Ned Heard, who sailed the green sloop against Enterprise, and by Charles Nicholson, Shamrock's designer, as they arrived home from their yachting adventure.

Capt. Heard said mechanical devices, which made Enterprise a faster boat, defeated Shamrock V. Nicholson said Enterprise's amateur skipper, Harold Vanderbilt, had devoted practically five months before the regatta tuning her up and testing every experiment considered worth while to put her in condition for victory.

Capt. Heard arrived on the Caronia with his racing crew. He would make no further comment concerning the results of the races or the causes of the Irish baronet's defeat.

NEBRASKA BEATS TEXAS A. & M., 13-0, IN SECOND HALF

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 4.—(AP)—With a crushing third and fourth period offensive, the University of Nebraska defeated the Texas Aggies this afternoon, 13 to 0. Displaying a typical Husker rushing attack with Marvin Paul lugging the ball, Nebraska scored first in the third period eight plays after the kickoff.

Paul carried the ball on seven of the eight plays that began on the 25 yard line, crashing over from the two foot line.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Michigan State battled Michigan to a scoreless tie this afternoon. The Spartans held whenever Michigan moved within the vicinity of their goal line.

Michigan went over the line in the first half, but the play was called back because of an offside. At the start of the third quarter the Wolverines failed by inches to make first down on the Spartans' two yard stripe.

Michigan also tried three kicks from placement.

The Wolverines gained 195 yards from scrimmage and 24 by the overhead route. State was held to 64 yards from scrimmage and completed one pass good for 10 yards.

The battle cost Michigan the services of Bill Hewitt, star end, who sustained a fractured ankle. Morrison suffered a shoulder injury, which is likely to incapacitate him for two weeks.

Michigan's aerial attack failed, only two out of 16 tries being successful. Tessmer, Michigan's chief hope in this department, did not make a pass click, while Newman, who succeeded him, made two good.

PURDUE, 20; BAYLOR, 7

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Purdue looked like anything but a Big 10 championship title defender here this afternoon as it defeated Baylor 20 to 7. The fighting Baylor line effectively stopped Purdue's running attack throughout.

It took two forward passes and a spectacular 75 yard run by Howard Kissel, midget half back, to produce the Boilermakers' touchdown. If it hadn't been for the effectiveness of Purdue's aerial attack there might have been a different result.

A reserve Purdue eleven fought desperately to stave off the Baylor thrusts throughout the first period. Jake Wilson, elusive back, led an attack that almost scored twice during the first few minutes.

The Purdue regulars were inserted in the middle of the second quarter after Baylor had been held for downs on the one yard line. The veterans' attack went better than the reserves and a 20 yard forward pass from Pope to Moss to the Baylor 30 yard line started them toward a touchdown. Yunevich added fifteen off tackle and the Boilermakers again resorted to the air when Pope tossed to Moss in the end zone. Vanbibber kicked for the extra point.

Kissell's brilliant 75 yard run for a touchdown came in the third quarter and was the high spot of anotherwise sluggish game.

The final touchdown came in the last quarter when a short drive ended with a 24 yard pass from Pope to Purvis over the goal line.

Baylor's scoring break came in the third quarter when Koch scooped up a fumble by Chasey and raced [illegible] yards unmolsted to the goal line.

FANS, YOU JUST CAN'T KEEP GOOD BALL TEAM DOWN

Must Take Punches to Be Able to Give Them.

BY CONNIE PEGLER STREET.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 4.—O, boy! Now we are started at last, full steam ahead like a house afire, and I don't suppose it will do any harm now to take you into my confidence with a little confidential secret that I have been keeping to myself.

Fans, when I told you we were not downhearted or discouraged you may not probably have believed it because the way things were going, or seemed to be going. I don't blame you folks if you got the idea that we had met our "masters" and were sinking to our Waterloo without rescue in sight. But one important salient fact about this wonderful old pastime of ours is that anything can happen in baseball, and you will often find that just when things look darkest, the situation is quite different to what you may probably figure.

Had "Hunch" All Along.

Would it be a surprise to you, fans, if I should tell you that I had a "hunch" all along that we would get started sooner or later and show our mettle in true championship style, as the thousands of loyal supporters had every right to expect?

Oftentimes, although I am not much of a prizefight "fan" myself, a person will see a fighter testing out the foe by seeing just how much of a punch they have to contend with and the only way to do this is to feel your opponent out. Then, if you find out he has a dangerous left hook, you make up your mind and say to yourself, "Well, well, this fellow is a dangerous left hooker and I will have to watch out that he doesn't get a chance to hit me one when it will count most."

Now, for my part, I would personally prefer to come from behind to gloriously win an uphill battle than I would to find things easy at the start and begin thinking I have an easy time on my hands. This is where psychology is so all-important in sport and especially in the climatic autmn finale of baseball, where overconfidence skulks after the players, ready to get them into a fool's paradise, believing they are as good as victorious when the battle is only half over.

History Tells Story.

History is full of such cases. I need only remind the older fans among my readers of the 1908 blue ribbon classic to point out a glaring example of what I mean. What happened there? If you will analyze the situation in a fair-minded way, you will have to admit that practically the same things happened in that case as are happening before your very eyes where the Cardinals and Athletics are making history for posterity today. The old saying that the race does not always go to the swiftest never was any more faithfuly reproduced on the field of action than our boys are proving with might and main today.

But, without saying much about it, I have been saying to myself all along that if that was the best they could do, we had nothing to fear, and, without wanting to detract anything from a team of worthy and fitting champions of their league, I have always believed and always will maintain that our league, on the average over the years, maintains a distinct edge in general class which is bound to crop up in the long run.

Got Back the Old Rhythm.

My boys all said the pitching was just fair but the trouble was they were hitting in a slump which caught them unawares. When the rhythm and timing came back things were different, as the score plainly illustrates, and I will guarantee you that if you do not see a change in things from now on I will certainly miss my "guess."

The psychology of our team is one of the best in the world of sports with a bunch of good natured, fighting spirits all pulling together, one for all, loyal to their manager to the last drop of the hat, and especially to the most liberal, fair minded, and kind hearted owner of whom I ever had any dealings with, with the heart of a child, the disposition of a good natured boy, and the interests of the players and the fans always foremost before him.

Fans, I often hear people who do not know the true inside facts expressing opinions contrary to truth and justice, but I generally say nothing about it, believing a man's actions speak louder than words and, moreover, a big man does not need any defence against malicious and destructive criticism, but I can not help from saying that our players, of whom I am proud to include myself, will never work for a more loyal sportsman and gentleman.

Proud to Call Magnate Friend.

I sometimes hear that you fans are not interested in the magnates, but I maintain that the great, fair minded, loyal average run of baseball fans, the mainstay and support of our glorious national pastime, are interested in any fine citizen, be he a magnate or whatever walk of life they may happen to be in. Such a man I am proud to call my friend and clasp their hand in fellowship, taking a man as a man, whatever their calling in life.

And I want to say right here and now, folks, that although you may sometimes hear about him getting into unfortunate clashes with people which are soon over with and forgotten, that is only because he is so loyal and big hearted that he oftentimes feels bashful and puts on a gruff "front" for a mask to hide his true nature from the world.

The Truth Will Out.

Fans, I know you are fair and only need to hear the other side of anything to give everybody a square deal, and, although he did not ask me to write anything about it in my articles on the Blue Ribbon series, the truth will out, though the "heavens" fall down.

We are up and fighting now, folks, and, though I don't want to take any credit away from anybody else's ball club, defeat has been the best thing in the world for us and victory was bad for them. As soon as we felt them out and found out just what they could do and couldn't do, my strategy began to operate, and you know the rest.

CARDINALS DEFY SUPERSTITION, POSE FOR PICTURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 4.—No greater defiance of a standard baseball superstition ever was shown in a ball park than that of the Cardinals this afternoon, when they lined up for a group picture at the home plate just before game time. Ball clubs consider themselves jinxed when they pose together even of a morning the week before the series. But at the plate a half hour before game time after losing two straight! My goodness!

Sam Breadon, president of the Cards, though known as a cautious business man, has no such reputation for thrift as President Shibe of the A's. Anyhow, Mr. Breadon hired a band, in contrast with the arrangement at Shibe park, where a portable noise device, similar to that used in canoes, produced such music as was required.

It's wonderful what a persistent man can do with the right kind of grass seed and a sprinkling can. Because Sportsman's park is used by both American and National leagues during the regular season, and because summer rain is virtually unknown in St. Louis, the diamond looked almost like the skinned type at the close of the season. But today unmistakable suggestions of verdant growth were to be detected on the diamond.

Not that the public gives a care about what happens to the poor, overworked authors, but it must be said that those in charge of press box arrangements here did right well. Preference in locations was given to the gents who write baseball. Even that great literature producer, Babe Ruth, was far back and to one side, easily accessible to the autograph nuts.

Nick Altrock, however, got into the typewriter zone. He and Al Schacht put on their act at Philadelphia, but no craving was felt for same at this Mississippi port.

The Cardinals had a yell leader, dressed up in quaint raiment. The fellow was old enough to have more restraint. The poor chap couldn't even turn a hand spring.

Not a Philadelphian reached third after the first inning. The Athletics had nine left on bases and the Cardinals had five.

No one is saying anything mean about Gus Mancuso, who has been the Cardinal catcher during Wilson's incapacity. But the fans were making Hallahan share some of the glory with Wilson.

With 36,994 paying customers in the park and hundreds hanging on the eaves today, it was announced there probably will be 42,000 paid tomorrow. Where they're going to put 'em is something for the management to figure out.

Some of the folks are here to pay homage to Coste and Bellonti. The writer of these notes hasn't verified it, but understands Mr. C. and Mr. B. fly airplanes for a living.

Hallahan Holds Macks to 7 Hits; Cards Win Third Game of World Series, 5-0

single in the ninth by Jim Moore, the rookie whose spring training expenses this year were paid by Charles A. Comiskey of Chicago.

The Cards made ten hits and the first of these was a homer by Taylor Douthit to start the fourth. Douthit, on this shot, was the first Red bird to get as far as first base off Walberg. Three singles in a row came in the fifth, three singles in a row and another one later on were produced by St. Louis in the seventh and in the eighth. Chick Hafey and Jim Bottomley, whose batting slump has been blamed for the Card fold up in Philadelphia, propelled successive doubles.

Fans Three in First.

The very first inning was a handsome example of Hallahan's chill and thrill artistry. Bishop started it with the first of his series of singles. The A's obviously had instructions to wait out Wild Bill and determine the extent of his control. The first pitch to Dykes was called a strike. The next one was a ball. The third was another called strike. Jimmy heaved at the next one and missed. He had fanned. Cochrane took two called strikes also, but he wound up with a pass.

It took Hallahan three pitches to strike out Simmons. The first of these was a called strike, Foxx took two strikes and a ball, then sent a grounder to the left of second. Gelbert knocked it down but could not recover in time for action. It was a hit and the bases were filled.

Miller let one strike go by. He let strike two go by. He tried to hit the third one but missed it a foot. Three outs and three world champions sunk on bases.

The only time that Hallahan's wildness caused a dash of relief pitchers to the bull pen was in the third. After Bishop had bounced to Bottomley, Dykes drew four wide ones after taking two strikes. Cochrane got two balls, a called strike and missed a strike, and two more balls and also walked. The batting champion of the American league, Al Simmons, was at bat—the store tied at 0-0.

And the batting champion of the American league hit a grounder down to Gelbert just fast enough to enable Charley to start a double play, Gelbert to Frisch to Bottomley.

Douthit Hits Homer.

The chain of goose eggs ended in the latter half of the fourth. Douthit, after taking two strikes, smacked a high one into the far distant left field bleacher, a homer which not only gave the Cards their first hit of the game but also gave them the winning run. Adams, Frisch, and Bottomley were easy for Walberg, Bottomley ending the inning with his second strike out of the game.

In the fifth the Cards added another run and two runs were about all that the crowd figured Wild Bill would need for victory, with allowances out for insurance against a homer or something.

Blades registered the second hit off Walberg with one out in the fifth. It was a single to center. Wilson, retured to the game after being out over a month with a sprained ankle, singled to right on the hit and run, Blades pulling up at third. Gelbert then singled to left, scoring Blades. Wilson momentarily forgot his injury in the excitement and tried to reach third, but Simmons picked up Gelbert's hit and threw to Dykes for an easy putout.

Walberg Walks Hallahan.

Walberg walked Hallahan and Connie Mack naturally figured this an ominous tip off. Out went Walberg and in came Shores, who made Douthit tap to Bishop to end the inning.

Al Simmons doubled with one out in the sixth and there was some Philadelphia hope of starting a rally. But the hope was blasted by the one great fielding play of the day. Bottomley leaned far over in the boxes and grabbed Foxx's foul with one hand just as the ball was about to hit a lady on top of her bonnet. Miller let Al die on second when he flied to Douthhit. That inning really gave the A's their last scoring chance of the day.

Shores got rid of Adams, Frisch, and Bottomley in the sixth with amazing ease. But the Cards' seventh was something else again. Hafey singled to left and Watkins, who had replaced Blades in right, singled to center, Hafey taking third and Watkins proceeding to second when Haas threw to third in a foolish effort to get Hafey. Wilson's second single went to left and scored Hafey and Watkins. Quinn relieved Shores. Gelbert forced Wilson and Halahan made three futile attempts to bunt. Douthit singled to left, but the inning was over when Quinn knocked down his hot one and threw him out.

Simmons Gets Single.

Simmons singled with one out in the eighth and went to second while Frisch was throwing out Foxx. Frankie had a double play in sight, but over charged the ball. But he killed the grounder, turned around and recovered in time to throw out Foxx. Gelbert threw out Miller.

In the Cardinals' eighth Bottomley doubled with one out and came home on Hafey's double. Watkins and Wilson were easy outs.

Moore batted for Haas in the ninth and singled to left. But he never got any farther, for Boley fouled to Frisch, McNair batting for Quinn flied to Watkins, and, after Bishop had walked, Dykes took two bals, then three straight strikes to end the game.

FIRST VICTORY REVIVES SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The "Spirit of St. Louis" is back in the hearts of the Cardinals.

They were a determined, grinning lot of ball players that charged up the concrete runway and into their dressing room today after finally getting the measure of the Athletics, 5 to 0, in the third game of the world series.

The players, slapping each other on the back, rushed over to hug Wild Bill Hallahan, the big elephant tamer. The grizzled leader, Gabby Street, piled after them.

"Say, listen, fellows," Street said. "It's just a good ball club that's finally started to hit. And put this down, and put it down as the truth: It's the gamest ball club I ever saw."

Gives Credit to Wilson.

Street believes the presence of Jimmy Wilson, back at his old backstop post, was the one big inspiration for the Cardinals.

The moon-faced Hallahan, chewing a big wad of gum, took the praise of this triumph with unconcern.

"They all look alike to me," Wild Bill drawled. "I knew I could beat 'em, just like I beat Brooklyn last month, just the minute I stepped into the box."

Street said he would start either Jess Haines or Burleigh grimes against the A's in the fourth game tomorrow, but he wouldn't say for sure, as he admitted he liked the mystery stuff that Connie Mack pulls each day in keeping pitching selections secret until a minute before game time.

Up in the American league offices, back of the grand stand, stood Connie Mack, bareheaded, analyzing the game.

Why Douthit Got Homer.

"While the Cardinals hit all our pitchers hard, I feel that Walberg really did not deserve to be taken out. I took him out, however, because he seemed to be tired at that moment. Douthit's homer was an inspiration for the Cardinals. It was a curve ball just above his knee. Walberg, already having two strikes on Douthit, planned to throw him a bad one—a low curve below the knees—but got it above the knees instead, and as a result it was perfect home run pitch."

Connie refused to announce his pitcher for tomorrow. The best guess around the Athletic clubhouse was Grove.

THOMAS ALLOWS CUBS SIX HITS; SOX EVEN SERIES

Hose Pound Three Bruin Hurlers for 8-2 Win.

subsequent happenings might have been vastly different.

The troubles of Bush might have been brought on by his defiance of an old superstition. He fanned Kerr, the first batter of the day. Watwood then whipped a drive through short and stretched it into a double. English made a beautiful pickup of a wicked hopper by Reynolds and threw to Bell in time to eliminate Watwood at third. Jolley singled to Blair's right and Reynolds dashed to third. Bush leaped up trying to reach a high bounder off Cissell's bat but the ball caromed away for a hit and Reynolds scored. Clancy's fly to Wilson concluded the inning.

There'd have been no three run outbreak by the Sox in the second if Bush hadn't walked Thomas after the first two hitters had been dropped. Kerr crowded a double to right center on the heels of the pass and Tommy pulled up at third. Watwood uncorked a harmless looking grass cutter straight at Blair, but the latter, just as he was about to reach for the ball, looked up. He fumbled and by the time order had been restored Thomas and Kerr were across the counter and Watwood was on second. Reynolds singled to center, scoring Watwood and that was the end of Bush.

Thomas Holds Cubs.

Prior to scoring their two runs in the fifth the Cubs hadn't caused Thomas much annoyance. Blair singled against him to start the Cubs' opening half but nothing happened. The next Cub to accomplish anything was Bell. He started the third with an impressive single over Kerr's head. Nobody gave him any assistance. Then in the fourth with one out, Wilson, after enjoying a few swings at perfectly healthy lemons sailed at him by ardent south side folks, was permitted to walk. The inning closed without Hack going very far.

Grimm was the first Cub to face Thomas in the fifth and the first two pitches were strikes, but Charley exercised patience and was rewarded with a pass. Bell hit into left field for two bases, Grimm pulling up at third. Kerr threw out ePtty, Grimm scoring and Bell going to third. Blair almost tore off Thomas' glove with a line single on which Bell hiked home. English looked at a third strike and Cuyler walked. Then Reynolds constructed the fielding masterpiece that robbed Wilson of his probable homer and kept Thomas out in front.

Considering that the Sox scored only one run in the seventh there was a quantity of wasted effort. After two were out Cissell poled one of Petty's twisters into right center for a triple. Clancy stepped up and clubbed one straight at English, but Woody let it bounce off his foot. Cissell scored on the error. Then Tate pushed one past Bell for a double, Clancy stopping at third. Kamm was purposely passed and the round finally ended with Thomas hoisting to Cuyler.

Blair Gets Third Single.

The National leaguers tried to stir up a little excitement again in the home seventh. Bell and Pinch Hitter Heathcote popped out before Blair singled off Thomas for the third time. English walked, but a possible rally faded when Cuyler flied to Watwood.

Osborn didn't have to wait long in the eighth to learn the Sox were planning to present him with a token of esteem. Kerr began the three run episode with a single to left. Watwood sacrificed. Reynolds hit safely into center, Kerr scoring. Then Jolley earned the privilege of following Reynolds over the plate by hitting his homer just hard enough to clear the back wall of the bleacher in right.

For a few moments in the eighth the Cubs had Thomas in such a predicament that everybody in the American league bull pen began to prepare for an emergency. Wilson doubled to right, Stephenson walked and the bags became clogged with none out when Kerr dropped Kamm's throw on Hartnett's grounder. Nothing happened because Grimm hit into a double play by way of the plate and Bell flied to Jolley.

Maroon Nine Loses Final Game of Tour in Japan

SENDAI, Japan, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The University of Chicago baseball squad, which invaded Japan on a tour for 15 games, ended its playing round today by losing to the Tomon club, 5 to 4. Chicago won seven and lost seven games, and played one tie during the tour.

The Maroons sail from Yokohama Oct. 7 for the United States.

Slide Forces Woody English to Call Tailor

Woody English held up the game in the first inning and summoned a tailor. Watwood's slide into second on his hit put a large vent in the right trouser leg of the Cub shortstop and he repaired to the dugout to have the vent sewed together.

The umpires and delegates from each team held a conference in the eighth to decide what should be done about a safe drive to right by Wilson. Reynolds, in going after the ball, touched it and then it hopped over the fence. According to American league rules, which are in effect on this particular point, the hit was a two bagger and that is what Hack got.

When Thomas began to shown signs of foundering in the latter part of the game Manager Donie Bush sent his ace, Ted Lyons, into the bull pen to warm up. Ted made three starts on getting ready, but this probably will not cut down on his effectiveness today.

To accommodate customers for tomorrow's game, which will be played at Comiskey park, the box offices there will be open today.

Manager Hornsby had no luck with pinch batters. He ordered Heathcote to bat for Petty in the seventh. Cliff popped to Kerr. Dan Taylor swung in Osborn's place in the ninth and hoisted a fly which was taken by Jolley.

Tate singled to start the ninth, and Kamm, the next hitter, flashed the hit and run sign. Some one among the Cubs must have detected the signal. Anyway Osborn pitched out and Tate was nailed at second by the proverbial mile.

De Kalb Teachers Beat Whitewater Normal, 7-0

De Kalb, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The De Kalb Teachers eked out a 7 to 0 victory over Whitewater Normal here today when Mustapha ran around right end in the third period to score a touchdown and Oldham added the extra point from scrimmage. De Kalb made nine first downs to Whitewater's four.

Wisconsin coached by Glenn Thistlethwaite; Carleton coached by C. J. Hunt.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The University of Wisconsin football squad defeated Carleton and Lawrence colleges in a double header here today, winning the first tilt with Carleton, 28 to 0, and the second with Lawrence, 53 to 6.

Lusby was Wisconsin's most consistent ground gainer, but Russ Rebholz tore off one 65 yard run from scrimmage and Sammy Behr ran a kick back 75 yards for a touchdown.

Against Carleton, the Badgers scored quickly on a plunge by Pike after a succession of steady gains in the first quarter.

Schneller went over for a touchdown, after doing most of the work in advancing the ball to the five yard line, and Art Frisch, substituting for Molinaro, blocked a Carleton punt and fell on the ball behind the goal line. Rebholz kicked three of the Badger's goals, Lusby the fourth.

In the second period of the Lawrence game, Oman, carrying the ball on almost every play, scored a Badger touchdown and a few minutes later he threw a pass to Jensen for another, the pass and run covering 55 yards. Shortly after, Lawrence scored its touchdown on six completed passes, the half ending, Wisconsin, 14; Lawrence, 6.

Four Badger scores were made in the third period and two more in the final.

De Paul Beats Buena Vista Eleven, 28-13

Led by Matt Steffen, fleet half back, who scored two of its four touchdowns, De Paul university opened its football season yesterday by defeating Buena Vista college, 28 to 13, at De Paul field before a crowd of 5,000.

Steffen broke loose early in the first quarter and after skimming off tackle, dodged the Iowans' secondary defense to dash 40 yards for the first touch down. Buena Vista came back in the second quarter and took the lead by scoring on a long pass to Capt. Marsh. Kallmer's kick for the extra point was good.

Bud Borelli broke through the visitors' line in the third quarter, as Buena Vista was punting out from behind the goal, and blocked the kick, McClane falling on the ball for the touchdown. De Paul clinched the game in the last quarter, when Steffen scored his second touchdown and Cullen, substitute end, fell across the goal line a few minutes later with a 20 yard pass from McGuinn.

Kallmer scored for Buena Vista on a pass just before the game ended.

Lake Forest Defeats Beloit Eleven, 19 to 0

Developing a varied attack, Lake Forest yesterday defeated Beloit 19 to 0 at Lake Forest. Spring and Ferzacca scored on plunges through the line and Ferzacca tossed a 20 yard pass to Voelker for the third one.

THE CIGAR WITH THE LONG ASH

Clean Smoking

Seeing is Believing ... the ASH HOLDS

Thousands of eyes witness an every-day picture of clean smoking ... the shapely Wm. Penn cigar, smoking evenly with ash that holds ... Thousands of ties, suits and hands give mute testimony thus: "No falling tobacco bits ... no showering ash smudge to soil us. Wm. Penn ash holds!"

Thousands of tongues bear witness: "Wm. Penn smokes refreshingly clean." Why? Because Wm. Penn is made from choice long filler leaf ... not scraps and sweepings.

Most popular of popular 5-cent cigars, Wm. Penn is cleanly manufactured by machine. For preferred clean smoking, inside and outside, demand the Cigar with the Long Ash. Refuse any so-called ... "just as good as Wm. Penn."

ARMY, 54; FURMAN, 0

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Army swamped Furman university today, 54 to 0. Eight touchdowns, to which six extra points were added, were made by the cadets. The game was witnessed by 10,000 spectators.

Army scored in every period, but Furman never threatened the soldiers' goal line. The West Pointers used a host of substitutes, sending in an entire new eleven at one time, but their offensive never slackened.

Fields was the best Army forward passer and Letzelter, Carimark and Messinger were the most successful receivers.

Backgammon Quits Exile in Attic, Wins Popularity

This is the first of a series on backgammon. Another will appear in next Sunday's Tribune.

BY DR. O. E. VAN ALYEA.

There is something appealing about the comeback of a veteran. Often an ex-champion makes an attempt to return to the spotlight, only to find his efforts futile, a last gasp before a definite toss into the discard.

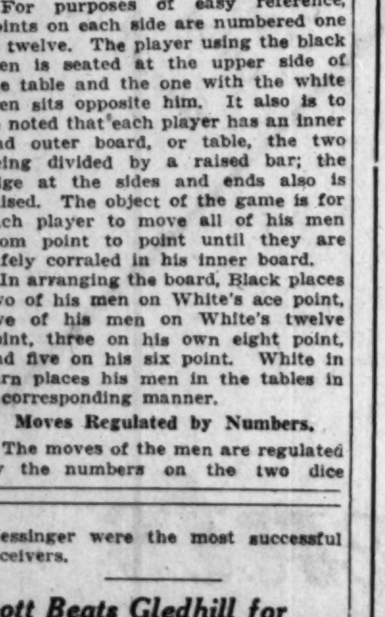
Recently a veteran of fireside games was hauled out of the attic, dusted off, and placed in the drawing room to compete with the strongly entrenched contract bridge. The revival of backgammon could no doubt be traced to the New York Racquet club, where it has been played with more or less regularity during the last few years.

Last winter modern backgammon was introduced in the various southern resorts, and since then has spread rapidly over the country much to the alarm of the students of contract. Expert bridge players do not take kindly to backgammon. They live in constant dread of innovations which may change the rules of bridge or the advent of any new form of amusement which may threaten the standing of their beloved pastime.

Luck of Dice Is Factor.

Perhaps the keen intellect required by the bridge stars cannot cope with the simplicity of backgammon, a game dependent mostly upon the luck of the dice. The nonbridge player, however, sees the game, plays it, and is fascinated by it. He buys a board, takes a few lessons, reads books and articles on the subject, and in a fortnight is sweeping the expert off his feet.

The game is played by two persons and each player has fifteen checkers and two dice. A special board or table is required on which are twenty-four spaces or points. The beginner should first familiarize himself with the arrangement of the men on the board as seen in the accompanying diagram:

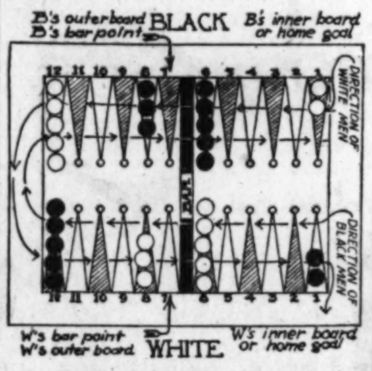


For purposes of easy reference, points on each side are numbered one to twelve. The player using the black men is seated at the upper side of the table and the one with the white men sits opposite him. It also is to be noted that each player has an inner and outer board, or table, the two being divided by a raised bar; the edge at the sides and ends also is raised. The object of the game is for each player to move all of his men from point to point until they are safely corraled in his inner board.

In arranging the board, Black places two of his men on White's ace point, five of his men on White's twelve point, three on his own eight point, and five on his six point. White in turn places his men in the tables in a corresponding manner.

Moves Regulated by Numbers.

The moves of the men are regulated by the numbers on the two dice thrown. At the start, each player tosses one die, and the one throwing the higher is elected and adopts the combination of the two casts for his first play. If the same number is thrown by each the stake is automatically doubled and they recast for first play. The men are to be moved in opposite directions and so must meet and pass each other.



A player may move any of his men the exact number of points corresponding to the numbers thrown by him, provided the space to which the move would bring him is not occupied by two or more of the adversary's men. The whole throw may be used on one man, or two may be moved, each taking the number on one die for his move. If doublets are thrown [i. e. two of a kind] a player has double the moves and may move four men, or fewer if he elects, provided he uses up the entire number of points.

At first glance the game may seem complicated, but it is soon found to be about as simple as dominoes, and may readily be taken up by any one able to count to six.

The general scheme of backgammon may be grasped at one sitting. The fundamental moves learned, the pupil rapidly acquires the little finesse which the game claims.

Next Sunday's article will cover the rudiments of the game and the initial plays.

Lott Beats Gledhill for Pacific Coast Net Title

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 4. — [U. P.] — George Lott of Chicago won the 41st annual Pacific coast men's singles tennis championship today when he defeated Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1. Mrs. L. A. Harper, Oakland, advanced to the finals of the women's singles championship by defeating Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, Mass., 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. Mrs. Harper will play Mrs. Helen Wills Moody on Sunday for the championship.

VANDERBILT RUNS OVER MINNESOTA FOR 33 TO 7 WIN

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—An alert, speedy Vanderbilt football team swept Minnesota's eleven off its feet this afternoon, 33 to 7. It was the worst defeat handed a Minnesota team since 1925, when Michigan won, 35 to 0.

With Minnesota leading, 7 to 0, in the first quarter as a result of a 57 yard toss by Manders to Walter Hass, Vanderbilt recovered a Gopher fumble. On the first play Parker passed 32 yards to Leonard on the goal line and a successful kick tied the score.

In the second quarter Schwartz intercepted a Minnesota pass on the Gopher 25 yard line. Then Askew took a pass from Thomas and was over for a touchdown.

A few minutes later, Fortune stabbed a Minnesota heave on the Gophers' 20 yard line. Another pass, Parker to Askew, found the latter free on the goal line.

In the third quarter Walter Hass, in attempting to knock down a Commodore pass, hit it into Askew's hands and Askew raced over for another touchdown. The final Vanderbilt score came early in the fourth quarter when the visitors recovered another fumble and Askew needed only one wide end run to race 26 yards to the goal.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

NIGHT FOOTBALL.

NIGHT football, viewed in the Oregon-Drake contest at Soldiers' field Friday, is satisfactory from a spectator's viewpoint—at least, it is much more satisfactory than The Wake had anticipated. With that statement, however, should go the qualification, if any one wants to attend a football game at night.

There was no difficulty in following the progress of the whitened oval from a seat low in the stands, or in discerning clearly the movements of the players. Only once did a punt go high enough to take it within the rays of the strong lights opposite. Numbers of the players appeared even more legible than in the daytime.

Yet with these favorable factors, we came away with our eyes somewhat tired. Possibly such would not have been the case if our seat had been higher where we would have caught at a different angle the glare from the lights on the other side of the field.

Night football definitely has commercial possibilities. Until some other reason exists for after dinner contests, we prefer to regard the possibilities as purely commercial, reflecting the same attitude as toward night baseball. No reason at present exists for large colleges and universities to change from daylight because public patronage is sufficient to fill athletic treasuries. Pro football might draw better at night than on Sundays. That is an open question, however, until proved.

Oregon and Drake did not attract as large a crowd as they had hoped. Conditions were not favorable, as people are thinking so much of world and city series baseball. Also there was the impending Northwestern-Tulane game. Still alsoing, neither Oregon nor Drake has a large alumni body in this city. As an exhibition of early season football, the affair was a distinct success.

The Manager's Prayer.

"Strategy wins," the scribes declare,
But here's the cagey pilot's prayer:
"Gimme a guy with a home run clout
When two are on and two are out,
And a pitcher who can fan 'em out
When runs would come from just one clout.
If those two guys come through for me,
You're welcome to all your strategy." Doc.

Autumn Blues.

Let them orate of Indian summer
And its lazy, hazy days,
Of its butterflies that flutter
Down the dusty country ways;
Of the hush that comes at even
And the autumn leaves of red,
But it's hard to wax poetic
With a coal bill just ahead.

Let them warble of the pleasure
Of the morn's inspiring chill,
Of the golden corn and pun'kins
And the hoar frost on the hill.
I am oft attuned to nature,
But when all is done and said,
I can never be a poet
With a coal bill just ahead.

Sportsmanship.

When Coach Rockne of Notre Dame submitted to Army athletic authorities a list of officials who would be satisfactory to him for the Army-Notre Dame game at Soldiers' field Nov. 29, it contained the name of Col. H. B. Hackett, Big Ten official. Army replied the choice would be agreeable if Hackett cared to accept. Now the point is that Hackett played four years of football at West Point. Notre Dame's act was a fine gesture of sportsmanship. Hackett thanked Notre Dame for the high compliment, but declined the honor.

VON PORAT AND SNYDER BOX ON COLISEUM CAR

Otto von Porat, Norwegian h weight, who now calls Chicago h will make his first appearance in eral weeks Friday night, when fights Angus Snyder of Dodge C Kas., in the eight round windup Promoter Jim Mullen's card at Coliseum.

Snyder, who was shaded by V Porat more than a year ago, has b improving, according to his agents, and last week he proved truth of the assertion by whipp Babe Hunt of Oklahoma in a round bout.

Four other eight rounders and four round preliminary will make the card. Edgar Norman, another Chicago Norwegian, will meet Ch Raines of Wichita in the semi-wind at 175 pounds. Norman knocked Frankie Wine in his last contest.

Eddie Ran will take on Joh Hayes of Philadelphia in a welt weight test. Domencio Bernasconi Sid Torres will go eight rounds at pounds and Colognato Oreste and D Forbes, heavyweights, will appear another eight rounder. The opener bring together Marion Matusak Joe Clam, heavyweights.

Mullen has both Von Porat and Sny der signed for three appearances Chicago. The winner of Friday night contest may be matched with T Griffith, whose manager, Jack O'Keef has agreed to a heavyweight elimina tion series, according to Mullen.

American League Stars Defeat Giants, 14 to

The American League All-Stars, by Art Shires, the Washington Sena tors first baseman, last night even the series with the Chicago Americ Giants, winning 14 to 3, at the Gian park. Shires hit safely five times six trips to the plate.

HONEST VALUE KNOWS NO DEPRESSION

official figures show a

36.9% INCREASE IN

FRANKLIN

Cook County Registrations for the first nine months of 1930 over 1929

UP! UP! UP! Consistently month after month Franklin sales continue to mount—each month bettering the same month of the previous year. Honest value knows no depression! This increase of 36.9 per cent tops the remarkable sales record of 1929 which closed with Franklin registrations in Cook County showing a gain of 118 per cent over 1928.

There is no mystery in this remarkable sales record. When buyers get back to fundamentals—buy only after comparison of intrinsic values—insist upon dollar-for-dollar value—then inbuilt quality and performance speak far more loudly than words.

Everywhere the distinguished appearance, the restful comfort, the masterful performance of Franklin automobiles have won and held new friends. Today air cooling rules the road as it does the air. Franklin holds practically every worthwhile road record for speed and endurance. All recent major aviation records and non stop endurance flights were made with air cooled engines. Air cooled power is better for airplanes and automobiles.

So month after month new shrewd buyers—experienced motorists — are won by Franklin. During the first nine months of this year . . .

of all new owners swung to Franklin from other cars.

Increasing sales volume has brought lower prices. Get over the idea that Franklin cars are expensive. To own one of these cars requires no great outlay of cash. If of average value your present car should equal the down payment. The balance can be paid in monthly amounts of less than $75.00, including insurance and finance charges.

Visit your nearest Franklin dealer today. Drive a Franklin yourself—see why it is so popular.

17,000 WATCH PLUCKY PLAY WIN MIDWEST STAKE

Beats Calome in $5,000 Midwest Handicap.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Plucky Play, the 3 year old which races for Norman W. Church's Northway stable, is going to have something to say about the running of the Hawthorne gold cup next Saturday.

He qualified impressively for the $25,000 race at Hawthorne yesterday when he captured the Midwest handicap which was fashioned for western eligibles to the cup. Coming from behind with a drive in the stretch he won by a length from the fast finishing Calome. Lieut. Russell, who has only recently graduated from the plater class, wound up third and Ulunlu wobbled home fourth.

17,000 See Race.

The Midwest had a value of $5,000. The largest crowd of the fall season at Hawthorne, some 17,000, watched Plucky Play stage his belated rally to score one of the most sensational victories of the year in Chicago. In the early stages he had been running eighth in the field of nine and did not begin to improve his position until the field was wheeling into the stretch.

Hawthorne cup eligibles were winning on all racing fronts about the time Plucky Play was scoring his victory. Spinach and Sun Beau, which finished first and second in the Havre de Grace handicap will entrain today for Hawthorne and the cup engagement. Pigeon Hole and Alcibiades, which ran first and second in the opening day's feature at Churchill Downs, will also quit Kentucky tonight and move toward Hawthorne to start in the cup. Lady Broadcast, a more formidable cup challenger than Plucky Play was kept out of yesterday's Midwest in order to be at her best next Saturday.

Eskimo, a stable mate of Plucky Play, and My Dandy, went out in the mile and a sixteenth of the Midwest as if they were going to make a run away of it. Running head and head for the first three quarters of a mile they reached the lower bend five lengths in the lead of the others. Karl Eitel was running third and by this time Plucky Play was beginning to move up and soon he was in fourth position.

Plucky Play Takes Lead.

Then came a brief struggle at the head of the stretch between Eskimo, My Dandy, Calome, and Plucky Play. The latter was the best. He sprinted into the lead and for a time his head was in front. Then he drew away into an advantage of half a length and in the last sixteenth he was going away from the others.

He shouldered 110 pounds, ten less than he will have to pick up in the cup. He ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 2-5. Some private clockers caught him in 1:43 3-5, which equaled the track record and it looked like he might have stepped it at a faster pace had he been pushed in the final stages. The crowd backed Plucky Play stoutly and he paid $5.46 to win, $3.14 to place and $2.66 to show. Calome paid $12.90 to place and $7.44 to show. Lieut. Russell's show price was $4.08.

Favorites Start Bad.

During the early part of the afternoon the favorite players were having a tough time of it. In the first three races choices were bowled over by long shots when Farr, Patricia Ann and Upright scored victories. But Taddywawa started the favorite players on a victorious march in the Log Cabin purse, which came fourth on the program.

A band of the fastest sprinters here clashed in this contest and it was a dash at six furlongs. Taddywawa came from behind and got the decision over Cog Air and Supreme Sweet in the final strides by a length. Royal Son, which won the sixth race, also had a horde of backers and paid even money when he made a show of seven other route running platers.

Shoot and Eat Coots; Preserve Ducks, New Plea

BY BOB BECKER.

Eat the coots and save the ducks was the gist of a plea issued by the biological survey recently, and with this message to sportsmen has come a strong defense of the lowly coot or mudhen. The survey comes out as a champion of this game bird by asserting that anybody who hasn't eaten a coot has something to learn and that the belief the coot is not fit for the table is absolutely unjustifiable.

Not only that, but the survey comes to bat in behalf of the coot with the additional statement that any one who says the coot's flesh tastes like the bottom of a mudhole doesn't know what he is talking about.

Not in years has the water chicken, as they call the coot in Louisiana, found such ardent backing as the biological survey gives it this season. It seems that the rice growers in the west are complaining bitterly about the ravages of the thousands of these birds which descend upon the fields and make merry at the expense of the rice crop. The survey apparently has said "nothing doing" on any 'measure to reduce the coot population by poison, etc.

But the suggestion is this: if sportsmen will take the legal limit of coots a few times each season they will have something worth while from a gastronomic standpoint, and they also will aid in reducing to proper proportions the numbers of this species, thus tending to eliminate complaints of damage. Incidentally, the limit on coots is the same as that on ducks, fifteen birds per day.

This year several million sportsmen would like to see a larger duck population come down from the north and migrate southward than actually exists. In view of this situation the biological survey has a good argument in favor of the coots. In other words, the urge is, reduce the number of mudhens by hunting 'em this fall and kill fewer ducks, so that our waterfowl population will take on the right proportion.

WILDCATS BEAT TULANE, 14-0, IN 1ST GRID GAME

toward the end in a series of penalties in which the contest abounded, punt exchanges, intercepted passes, and fumbles, with neither offense getting anywhere. One could not withhold admiration for the manner in which the beaten and no doubt discouraged visitors stuck to their work with a minimum of times out, although several of the boys plainly were physically spent.

The contest was played before a crowd which comfortably filled both east and west stands, but did not encroach on the ends in weather satisfactory alike to players and spectators and with only a slight breeze stirring.

Statistics show that Northwestern gained seven first downs and Tulane six. Other figures: Yards from scrimmage—Northwestern, 111; Tulane, 89. Passes—Northwestern completed five of twelve for 55 yards with three intercepted; Tulane completed one of nine heaves for 30 yards with two intercepted. Northwestern was penalized 90 yards and Tulane 65.

No Scoring in First Quarter.

With Northwestern defending the the north goal, Upton of Tulane kicked off to Hanley, who returned 10 yards to the Purple 32 yard line. Tulane, aggressive and con[illegible] forced a punt on fourth down. Then Massey tore off a run of 23 yards around Northwestern's left end. Tulane, however, could not gain more, and Felts, who carried much of the visitor's burden all afternoon, punted deep into Purple territory. Possession of the ball alternated until the quarter ended with Tulane holding the ball on its own 47 yard line.

Disaster occurred for the Olive and Blue early in the second period. After Tulane had been penalized for offside, Felts had been thrown for a loss, and Whatlep stopped in his tracks. Dawson essayed a forward pass. Bruder, in full stride, intercepted it, evaded the first opposing tackler, and with teammates blocking, sprinted 54 yards over the line. With Hadley holding the oval, Bruder place kicked the additional point.

Rentner Goes Over.

The second touchdown came near the end of the period. Tulane, from its own territory, punted and Hanley returned ten yards to Tulane's 37 yard line. Rentner gained 5 yards in two trials and Bruder broke through opposing left tackle for a first down on Tulane's 20 yard mark. On a triple pass, Fossier added another first down on Tulane's 9 yard line. Rentner added two yards. Then on a pass from Hanley, Bruder juggled the oval, recovered it, and literally ploughed to the 1 yard line. On the next line plunge, Rentner added only six inches, but in the final attempt he went safely over on the weak side. Again Bruder place kicked goal.

Early in the second half the Purple had another chance to score when Fencl recovered a fumble on Tulane's 28 yard line. The visitors stiffened and after Northwestern was penalized 5 yards for offside, Rentner tried a forward pass on fourth down and the ball went over the goal line. Near the end of the period Northwestern again had the ball at Tulane's 20 yard line, after benefiting 15 yards from a holding penalty, but the attack was not functioning so smoothly with the new backs in action and the visitors again regained the ball after an incompleted pass on fourth down.

Tulane threatened in the final period after two completed passes, the second of which was called back for offside from the Purple 8 yard line. Tulane lost the ball on downs and Northwestern then gradually worked up field and again seemed on the point of counting when a fumble at the 12 yard line dissipated the chance. The game ended with the ball in Purple possession on Tulane's 33 yard line.

JAVA
GARDEN OF THE EAST
Sends La Palina its Famous Leaf

FROM Java, land of eternal sunshine, comes the rich, fragrant tobacco that is used for the La Palina wrapper. So costly is this leaf that it is called the "treasure of the tropics"—possessing special blending qualities that enable it to bring out the full flavor of La Palina's choice filler. That's what makes La Palina a different . . . better . . . milder cigar. That's why you should try two or three today for a new smoke thrill!

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

'SEE ILLINOIS FIRST,' IT HAS MUCH TO OFFER

Auto Tourists' Attention Turned to Own State.

BY HAL FOUST.

Autumn is bringing a new tinge to the roadsides, new pep to drivers, and new zest to motoring. There is even new zip to the automobile engines that have been traveling all summer too warm for efficient performance. The season is here for maximum pleasure from car ownership.

Encouraged by the change of weather, Chicago motorists, after paying much gasoline tax this summer in Wisconsin and Michigan, are heading their tours southward to explore the scenery and historical monuments of their own state, where high temperatures discouraged travel during July and August.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce is encouraging this movement, pointing out with a little jealousy that Wisconsin, by exploiting its charms, reaps a $200,000,000 a year tourist crop. THE TRIBUNE's touring bureau has just completed a 1,450 mile trip inspecting what downstate has to offer.

Historic Spots.

The rivers, which brought the first white men into this country, are now favored avenues of pleasure traffic because of their scenic attractions and historical attachments. The largest of these are the Illinois, the Mississippi, the Ohio, and the Wabash. They can be visited on concrete pavements and the visits are repaid by views from wooded knolls rich in events of the white man's conquest of this country.

Leaving Chicago over route 4, a swing over the gently rolling meadows of Cook, DuPage, and Will counties carries a motorist to Joliet, Illinois waterway industrial city, named after the French explorer who first reported to civilization the advantages of this water passage from the great lakes to the gulf. On route 7 from Joliet, in and under the bluffs of the Illinois river with a broad vista of the valley, leads the traveler to Starved Rock, the most popular Illinois state park, one hundred miles from Jackson and Michigan boulevards.

Starved Rock.

The park, 900 acres of rugged cliffs and cañons covered with trees and brush of many varieties, received its name from a bluff with a sheer 140 foot rise from the river upon which, according to tradition, a party of Illinois Indians defended themselves against attacking tribes until starved. Historically, the bluff was the site of Fort St. Louis, built in 1682 by La Salle and Tonti as protection for the French occupation of the west from the Iroquois, friends of the British and Dutch in the east in the keen and bitter competition in the fur trade.

From the bluff today may be seen the nearly completed Starved Rock dam, part of the works that are to realize the dream these Frenchmen had two and a half centuries ago of a waterway from gulf to the lakes. The view includes the broad valley, the bending stream, islands and the distant ledge at the northern edge of the valley. A flag pole and a tablet mark the site of the fort.

On to Peoria.

On down the Illinois, the motor tour leads through La Salle and Peru on route 7, thence on route 29, continuing through the scenic bluffs of the river bank to Peoria, 155 miles from Chicago. A few miles southeast of the city, at a hilltop on the Pekin road is a state highway marker reading "state park." A dirt road leads to a farm house.

"The park is on the other side of that alfalfa field," said the farmer, E. G. Wagner, pointing over his cow lot. "The ground's dry, I'll let you drive over."

He opened the gates to his barn lot and THE TRIBUNE car rolled into the alfalfa field. At a corner of the field, about a quarter of a mile from the barn, the land dropped sharply for a hundred feet to the flats of the valley.

State Plans Entrance.

There stood a monument from which could be seen, over the tops of the trees below, the Illinois river with Peoria in the distance. An inscription on the monument told the following story:

"In 1680, upon this spot stood Fort Creve Coeur built from plans of Robert Cavelier Sieur de la Salle. Here was centered the hope of Louis XIV. for a broader empire of the French on American soil. From here in 1680 went forth La Salle on his heroic march of 1,500 miles to Fort Frontenac and in 1682 also from here to the great task of the exploration of the Mississippi river."

Fifteen acres here was donated to the state about twelve years ago by the late C. H. Wagner, father of the farmer who opens his cow pen for the occasional visitor. The state plans to build an entrance to the park from the public road.

This ended the first day of THE TRIBUNE's "See Illinois First" tour. The next morning the car was turned from the Illinois river to visit Old Salem, Springfield, and Vandalia, a trail bordered with memories of Abraham Lincoln. But that's another story.

CHICAGO MAN INVENTS NEW MOTOR ENGINE

George M. Peterson, 1143 Pratt boulevard, has applied for patents for a new type of internal combustion engine with an offset crankshaft permitting the installation of bearings to assure the piston stroke of true alignment at all times. He claims that it eliminates side thrust of the piston against the cylinder walls; that it removes the possibility of "piston slap."

Another innovation is a spring of proper tension to assist the return of the piston and its related parts, resulting in a cushioned stroke, according to Mr. Peterson.

This is a view of the Illinois river and its islands and valley from Starved Rock, the site of Fort St. Louis, built in 1682 by La Salle. The dam, nearing completion, is part of the works designed to realize the dream of the early French explorers for a gulf to lake waterway.

TWO SENATORIAL LEADERS REPLY TO HIGHWAY POLL

Courtney, Kessinger Favor Idea.

Two leaders in the state senate, in response to a questionnaire from THE TRIBUNE, last week declared themselves as favoring the separation of grades and the widening of pavements on arterial highways. They are Thomas J. Courtney [Dem., 11th dist.], who is campaigning for reëlection on the south side, and Harold C. Kessinger [Rep., 14th district], of Aurora.

Three questions have been asked of the senators and senatorial candidates of the thirty-nine senatorial districts of northern Illinois that would benefit most through a widening of the important roads radiating from Chicago for a distance of 100 or 150 miles.

Twenty Favorable Replies.

Twenty replies received to date have all been favorable to such an improvement program. The questions are:

1. Will you vote for a bill requiring the state highway department to give road improvements to the 37 senatorial districts of the metropolitan area in proportion to the revenue collected by the state from the motorists of this area?

2. Will you vote for grade separations and widening on arterial routes in preference to building new roads not on the bond issue systems?

3. Will you vote for a specific construction program such as the plan suggested by the Chicago Motor club?

"Generally," wrote Senator Kessinger, "I am in favor of the idea expressed in your questionnaire, but I never promise definitely on bills until they are introduced and I can study them in their final form, amendments and all."

Senator Courtney gave an unqualified affirmative answer to questions No. 1 and No. 2. For No. 3 he wrote:

"I favor a specific construction program, but do not wish to be committed to any definite plan at this early date. Would prefer to give the matter further study."

The purpose of THE TRIBUNE poll is to inform the motoring public on the attitude of their senators and senatorial candidates on vital road problems that will come before the general assembly that convenes in January. The motorists who will visit the polls next month want this information as a guide to marking their ballots.

Many Fail to Reply.

Many of the senators and candidates have neglected to reply to the poll. Most of these have expressed themselves at civic meetings as indorsing the widening campaign, but have failed to place themselves on record. A few, however, may decline to express themselves so they can feel free to bargain during the legislative session, bargains that are frequently contrary to the interests of the motoring public.

So that motor clubs and other civic organizations interested in the program for widening and for grade separations will have an opportunity to electioneer for candidates who have replied favorably to the questionnaire, THE TRIBUNE will close its poll on Oct. 21, two weeks before election day.

AVIATION

TRANSPORTATION LINES NEGLECT AIRPORT SERVICE

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Despite its thirty odd airports located within the metropolitan area, the city of Chicago has not a single major air field connected with the loop by fast and convenient rail transportation.

It is becoming more and more apparent that the railroads and the air fields are failing to take advantage of a large potential source of revenue to both, the amusement seekers, out for diversion on a Sunday, holiday, or free afternoon, for whom a flying field holds the same attraction as an amusement park.

Chicago today has no airport situated on any of the suburban electric lines serving the loop and the residential sections of the city. The air fan, the incoming or outgoing passenger, the private flyer and the hundreds who live in the city and work at the air field have no other means of getting to and from the airports than the automobile.

Temporary Rail Facilities.

This transportation deficiency is given by air race officials as the chief explanation for the sections of empty seats at the 1930 National air races. Preliminary estimates show that approximately five-sixths of the spectators during the national meet came to Curtiss field by automobile, while the remainder used temporary rail facilities.

Any bright Sunday afternoon will find 5,000 flying fans at Curtiss field watching the activities or going up for short hops over the field and many more flock to Pal-Waukee field, Sky Harbor, and the lesser airports. Managers of the fields are confident that attendance would be increased many times if rail transportation were provided for those averse to struggling with holiday traffic jams and others without autos.

This latter group would provide increasing patronage for the electric suburban lines and later in the development of passenger transportation by air the air traveling public will demand quick transport to and from the flying terminals. The flying passenger will not permit valuable time saved in the air to be dissipated by poor rail service between the airport terminal and his home or office.

Good Service Necessary.

Airplanes will never carry the whole load of passengers or express nor will the railroads or the steamship lines. Ultimately these will all be coördinated in a vast air-rail-water transportation system with each element playing an important part.

An early step in that direction would be the location of air fields adjacent to interurban electric lines providing fast and frequent trains between the airports and the city.

Travel time would be saved if the air lines radiating from the city were able to land at airports adjacent to the various suburban lines and transfer their passengers to the electric trains for the short journey to the city. Thus, eastern air lines could use the South Shore electric, western lines the Aurora and Elgin, and the northern lines the North Shore electric.

At present the traveler alighting at a Chicago airport must call for a taxicab, wait for it, drive to the nearest rail line and wait again before securing direct transportation to the loop.

235 WOMEN PILOTS LICENSED BY U. S.; 25 IN TRANSPORT CLASS

Following the addition of 12 names to the list of licensed women pilots in this country in one week, there now are 235 American women holding department of commerce licenses. They are divided as follows: Private, 181; industrial, 1; limited commercial, 28, and transport, 25.

Alicia Patterson Simpson, who owns two Laird planes of her own, and who is known for her magazine articles on flying, has changed her rating from private to transport.

Beryl T. Hart, who worked up to a limited commercial status within eight months after her first flight, is having the Travelair, in which she won a prize in a women's race at the Allentown airport dedication recently, overhauled and streamlined for further racing activities.

Isabelle Chappell, private pilot, of Akron, O., has just qualified for limited commercial, and is working for a transport license. Beulah Unruh, New York waitress, who learned to fly out of tips received, has qualified for the limited commercial. Maxine Miller, 19 years old, the first Tulsa, Okla., woman to qualify, is a private pilot, and is on the way to a limited commercial rating.

CHECK OVER YOUR MOTOR BEFORE WINTER ARRIVES

Inspection May Save Repair Bills.

Preventative maintenance in the form of a thorough inspection of the automobile to eliminate the ills that are aggravated by freezing temperatures is the sure way to combat most of the difficulties and discomforts of winter driving, according to a bulletin issued by the Motor and Equipment association.

Winter brings on a whole new set of driving conditions. The car's performance, driving comfort, safety, and appearance are affected by these new conditions and a complete check-up before cold weather arrives will show what must be done to prevent the troubles which lead to expensive repair bills and costly depreciation, the association declares.

Inspect Cooling System.

Filling the radiator with an anti-freeze solution is not the only precaution that must be taken, yet that is all that thousands of motorists think necessary. Before the anti-freeze is used the cooling system should be thoroughly flushed and inspected for clugs and leaks. Worn and leaky hose connections should be replaced or the owner will pay many times the cost of this minor service for additional supplies of anti-freeze.

A fully charged and properly conditioned battery is absolutely necessary for easy starting. This suggests a check of the generator's efficiency, its charging rate, the distributor, ignition cables, and the spark plugs. Easy starting also is dependent upon the fuel supply, so all parts that contribute towards the delivery of the proper amount of gasoline vapor to the cylinders should be looked over carefully.

Other Things to Look To.

Improper or inefficent lubrication brings many winter drivers to grief. It is not enough to see that correct oils and greases are used. The best of lubricants cannot do their work in a lubricating system that is not "in first class condition.

Steering, the brakes, the lights, the horn, and tires are subject to heavier and more exacting demands in the cold, ice and snow. Both safety and driving comfort are improved when these factors are operating at their best.

Thorough inspection and the replacement, repair, or adjustment of those parts which may lead to difficulty if neglected, will go a long way toward providing a trouble free and inexpensive winter driving season.

MICHIGAN MOVES TO SPEED DETROIT-CHICAGO TRAFFIC

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Approval was given this week by the highway committee of the state administrative board to the first of a number of trunk line changes contemplated in the creation of a "high speed" highway from Detroit to Chicago. The first leg of this new route, affected by the relocation of sections of U. S. 12 between Detroit and Jackson, will pass directly west some 34 miles from the intersection of Ford road and Michigan avenue in Detroit to a point north of Ann Arbor in Washtenaw county, supplanting the present U. S. 12, which follows Michigan avenue westward through Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor. From that point a relocation is approved over a 28.5 mile stretch into Jackson county, replacing 30 miles of the present U. S. 12.

The relocated highway will avoid much congestion out of Detroit, according to highway department officials. Most of the road will follow existing highways, which will be widened and improved, while some new construction will be necessary. According to plans made at a conference some time ago between representatives of affected cities and state officials, the distance between Detroit and Chicago will be appreciably shortened.

Change Your Oil Filter Cartridge Every 10,000 Miles

After this mileage the filtering unit ceases to function, as it has become filled with dirt taken from the oil.

Replacing the cartridge every 10,000 miles means less engine wear and lower operating costs.

STATE REPORT SHOWS PROGRESS OF ROAD WORK

Widen 72 Miles of Road, 82 Miles Built.

Director Cleaveland of the department of public works and State Highway Engineer Sheets yesterday released a detailed report on the state's 1930 highway contracts in the metropolitan area. Summarized, it shows that the highway department has let contracts for more than half of the pavement in the $19,000,000 program prepared by Gov. Emmerson's advisory committee for 1930 and '31 construction, but the total cost is only $6,837,631, less by $1,660,923 than the estimates of the advisors for this work.

Gov. Emmerson last week announced that the metropolitan area will receive the full $19,000,000 road funds promised for this section in 1930 and '31, which, with the reduced construction costs due to the business lull, means that this area will receive approximately $2,000,000 worth of highway improvement during the two years in addition to the work listed in the citizens' committee's biennium program.

Widening 72.6 Miles.

The state this year has widened, is widening or has contracted to widen 72.61 miles of the 105.45 miles scheduled in the two year program. The projects are as follows:

St. Charles road—Cook county line west through Elmhurst, 2.09 miles, and from 25th avenue, Bellwood, to Mannheim road, .8 of a mile.

Halsted street—175th street to Chicago Heights, 3.3 miles.

Milwaukee avenue—Dempster street to Touhy avenue, 2.3 miles; and from Cook county line to Half Day, 3.46 miles.

Joliet road—Lawndale avenue to Willow Springs road, 3.15 miles.

Ogden avenue—Lawndale avenue to Aurora, 21.82 miles.

Northwest highway—Des Plaines to Palatine, 6.08 miles.

Lake street—Mount Prospect road to Ontarioville, 12.35 miles.

Roosevelt road—York road to Winfield road, 10.74 miles.

Mannheim road—Joliet road to St. Charles road, 5.74 miles.

New 40 Foot Roads.

The state this year has built, is building, or has contracted to build 18.27 miles of the 38.25 miles of new 40 foot pavement on the biennium program. The projects are as follows:

St. Charles road—Mannheim road to county line, 1.91 miles.

Rand road—Des Plaines to Euclid avenue, Arlington Heights, 3.82 miles.

159th street—Torrence avenue to Indiana line, .47 of a mile.

Higgins road—Orchard place to Canfield road 2.88 miles.

Governor's highway—183d street to Hazel Crest, 2.24 miles, and from 147th street to 123d street, 2.8 miles.

Route 54 [new road]—Ogden avenue to 55th street, 3.77 miles.

North avenue—Gaps over C. & E. viaduct and also E., J. & E. and C. & N. W. railroad viaduct.

The 20 Foot Program.

As for 20 foot pavements, the state this year has placed 63.92 miles under contract out of the 106.45 miles in the biennium program. The jobs are:

Northwest highway—Baldwin road location at Palatine, 2.46 miles.

Sheridan road—Beside Calvary cemetery in Evanston, .35 of a mile.

159th street—State street to Torrence avenue, 2.1 miles; and Lockport to Cicero avenue, 16.21 miles.

Algonquin road—Algonquin to Des Plaines, 21.51 miles.

Route 64 [new road]—55th street to Santa Fe railroad, 5.42 miles.

22d street—York road to route 54, 1.09 miles.

Route 53 [new road—Lisle to Joliet road, 7.88 miles.

Dundee-Barrington road—Gap near Barrington Center, 1.36 miles.

Plainfield road—Plainfield to Joliet road, 7.36 miles.

To Speed Grade Separations.

The state's record this year on grade separations is not so good, but Director Cleaveland hopes this winter to make up for lost time. The citizens' committee recommended the construction of 48 railroad and five highway grade separations during the two years. Work has been started on only six of the structures, all at railroad crossings and none at highway junctions.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

THE WILD SOUTHWEST SIDE.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Away out here in the great southwest side, where men are men, it is only natural that some of our motorists are extremely daring. Perhaps we should be proud of them, but I for one sometimes find their daring obnoxious for the reason that I am frequently in the position of a pedestrian.

Now, it is my good fortune to be both nimble and alert. Hence I have the ability to board a street car along such thoroughfares as West 63d street or South Ashland avenue without getting clipped by a speeding automobile, but the ordeal is becoming increasingly difficult. It appears that the ordinance requiring motorists to stop behind standing cars is no longer operative in this section, anyway.

As I read the daily newspapers I realize, of course, that lately the time of our brave officers of the law is devoted almost entirely to the pursuit of dangerous criminals, but it does seem to me that it would be well worth while for some of the police to use just a little of their valuable time to slow down the daring motorists along some of the main speedways out here. That would give the pedestrians and street car patrons some "breaks" and save them breaks.

KOSTNER, GRAND AND NORTH.

Chicago, Sept. 29. — Kostner avenue crosses Grand avenue and North avenue slightly west of where Grand avenue and North avenue cross each other. Every morning there is a traffic tangle at this corner and I am sure that there are many who will agree that something should be done.

I find that congestion is great on Kostner because cars going east on Grand avenue totally block the street when they are stopped by a red light at North There should be a sign here warning the eastbound traffic on Grand avenue not to block the crossing when they find that they will not be able to cross North avenue.

I hope you can refer this to the proper authorities for consideration.

BLUE ISLAND POLICE.

Princeton, Ind., Sept. 29. — A few weeks ago I saw an article in THE TRIBUNE concerning the actions of the Blue Island police, and I would like to write you about my experience with these same policemen.

Some time ago I, with my family, was on my way to Racine, Wis., expecting my son-in-law to meet me in Blue Island and pilot us through the city of Chicago. Owing to motor trouble we did not reach Blue Island until after midnight. The son-in-law, thinking that we were not coming that night, went on to Racine.

Not knowing where else to go I went to the police station to make inquiry where to find a hotel. I found the lieutenant in charge most kind and courteous. He volunteered to go with me to the hotel to see if we could find lodging. When we arrived there we found they had no vacant rooms and could not accommodate us.

After talking for a time the lieutenant said, "I'm going to Waukegan tomorrow morning and I suggest that you go to the police station and park there. Make yourselves as comfortable as possible until morning in your car. I'll instruct an officer to see that you are not disturbed. In the morning I'll come by the station and take you through Chicago the park way, and see that you are on the right road to Racine."

I went to the station. We made ourselves comfortable, went to sleep, and when the lieutenant came in the morning we followed him through Chicago, and when he saw that we were well on our way he waved his hand, and I have never seen him since.

It has been my privilege to travel practically all over the eastern part of the United States and I have been in most of the large cities making inquiries concerning directions of the policemen, but I have never been in any city where I was treated as kindly and as courteously as I was in Blue Island by the policemen of that city.

WOMAN SAFETY EXPERT STARTS STATE-WIDE TOUR

Seeks to Interest Her Sex in Problem.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

Mrs. Willis M. Graham, 4413 Lake Park avenue, starts this week on a speaking tour of the state, talking on highway safety in 12 cities during October.

This is part of her work as state chairman of community service for the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Peoria, Bloomington, Danville, Herrin, Salem, and Highland are among the towns on her itinerary.

"We are trying," Mrs. Graham said, "to interest women actively in educational work for the prevention of accidents. Through securing talks in the schools, through home instruction, and the formation of safety patrols we hope to lessen Illinois' excessively high child casualty rate."

Many Women Reached.

Through Mrs. Graham's department more than 80,000 women are reached directly. In addition to her speaking tours, specially prepared articles are distributed to the clubs of the federation.

Each month delegates from the first ten congressional districts meet with Mrs. Graham in Chicago for a discussion of highway traffic problems.

"We are not only interested in educational work with children," she said, "but with drivers as well. Accidents caused by recklessness or carelessness could have been prevented with proper education.

Attended Safety Conference.

"We want to interest women in securing the proper protection for intersections and the right kind of streets. But we feel that, since women are chiefly responsible for the prevention of accidents to the child under 6 and largely responsible in the cases of older children, that the child education problem rests in their hands."

Mrs. Graham was the only woman appointed by a governor to attend the national conference on street and highway safety held in Washington a year ago. Since her budget for highway safety is limited, she has secured the coöperation of the National Safety council and the Chicago Motor club in assisting her to provide material for distribution to the clubs of the state.

Clubwomen are asked to report unguarded grade crossings and to use their influence in having hazardous intersections guarded.

Other Clubs Interested.

"Clubwomen of De Kalb, with the assistance of the Chicago Motor club," Mrs. Graham said, "were able to have adequate signals placed at the chief intersection of the town, which had proved an extremely dangerous crossing."

More than 800 clubs are included in those working out safety programs under the federation's plans, while other women's organizations of the city and the state are interested in similar safety programs.

"Among the women's organizations interested in safety work," Mrs. Graham said, "are the Illinois League of Women Voters, Illinois Graduate Nurses' association, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, Illinois Women's Trade Union league, Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, Woman's City club, Chicago Woman's Aid, and the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs."

Auto Fan Belts Should Be Inspected Frequently

Many drivers never pay any attention to the fan belt until it breaks, and if this happens when you are out on the road you are just out of luck. Look at the belt once in a while and get a new one before it is worn to a frazzle.

PROFIT TAKING CUTS GAINS IN WHEAT MARKET

Corn Starts Strong, but Closes Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Week-end profit taking induced by a bulge of 8@8⅜c in wheat and 9¾@10⅝c from the inside figures of Monday resulted in a natural reaction in grain markets on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

Highest prices for wheat were made at the start and the lowest toward the last with outside buying orders less in evidence than during the previous two days. The finish was 1@1¼c lower, with December 82⅛@82¼c; March, 85⅞@86c, and May, 88⅞@89c.

An advance at the opening in wheat was on strength in Liverpool with a gain of 2⅛@2⅞d and on continued dry weather in eastern Australia which brought in short covering, but there was not the aggressive buying of futures here so much in evidence of late, and several leading commission houses recommended during the day that longs take profits on the belief that the upturn of late had been too rapid to hold.

There has been no buying of wheat, however, on the belief that the proposed change in contract grades at Chicago would make the present futures more attractive to millers. The new rules, if adopted on Monday, will not become effective until June 1, 1931, and all outstanding contracts at the present time will have expired before the rule goes into effect.

Ignore Russian Sales.

A week ago the trade was in a frenzy of liquidation due to reports that Russia was offering wheat abroad at low prices, but yesterday little or no attention was given to reports that Russia had sold 3,750,000 bu cash wheat to Europe on Friday and continued to offer at prices below those of other countries. Winnipeg was off 1⅛@1⅝c for the day, with no export business reported in Manitobas. Recently, however, Pacific coast coöperatives are said to have sold 6,000,000 bu domestic wheat for export, mainly to China and the orient, and it is understood that some business has been passing at the gulf.

Outside mills were after cash wheat at Chicago, with sales of 70,000 bu reported, but there was buying of December during the day that suggested a larger business. Rains were reported over part of the winter wheat belt which will improve the condition of the new winter crop. Donovan, the Logan & Bryan expert, claimed the crop over a wide area was getting a late start and promised poor grazing.

Corn Closes Easy.

Corn made a strong start and an easy close due largely to profit taking, the finish being at net losses of 1½@1⅝c, with December 84⅛c; March, 85¼@85½c, and May, 87⅛@87⅜c. Trade was not as large as of late with commission houses on both sides of the market.

Eastern demand for cash corn was active with sales of 210,000 bu, while the basis on yellow and mixed was steady. White, however, was off 1½c as compared with the December. Country offerings were fair. New corn is commencing to move much earlier than normal, with a car of new No. 3 yellow received here during the day and sold at 85⅛c. The trade anticipates disappointing husking returns will be received from a liberal part of the belt during the week, and sentiment as a whole remains bullish.

Realizing sales and the easier tone in corn had a depressing effect on oats, which lost ⅝c for the day. December closed at 39½c; March, 41⅝c, and May, 42⅝@42⅞c. Commission houses were persistent buyers in small lots.

Rye trade was not large, with the market easing in sympathy with wheat, and closed ⅜@1c lower, December being 52⅛c; March, 57c, and May, [illegible].

EXTRACT OIL FROM 382,000 WELLS IN U.S.

Petroleum was extracted during 1929 from 328,200 wells in the United States, which gave an average daily yield per well of 8.4 barrels. These figures, announced by the United States bureau of mines, compared with a production of 7.6 barrels in 1928 from 327,800 wells.

The 1929 output rate varied from as little as a fifth of a barrel per day extracted from certain Ohio and Indiana borings to the top record of 161 barrels per day made by the average well in west Texas.

Pennsylvania, the state which first featured petroleum production, was still the possessor of the largest number of oil wells last year, credited with [illegible] bores. However, Oklahoma's far fewer wells, numbering 61,180, were responsible for a gross petroleum production during the year valued at [illegible], or about nine times the Pennsylvania output. Texas, with but [illegible] wells, was credited with a total petroleum output of $322,520,000.

Cites Farm Question from Income Angle

BY SCRUTATOR.

Figures, dull though they sometimes are, often prove that many current ideas are exaggerated if not false. One of these latter that doesn't stand the test very well is that income troubles of farmers are due to low commodity prices.

Everybody knows that the prices of wheat and of corn are unduly low as compared to a year ago. But even a year ago the federal farm board was so confident that wheat was underpriced that it issued a suggestion that it shouldn't be sold. Agitation for farm relief was fully as active in 1929 as it is today.

Yet gross farm income from farm operations was greater in 1929 than in any of three preceding years. The department of agriculture, through its bureau of agricultural economics, found that the total amount was $11,851,000,000. This was 110 millions over the corresponding total for 1928, 235 millions over 1927, and 371 millions in excess of 1926.

Net Family Income.

Operating costs on the farm, according to the bureau, were just about the same as in 1928, with the result that capital, labor and management got 100 millions more in 1929 than in 1928, after deductions for all necessary expenditures were made. Net income per farm family was $882 last year, as compared to $898 in 1925, the highest mark since 1921.

In general, crops have been worth less recently and livestock and their products more, in the aggregate It is not only possible but probable that farm income will show a considerable decrease this year from last, but commodity prices are low everywhere. Copper is relatively cheaper in comparison with the 1929 highs than wheat on the same basis.

Since 1926, the department of labor shows, wholesale commodities other than foodstuffs and other agricultural goods have slumped to date until the index stands at 84.3. Farm products stand at 83.1. Only in the month of August did the lowering of farm products get down to the other commodity indexes.

Land and Labor Costs.

Several times it has been remarked here that the farm problem is not one of commodity prices, but of land costs and charges or of labor costs. The fall of land values over the past ten years has hurt the agriculturist more than anything else. This drop, again according to the bureau of agricultural economics, was 32 per cent in the decade.

Land value is a capital charge. When farm real estate advanced from an average of $39.60 an acre in 1910 to $69.38 in 1920 it meant that a farmer could make profits of several hundred dollars a year above what he could obtain from farming operations. He could speculate on what his land would be worth a little later. When the trend was reversed and he had to assume that no profits could be made in capital accretion, something new in the agricultural world was indicated.

Taxes Add to Burden.

Taxes added to this capital burden. It seems fairly well established that rural taxes per dollar of land value are more than twice what they were either in pre-war times or in 1920. It could be argued for months whether the farmer is getting value in schools, roads, and other things for his taxes. Anyhow, he pays for them at a higher rate.

It seems hopeless to attempt to restore land values to the 1920 level or any other high point by commodity tinkering on a national scale. High land values have been written off as they had to be. Land was cheaper in 1929 than in 1926, and it produced more in dollars. There is support for a theory that farming as an operating business is no worse off than other enterprises. As a capital investment in land it has been losing money.

CENSUS SHOWS 16 PCT. INCREASE IN CAL. FARMS

California, increasing by 16 per cent in number of farms in the last decade, continued the 1930 census story of an agricultural growth of the southwest keeping pace with the increase of population.

Census bureau reports showed California to have 136,455 farms now as compared with 117,670 in 1920, an increase of 18,785 farms. The most marked increase was in San Bernardino county which now has 3,132 more farms than its 1920 record of 4,023. The 1930 total of 6,155 is thus a 77.9 per cent increase.

Mississippi, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Arizona had already reported marked farm increases indicating a southwestern trend of growth as against decreases in New England, the Atlantic states, and the southeast.

Bank Clearings 29 Pct. Below Year Ago Figure

New York, Oct. 4.—Bank clearings this week cover a part of the heavy payments incident to the first of the month, and consequently show a larger volume of settlements through the banks than in recent preceding weeks. There remains, however, a considerable reduction in comparison with the exceptionally heavy amount of a year ago. Total clearings for the present week, as reported to Dun's Review, of $11,324,475,000 are 29 per cent below those of last year. At New York City, clearings are $8,081,000,000 are 32 per cent under last year's, while the aggregate at leading centers outside of New York of $3,243,475,000 is 20.1 per cent less.

COMEBACK NOW BEING STAGED BY PFD. STOCKS

Twenty-two Issues at Year's Peak.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Preferred stocks are attaining a popularity that they have not enjoyed in some years, judging by the recent demand for them and the price levels to which they have risen.

Conditions in this respect are the exact reverse of what they were before the collapse of the big bull movement on the stock exchange. During the speculative boom preferred stocks lost favor to some extent, even with investors, while common stocks were bought at swiftly advancing prices and the question of yield was lost sight of to a large extent. At present, with money rates low and dividends reduced on a great many common stocks, the pendulum has swung back to the senior issues.

Common Shares Low.

This week, for instance, saw twenty-two prominent preferred stocks on the New York stock exchange reach the highest levels of the year, while on Tuesday, before the market turned about, the average price of common stocks was at the bottom for the year and a great many such stocks were at or below the extreme low levels reached in the collapse of last autumn.

The present popularity of preferred stocks is generally attributed to a desire on the part of investors for assured income and a more stable market. These factors, of course, have stood out conspicuously in the list of preferred stocks recently in contrast with common stocks, which for months have been undergoing a process of deflation in which preferred stocks have not participated.

Table Shows Advances.

In the following table are listed the twenty-two issues of preferred stocks which went into new high ground for the year on the stock exchange last week, the high, low, and last prices and the net changes for the week being given:

Steel Issue Active.

Of the foregoing one of the most active has been United States Steel preferred, which yesterday was selling only 6⅝ points below United States Steel common. It is recalled that United States Steel common sold last year, before the market collapse, as high as 261¾, while the highest price reached by Steel preferred was 144¼. The spread between Steel common and preferred was wider, however, throughout the market boom than that between the common and preferred issues of most other companies.

At the close of trading yesterday American Can common was selling at 123, against 150½ for American Can preferred. A substantial price superiority was also shown by the preferred stocks of American Water Works, National Biscuit, and a number of others.

According to brokerage houses large institutions have of late been increasing their investments in preferred stocks. G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., in a discussion of the subject, point out that in New York State "where the investments of life insurance companies are rigidly regulated, the law covering the investments of these companies has recently been amended to permit them to buy certain preferred stocks."

S. H. Kress Directors Announce 50c Extra

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Directors of S. H. Kress & Co. have announced an extra dividend at the rate of 50 cents a share on the common, payable in special preferred stock, besides the regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents on the common and 15 cents on the special preferred issues, all payable Nov. 1 to owners of record Oct. 10. Fashion Park Associates, Inc., has omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS IMPROVE FOLLOWING A SHARP EARLIER BREAK

During the early part of last week Chicago bank stocks broke sharply to new low prices for the year. Continental Illinois Bank and Trust, after early sales at 545 improved to 550 bid, 555 asked—off 50 points. Foreman-State National was also 50 points easier at 555 to 560. First National lost 35 points, with low sales at 570, closing 571 bid, 575 asked.

National Bank of the Republic sold off 4 points to low sales at 106, then rallied to closing transactions between 109 and 111. Central Trust Company of Illinois improved from early sales at 335 to closing transactions of 348 to 352—off 10 points. Stock of the Union Bank of Chicago was offered down 20 points to 230 without attracting buyers. Northern Trust lost 20 points at 510 to 520.

Chicago Bank of Commerce continued in demand at 124, with limited offerings at 128. Terminal National was 1 point easier at 60 to 62. Harris Trust and Savings lost 10 points at 700 to 705.

In the miscellaneous group Chicago Title and Trust was 3 points easier at 448 to 453. Chicago Daily News common was in supply at 24, with best bids at 23, while the preferred was in demand at 92, with offerings at 93. Kellogg Company lost 4 points at 153 to 156.

Elgin National Watch was easier, selling off 3 points to low sales at 25, at which price additional stock was offered at 26.

CROP PROSPECTS REPORTED FAIR IN ARGENTINA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 4.—A summary of reliable crop reports shows that wheat and linseed are promising exceptionally well in the southern and western zones, with the exception of a few isolated regions. The northern zone still requires rain, but the condition of the crops is still fair to good.

Business prospects, on the other hand, are none too rosy, in view of the disastrous slump in the grain market. Importers of machinery and other agricultural requirements find no satisfaction in the good crop prospect, and unless grain prices improve they do not anticipate a normal demand.

Hear $125,000,000 German Credit Is Arranged For

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Completion of arrangements for the $125,000,000 credit to be extended to the German government was reported in banking circles today and it was believed that offering of the six months notes would be made soon in the international markets.

The loan will contain three renewal clauses, so that its total life may be extended to a period of two years. The cost to the reich, it was said, would be about 6 per cent. Some bankers expect the notes will carry a 4¾ per cent coupon. Lee, Higginson & Co. is heading the syndicate.

ARGUMENTS ON LOREE'S LINE TO BE HEARD SOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—L. F. Loree's fight for permission to construct a 283 mile railroad line to take several hours from the running time between New York and Chicago approached a climax here today when the interstate commerce commission announced it would hear oral arguments for the project on Nov. 18.

The president of the Delaware and Hudson railroad proposes the construction between Easton and Pittsburgh, Pa., as a link in the new lakes to the seaboard route.

The Loree proposal is before the commission in the form of an application of the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago railroad, a new company, for authority to build the road. The plan is part of that originally proposed by E. H. Harriman, veteran rail magnate, and is being fought for by Mr. Loree on behalf of the Harriman estate. The route would be much shorter than any lakes-seaboard line and contemplates use of existing tracks from the terminals of the cross Pennsylvania project. The Baltimore and Ohio, which is contemplating a similar line to shorten the route from the lakes to the seaboard, is opposing the Loree plan.

FOOD COMPANY PROFITS KEEP ON INCREASING

The business of leading food producing companies has been much better this year than that of the average concern in other groups, because food consumptions is determined more by population levels than by panics or public purchasing power, says the Standard Statistics company of New York in a current survey, which continues:

"Obviously, there are fluctuations in demand for specific food products, because of the facility with which substitute menus may be provided to suit personal tastes, range of income, or the pulls of national advertising, but, in the aggregate, the volume of food consumed does not permit of sizable curtailment.

"Reflecting this steady use of food products, the outstanding manufacturers are repeating their normal experience of expanding profits. Especially good showings are being made in the dairy products, package foods, soft drink and specialty baking fields. All things considered, the food group as a whole is one of the most fortunate of the industrial classifications this year, indications being that the good records to date will be fairly well sustained throughout fall and winter."

Valuation of $41,417,000 Placed on Wheeling Road

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Differences between the interstate commerce commission and the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad as to the valuation of that property were shown today when the official body ruled the property was worth $41,417,000 in 1918. The corporation had contended its valuation at that time was $145,064,000. The Wheeling company's outstanding capital stock issues at par on valuation date amounted to $78,105,000, while its book investment in plant and line was placed at the same time at $77,000,000.

Note Increased Activity in U. S. Ship Construction

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Increased activity in ship construction was noted in the United States last month. The commerce department today reported the gross tonnage of steel vessels on the ways in yards Sept. 1 was 478,592 tons, against 453,600 tons one month ago.

Offerings of Bond Issues Off Sharply

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Following last week's rather heavy financing, new offerings of bonds this week amounted to only $73,070,000, although in addition an industrial issue of $20,000,000 was placed privately. Last week new bonds for $133,346,307 were marketed, and during the corresponding week last year new issues for $56,366,000. As was the case last week, eighteen issues were placed on the market this week.

Foreign financing formed the greater portion of offerings this week with total $33,100,000, most of which was Canadian. The largest single foreign issue, which was also the largest issue of any kind, was the $20,000,000 Shawinigan Water and Power company 4½s due in 1970, priced to yield 4.63 per cent. One of the few foreign currency bond issues marketed here in recent years, was brought out this week. A. Iselin & Co. offering 140,000,000 French francs [about $5,600,000] of Midi Railroad company of France 4s due in 1960.

Large Utility Issue.

The largest piece of domestic public utility financing this week was $10,000,000 Super-power Company of Illinois 4s first, due in 1970. The issue was priced at 96, yield 4.72 per cent. Next in size was an issue of $9,000,000 Minneapolis Gas Light company 4½s of 1950, offered on a 4⅞ per cent basis. Industrial financing comprised issues of $6,000,000 each of the Philadelphia Inquirer company and the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company priced to net 6 per cent and 4½ per cent, respectively.

State municipal financing this week was lighter than in any week since early in August. The schedule of awards of new issues was extremely small and perforce new offerings were limited. The largest municipal issue was that of $2,040,000 City of Syracuse [New York] 3½s and 3¾s offered at prices yielding from 2.50 to 3.75 per cent.

Offerings by Groups.

Offering of bonds by groups for this and last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
Foreign	$33,100,000	$50,000,000
Public utility	21,130,000	51,279,000
Industrial	12,000,000	....
State and municipal	6,415,000	17,247,307
Miscellaneous	425,000	....
Railroad	....	14,820,000
Totals	$73,070,000	$133,346,307

The demand for high grade bonds is apparently insatiable, and prices of these issues have moved steadily higher in view of the moderate amount of new financing of this character. Second and third grade bonds continue dull, with prices irregular. Most of the demand has been for issues legal for savings banks in this state.

GOV'T SUES TO ENJOIN NORTH SHORE RAILROAD

The government has filed suit to restrain or enjoin the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad company from further issuing of securities without first applying for authority from the interstate commerce commission.

The petition was filed by Assistant United States District Attorney Struett in the United States District court and alleges that since June 8, 1923, the railroad has issued $42,000,000 in securities without first obtaining consent of the interstate commerce commission.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 4.—There was hardly a squeak to the whole two hour session of the stock market today. Many issues, lately active, were not disturbed at all in their week-end sleep and many more did little more than mark time. The handful which did try to show a little life took the easiest way and settled to lower levels.

It was one of the most monotonous sessions the exchange has suffered this year.

Opening prices were mixed with the changes mostly in small fractions. About the middle of the first hour, however, there was a mild display of strength in some directions, but it petered out in short order and from then on until just before the close the leaders spent the time lazily backing and filling, traders on both sides evidently being loath to do much more than even up their accounts over the week-end.

Selling Develops.

Toward the last, however, some selling developed and carried a number of stocks most prominent in the day's turnover to sharply lower ground. United States Steel for one was sold off for 2½ points, American Telephone dropped 3⅛, Air Reduction slumped 3⅛, Allied Chemical 3¼, General Electric 1¼, Case Threshing 3⅜, and Eastman Kodak 7 points.

Utility stocks found the sledding tough all day and the whole group wound up in the ditch. Losses of 1 and 2 points were the rule. American and Foreign Power, Standard Gas, Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Gas—all of the old timers straggled along in the retreat.

The amusement shares fared a little better as a whole although Loew's could not quite make the boat. It lost more than a point on the day's operations. Fox, Warner Brothers, and Radio Keith were all a trifle higher when noses were counted at the finish.

Has Business Turned the Corner?

COL. Leonard P. Ayres, Vice President, of The Cleveland Trust Company, in a recent bulletin, presents moderately encouraging charts and conclusions. In the words of this authority, "Since the first week of August industrial activity in some of the most important of the basic lines has been increasing, and to a degree which justifies the hope, but not the conviction, that the lowest point of the depression has been reached (at the end of July) and left behind."

Moreover the business decline has lasted more than a year. Other good signs: A small but definite rise in employment in September; bond prices rising for months; increased exports of wheat and cotton; increased savings bank deposits; August chain store sales just 3% below August 1929; car loadings first 8½ months 1930 only 7.3% below 1928, a good year. Often the worst fears are due to ignorance of what's happening or likely to happen.

Buy your Pencil the way Big Business does

THOUSANDS upon thousands of Autopoint Pencils are purchased by business firms to be used as "remembrance" advertising. Autopoint is used in this way more than any other pencil!

Autopoint makes friends because it is the best balanced, the lightest, the most attractive pencil made. Its mechanism is the simplest. It has but one moving part—hence nothing to get out of order.

Autopoint barrels are of Bakelite. The handsome, onyx-like material is light in weight but strong. Drop an Autopoint, knock it—it won't break.

You can buy cheaper pencils than the Autopoint. And more expensive ones, too. But whatever price you pay, you can't buy greater pencil service than Autopoint will give you.

Examine Autopoint at your stationer's. He has a wide range of styles and models in color combinations to suit your fancy. Prices from 50c to $4. If you have any trouble finding Autopoints, write us. We'll see that you get an opportunity to look them over.

CHICAGO STOCKS FINISH WITH MINOR LOSSES

Middle West Leads in Day's Volume.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks finished the extremely dull session on the Chicago Exchange yesterday with a few minor losses. The general trend in the list was easier but a few isolated issues exhibited moderate strength.

Majestic Household which has been moving contrary to the market trend for the last few days was one of the stocks which made headway in the dull trading. The issues ranged higher throughout the session and was bid to 14⅜ before it settled back to close with a fractional net gain. Grigsby received less attention and closed off a fraction at 7.

Middle West Utilities regained the position of volume leader but the last sale in the stock was made at a price slightly below the previous day's close. Other Insull shares showed a similar trend. Insull Utility eased to 51⅜.

Encounter Good Demand.

Among the specialties, Swift International and Libby McNeill encountered a good demand. The close found both stocks selling moderate above Friday's last quotations. It has been rumored for some weeks that Swift International directors were considering the declaration of an extra dividend. It is believed that announcement of such action will be announced shortly.

The stock is no now a $2.50 annual dividend basis. It is understood the extra distribution will amount to $1.

Motor shares experienced little activity. The leaders all sold lower. Auburn showed the biggest decline with a loss of 4 points.

Trading at no time during the day was particularly brisk. Total transactions amounted to only 71,000 shares. Bond sales approximated $27,000, the bulk of which represented dealings in Insull debentures.

Stock Values Rise.

In the week ended yesterday the market value of the fifty most active stocks traded on the exchange showed an increase of $12,208,213, or .43 per cent. The value of the 50 issues at the close yesterday was $2,790,966,425 as compared with $2,778,758,212 at the close of the preceding week.

The analysis, which was made by Otis & Co., also shows that 35 of the stocks were traded a year ago. These issues had a market value of $1,898,398,579 yesterday as compared with $3,439,920,060 on Oct. 5, 1929, a shrinkage of $1,541,521,481 or 44.8 per cent.

Packing Review Finds Fall Weather Trade Boon

Armour & Co., in its review of general packing house trade conditions, says: "More seasonable fall weather stimulated somewhat more active buying of most leading meat lines. Beef showed a little better activity. Prices eased somewhat. Lamb business continued in near record volume. Live prices were slightly higher and dressed trade showed a better tone. Veal continued in moderate supply. Better weather helped demand for pork considerably and movement was good through the latter part of the week, selling prices advancing along with live values. Smoked meats continued to give a good account of themselves."

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Leading issues were only narrowly changed during the short session of the Chicago Curb yesterday with advances and declines about evenly balanced. Sundstrand recovered 2 points of its recent declines. First and Second Custodian Shares moved up ¼ to 8½ on fairly active trading. Metals and Mining slumped over 2 points to new low ground for the year at 6½.

Interest Yield on Bonds.

In purchasing bonds at a premium or a discount, the interest yield, naturally, is lower or higher, respectively, than the nominal interest rate of the bond. The only time the interest yield is identical with the nominal rate [the rate printed on the bond] is when the bond is purchased at par.

The investor naturally wants to know, and ought to know, what return he will get on his investment at any given price at which the bonds are quoted. Comprehensive tables have been compiled in which the returns have been worked out on bonds of various maturities and interest rates, selling at various prices. For accuracy and convenience of reference these tables are very useful. But for the average inexperienced investor who wants to know how to figure the return on an investment at any given price, we will outline a simple method by which this can be done with reasonable accuracy.

An inquiry we have received asks: "What would be the yield on a 7½ per cent bond maturing in twenty years, purchased at 105?" Let us take his as an example. A 7½ per cent bond pays $7.50 interest per $100 each year. To find what per cent 7.50 is of 105 divide 7.50 by 105 and the quotient is .07142. The interest rate, therefore, is 7.142 per cent for one year on the money invested.

If the bond had no maturity, this step would be sufficient. But, as the bond will be paid at 100 at maturity—twenty years in this case—the purchaser loses the difference between the 105 he paid and the 100 he receives. As this loss of $5 is distributed over twenty years, one-twentieth of it, or 25 cents, is the loss to be apportioned to each year.

The per cent of yield on the investment is thus further reduced by the ratio that this loss bears to the money invested. Dividing .25 by 105 we get .00238, or .238 per cent. As this fraction of one per cent represents an additional loss in the rate of yield we subtract it from the 7.142 per cent obtained above and the result is 6.904 per cent, which is the rate of yield on the bond if held until maturity. [If the bond was purchased at a discount—i. e., below par, the difference between the purchase price and the amount paid at maturity will, of course, be a gain and the per cent figured from this will be added instead of subtracted].

In this example we are assuming that the bond is payable at par at maturity and is noncallable; also that the interest is received and spent, or at any rate not reinvested. If the bond is called at a certain price, the difference between the purchase and call prices and the length of time between purchase and call must be taken into consideration.

If we consider the interest as received semi-annually and reinvested, further elements enter in which complicate the calculations.

INSOLVENCIES IN SEPT. SHOW A CHANGE IN TREND

Failures Rise After August Decline.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Changes in trend mark the insolvency returns for September, the number of commercial failures in the United States moving contrary to the declining tendency noted in August, but the liabilities reversing the earlier sharp expansion.

Thus data compiled by R. G. Dun & Co. shows that 1,963 defaults occurred last month, or 2.6 per cent more than the 1,913 insolvencies of August, which represent the low point for this year.

On the other hand, the September indebtedness at $46,947,021 is 4.5 per cent below the $42,180,653 of the immediately preceding month. The totals in each case indicate that the business mortality continues appreciably above the average, and the numerical increase over the 1,568 failures of September, 1929, exceeds 25 per cent.

High for Period.

A somewhat less pronounced rise—one of about 20 per cent—appears in comparison with the 1,635 defaults of the corresponding period of 1928. In no previous September, however, have insolvencies been so high in number as in the present instance. Similarly, the September liabilities, although the second smallest aggregate of the current year, are larger than usual for this season and are approximately 37.6 per cent above the $34,124,731 of a year ago. The increase over the amount for September, 1928, is about the same.

As had been clearly indicated by the monthly returns, the insolvency record for the third quarter of this year is adverse. Statistics compiled by R. G. Dun & Co. place the number of commercial failures in the United States during the three months just ended at 5,904, which marks a new high point for the third quarter.

The increase over the 5,082 defaults of the corresponding period of 1929 slightly exceeds 16 per cent, while the rise from the 5,210 insolvencies of the third quarter of 1928 is about 13 1-3 per cent.

Note Quarterly Decline.

There is, however, a numerical reduction of 7.8 per cent from the 6,403 failures of the second quarter of the present year, while the decrease from the 7,368 defaults of the first quarter approximates 20 per cent. The liabilities for the third quarter at $135,954,091 also are unusually high, with an expansion of about 35.6 per cent over the $100,296,702 of the corresponding period of 1929, but a much smaller increase in comparison with the $121,745,149 of the third quarter of 1928.

In 1924 the indebtedness for the third quarter was about $126,000,000, while it was close to $123,000,000 for the same three months of 1921.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL was very quiet today as the uncertain action of other markets restricted trade. The steadier tone in lard stimulated a little buying of deferred positions at slightly higher prices. The closing was steady, with old contracts unchanged to 2 points higher and new contracts unchanged to 5 points higher. Sales were 1,050 brls, all in new contracts. FORD MOTOR COMPANY VIEWS LAST QUARTER BUSINESS INCREASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 4.—There are prospects of an increase in business during the last quarter of the year, officials of the Ford Motor company said today.

Sales of Ford cars and trucks during September were slightly in excess of 90,000. Production exclusive of the Canadian branch this week was 22,000 units, about 50 per cent of the weekly production at this time last year. The employment roster at the Rouge plant is 80,000, with production varying from 3,800 to 5,500 daily on a three day week basis. The October schedule calls for production of approximately 90,000 cars.

"While these figues compare unfavorably with those of a year ago, the company is nevertheless doing a tremendous business and the reports from dealers indicate that sales will climb higher as the season advances," officials of the company stated. "The sales in September exceeded our expectations."

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $601,700,000, an increase of $82,100,000 over the preceding week, but a decline of $164,700,000 from the corresponding week in 1929. Balances last week totaled $57,700,000, an increase of $4,800,000 over the previous week, but a decline of $9,800,000 from the same week last year. The figures for the week, day by day (with last three ciphers omitted) follow:

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Air Shares Grounded.

Lack of speculation in the aviation issues has left that group in very much of a rut, although urgent liquidation seems to have been completed.

Reflects Rumors.

Last week's sharp break in Metal and Mining reflects rumors of uncertainty regarding the dividend which was to be payable on Oct. 1 and which had already been declared by the company.

Makes New Friends.

Swift International appears to be making new friends because of the way it has acted during the periods of recent selling in the market. The stock, which pays an annual dividend of $2.50, has fluctuated in an 8 point limit all year, the low level, 30, having attracted investment demand. Earnings for 1929 provided a comfortable margin above dividend requirements.

Substantial Buying.

Substantial buying has developed in Electric Bond and Share since publication of the company's report for the twelve months ended June 30, 1930. In addition to showing an increase in net earnings on the common stock, the report reveals the fact that the corporation has been steadily adding to its holdings of stock in companies with which it has been affiliated for some time.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Print cloth prices were a shade easier today on light sales. Finished goods were in fair demand for the season. Silk was firmer and more buying was reported in the last few days. Moderate trading was being done on overcoatings, fall suitings, and some dress materials. Spring goods continued quiet. Burlaps were quiet with prices irregular.

Looks Ahead to Five "Best" Prosperity Years

Middletown, O., Oct. 4.—(AP)—George M. Verity, chairman of the board of the American Rolling Mill company, believes the country will experience the greatest five years of prosperity in its existence "after completion of the present cycle of depression."

Speaking to a group of Cincinnati bankers and brokers here last night, Verity said: "The bottom already has been reached and business is on the upgrade. For some time consumption has been exceeding production, and with psychological factors again on a normal basis, a steady climb is indicated. I think that by spring the country will have emerged from the period of depression."

Weekly Debits Increase, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit accounts reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended Oct. 1, by 234 banks in thirty-eight leading clearing house cities in the Seventh Federal Reserve district, aggregate $1,618,811,000, an increase of 9.9 per cent compared with a week ago ($1,473,515,000). Compared with the corresponding week of last year ($2,100,052,000) a decrease of 22.9 per cent was shown.

N.Y. Clearing House Banks Show Increase in Deposits

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The weekly statement of the New York clearing house shows: Total net demand deposits [average], $165,451,000 increase; time deposits [average], $34,840,000 increase; clearings, week ending today, $8,060,652,655; clearings, week ending Sept. 27, $6,205,425,408.

Top yesterday, $8.35; average, $7.50.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday, 22,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep.

Hogs on the week-end session were too few to establish a fair list of quotations, but tendency ruled stronger and some sales were as much as 5@10c higher, considering the poor quality. Prime medium weight butchers were absent.

Light weights averaging 190 lbs. topped at $10.00, but the trade was quoting 225@230 lb averages at $10.15. All interests were on the market earlier than usual and some orders went over unfilled. Only 1,000 pen holdovers and inferior classes remained at the close.

Monday Hogs in Demand.

Several buyers were bidding $10.00 for 210@310 lb hogs for Monday's delivery on the "to arrive" market yesterday, but there were no sellers at this figure.

Trading in future months was slow and prices slightly lower. January light sold at $8.95, against $9.00 Friday. October mediums were bid $9.50, but the lowest offer at the close was $9.60. November mediums were offered at $9.00 and bid $8.75. January heavy were bid $9.00.

The recent break in the hog market curtailed the marketward movement of stock during the last half of the week and buyers were unable to hold quotations down after mid-week. A shortage in the east brought outside buyers to Chicago for the largest numbers in several weeks. Shippers bought 18 per cent of total arrivals, against only 13 per cent a week ago.

An improvement in the local wholesale market for fresh loins added zest to the trade. Heavy loins at 17c on recent sessions compared with 13c a week ago and with 17c a month ago, due to the acute scarcity of medium and weighty hogs. Light weight loins closed at 24c against 23c a week ago and 32c a month ago. Receipts carried a larger proportion of hogs averaging 210 lbs and below, but a surprisingly small number of pigs and underweights. The estimate average at 233 lbs compares with 238 lbs a week ago, and is lighter than any corresponding week in a number of years.

The second largest cattle receipts of the season, coupled with the fact that slaughtering of kosher cattle was suspended Thursday, a Jewish holiday, gave buyers the advantage resulting in a lower market for the bulk of stock.

There was an acute scarcity of light yearlings, which were in a class by themselves at the top of the price list. Fancy 982 lb yearlings sold at $13.15, equaling the highest paid for cattle since early last June, while prime long fed steers averaging 1,400 lbs had to go at $12.00, and highly finished 1,292 lb averages stopped at $12.25. Less than 400 steers sold at $12.75 and above, against 925 a week ago. The general average dropped 50c at $10.55.

Lambs in Demand.

Although lamb prices entered new low levels during the last week, due to immense supplies unloaded at all points, the demand is about the broadest ever known. Record breaking receipts have been moving into consumptive channels with very little congestion during the last few weeks. The pre-war price level of lamb on recent sessions has attracted the housewife, according to packers. The general average price of lambs last week at $7.30 set a new low since 1913. Lamb on the wholesale market that is selling at 11@18c cost 13@21c a month ago and 16@24c a year ago. Since the first of the year 20 of the leading markets have handled 14,243,000 sheep and lambs, an increase of 1,278,000 over a year ago, and 2,800,000 more than during the corresponding period in 1927. Receipts for Monday are estimated at 22,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep, against 29,556 cattle, 43,761 hogs and 35,293 sheep a week ago, and 27,458 cattle, 26,501 hogs, and 24,095 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 60,000 cattle, 125,000 hogs, and 105,000 sheep, against 56,921 cattle, 131,329 hogs, and 94,598 sheep a year ago.

to have discounted its dividend action and held to within a fraction of last night's close. Nash, however, was under some pressure and had to surrender about a point from its rating.

Targets for Bears.

Mail order shares were again targets for the bear crowd, both Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck drifting lower. The experts were saying again today—as they have said many times before—that what this market really needs and what it has been lacking since early September is organized leadership on the constructive side.

The action of the list for several weeks now has indicated clearly the absence of anything in the way of a united front on the bull side. Disintegration of the bull party which banded together early in the summer in an effort to turn the market definitely, was the development which paved the way for the recent return of prices to the year's lowest levels. This element was presumably discouraged by the failure of fall business to development better than normal seasonal expansion and likewise by the absence of anything to suggest an early revival o public participation in speculative activities.

New Car Sales in Illinois 50,000 Short of '29 Mark

New car sales in Illinois for the first nine months of the year have fallen over 50,000 short of the sales for the same period in 1929, according to a report from the Illinois Chamber of Commerce listing September sales at 10,446 as compared to 12,113 for August and 19,172 for the same month last year. Total sales for the nine months' period are 148,415 as compared to 211,076 for the same months in 1929. Cook county absorbed 4,692 of the new cars sold in September, with downstate Illinois taking 5,754 of the total.

FARM AND GARDEN

"KING CABBAGE" RIDES IN BOX CAR FROM WISCONSIN

BY PAUL POTTER.

Onward to Chicago is the creak arising from wheels and tracks as carload after carload of Wisconsin grown cabbage and onions rolls from sidings along farmers' fields in Racine and Kenosha counties, where both crops are specialties. nI addition Outagamie county devotes considerable acreage to cabbage as a prominent cash crop, although onions are not of commercial importance.

Reports indicate good quality this year, although size in both onions and cabbage does not approach average because of the dry season. Farmers are receiving $7 to $8 per ton for cabbage, or a little more than one-third of a cent per pound, and onion prices are around $1 per 100 pounds, another reason, strange as it may seem, why certain farmers in Racine and Kenosha county are more prosperous than others.

Storehouses Pay Profits.

For, though it may not be true this year, during a period of years many of these truck farmers specializing in cabbage and onions have realized handsome profits through the use of storehouses in which they can hold some part of their crop in anticipation of a rise in price before southern grown commodities reach consumers in the early months of next year.

Here is what an average storehouse will hold: Cabbage, 300 tons, or about 25 carloads of 12 tons each; onions, around 15,000 bushels of red or yellow field onions, which would fill about 25 freight cars. The anticipation on prices works this way:

If prices in the fall are as low as $8 to $10 per ton for cabbage, farmers often estimate that this figure leaves but little margin, if any, for their profit on production. By storing 300 tons they may get as much as 50 per cent shrinkage by loss in moisture and some spoilage, but if the price goes to $40, or even $50, as it has, there is a handsome profit by holding. In years before transportation hurriedly brought southern grown crops, such as onions and cabbage, to the north consuming centers, prices of as high as $150 per ton for cabbage sometimes were current in early months following a short crop.

Southern Crops Change Market.

It used to be a gamble and still holds features of uncertainty. Storehouses do not make the profits in the present decade that they made 20 and 40 years ago in the southern counties of Wisconsin, yet they are filled each year with cabbage or onions in order to permit holding until less fortunate growers have shipped from their fields and possibly until reports from southern states might show a short or ruined crop.

Estimates on this year's production of cabbage easily rate Wisconsin in second place with about 146,000 tons of the late and early types combined, while New York has its usual lead in a total of around 243,000 tons. Kraut manufacture accounts for much of the crop, local consumption takes care of but a small percentage, while shipping to large consumption centers such as from Wisconsin and Michigan to Chicago accounts for much of the usual acreage and crop.

In onions Indiana takes the lead and this year probably will have about 3,260,000 bushels; Michigan, 2,559,000 bushels; New York, 3,080,000; Ohio, 1,943,000. Cabbage yields from eight to 12 and 15 tons per acre. Onions vary even more and yield from 200 bushels to the acre to some records of more than 600 bushels. Heavy fertilizing, close watch of seed and field cultivation, hand weeding two to three times a season, and the use of naturally rich soils of unusually flat surface are points on which the farmers build these high yields.

AGRICULTURAL QUESTIONS

TRANSPLANTING OAKS.

Is it possible to transplant or move red oak trees, measuring 10 inches at the butt? If so, when is the proper time?

G. C. B.

REPLY.

If the tree has been transplanted before it can again be moved, but if it grew wild from seed it is risky to move it. In the east such trees are moved with a big frost ball when the trees grew from transplants.

U. S. D. A. PENSIONS HORSE AFTER 30 YEARS' SERVICE

Horses pensioned by the United States are not numerous, the government explains in telling the story of "Old Nick," 34 year old four footed employé who recently was retired on a pension that provides for two measures of bran, oats, and alfalfa meal daily with sufficient pasture to keep hard worked ribs from becoming too prominent.

The horse went to work for the department of agriculture in 1899 when he was a four year old gelding. For more than 30 years he plodded along until his gait became faltering and his teeth worn but otherwise well preserved. At this present age, it is estimated he is as old comparatively as a man of 90 years. For nine years he made a daily trip of 20 miles between the station at Bethesda, Md., to the department of agriculture headquarters in Washington.

He was no different from other horses when he shied at the first "gas buggies" but he learned later to pass and be passed by hundreds of them on the highways until he finally relinquished his work to a motor truck.

Corn Crop Mostly Safe; Little Fear from Frost

The corn crop is now mostly safe from frost, except in a few sections where considerable is still green, principally in east central great plains and some lowlands in the Ohio valley, according to the weekly government crop report. Good progress was made in cutting and picking has begun in northwest, with some cribbing in upper Mississippi valley. In Iowa high winds did some damage, blowing off ears, which will make threshing difficult, as machines cannot be used.

DROUGHT MAY UPSET HOG MEN'S MARKET PLANS

One possible effect of the drought which has been little discussed is that it may influence hog production, send hogs to market this fall in large numbers and at lighter weights, and tend to induce farmers to breed fewer sows for farrowing in the spring of 1931.

This angle of the drought's effect is being studied by the agricultural economics department of Iowa State college. In past years when the corn crop has been small the economists find that the tendency has been for high corn prices, to induce farmers to send hogs to market at lighter weights and in larger numbers during the fall, with corresponding lighter receipts during the late winter and spring of the following year.

All this is natural, the economists point out, because when feed prices are relatively unfavorable to hog prices, the man with hogs wants to make his corn or other feeds go as far as possible. In other words, he would prefer not to buy corn for hogs when converting corn into pork is relatively unprofitable.

The small prospective corn crop of this year, together with the fact that fewer hogs than normal are on farms, would tend to increase prices this fall and possibly next year. But if farmers insist on pushing their hogs to market rapidly this fall, it may depress prices, fewer hogs will go to market late next winter and spring, and fewer farmers will benefit from any possible price increase.

Summing it all up, the Iowa State economists believe that the present situation should mean this to the farmer: Do not become frantic if hog prices for a time are relatively low in proportion to corn prices; avoid sending the pigs to market at too light weights before winter; and do not reduce too greatly the number of brood sows for next spring farrow. It is realized that some farmers may not be in a position to follow the above program, but those who are stand a chance to benefit next year from the possibly unfavorable hog prices this fall.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The London stock market has celebrated the conclusion of a particularly uninspiring and cheerless week by finishing up with a boomlet in British government securities. This followed Friday's announcement of Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden's decision to repay the 4 per cent tax free war loan and to issue new treasury bonds with which to repay them.

This news brought a spurt throughout the whole British government list, the 5 per cent war loan reaching a new high of 104⅞. Most of the government stocks spurted up by a quarter to three-quarters.

The city welcomes the treasury decision, assuming that the repayment of the loan will reattract the proceeds into the gilt edged market. The view is now held strongly that the government has conversion and other war loan issues in prospect, which will tend toward probably still higher levels among the gilt edged securities. Certain market observers pessimistically suggest that the treasury's present action heralds a rise in income tax in the Labor government's next budget.

Exhibit Little Life.

Until the end of the week war loan announcement the stock markets generally exhibtied little life, with practically no public interest in the speculative sections where prices showed sensitiveness to the slightest influence. The renewed weakness in Wall street had its repercussion here, creating considerable uneasiness, the latter being accentuated by international political developments. Renewed continental liquidation also affected London, much reported to be American accounts.

Considering all the adverse circumstances, it was not surprising that investment was solely confined to the gilt edged market, especially British war loan stocks, which appear to have become the resort of the panic stricken.

Strangely enough, there seems to be an abundance of money here, and in all the leading foreign centers awaiting profitable investment opportunities. Finance and banking interests are now veering to the view that things are so bad that they cannot become much worse, and that the next six months may denote an important period in the convalescent stage. The general belief is that money rates will continue easy for some time, owing to the trade depression and low commodity prices. This belief accounts for the recent offer of moneys for long periods by banks and purchase by those institutions of stock exchange gilt edged securities.

Rubber Issues Improve.

The industrial markets experienced another week of practically unrelieved depression, prices continuing to droop downwards. The few isolated improvements were usually traceable to the bears' covering operations. Heavy liquidation has been encountered in trans-Atlantic favorites through New York, although the week-end prices closed above the worst.

Rubber commodity was showing up better with a consequent all around marking up of shares. Tea shares also were better with some demand as a result of the tea auction sales finding a shortage of supplies.

RALLY IN PARIS

PARIS, Oct. 4.—The Paris market rallied vigorously this week and, following the weakness of last week due to the German financial situation, displayed a real firmness throughout the week.

Advances in New York, London, and Berlin contributed to a better trend in Paris. Traders see a general rally on most of the world's markets taking place on the ev of the clearing up of the international political situation.

Since the outcome of the German elections the reichsbank has shipped France $41,702,500 in gold, the shipments being made to offset the retirement of credits formerly granted Germany on short terms and the weekly statement of the Bank of France shows a rise of more than $150,000,000 in the gold reserve.

The fact that French banks are still purchasing important amounts of gold in England has caused large discounts to be accorded to London, thus depreciating sterling.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money in Chicago firm 4@5 per cent on collateral, 4½@5 per cent over the counter; commercial paper, 3@3¼ per cent; bankers' acceptances, 2@1⅞ per cent. Chicago clearings yesterday were $92,300,000, compared with $87,900,000 a week ago, and $114,400,000 a year ago. New York clearings were $1,200,000,000.

SAYS RATES ARE BEHIND UTILITY RETURN BASIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 4.—The basis of arriving at a reasonable return from properties engaged in the public utility industry is not necessarily the historical value or the reproduction value of the property, but a combination of both, with some value as a going concern and back of it all the necessity for permitting rates sufficient to enable companies to secure the new capital required for their expansion, Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of the Niagara Hudson Power corporation, declared here before the Bond club.

"The control of electrical and gas companies is primarily directed at fixing the rate at which electricity or gas is sold, plus requiring adequate service," he said.

"Both the commissions by their decisions and the courts in reviewing them have set up certain general principles regarding the basis for fixing rates. In a very general way, the assets of the public utility companies have been held to be private property impressed with a public trust to furnish the service at reasonable rates.

"It is a well accepted law of the land that state commissions cannot substitute themselves for boards of directors or for the management of companies. Their functions are limited strictly by law and to a reasonable exercise of such laws. Decisions of the commissions making rates which deny to the corporations a reasonable return upon the value of the property engaged in rendering the service have been repeatedly overturned by the courts."

TRANSAMERICA ORGANIZES EIGHT HOLDING FIRMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Carrying out its program for the simplification and rearrangement of its corporate structure, the Transamerica corporation, a holding company, which had assets of more than $1,176,000,000 last Dec. 31, has organized eight subsidiary holding companies in which its investments in the various fields of finance and industry will be segregated. Charters for five of the new subsidiaries, which will be wholly owned by Transamerica, were filed last Tuesday in the state of Delaware and three other charters will be filed soon.

The purpose of the formation of the subsidiary companies is to specialize the work of administration over Transamerica's varied investments. The personnel of the new companies will be drawn largely from the present executive personnel of Transamerica. No shares will be issued to the public and no financing is contemplated.

Each of the eight companies will be supervised by its own staff of officers. Their functions will be chiefly administrative, with a view to lifting an increasing burden from the officers of Transamerica. Henceforth, it was said, the officers of Transamerica will act in a supervisory capacity over the eight groups of administrative officers of the eight subsidiary holding companies.

INTERNATIONAL CEMENT.

International Cement Corporation's net profit for the current year probably will be between $7.25 and $7.50 a share on the outstanding 631,356 common shares, compared with net income of $4,950,433, or $7.88 a share, on 627,865 shares, in the preceding year.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Grain traders are in the main bullish and predict higher prices, but with wheat up over 8c and corn 9c from the low point on Monday a profit taking movement for the end of the week was considered in order, particularly in the last hour, when prices not only lost early gains but finished around the day's lowest. In some quarters the disposition is to sell on all further bulges, but in all the inclination is to buy on breaks.

There were not the large orders in wheat so conspicuous on the buying side of late, but milling demand is picking up, and cash values are holding steady, so that the market is considered in a good healthy condition.

The feeding situation in the east is not as bullish as cash handlers here believe. Reports covering the New England territory say that there are good stocks of milling stuff, soy beans, and other feeds, and that South African corn is offered c. i. f. Philadelphia, New York, or Boston at 65¾c, loading by Oct. 7.

Indications are for a moderate increase in the visible supply of wheat on Monday.

Wheat production in 30 northern hemisphere countries, as given by the government report, is 2,802,000,000 bu, an increase of 5 per cent over last year.

CASH·GRAIN N·E·W·S

There was a limited foreign demand for North American wheat at the seaboard, and Russia seemingly is doing the bulk of the business abroad. A Rotterdam cable claimed Russia sold around 3,750,000 bu wheat to Europe on Friday.

Outside mills continue after cash wheat and the character of the buying of futures suggested that the day's business in some position exceeded the 70,000 bu reported sold by local handlers. Shipping sales of corn aggregated 210,000 bu; oats, 26,000 bu; rye, 5,000 bu, and barley, 6,000 bu. Charters were for 250,000 bu grain to Buffalo. Purchases to arrive aggregated 3,000 bu wheat, 45,000 bu corn, and 5,000 bu oats.

There was no change noted in the local cash wheat basis. No. 1 red was 8@8½c over, and No. 2 red, 7@7½c over December, with No. 1 hard December to ½c under; No. 2 hard, ½@1c under; No. 1 northern, ½@1¼c under, and No. 2 northern, 1@2½c under the future.

Demand for white corn in the sample market was less active, with the basis 1½c lower, while mixed and yellow were steady. Three cars of new corn were received, including a car of No. 3 yellow, testing 17.5 per cent moisture, and sold at 85½c. No. 1 and No. 2 mixed and yellow brought 6@6¼c over, and white, 11c over December, with No. 3 mixed and yellow, 5½@6c over, and white, 10c over the future.

Cash oats basis was steady, with No. 2 white, 1@1¼c under and No. 3 white, 1½@1¾c under December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 6 cars; corn, 118 cars; oats, 28 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 11 cars.

SOVIET SEEKS SUBSTITUTES FOR RUBBER TREES

A number of soviet scientific expeditions sent out in search of rubber bearing plants are reported in Moscow to have recently discovered various plants of this kind which by their rubber contents rival even the well established varieties.

Two of them, known as Hondrilla and Tau Sagyz, possess particularly high percentages of rubber.

The full extent of the Hondrilla and Tau Sagyz resources of the country has not yet been established, but incomplete data show there are about 100,000,000 Hondrilla bushes and 80,000,000 Tau Sagyz bushes in the U. S. S. R. These are estimated to contain about 30,000 tons of pure rubber.

This year five rubber plantations, four of Hondrilla of 25,000 hectares [61,750 acres] and one of Tau Sagyz of 5,000 hectares have been established. In mountainous Karabakh [Transcaucasia] a scientific station has been opened for the cultivation of Guayulla, another rubber plant.

During the year this station raised more than 2,000,000 Guayulla seeds. By next spring about 20,000,000 Guayulla seeds will be sown in the plantation of the station.

The first factory for the production of rubber from Tau Sagyz is being built and in 1931 another eight factories to work over Tau Sagyz and four factories for the extraction of rubber from Hondrilla will be built.

The first consignment of rubber produced from the soviet rubber plants will be turned to industry in November, the Russians claim.

Standard of Ohio Plans $12,000,000 Issue of Pfd.

A special meeting of stockholders of Standard Oil Company of Ohio has been called for Oct. 13 to vote on the issuance of $12,000,000 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock. Public offering is expected to be made of the new stock and it was said that stockholders will have no rights on the new issue. The present 7 per cent preferred issue, of which there is $7,000,000 outstanding, will be called for redemption on Jan. 15. The new issue, which will be $100 par value, will be callable at $107.50.

COTTON FIGURES RAISED

An estimate of 13,515,000 bales compared with 13,420,000 bales last month is presented by E. H. Miller, the J. E. Bennett & Co. statistician. The government report last month was 14,340,000 bales. Reports show a slight improvement during the month, but they suggest a lower crop than the government's estimate. Last year's crop was 14,428 000 bales. Condition was 52.5, compared with 54.6 last month and the government condition of 53.2. The 10-year average loss for September is about 4 points. Ginnings to Sept. 30 were 6,215,679 bales, or 2,485,996 bales for the period. In 1929 they were 5,903,265 bales. Texas is given 2,629,106 bales, against 4,220,000 bales last year.

Pressure from profit takers, hedgers and other interests, particularly southern operators, was sufficient yesterday to carry prices down and make a close at practically the lowest of the day, with net losses of 12 to 15 points in Chicago and 12 to 16 points in other markets. Spots lost 15 points, with New York 10.35c, New Orleans 10.15c, Galveston and Houston 10.20c. Prices follow:

CASH LARD WELL HELD

Cash interests are picking up lard and October is more difficult to buy. It advanced 15 points yesterday while other months gained only 7½ to 10 points. A little export business is passing all the time, and with light stocks the market is considered as in a good healthy condition. Liverpool lard was 3d to 6d higher.

October bellies were scarce and advanced 45c, with January up 15c and July 10c. Higher prices for hogs, with a lighter movement than last year, is having a strengthening effect on hog products generally. Prices follow:

AURORA'S NEW HOSPITAL TO BE UNDER WAY SOON

Is Gift of Colonel Ira C. Copley.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

In order to help provide work for Aurora's unemployed, ground is to be broken on or before Oct. 15 for the imposing new Copley hospital for which $2,445,000 in cash and real estate recently was announced as the gift of Col. Ira C. Copley, Aurora publisher and public utility millionaire. Another reason, according to the architects of the new hospital, Schmidt, Garden & Erikson of Chicago, for prompt construction is to take advantage of the low cost of building materials.

IRA C. COPLEY.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

It was announced in THE TRIBUNE of Sept. 6 that former Congressman Copley had given to the Aurora Hospital association a building fund of $1,000,000, a site value at $150,000 and an endowment fund of $1,295,000. This announcement was made by G. A. Anderson, president of the association.

Name to Be Changed.

The name is to be changed from Aurora hospital to the Copley hospital and after Col. Copley's death it will be known as the Copley Memorial hospital. Col. Copley has lived for many years in Aurora and represented the Aurora district in congress for twelve years. He and his wife, the late Edith Strohn Copley, were patrons of the Aurora hospital.

Details of the new hospital structure have now been made public by Carl A. Erikson, a partner in the architectural firm of Schmidt, Garden & Erikson. A main section of six stories is to be added to the present four story building which will become a wing of the new structure. Red face brick, with Bedford stone trim, will be used in exterior walls.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the new hospital will be the elimination of noise, that bugaboo of so many modern hospitals. Corridors, which in most hospitals are merely great sounding boards, where all sounds are accentuated, will be acoustically treated so noises will be absorbed instead of bouncing around and annoying patients.

No Banging Doors.

Crashing elevator doors and screen doors in patients' rooms which bang continually day and night, as they do in many a so-called modern hospital, will be done away with. The new system of double elevator doors, closed by air, will be used. All windows will be screened from top to bottom so patients can get ventilation by opening windows from the top if they care to. Plate glass will be used in glazing of all windows.

Floors and walls will be soundproofed so if a patient's room is below an operating room or next to one, he won't have the nerve wracking experience of having to listen in on surgical carvings day and night.

The main new section will be known as Copley hall and will face on Weston avenue. On the ground floor will be the X-ray and physics-therapy departments, ambulance entrance, record room, pharmacy, internes' room, etc.

Sun Room for Patients.

The second, third, fourth and fifth floor plans are much alike. A nurses' station directly opposite the elevators and adjoining the utility rooms, is the only service provided other than a flower room and a janitor's closet. There will be twelve small private rooms on each floor except the fifth and each room will have a private toilet.

The fifth floor will have the obstetrical department with its attractive nursery with a south exposure. The sixth floor provides for six operating rooms. The seventh floor has a sun room for the ambulatory patients together with an open air roof garden.

Children's Hospital Later.

Plans also call for an $80,000 power plant and laundry connected with the main building by a tunnel. The new hospital building will cost approximately $315,000. Equipment will cost $100,000. When needed a four story annex will be added, balancing architecturally with the present four story hospital. A new nurses' home also is planned for erection later on. Future development also calls for an isolation hospital and a children's hospital.

All of these buildings are to be grouped around an open space to be used as a patients' garden, with fountain and flowers.

M. Fred Pierce is chairman of the hospital's building committee, the members of which are Hugh McKay, W. H. Sperry, John Alexander and Dr. Elliot Denney.

Celebrate 50th Birthday of Realty Organization

A. B. Wengierski of 1239 North Ashland avenue, on Sept. 27, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the continuous existence of the business founded by his father, the late Frank Wengierski. Otto Ryden to Talk Before Real Property Institute

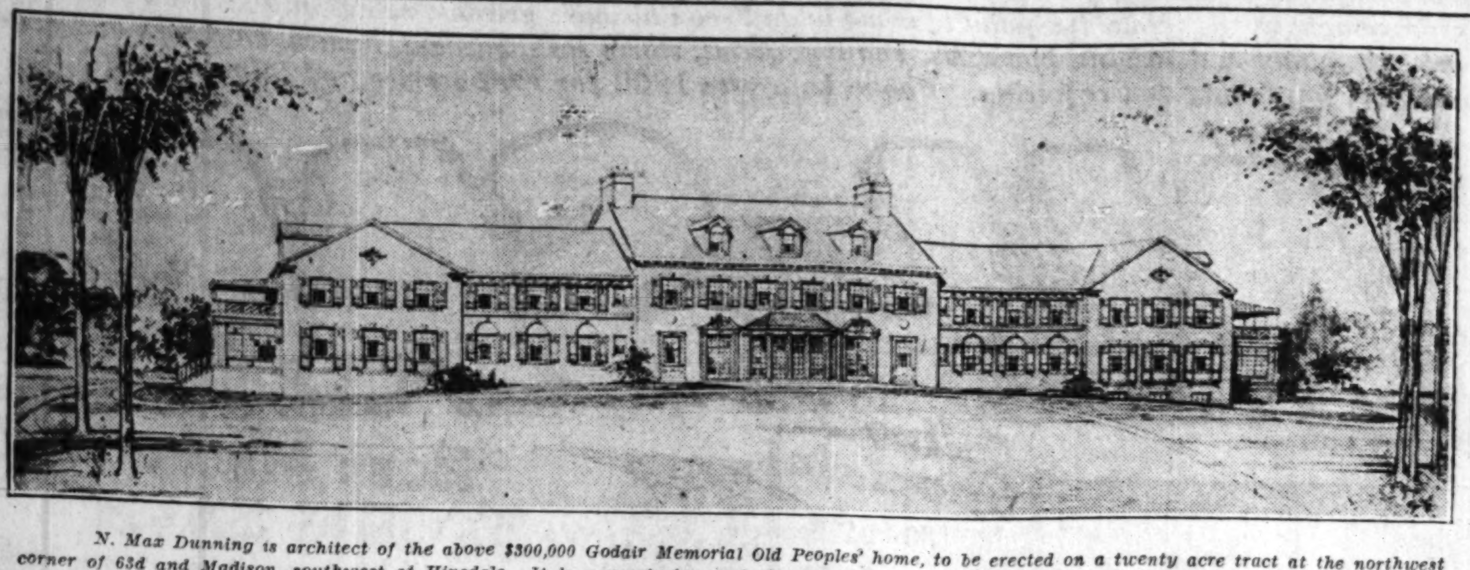
Otto G. Ryden, attorney, will talk next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock before the Real Property institute of the Cook County Real Estate board on the subject of mechanics' liens. M. M. Gabe, law instructor, will speak at 7 p. m. on "Joint Tenancy—Proper Manner of Creating It and the Various Way in Which It May Be Broken."

SELLS NORTH LARAMIE PROPERTY.

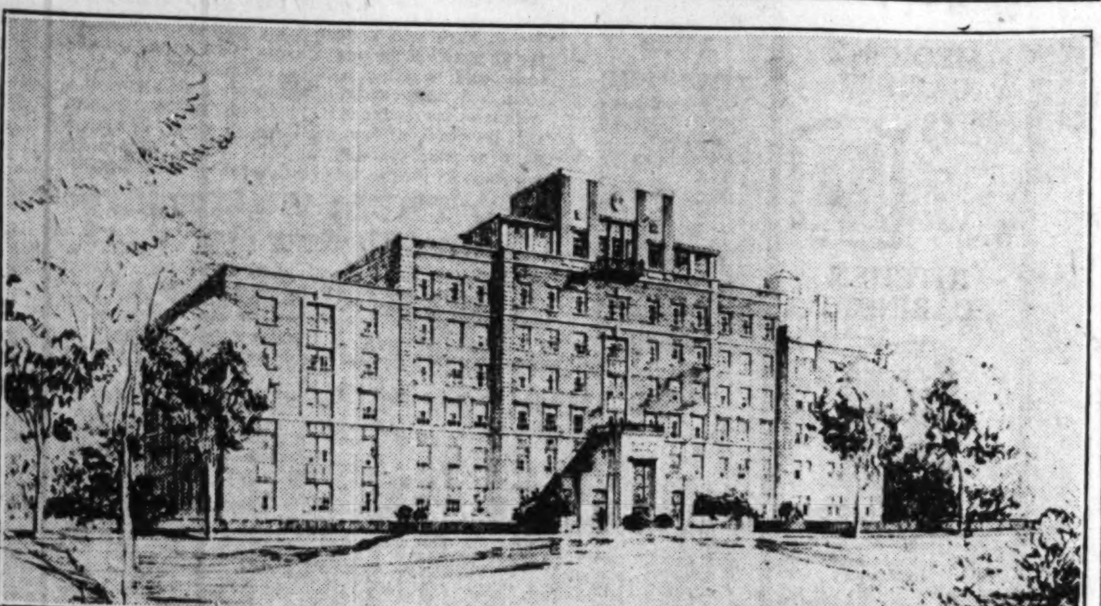
Henry C. Gordee has sold the property at 40 North Laramie, lot 123x125, to Dorothy Schroeder for an undisclosed price, subject to $00,000.

TO MAKE THE AUTUMN OF LIFE MORE CHEERFUL



N. Max Dunning is architect of the above $300,000 Godair Memorial Old Peoples' home, to be erected on a twenty acre tract at the northwest corner of 63d and Madison, southwest of Hinsdale. It is nonsectarian and the above first unit will accommodate sixty persons. A feature of this home will be special accommodations for aged couples, with private sitt g and bed rooms. Details are given in another column on this page.

CHICAGOLAND'S NEWEST SUBURBAN HOSPITAL



Schmidt, Garden & Eriksen of Chicago are architects of the above Copley hospital, for which Col. Ira C. Copley has given $2,445,000. It will be erected at Lincoln and Weston avenues, Aurora. The present five story Aurora hospital comprises the first unit in the project and is shown above on your right. The new seven story section will be erected at once.

START AT ONCE ON OLD PEOPLES' HOME: HINSDALE

Memorial to William H. Godair.

Taking the stand that now is the time to build in order to help relieve the present building situation as much as possible, the trustees of the Godair Memorial Old People's home will start construction tomorrow on the $300,000 project to be erected just southwest of Hinsdale, across from the Ruth Lake Country club. N. Max Dunning of Chicago is the architect.

A feature of the institution will be the arrangement of rooms so that aged couples can spend their last years together. They will have a sitting room with bedroom adjoining.

Another feature of interest will be the providing of recreational facilities for both men and women. A large room where the old ladies can keep their sewing machines and work as well as talk will be on the first floor. In the basement will be a large room where the men may smoke and play cards and also do any carpenter work they care to.

The first unit will have accommodations for sixty persons. Two more units are contemplated when they are needed. The design of Mr. Dunning is colonial with exterior walls of red brick, with stone trim and green shutters. The building will be fireproof. Completion is set for next June. J. T. Schless & Co. of Downers Grove have the general contract.

William H. Godair, a Chicago real estate operator, died in 1914. He left $500,000 to build an old people's home. This sum has now grown to approximately $1,000,000. Mrs. Godair is supervising the carrying out of her husband's plans.

Reports More Activity in Homes at Flossmoor Park

Burke F. Ward, vice president of the South Shore Investment company, reports considerable activity in Flossmoor. Since the first of September he states the following residences in Flosmoor Park have been purchased: Carl J. Marcuson bought a house on Brassie avenue for $22,000; H. R. Gordon purchased the seven room stone house on Marston lane for $17,500; Maurice W. Adams bought a house on Collett lane for $26,500; W. C. Undine bought a residence on Marston lane for $18,500, and Niles B. Smith purchased a six room residence on Hutchinson road for $13,500. All of these were made by Mr. Ward and W. H. Cato, manager of the Flossmoor Park office.

HOWARD & ORR OPEN NEW HYDE PARK BRANCH

The Howard & Orr Co., Inc., of which Louis T. Orr is president, has opened a new Hyde Park real estate office at 1309 East 53d street, at the southeast corner of Kimbark avenue. It is finished in American walnut. The office is operated by G. B. Shindler, Willard T. Orr, Ralph Fishbein, and Evelyn Beger. For many years the firm has had an office at 1458 East 53d street. The general offices are at 82 West Washington street. The company has several branch offices.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Roy Hall, secretary-treasurer of The Hub, Henry C. Lytton & Sons, writes the following regarding the story in THE TRIBUNE of Wednesday, Oct. 1, which told of the enlargement of the Marshall Field & Co. Lake Forest branch: "I call your attention to what might be considered as an inaccuracy in your first sentence—namely: 'Marshall Field & Co., pioneer among the loop department stores in the opening of suburban branches.' While The Hub, Henry C. Lytton & Sons, is not, strictly speaking, a department store, it is, nevertheless, a loop store of some forty-four years' standing, and I believe that The Hub was the first of the loop stores to open suburban branches.

"The Evanston branch was opened March 8, 1926; the Gary store was opened March 5, 1927, and the Oak Park store was opened Oct. 12, 1927. Naturally, leases for these properties were made several months prior to the formal opening. In fact, the Oak Park store was built for The Hub by Mr. Nicholas of Oak Park."

We don't wish to start an argument between Marshall Field & Co. and The Hub, but we must add in fairness to THE TRIBUNE that Field & Co., in making their announcement, referred to themselves as pioneers in the suburban area and we merely quoted them as such.

LESSEES INCREASE SPACE.

The International Cellucotton Products company and the Wander company have renewed their leases in the Lake Michigan building, each expanding approximately 40 per cent, according to Harold H. Egan & Co.

Brokers' Notes

Stewart B. Matthews has been appointed sales manager of Baird & Warner. He has been with the organization since 1925, when he was a salesman in the Evanston office. He assumed charge of the Uptown office in 1929. His department will include all sales except those of coöperative apartments.

Frankenstein & Co. announce the removal of their offices from the Westminster building, where they have been for several years, to the eighteenth floor of the Foreman-State Bank building, 33 South La Salle street. Their phone number is unchanged.

George W. Stewart has formed the Chicago Realty corporation, with offices at 100 North La Salle. Mr. Stewart is president, J. R. Blain is vice president, R. A. Leavitt is secretary, and J. R. Brennan is treasurer.

William F. Zent, for the last two years in charge of the Newark, N. J., office of the Harmon National Realty Trust, has been placed in charge of the Chicago office at 140 South Dearborn, succeeding A. W. Rhamstine, who has resigned. Mr. Zent is a former Chicagoan. Mr. Rhamstine has succeeded R. H. Hanauer as director of sales for the H. M. Cornell Co.

Charles P. Schwartz has moved his law offices to the One La Salle Street building.

General Furniture Rents South Ashland Building

The General Furniture company has leased the entire three story and basement building, 50x100, at 5010 South Ashland avenue, from the Mary Jacobs estate for fifteen years for a term rental reported to be $73,500. The building is to be remodeled and occupied within thirty days. Allen M. Weber & Co. were brokers.

Plan Smoker for Former Heads of Realty Board

Robert Clark Duncan, president of the Cook County Real Estate board, announces a smoker and members' meeting next Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. at which former presidents of the board will be present.

W. D. COUSIN AND W. W. DRAHEIM IN NEW REALTY FIRM

W. D. Cousin, formerly operating under the firm name of W. D. Cousin & Co., at 105 South La Salle street, has formed a partnership with W. W. Draheim under the name of Cousin & Draheim, with offices in the Hartford building, 8 South Dearborn street. They will continue to manage the real estate interests of Harry C. Moir. Mr. Cousin has specialized in central business property for thirty years. Mr. Draheim has been active in the development of real estate projects in Chicago and eastern cities.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

BATHS DE LUXE NOW COMMON IN SMALL HOMES

Beauty and Utility Now Low Priced.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]
[Next week will appear an article on Fireplace Equipment.]

It is only in the last few years that the bathroom de luxe has appeared in the small home as well as the large. And by the bathroom de luxe one no longer means a room costly to install and equip, but a room which combines beauty and utility at reasonable expenditure. Excellent quality plumbing fixtures and accessories may be chosen for the bathroom and still the cost is far less than outfitting a living room or dining room or a master bedroom.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[Hutchinson Photo.]

Whatever a home owner may desire in the way of equipment for a new bath or for the modernizing of an old one may be obtained; he has a wide choice whatever his limits of expenditure may be. To be kept in mind, however, is the fact that it pays to select fixtures of as good a quality as can be afforded; also to choose these fixtures with a view to style, design, and color.

Plumbing fixtures no longer are bought for their utilitarian value alone. Their decorative assets loom large and the elements of grace and beauty in bath tubs, lavatories, tubs, showers, and medicine cabinets give possibilities of real individuality to bathrooms undreamed of a decade ago.

Choice of Many.

For instance in the selection of a lavatory one has choice of some thirty or forty different kinds, ranging from the least expensive, the hanging from the wall type, to costly creations cut from gold and black Italian marble.

The small size wall hung lavatories are much used for small baths, for bedroom installments, for the closet in the downstairs hall. Whether of genuine vitreous china with chromium or gold plated fittings, or of the smooth, hard armor of serviceable enamel with fittings which have removable wearing parts, one can be assured of beauty and durability in all the good grade fixtures.

One new style lavatory is the one with two gracefully tapering metal or glass legs. Pedestal lavatories continue to hold their popularity. Whatever the style of lavatory, however, it can be had in a wide range of sizes.

In tubs, too, there is a wealth of variety. They may be tiled in, set in a recess or into a corner. They may be no longer than 4½ feet or they may be 6 feet if one prefers. They may be of enameled iron, of porcelain, or of marble.

A shower stall may be placed beside the tub or in a separate compartment. Or a shower may be readily installed above a tub already in place. Excellent shower heads and controls are to be obtained. Where a shower is over a bath one can use a shower curtain or a glass door.

Two Lavatories an Asset.

Medicine cabinets are a subject in themselves with their utility shelves and sparkling mirrors. They may even be had electrically wired for light and convenience fixtures.

A bath equipped with two lavatories is a big asset in a family where there are children, as two such fixtures instead of one simplifies materially the routine of hurried morning dressing or undressing of the children at night.

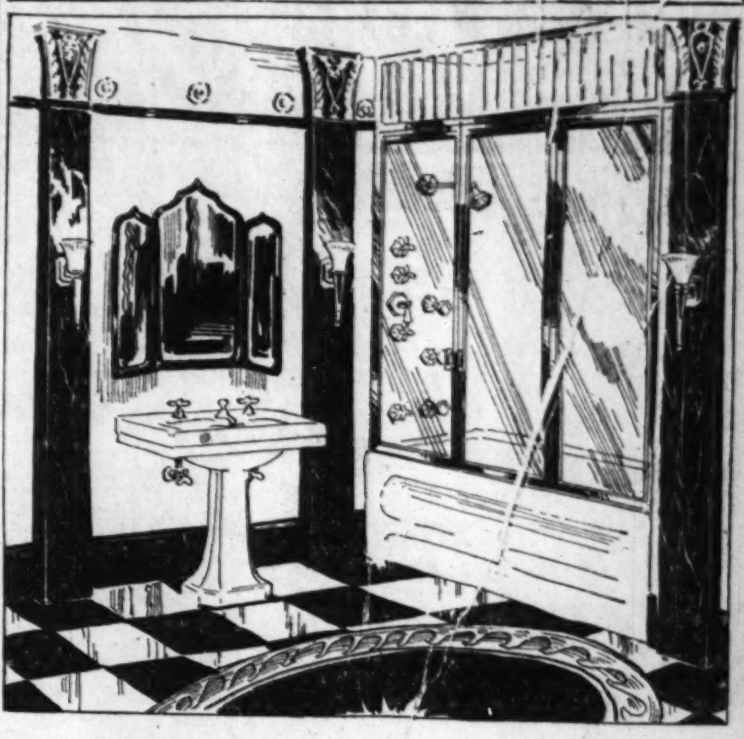
Two bathrooms are a good investment financially, quite apart from the comfort they afford. The house with two baths and a downstairs lavatory and basement toilet and shower has a better resale value and renting value than a house with only one bath. So our standards increase and our demands multiply with the years.

Often home owners hesitate to consider adding another bath to their home because they think it should be a sizable affair and they do not see how they can spare the room space.

This decidedly is not so since the three essential bathroom fixtures can be grouped in a room 5 feet by 5 feet. A 60 inch tub can be placed into one end, the other two fixtures arranged opposite, and there is space besides for the medicine cabinet. Naturally in so small a bath the lavatory should be preferably of the wall hung type.

A good plumbing contractor often proves himself something of a wizard in discovering surprising and economical locations for the "bathroom long considered an impossibility."

A MODERN BATHROOM



An example of the decorative style that may be brought into play in equipping a bath for the home of today. A wide choice of plumbing fixtures at reasonable cost is available for the furnishing of such a room in a manner that combines beauty and utility.

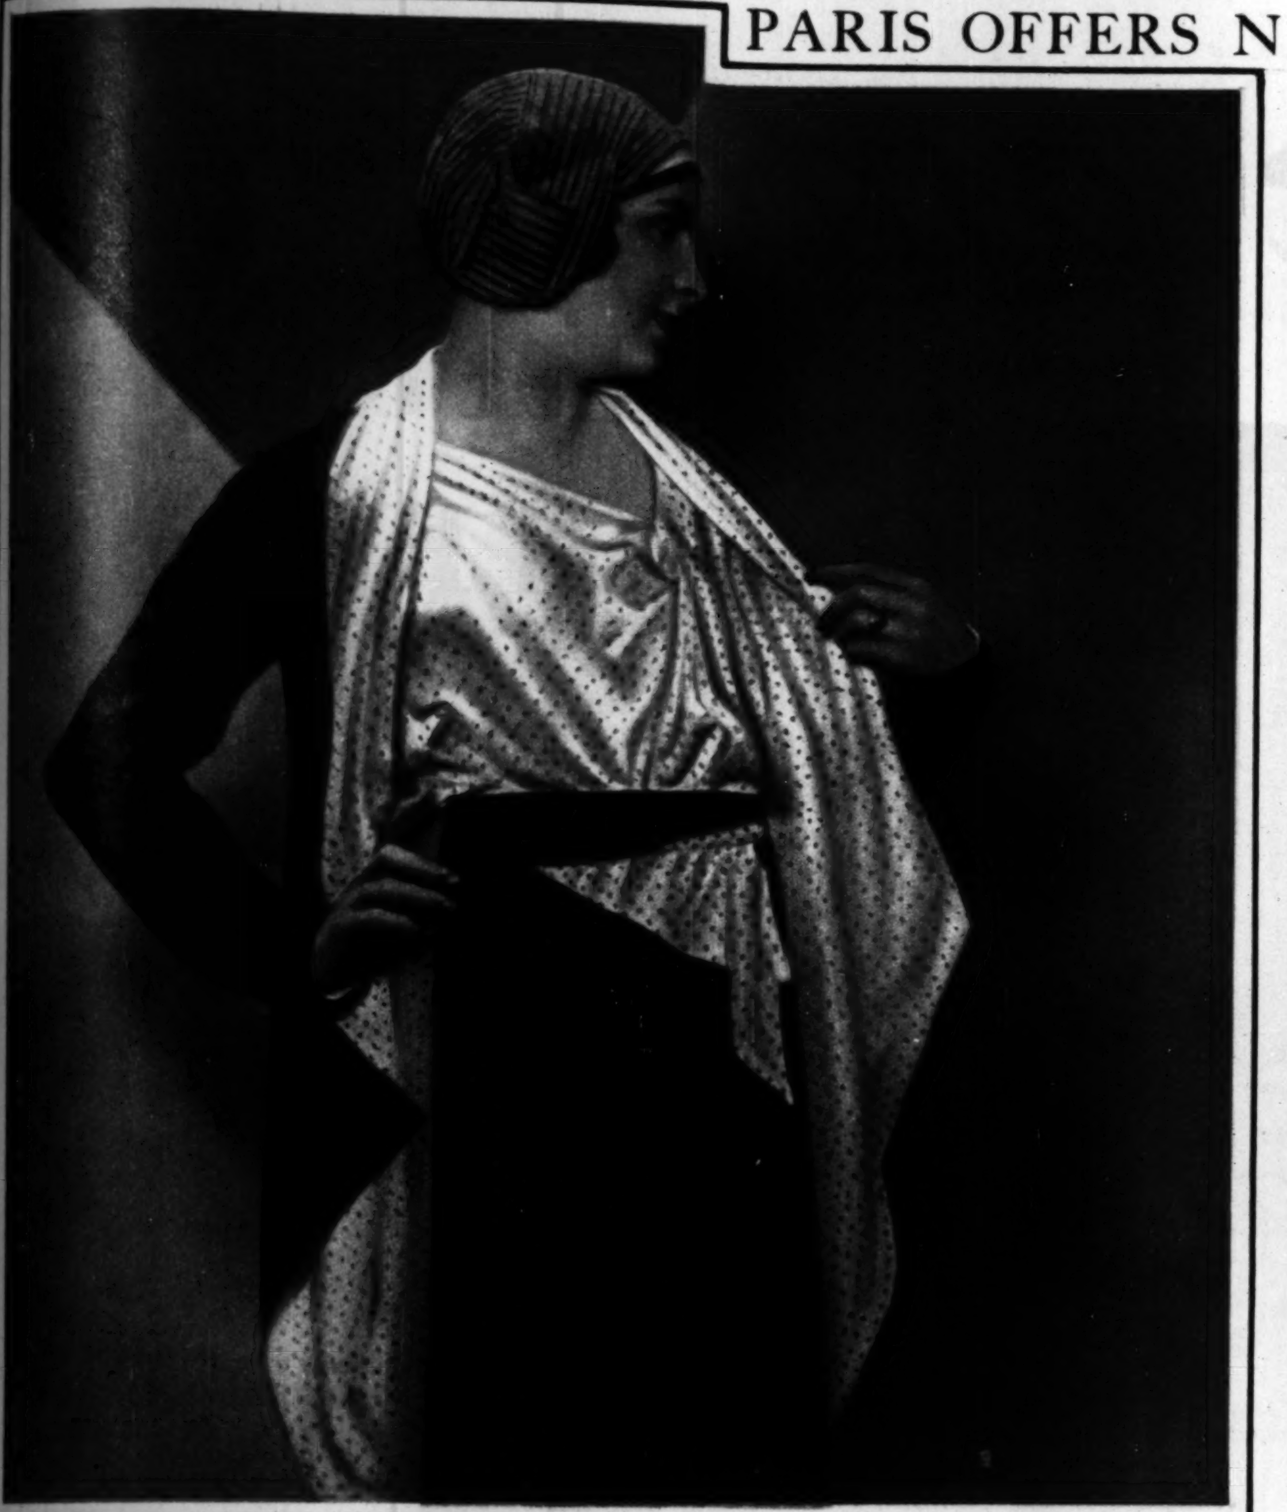
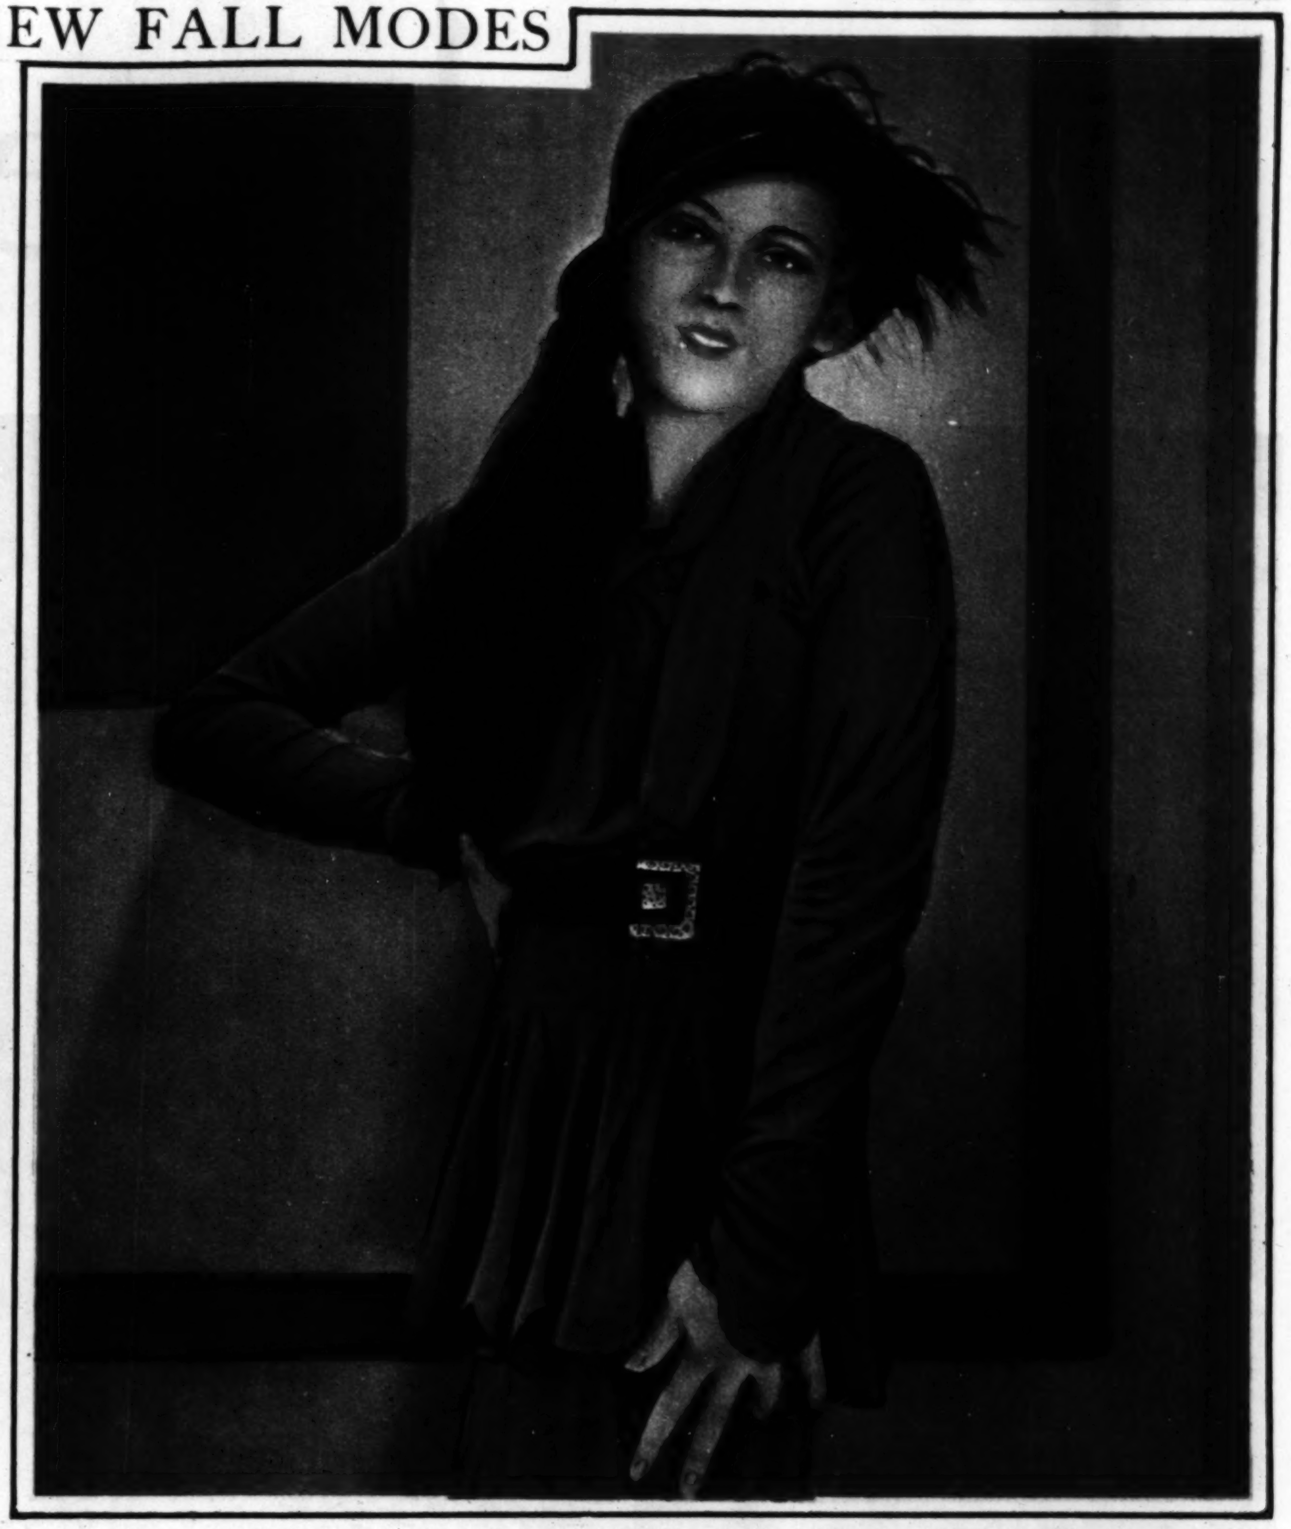
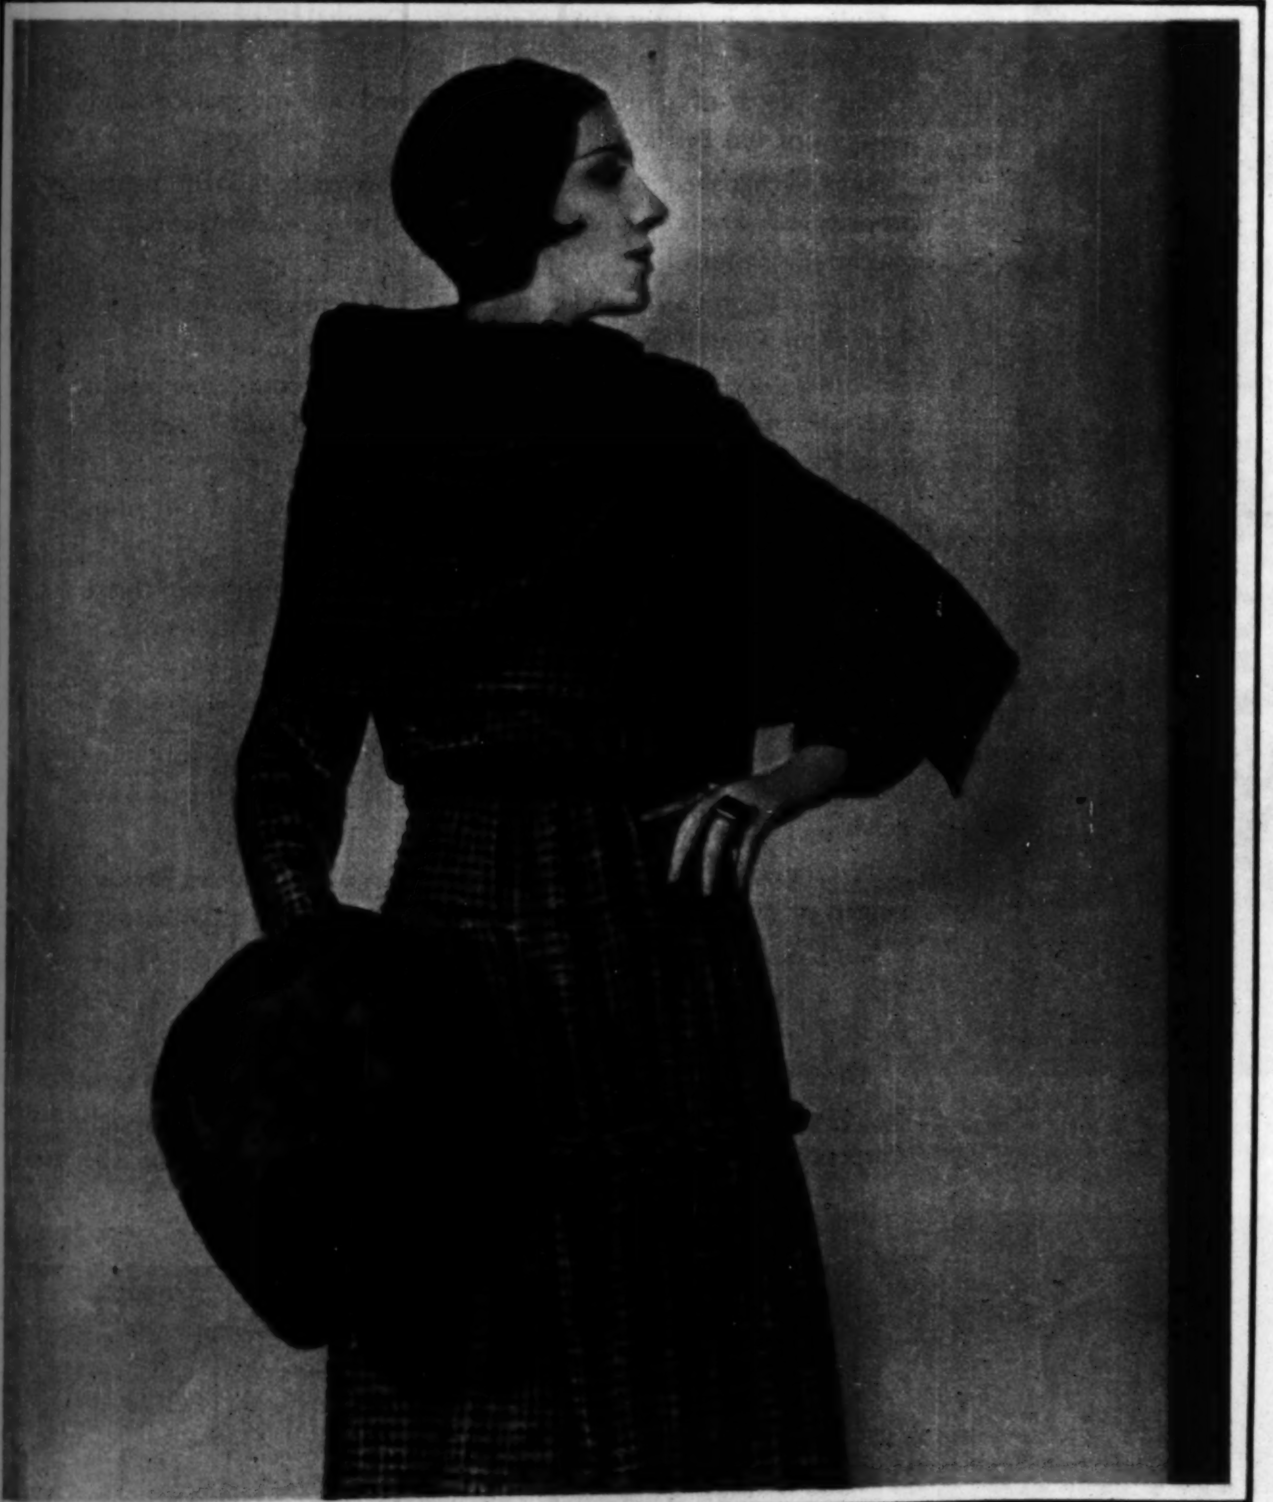
PARIS OFFERS NEW FALL MODES



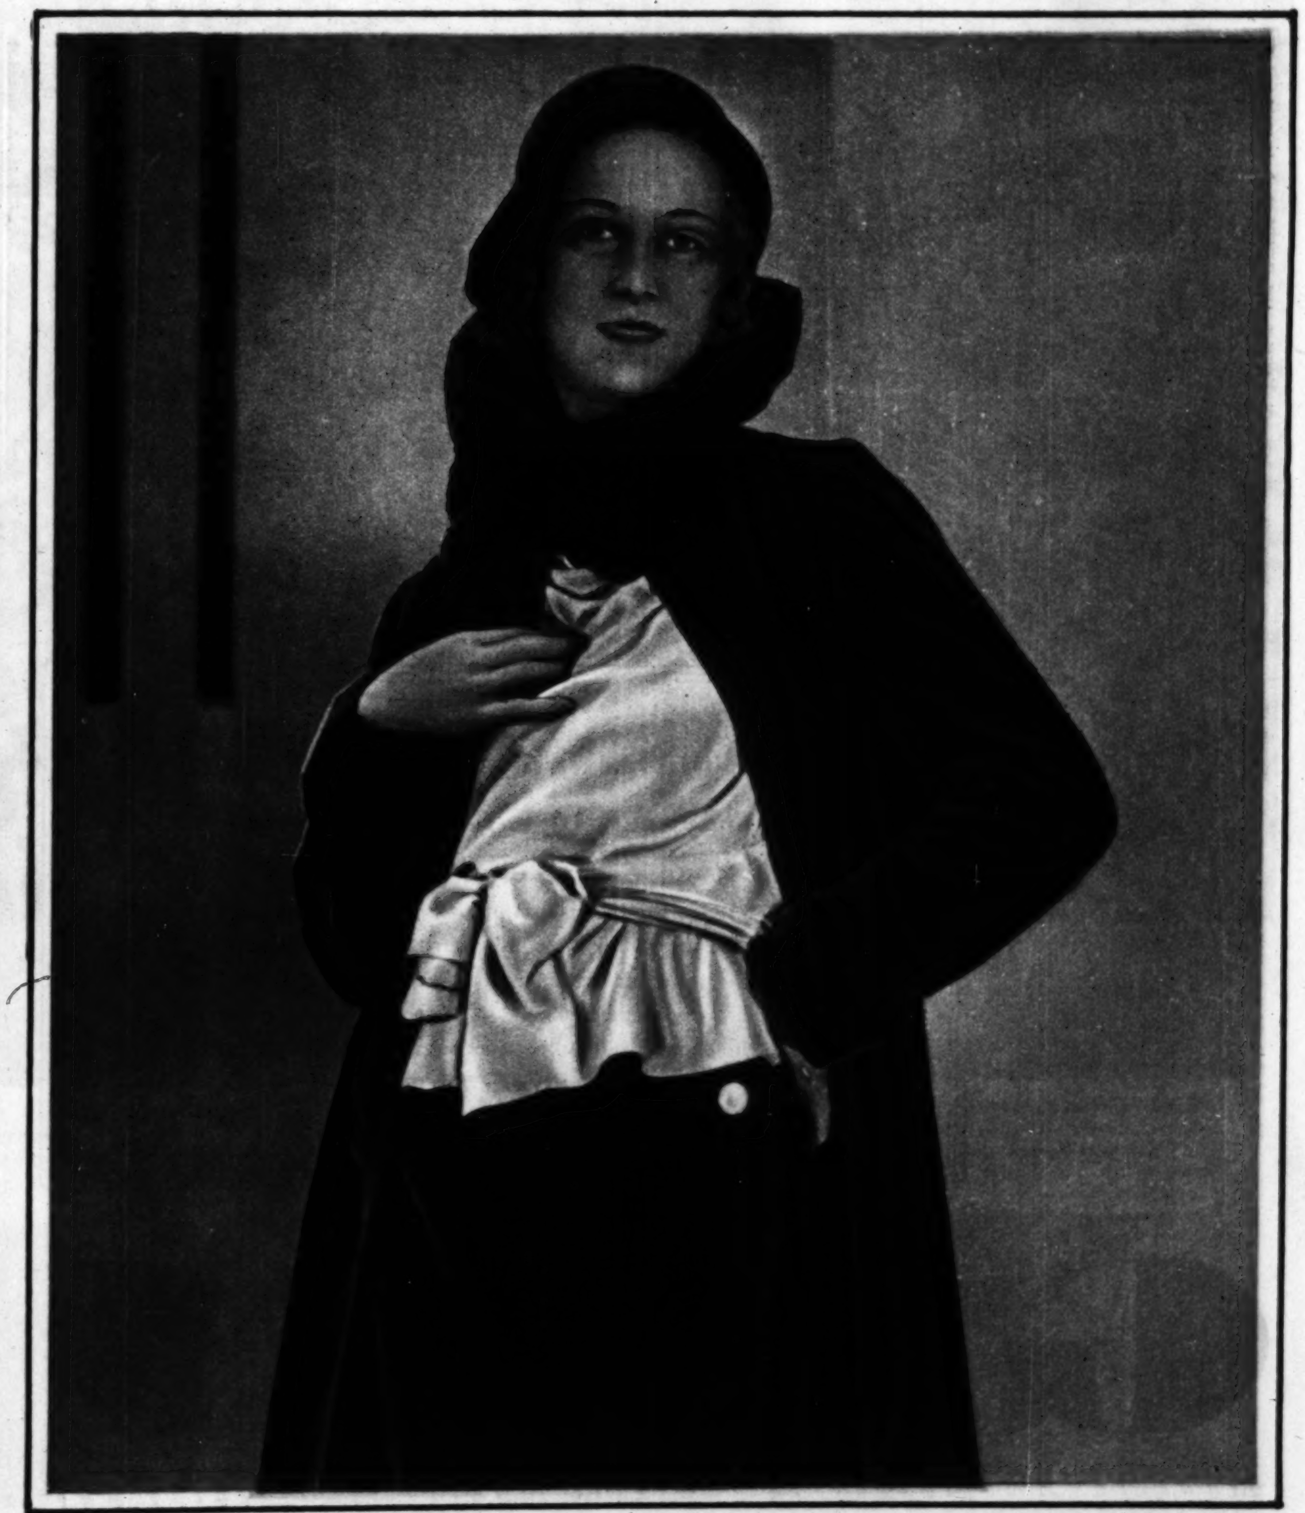
AN AFTERNOON ENSEMBLE—Wools and silks, splattered with tiny gold stars, are combined to give this effect by Jean Patou. The coat and skirt are of brown wool crepe, while the blouse, coat lining and collar are of white crepe de chine. The hat is gold colored silk crochet.



WILLOW PLUMES feature Patou's newest millinery sensation. The hat is black felt and the plume is of the same color. The lacquer red dress is made of crepe bilitis and has a skirt with two circular ruffle tiers. The belt is black leather, with a buckle of brilliants.



WOOLEN DAY TIME DRESSES, with full skirts in three sections, are the creation of Molyneux. He adds wide, fur-trimmed scarfs, trimmed with bands of brown beaver, and muffs of the same fur. The skirt is trimmed with a big-link chain made out of the material of the dress.



PEPLUMED SUEDE BLOUSES are brought into the sports mode by Schiaparelli, who ties them around the waistline with a suede sash. The skirt and knee length jacket are of rusty red velveteen, and the jacket is fastened by a mink bow under the chin. The hat is brown velvet. (Photos from Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

"I sat there amazed!

. . . what could an Oriental Rug give more than this? $150!"

500 year old design . . . worth a fortune, re-created in a Gulistan Rug!

A carpet that "scholars rate among the first half dozen of ancient carpets now in existence." So says the Official Handbook of the Pennsylvania Museum of Art, where the original of the Gulistan illustrated above hangs today! It was woven 88 years before America was discovered, when Tamerlane the Great held sway in Samarkand! Note the cypress trees, expressing life eternal, in the rich field of the rug! Six color combinations.

Ask for Persian Garden Rug, No. 25082

for 9 x 12 foot size · Other sizes in proportion (Prices higher in Canada)

The same shimmering sheen! The jewel-like colors! The luxurious deep pile!

Gulistan gives you all these beauties hitherto only available in costly Orientals!

Even experts hesitated to tell the difference!

Little wonder that rug values were revolutionized when Gulistan was placed on the market two years ago.

Today, new Gulistans are in the stores. They reveal another amazing development.

Gulistan now places Old Masters of Oriental Rug Art within your reach!

Masterpieces of design originally created for the palaces and mosques of old Persia!

Rugs so cherished by museums that they are really the sentimental property of whole peoples and cannot be purchased even by multi-millionaires!

Moreover, rugs so intricate in design that even reproductions of them in imported Orientals are seldom found!

Does beauty such as this transform a home, a room? One glance gives the answer. Rugs this Fall come ahead of other demands upon the family purse!

But to know exactly what you are getting when you go shopping for rugs, remember these plain facts.

Gulistan is the American product of Karagheusian, the largest makers of Oriental Rugs.

Only Karagheusian can make Gulistan. All rugs so marked come from this famous House.

In Gulistan you have the same sturdy Oriental wool yarns, the finest dyes, the very same finishing process as you get in their expensive Persian and Chinese rugs.

Naturally, all the best stores have Gulistans. Many of them have arranged art gallery displays to show these beautiful rugs appropriately.

Look on the back of the rug for the silken label pictured below. That is your guarantee of authenticity. No Gulistan Rug has been O. K.'d by Karagheusian without it.

There are many designs and color combinations. Sizes from 22½ by 36 inches ($10) to 11 feet 3 inches by 21 feet ($435). Also Stair Carpets and Hall Runners.

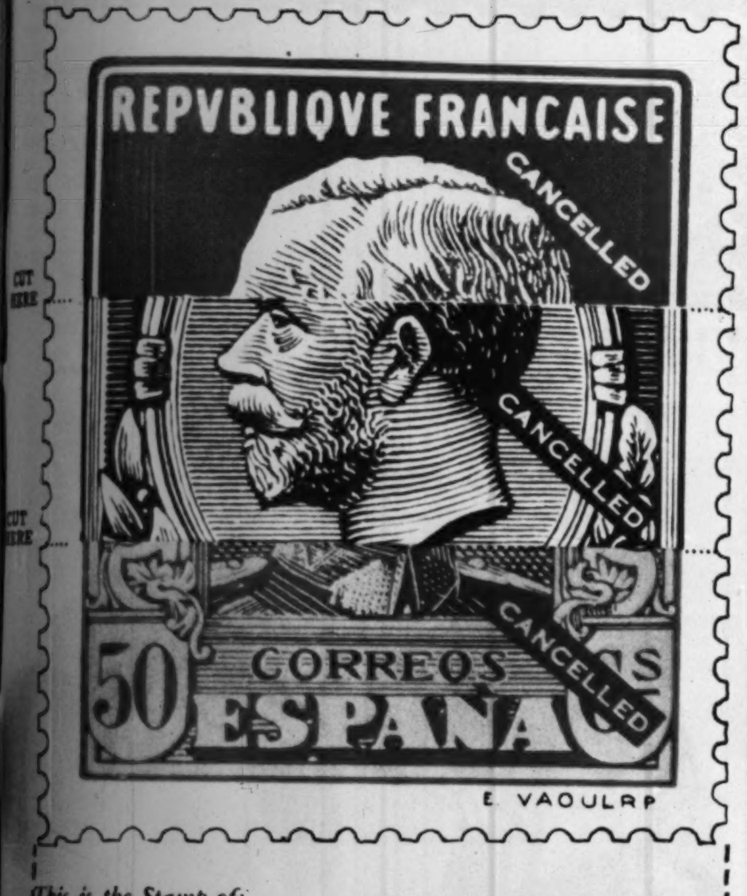
S OF THE NATIONS

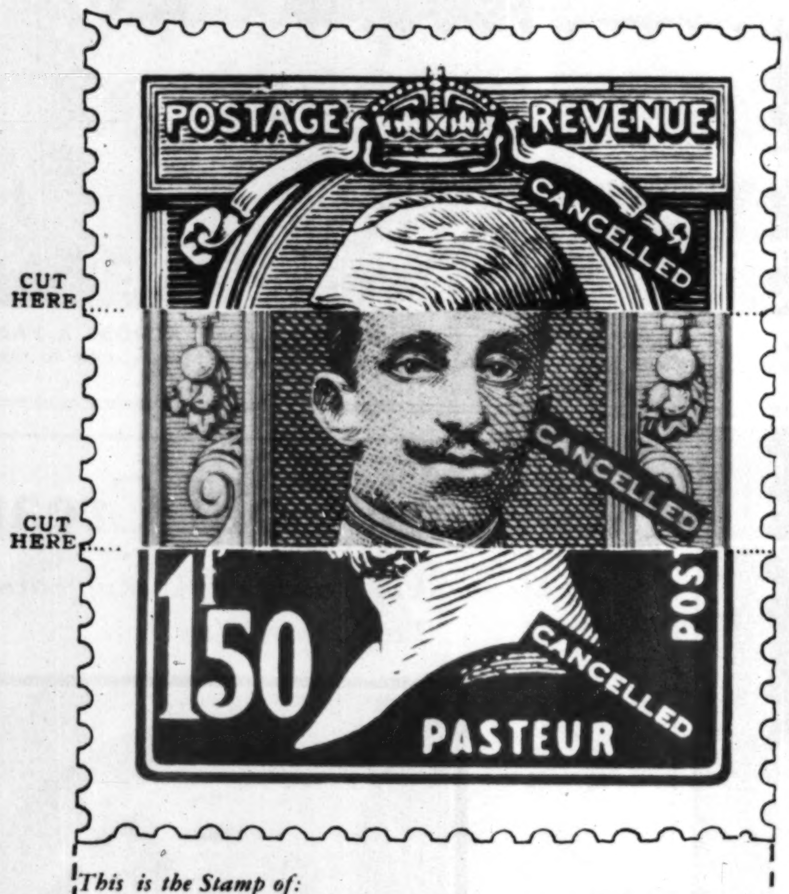
Can you put these Stamps together and name them ?

SET NO. 1



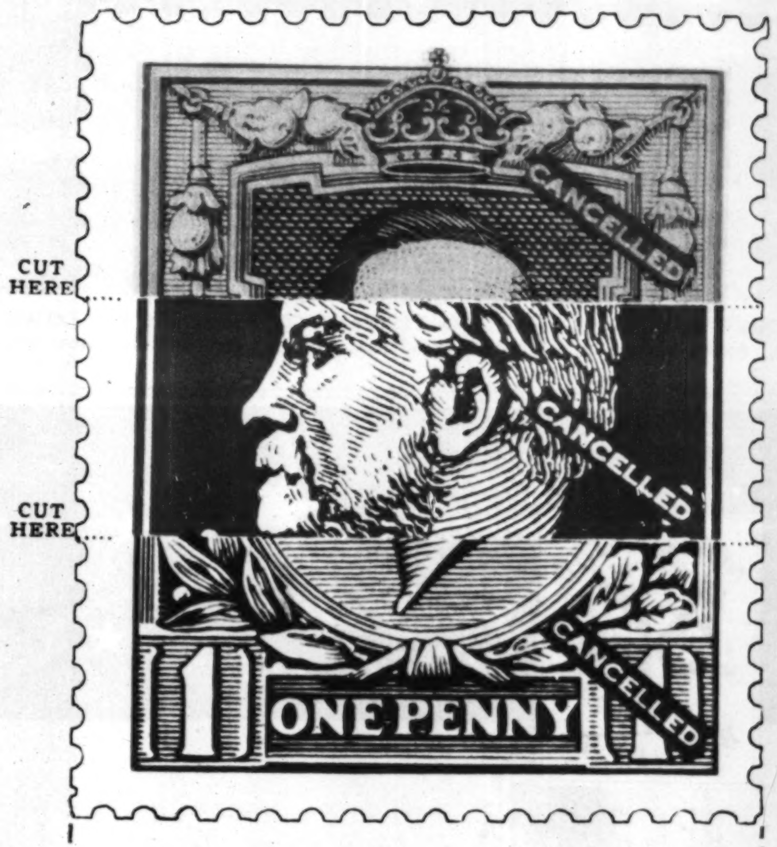
This is the Stamp of: ______________________
Write name of Nation here

CLUE: The top portion of this composite stamp is that of a country of which Paris is the capital; the middle portion is part of a stamp of a nation whose ruler bears the title "George V;" the lower portion represents a nation whose Eastern boundary is the Mediterranean Sea.



This is the Stamp of: ______________________
Write name of Nation here

CLUE: The upper portion of this composite stamp represents a nation separated by the English channel from France; the middle portion that of a nation ruled by a King named "Alfonso;" the lower portion represents a nation within whose boundaries rises Mont Blanc, highest of all the peaks in the Alps.



This is the Stamp of: ______________________
Write name of Nation here

CLUE: The nation represented by the upper portion of this composite stamp has as its capital a city named Madrid; the central portion represents a nation in Europe governed by a president and whose legislative authority is vested in the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate; the bottom portion is part of a stamp of a nation upon whose flag it is said the sun never sets.

A NEW OFFER! OPEN to MEN, WOMEN, BOYS and GIRLS!

WHAT interesting objects are the Postage Stamps used by the various nations! Is there a boy, girl, man or woman who has not been thrilled by the sight of some quaint looking foreign stamp—symbol of a far-off nation, its history and its people?

Starting today the Chicago Tribune presents to its readers a fascinating new $10,000.00 Prize Game—STAMPS OF THE NATIONS!

This new Game is educational—instructive—of historical value! It will familiarize you with many different nations, their geographical locations, their people and their customs.

Note the three cancelled stamps pictured above. Can you cut them apart, put them together and name the nations they represent?

It's easy. Study the clues under each stamp. They will help you. And, in case you need further help, the complete stamps will be re-printed each Sunday among a group like the group shown at the left.

The Chicago Tribune will pay $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes for the best answers. It costs you nothing. No hard work to do! No subscriptions to get! Just put the stamps together and name them.

Follow these simple rules:

1. Every Sunday for 14 Sundays, the Chicago Tribune will print in this "Stamp Album," a set of 3 composite "Stamps of the Nations." Each set of stamps, when cut apart and assembled properly, will make complete stamps. The public is invited to put the stamps together and name the countries they represent. The Chicago Tribune will pay $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes for the best answers. See Prize List at left.
2. The composite stamps must be cut out, assembled and pasted or pinned together. Below each stamp must be written the name of the country it represents. A total of 42 stamps will be printed—3 each Sunday for 14 Sundays. IMPORTANT! Hold all stamps until you have the complete set of 42. Then send them to "Stamps," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois.
3. This contest is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. It does not matter where you live.
4. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.
5. All stamps must be in by midnight 21 days after Set No. 14 is published. Each entry should be sent by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. A letter must be sent with your entry giving your name and address and telling the name of your favorite stamp and why you like it best. Letters must not exceed 50 words.

   Contestants may send as many sets as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize. No entries will be returned.
6. The judging will be based upon the accuracy of putting the stamps together, correctly naming the countries they represent, neatness, and merit of the accompanying letter. Elaborate entries will receive no greater consideration than the most simple entries. The prime requirement will be accuracy. Therefore any school boy or girl has the same chance to obtain a prize as any man or woman.
7. SCHOOL TEACHERS NOTE! To interest School Teachers in encouraging their pupils to enter this instructive and educational game, the Chicago Tribune will award 5 prizes of $100.00 each to the teachers of public, parochial or private schools of grammar or high school grades, whose pupils rank highest among the winners. Teachers! This new game will familiarize your pupils with many foreign countries. Help them win!
8. You need not purchase the Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the stamps from the Tribune and assemble the stamps from the copies you have made. The Tribune may be examined at any of its Offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.
9. The judges will be a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept their decision as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

Start this interesting new Game with the first set of Stamps printed above. Then watch the Stamp Album in the Chicago Sunday Tribune each Sunday for the other sets. Save them until you have them all. Then send them in!

NORTH STAR
(PUREST WOOL)
BLANKETS

BLANKETS have come very definitely under Style control. The old days, when a blanket was merely a blanket, have passed. Today, blankets are largely chosen for their decorative values in bedroom and boudoir. But whatever the effect desired, the quality of the blanket—the fineness and purity of the wool that goes into it—is a prime consideration, as are also surface beauty, finish, lustre, delicacy and correctness of color. Measured by all these attributes, North Star Blankets are perfect.

The beauty of North Star Blankets has made them ideal decorative accents, just as for nearly seventy years they have been preferred for purest wool and cozy warmth. On Sale in Your Local Store. Or write to: North Star Woolen Mill Company, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

No More Cold Cream

This New Way

COLD CREAM
SKIN FOOD
ASTRINGENT POWDER BASE

The four fundamentals of skin care are condensed into a single, 3-minute application.

A Scientific Discovery That Condenses a Complete Professional Facial Into a Single Application, Taking Less Than 3 Minutes, That Combines the 4 Fundamentals in Skin Care Urged By Experts!

NOW comes a remarkable new development in beauty science. A discovery that experts predict may soon change all previous methods in skin care.

A way that condenses the four fundamentals of scientific skin care into a single three-minute home application! And that provides the exact and same effect of a complete Professional Facial costing $3 or more.

A way that combats blackheads and enlarged pores; often with almost unbelievable results. That banishes premature age lines, and the lines of strain and worry. For each application works directly on each and all of these conditions.

Hence, a way that completely eliminates the need of costly special creams and lotions. Of old-time cleansing creams, of "skin foods" and astringents. Yet—that is as easy to use as an ordinary cleansing cream.

Do you wonder, then, that largely on expert advice tens of thousands of women are adopting this unique creation?

What It Is

It is called Lady Esther Four-Purpose Cream. And it marks the application of totally new principles in skin care as defined by the most recent scientific findings of ablest specialists in the field of beauty culture.

Each application has four distinct actions on the skin.

Cleansing action that cleanses the pores. And thus ends the use of an ordinary cleansing cream.

Tissue stimulating action that invigorates the deep tissues of the skin. And, thus that ends the use of a special "skin food."

Astringent action that eradicates worry, strain and premature age lines, refines pores. And thus that makes the use of youth creams and astringents a folly.

Softening action that forms a perfect base for powder. And thus banishes the need of a powder base. Thus the four fundamentals of skin care are condensed into a single, 3-minute application.

Age lines soon go under this daily care. Flabby tissues strengthen and become firm. The skin is kept clean—for the astringent action of this cream closes the pores after they've been cleaned. And thus closes them against accumulations that foster imperfections.

It is sold under the name of Lady Esther at all drug and department stores at 50 cents and $1.25 a jar. The $1.25 size contains four times the amount in the 50 cent size. 31

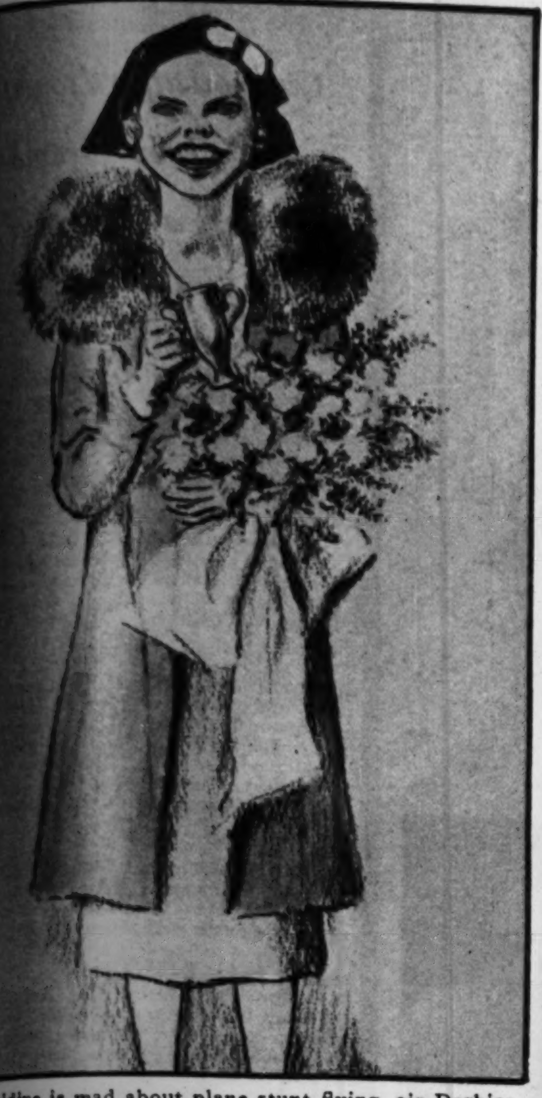
No risk this way of blood-poisoning as with cutting your corns, or of acid burn which harsh liquids and plasters so often cause!

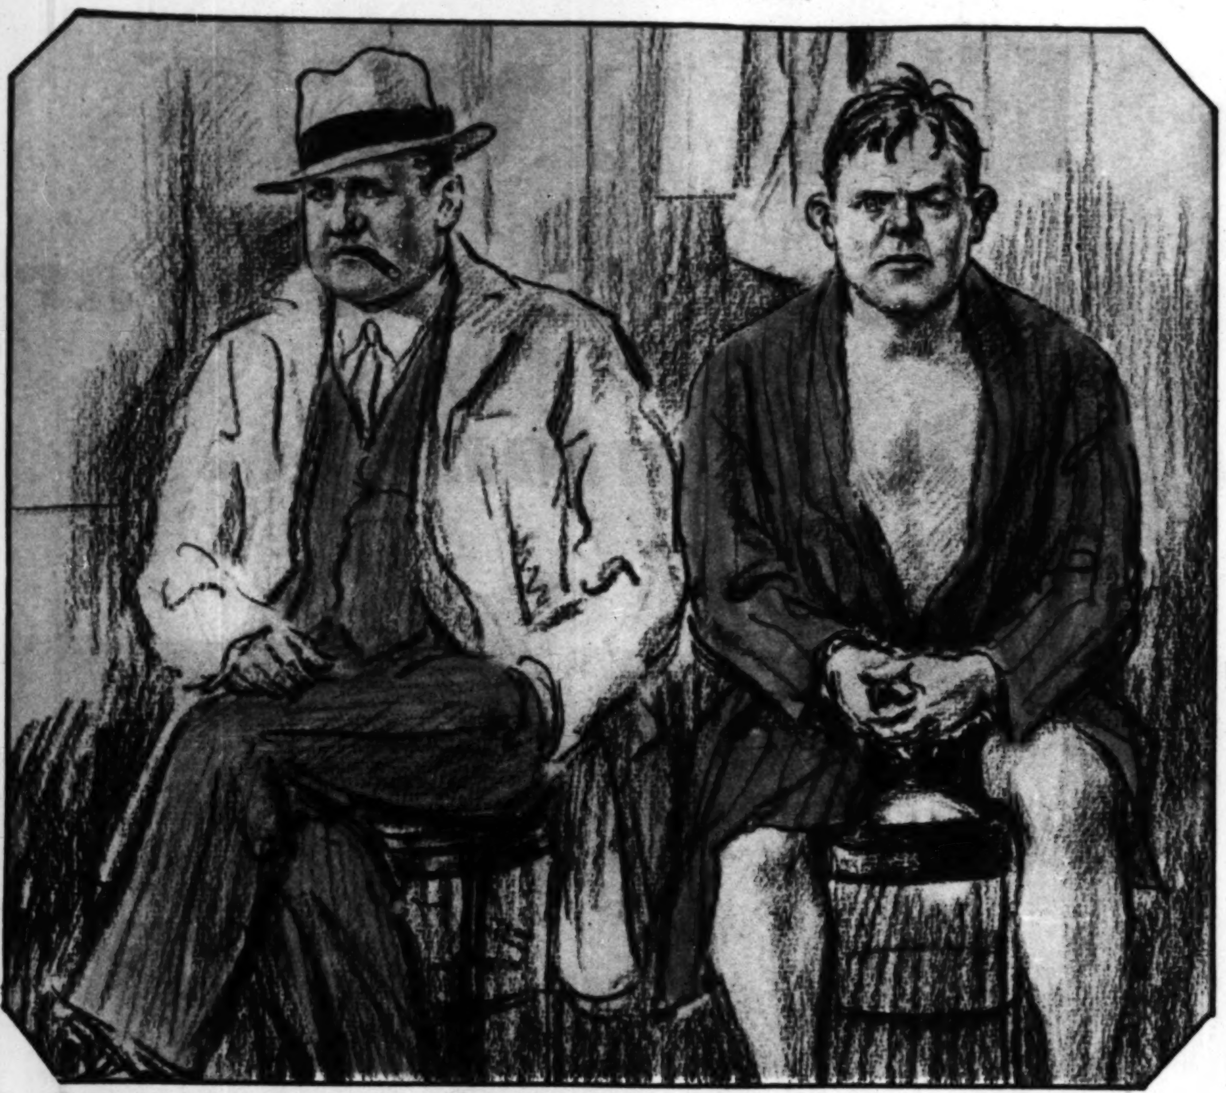
The Sport Fans

By W. E. Hill

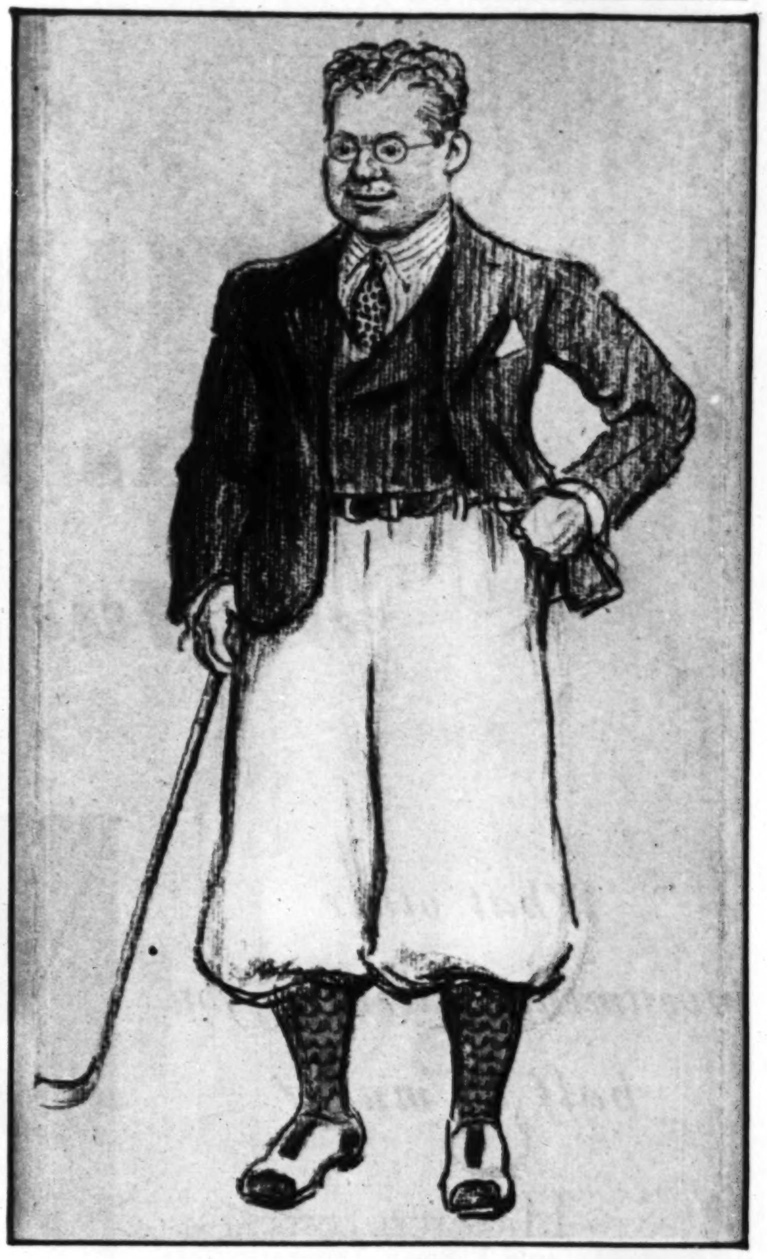
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]



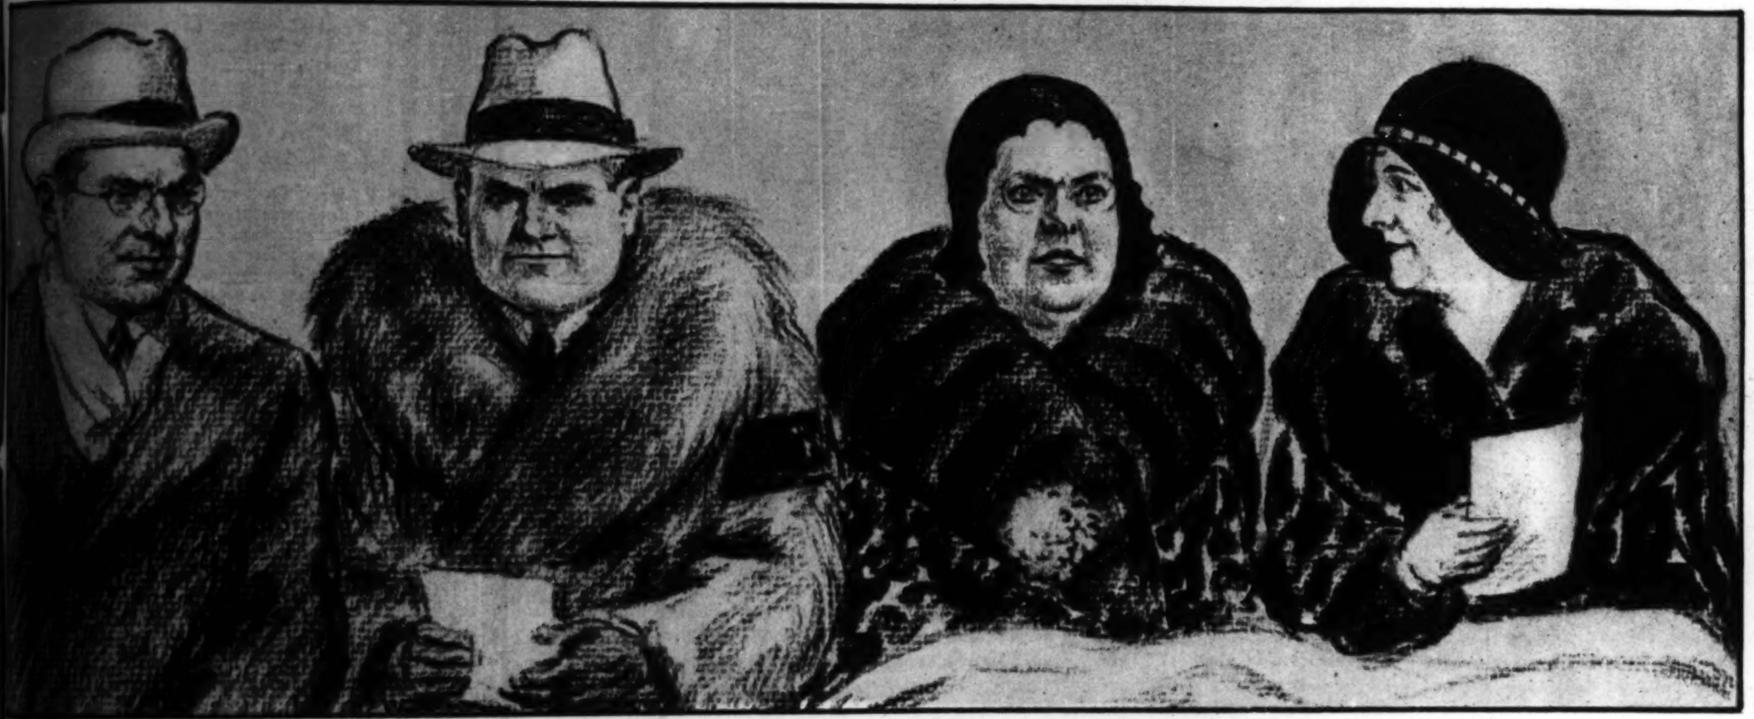
Geraldine is mad about plane stunt flying, air Derbies and pilots. She is always on hand in case a passenger is needed for a non-stop flight to Baffin bay and return. Absolutely fearless is Geraldine; she goes right close to see them land, and has nearly been decapitated by a propeller on several occasions. Geraldine loves to pose for the cameramen with a big bunch of flowers and a silver cup that is to be presented to an endurance flyer, and sometimes you can see the flyers to one side or in the background. Her papa has promised her a plane just as soon as Geraldine learns to fly high enough off the ground not to be classed as a hit and run driver.



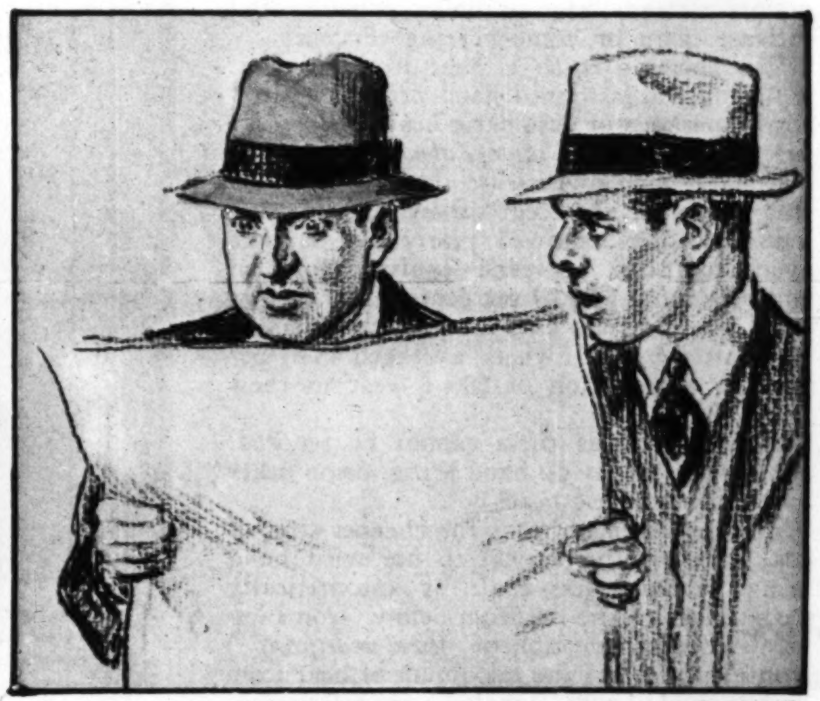
The ringside fan. "What was the matter with you when you let him get away with a left hook on your jaw? Was you in a trance?" Gorilla Zigarini is being condoled with by a friend who, in all his experience as a fight fan, has never seen a worse bout than that between the Gorilla and Mickey Tadpole, the Mexican jumping bean.



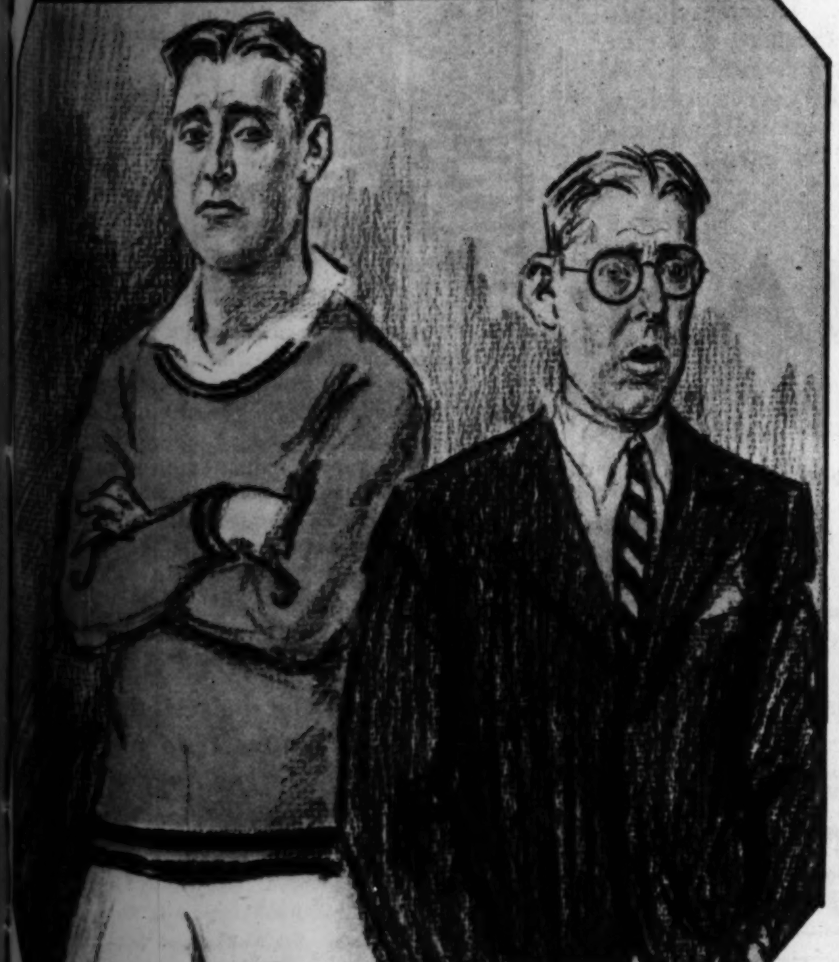
Just a snappy Tom Thumb golfer in a nifty sport outfit, watching and approving a neat play from the side lines.



The Browns are what you might term late-in-life football fans, because, though long past the undergraduate period, they are extremely useful in the cheering section. Mr. Brown Jr. is on the varsity, and Mr. Brown Sr. and wife are proudly attending the big game of the season along with their friends, the Smiths. Between halves Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Smith grow reminiscent, as lovely ladies are wont to do. "Don't I remember that game," recalls Mrs. Brown, "and the party at the fraternity house! I wore a sheath gown and a big scoop hat with a willow plume, and Arthur got the orchestra to play 'Wait Till the Sun Shines Nellie' because it was my favorite, and I just thought I was the grandest thing!"

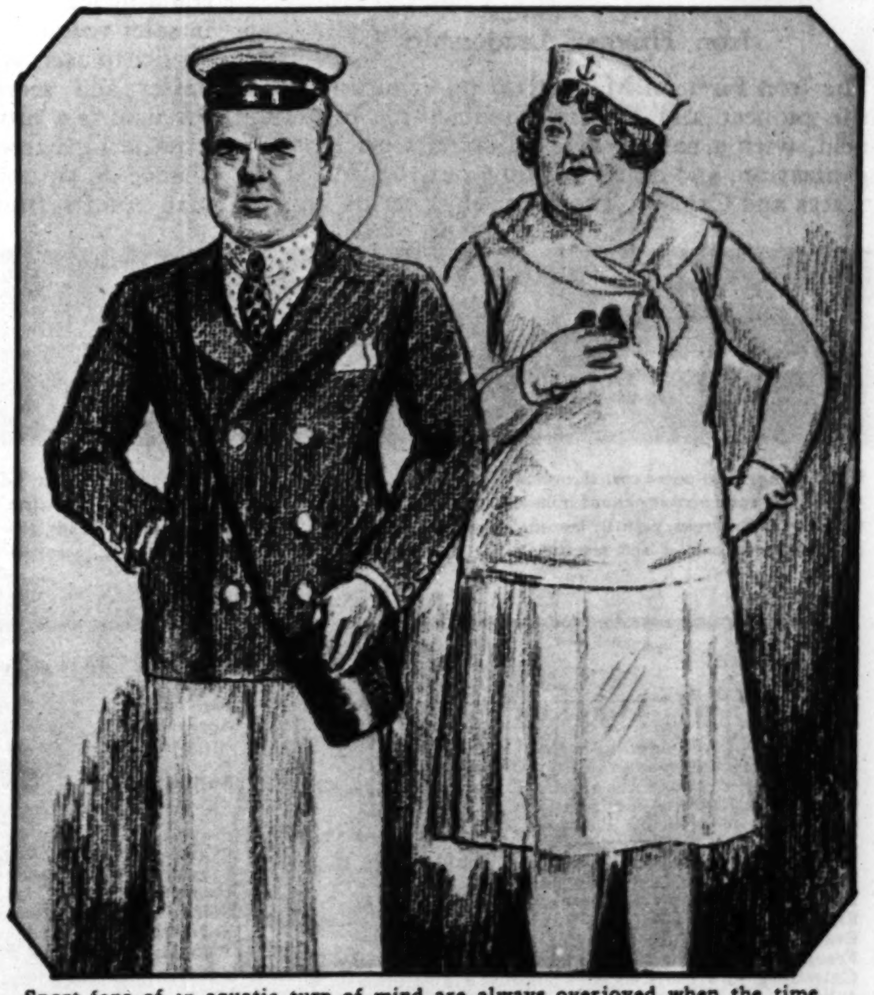


The pennant series fan. Nothing short of an earthquake or a flood will stop the hardy baseball enthusiast from recounting in minute detail all the fine points of yesterday's game. "Well, I guess it must have been about the middle of the seventh inning," he will confide to the ear of a friend who is trying to find out what American Garbage preferred did yesterday, "or maybe it was the sixth—anyway, Finberg slapped a grounder to McMulry and the poor dope muffed it! Say, the crowd went crazy!"



Tennis enthusiasts take the game very seriously and are awfully sensitive to slights, slurs or any inattention from the lay public. Tennis fans hate stupid questions and will wreak anything short of complete annihilation upon those who ask them. "Who," the unfortunate young man on the right has inquired (he is not a tennis enthusiast), "does the inviting before the woman's invitation doubles?" (The rest is silence.)

Visitors on a week-end party become great deck tennis fans—not because they like deck tennis (indeed, most week-end guests loathe the game), but because they are not strong enough mentally to combat their hostess. Hostesses in the country can't bear to see guests doing nothing but sit for long at a time, so they cry, "How about a nice game of deck tennis before lunch!" and so it goes.



Sport fans of an aquatic turn of mind are always overjoyed when the time of year for yacht racing comes along. Spectators who are new to the pastime should bear in mind that clothes are of the greatest importance, and one never shows up on the dock (or the jetty, or the wharf) in clothes that might do for the ballroom or business mart but are all wrong for boat travel. (The accompanying sketch will give you a pretty good idea of a last word in what to wear if invited on a friend's yacht. Of course you may never be asked again, but you will look nice.)

earns its users★39.44% per year on fuel savings alone...

What other investment will earn you half as much?

HIGH FUEL COSTS are unnecessary. An Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burner installed in your furnace or boiler will cut your fuel bills 15 to 50 per cent. Also, it will save labor costs, eliminate the smoke nuisance, maintain steady heat or boiler pressure, and increase plant or home heating efficiency.

The amazing truth is that Iron Fireman, replacing old-fashioned hand firing, or other costly methods of automatic heat, will quickly pay for itself from fuel savings alone!

Iron Fireman owners are the authority for this statement. A recent survey covering 392 industrial users, showed yearly fuel savings averaging 31.62 per cent—equivalent to an annual return of 39.44 per cent on the cost of their Iron Fireman. Fuel savings in residences, as reported by 102 owners, averaged 45.61 per cent, or a reduction of $90 a year in their fuel bills.

Savings such as these cannot be ignored! Why waste money on hand firing, or on other forms of automatic heat?

An Iron Fireman burns the cheaper sizes of coal that are impractical to use with hand firing. It burns less coal. By automatically feeding fuel to the fire from below (Iron Fireman's scientific principle of "forced underfiring") Iron Fireman gets the maximum of heat from every pound of coal. It makes a fire 500 degrees to 1000 degrees hotter than hand firing. There is no smoke. Heat or boiler pressure is held steady at any predetermined point. Iron Fireman is automatically controlled. Labor costs are slashed.

Iron Fireman Leadership

The Iron Fireman Manufacturing Company is the pioneer and largest manufacturer in its field, with a nation-wide sales and service organization, and dealers throughout the United States and Canada. The finest engineering and research organization in the industry devotes its time to studying the science and mechanics of combustion. The result is Iron Fireman's outstanding leadership in operation and performance, in sales volume, in financial stability, and in the service to users which Iron Fireman's nation-wide dealer and service organization renders. Iron Fireman is a proved success, with thousands of installations from coast to coast. Don't take a chance on an imitation. Don't expect Iron Fireman results from any other machine.

★ Iron Fireman cuts fuel costs. A recent survey of 392 users in 41 states and Canada showed average yearly fuel savings of 31.62 per cent after Iron Fireman was installed. This is equivalent to an average annual return of 39.44 per cent on the cost of their Iron Fireman. Over $5,000,000 will be saved this year by the thousands of Iron Fireman owners. This represents fuel savings only. Other savings equally great will come from reduced labor costs, elimination of the smoke nuisance, steady, even heat and power, and increased plant efficiency.

Read about Iron Fireman "forced underfiring" . . . Mail the Coupon

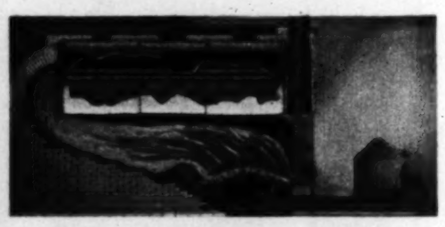
Write for booklet explaining the principle of non-agitated "forced underfiring." It tells, simply and clearly, how and why Iron Fireman will give you better heat or power for less money. Ask your Iron Fireman dealer to make a survey of your furnace or boiler room. His report will quickly show what an Iron Fireman can earn for you. Clip and mail the coupon below.

Hand firing. High priced coal thrown on top of the fire. Fuel waste from smoke and from coal that sifts through the grates, partially burned. Uneven boiler pressure. Constant labor required.



Iron Fireman. Cheaper fuel and less of it fed to the fire from below. No smoke. No fuel waste. Steady, even boiler pressure, automatically controlled. Labor reduced to a minimum.

Iron Fireman in the home gives the most economical and efficient automatic heating that money can buy. Reports from 102 representative home owners showed average yearly fuel savings of 45.61 per cent. In terms of money, these homes averaged $90 a year reduction in their fuel bills with Iron Fireman. In addition, they enjoyed the luxury and comfort of automatic heat from coal, the safe, dependable fuel.

MELLOWED A HUNDRED MILLION YEARS

While scaly monsters fought in PENNSYLVANIA

WHAT makes one motor oil higher in lubricating quality than another?

For one thing, the earth conditions in the geological age when the crude oil was formed. For another, the expertness of the refining process.

For these reasons the Sinclair Refining Company uses only the famous Bradford-Allegany District crude from the Pennsylvania field in its big, new Mobiline refinery at Wellsville, N. Y.—where Mobiline is triple-filtered, and the wax removed at 60° F. below zero—thus making it more uniform than most oils, and far less productive of carbon.

The Bradford-Allegany crude that goes into Sinclair Mobiline was one of the few crude oils formed in the Devonian Age—a period in earth's long history when conditions of heat, pressure and materials were nearest perfect for the forming of oil. And the crude has lain there mellowing and filtering for a hundred million years—long enough to filter out undesirable compounds—long enough to bring the crude to a point where its superior lubricating quality commands the highest price of all Pennsylvania grade crude oils!

Have the nearest Sinclair dealer change your oil to Sinclair Mobiline according to the Sinclair Law of Lubrication. Examine this Mobiline after long, hard driving. Note how it stands up—how it comes out of the crankcase almost as good as it went in. Note especially how little has been used up—positive, visible proof that this rich, Devonian oil stays to lubricate the last mile as well as the first!

3 FACE POWDER IDEA
GREAT BEAUTY DISCOVERY OF MODERN TIMES

A thrilling beauty discovery has been made! After much research, Peggy Mar n and other leading beauty experts have found that your skin belongs to one of three types—oily, dry, normal—and face powder must meet the particular needs of each type.

Now you can use a face powder made especially for you; for Plough has created three distinctive face powders—one for each type of skin.

Choose the face powder made just for you, and see how instantly it beautifies your complexion; how it lends silken texture and satin smoothness to your skin; how it brings a warmth of natural color to your cheeks.

FOR OILY SKIN—Choose Plough's "Incense of Flowers" Face Powder, heavy texture in the oval box, 75c.

FOR DRY SKIN—Choose Plough's "Favorite Bouquet" Face Powder, light texture in the square box, 30c.

FOR NORMAL SKIN—Choose Plough's "Exquisite" Face Powder, medium texture in round box, 50c.

Each Plough Face Powder comes in white, flesh, pink, brunette and sun-tan shades, and each is sensibly priced wherever beauty creations are sold.

Wise shoppers, who never sacrifice quality for price, yet who know real values, are proud of their smart economy when they adopt one of Plough's Face Powders as their own.

Hinds Cleansing Cream

A remarkable cleansing cream that actually changes from a solid to a liquid on contact with skin heat.

The moment you apply, it melts, penetrates and cleanses pores of dirt, dust, make-up.

This new cleansing cream liquefies from 2 to 7 times faster than any other popular priced liquefying or so-called "liquefying" cleansing cream. Chemists have proved this.

Hinds Toning Cleanser

Toning Cleanser brings you a new way of pore refining scientists have been working on for 5 years.

It's a way that not only refines pore texture, but does so in a remarkably short time.

You accomplish this by means of a liquid which is both a cleanser and a solvent. Hinds Toning Cleanser it is called.

Used after cleansing cream it removes all traces of grease, dirt, pore residue. Relieved of this residue pores shrink back to normal size.

Use as a daytime cleanser. Leaves skin vivid, glowing, young.

Hinds Texture Cream

It's a new-type skin softener.

A light delicate cream, you apply at night . . . it is utterly unlike "greasy" softening creams. Hence you retire with face smooth and lovely.

No need to smooth towel over pillow for fear of grease on linen.

Absorbed rapidly by skin, this scientifically compounded cream works through night, counteracting tight, drawn feeling of skin, scaliness, dryness.

Skin regains smooth, dewy texture of youth.

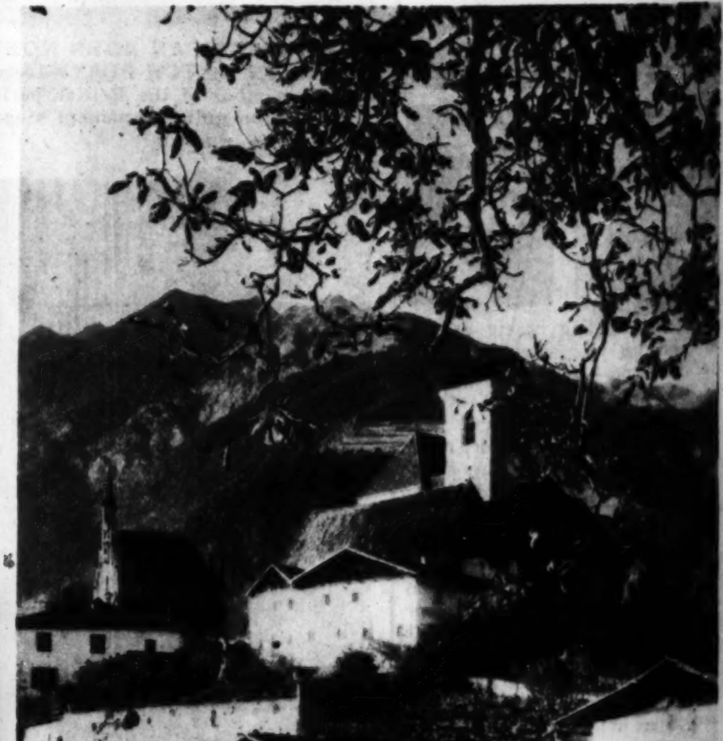
AMERICAN HEROES

GENERAL JACOB BROWN, a military prodigy of the War of 1812. On the editorial page of today's Tribune, in the main news section, Clifford Raymond writes of Brown, whom he rates with Andrew Jackson as "one of the fight'nest fighters the United States army ever knew."



ON ITALY'S NEW FRONTIERS—A view of quaint Alpine Merano, a south Tyrolian summer playground. In today's Drama section David Darrah, The Tribune's correspondent at Rome, writes of Italian problems in Merano since acquisition of the Tyrol from Austria.

This week marks the 21st ANNIVERSARY of Mrs. Snyder's home made candies ~

Mrs. Ora Snyder

TWENTY-ONE years ago, on October 7, 1909, Mrs. Snyder began making and selling "home made candies" in the rear of a little peanut shop on State street near Lake street. They were so wonderfully different from the ordinary candies of that day that they met with instant success. Year after year Chicagoans have turned in ever-increasing numbers to Mrs. Snyder's Home Made Candies, until today they rank first in the hearts of candy lovers who demand the VERY BEST. Mrs. Snyder on her 21st business anniversary cordially invites you to visit any of her eleven shops. If you will taste her candies you'll take home a box and celebrate with her this wonderful anniversary!

ANOTHER SHOP NOW OPEN

Mrs. Snyder's eleventh shop has just been opened in the great new Merchandise Mart. It is on the main floor, just across from Marshall Field's display room, accessible to thousands of people who cannot conveniently visit her ten Loop shops. Drop in tomorrow!

I can't make all the candy in the world, so I just make the best of it!
Mrs Snyder

175 VARIETIES

Candies for every occasion—every taste! No matter which kind of candy you like best, you'll find it at any of Mrs. Snyder's shops. Chocolates of every description . . . cream caramels with and without nuts . . . wonderful new health candies . . . hard and stick candies . . . marshmallows . . . nut covered pieces . . . variety without end. 175 kinds—and every piece so truly delicious and wholesome that you'll say they're the best candies you've ever tasted!

Today Mrs. Snyder personally supervises the making of her Home-Made Candies, just as she has done for 21 years, thus assuring constant maintenance of the highest standard of quality.

The JOYS of BEER

ARE NOT FORBIDDEN

They are at their best in this new-day brew

No beer of old was ever better than Atlas Special Brew. It is brewed by masters whose beer was always the leader in Chicago. It has the same age, same flavor, same quality and purity.

We go to extremes to give you something even better than the old. We cool the brew gradually, then filter it through white wool pulp. We treat the water, to give you the same mellow flavor as the famous beers of Europe. The brew is aged for months, then pasteurized after bottling.

Atlas Special Brew, in all you loved best, will bring the old days back.

What About Alcohol?

Of course, we evaporate most of the alcohol, but you would not know it if someone told you this was old reserve.

Alcohol was always a small factor in beer. What you liked was the tang and sparkle, the flavor and zest. You liked it as a help to digestion and an aid to sleep. All those helps and delights are at their best in Atlas Special Brew.

Cease Your Regrets

No need to miss a malt-and-hop brew that you loved. No need to turn to unripe "near-beers" or to rank home brews. They only spoil the memories of good beer.

If you will only insist on Atlas Special Brew; you will find it equal to the best of old—as a joy drink, a tonic and an aid to sleep. It is supplied by over 30,000 grocers, delicatessen stores and drug stores in Chicago and surrounding states. It costs only 15c a bottle, much less by the case of 24 bottles, so order some now at your store. Look for the green Atlas Special label on each bottle. Atlas Brewing Company, 2107 Blue Island Avenue, Chicago, Ill. See this glorious new rug! Walk on its deep, luxurious pile! Admire its priceless Oriental patterns—its lustrous, silky sheen! Thrill to its superb, rich, Persian colors. Then compare it with any $200 Oriental reproduction you have ever seen. . . . No longer need you deny yourself the splendor of Oriental rugs—that richness of color you have always wanted for your home. For here, in the Pershana Rug, you may realize your dreams. Not at forbidden prices of costly Orientals, but low factory prices within means of all.

The Pershana, a seamless rug, is manufactured completely in our $1,000,000 daylight factories. Only the finest, long fibred, selected wools are used, imported from far-off India, Persia and China. Not only in quality, however, have our artists reproduced those century-old Oriental masterpieces; with almost uncanny fidelity they have captured the same gleaming colors; the same sparkling sheen that dances and plays with the light; that feeling of Oriental luxury you have longed for. . . . The Pershana is made in all sizes.

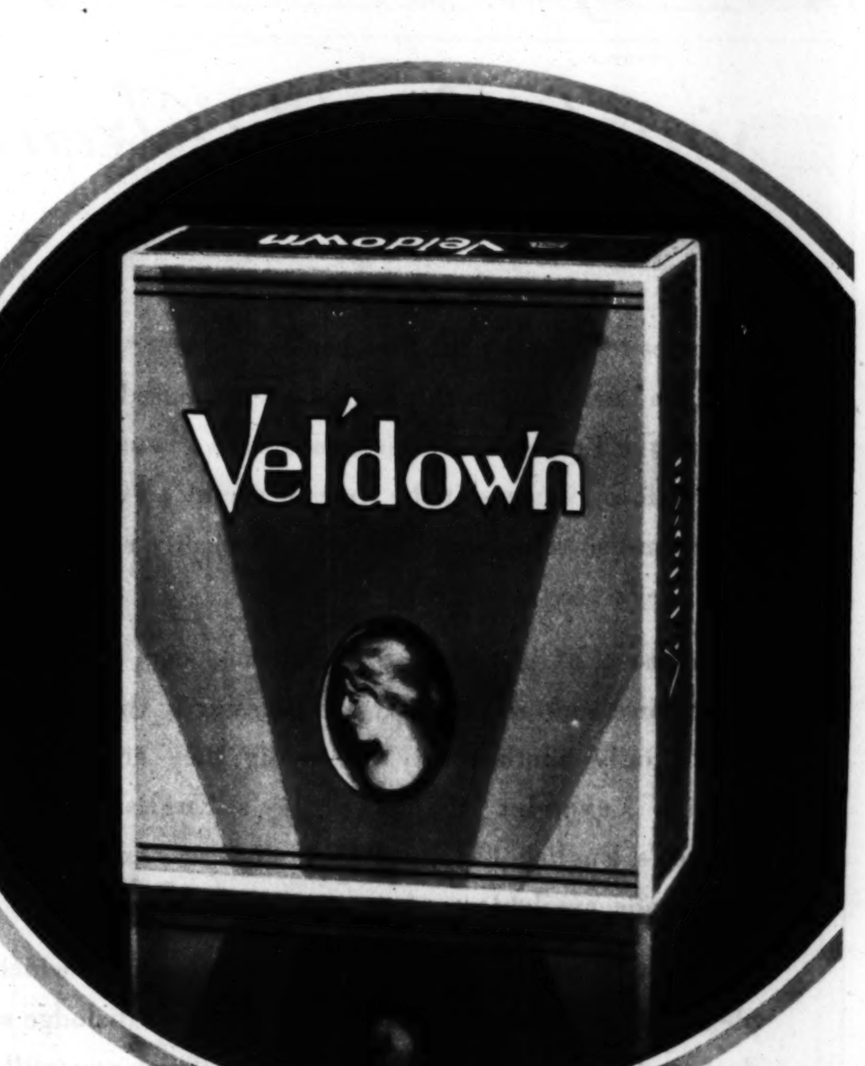
Here is a New and Remarkable Discovery



Banishes all chafing and all discomfort from Women's Hygiene

ACCEPT 40¢ Box Free NOTE COUPON

Pure RAYON cellulose filled —3 Times Longer Lasting

Banishes All Possibility of Irritation . . . 5 Times More Absorbent Than Other Sanitary Methods . . . Remains Effective Hours Longer

THE coupon at right is good for a full-size 40c package of the newest hygienic improvement of the day.

An entirely new kind of a sanitary pad, that cannot chafe or irritate.

A pad that remains effective HOURS LONGER than other sanitary methods.

A pad developed by one of the world's leading manufacturers in the RAYON industry.

Accept a box FREE and find out—before you buy—whether the claims made for it are justified.

Pay nothing. Just use the coupon below. We will see that you are given a full-size 40c package FREE.

What It Is

The product is the remarkable, new-type sanitary pad called VELDOWN. In the last few months, women by the tens of thousands have discarded other-type sanitary methods and adopted this superior creation.

The offer made here, of a 40c box free is purely an advertising method—a quick way to induce ALL women to try it. Records show that over 90% of the women who try this creation become regular customers. And thus justify this offer as good business.

In the interest of both the maker and the user, women are urged to accept this free box . . . a full-size box of 12 pads.

Banishes All Chafing; All Irritation

You will find that VELDOWN is an entirely different kind of sanitary pad (U. S. Patent No. 1702530) than any you have ever seen; made possible by a new invention. When you receive your box, break open one of the pads and examine it.

You will see that it is filled with indescribably soft, pure RAYON cellulose, not mere layers of crepe paper. You will see why it cannot chafe or irritate.

The box offered free will quickly prove this point to you.

Remains Effective Hours Longer!

This innovation also makes it 5 or more times more absorbent than other sanitary methods.

Thus it gives COMPLETE SAFETY and protection HOURS LONGER than other ways.

Consider what this means.

It is specially treated with a deodorant of great power—and thus ends even slightest danger of embarrassment. Discards, of course, easily as tissue.

Accept This Offer

Accept this offer. Accept 12 VELDOWN pads free to try. You'll never go back to less gentle, less efficient ways.

Clip the coupon. Mail it before you forget.

"BEAUTY LIKE THAT, AFTER YEARS OF THE TROPICAL SUN"

"The second curtain was down before I found her, but sure enough, it was Martie. She's flown from Cairo to the Cape since then, and hunted on the veldt (you must have read about it). You wouldn't believe it, Phil . . . beauty like that, after years of the tropical sun."— From the letters of an English traveler at home.

That Famous English Complexion is Guarded by one simple Beauty Treatment

SHE rides to hounds; she flies her own plane; she golfs in the cold, raw wind; she does all the things that are supposed to ruin feminine skins, and yet the Englishwoman is famed in two hemispheres for her glorious complexion. She hasn't the time to spend hours at her dressing-table, either, and so to preserve her radiant beauty she has settled upon one simple, effective treatment.

It consists of just three preparations: soap and cream and powder. To produce such results they are necessarily the finest obtainable. But that is only another way of saying they are Yardley's—Yardley's English Lavender Soap, Yardley's English Complexion Cream, Yardley's English Lavender Face Powder. And lately, all three have been made available to American women.

You will use the soap to begin the cleansing which English Complexion Cream will complete. The cream will dislodge all the imbedded dust and lift it gently to the surface. Then you will wipe away the accumulation with cotton moistened in Yardley's Cleansing Lotion. Allow a second layer to remain on all night, to nourish the skin. In the morning, use English Complexion Cream as a powder foundation. Smooth on a liberal coat, and wipe away the unabsorbed surplus with water and an ordinary face cloth. Then apply Yardley's English Lavender Face Powder to give your skin the final caressing touch of loveliness.

Many delightful Yardley toiletries are described in "Complexions with an English Accent." A copy is yours for the asking. Yardley & Co., Ltd., 33 Old Bond Street, London; 452 Fifth Avenue at Fortieth Street, New York City; also Toronto and Paris.

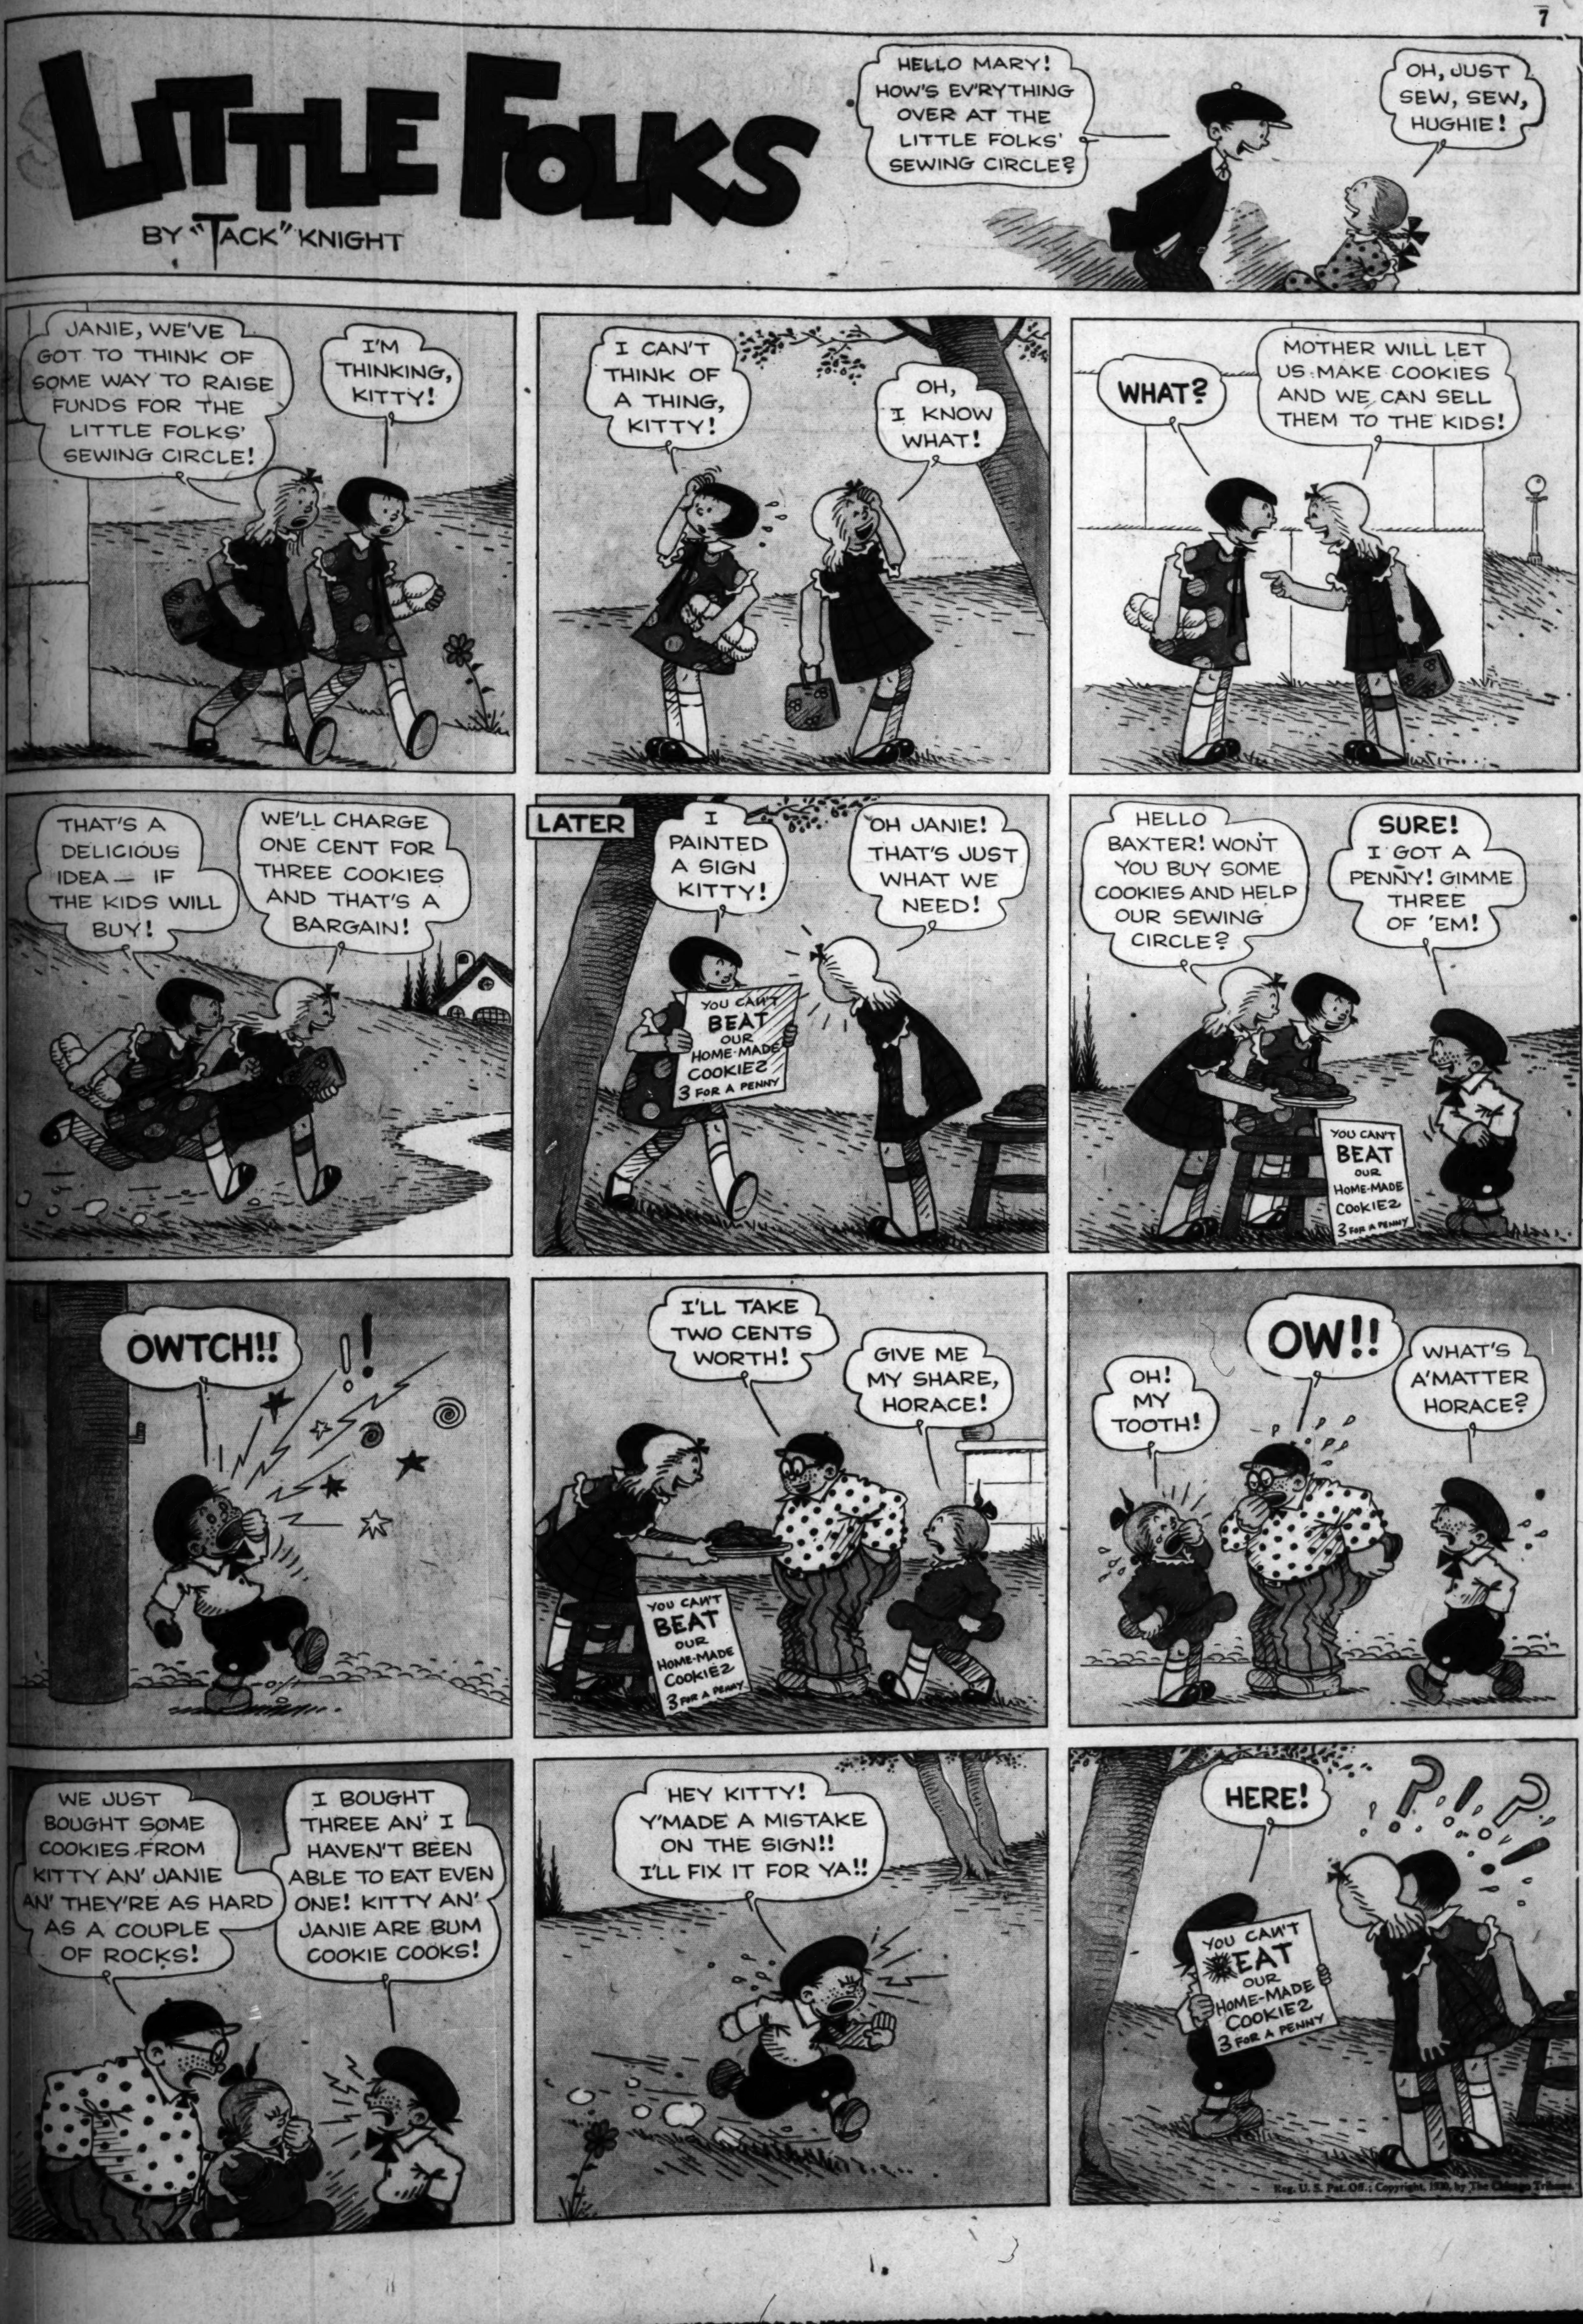
LITTLE FOLKS

BY "TACK" KNIGHT



HELLO MARY! HOW'S EV'RYTHING OVER AT THE LITTLE FOLKS' SEWING CIRCLE?
OH, JUST SEW, SEW, HUGHIE!
JANIE, WE'VE GOT TO THINK OF SOME WAY TO RAISE FUNDS FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS' SEWING CIRCLE!
I'M THINKING, KITTY!
I CAN'T THINK OF A THING, KITTY!
OH, I KNOW WHAT!
WHAT?
MOTHER WILL LET US MAKE COOKIES AND WE CAN SELL THEM TO THE KIDS!
THAT'S A DELICIOUS IDEA— IF THE KIDS WILL BUY!
WE'LL CHARGE ONE CENT FOR THREE COOKIES AND THAT'S A BARGAIN!
LATER
I PAINTED A SIGN KITTY!
OH JANIE! THAT'S JUST WHAT WE NEED!
YOU CAN'T BEAT OUR HOME-MADE COOKIEZ 3 FOR A PENNY
HELLO BAXTER! WON'T YOU BUY SOME COOKIES AND HELP OUR SEWING CIRCLE?
SURE! I GOT A PENNY! GIMME THREE OF 'EM!
YOU CAN'T BEAT OUR HOME-MADE COOKIEZ 3 FOR A PENNY OWTCH!!
I'LL TAKE TWO CENTS WORTH!
GIVE ME MY SHARE, HORACE!
YOU CAN'T BEAT OUR HOME-MADE COOKIEZ 3 FOR A PENNY
OH! MY TOOTH!
OW!!
WHAT'S A'MATTER HORACE?
WE JUST BOUGHT SOME COOKIES FROM KITTY AN' JANIE AN' THEY'RE AS HARD AS A COUPLE OF ROCKS!
I BOUGHT THREE AN' I HAVEN'T BEEN ABLE TO EAT EVEN ONE! KITTY AN' JANIE ARE BUM COOKIE COOKS!
HEY KITTY! Y'MADE A MISTAKE ON THE SIGN!! I'LL FIX IT FOR YA!!
HERE!
YOU CAN'T EAT OUR HOME-MADE COOKIEZ 3 FOR A PENNY
?!?

8 PAGES OF COMICS

GRAND-DADDY LONG-LEGS – SHOW ME WHICH WAY MY COWS HAVE GONE
HE'S POINTIN AT YOUR UNCLE WALT'S CALVES.
GASOLINE ALLEY
-King-
JIGGERS, SKEEZIX, LOOK OUT! IT'S A DRAGON FLY
WHAT OF IT? A DRAGON FLY DOESN'T SCARE ME
HE DOESN'T? HE'LL SEW UP YOUR EARS!
AW THAT'S ONLY A SUPERSTITION, SPUD. MY UNCLE WALT SAID SO.
WELL MY FATHER ALWAYS DODGES 'EM.
THAT'S JES LIKE BELIEVIN' THAT SOAKIN' HORSEHAIRS MAKES HAIR SNAKES.
WELL IT DOES. I KNOW A KID THAT TRIED IT.
SOMEBODY FOOLED HIM, BECAUSE MY UNCLE WALT SAID IT DOESN'T.
THERE'S A SPIDER DON'T STEP ON HIM IF YOU DON'T WANT RAIN. I'VE TRIED THAT ONE.
HOW DOES IT WORK – THE BIGGER THE SPIDER THE BIGGER THE RAIN?
SISSY SAYS IT ISN'T SO ABOUT A HOOP SNAKE TAKIN' HIS TAIL IN HIS MOUTH AN' ROLLIN' AWAY
NO, THAT'S A FAIRY TALE TOO
THEY SAY IF YOU LET A MOSQUITO FILL UP WITH BLOOD HE'LL GO OFF AN' DIE
I'VE TRIED IT AND PUT HIM UNDER A GLASS AN' NEXT DAY HE'S READY FOR MORE.
WHAT ABOUT A SNAKE IF YOU KILL HIM? HIS TAIL WILL WIGGLE TILL SUNDOWN.
MAYBE, BUT GLASS SNAKES DON'T GROW TOGETHER AGAIN AFTER YOU BUST EM.
IT'S BAD LUCK TO KILL A TOAD ISN'T IT, SPUD?
IT SURE IS I DID ONCE AN' HAD TO HAVE MY TONSILS OUT.
AN' IT WAS AFTER THAT I GOT A BOIL AN' LOST MY BEST HUNTIN' KNIFE.
JIGGERS, SKEEZIX! HONEY BEES!
THEY SAY IF YOU STOP AN' HOLD RIGHT STILL THEY WON'T STING YOU.
YOU TRY IT! NOBODY'S GOIN' TO FIND THAT OUT FROM ME.

BURNHAM
Beauty Culture
TRAINING
SUCCESS

BURNHAM graduates are constantly in demand at higher salaries in the better beauty shops throughout America. This is your assurance that BURNHAM training is the only sound basis for YOUR success in this most interesting and profitable profession. BURNHAM'S has secured positions for thousands of graduates, at no extra cost, and has helped thousands to open their own shops. BURNHAM'S can do the same for YOU.

SURPRISINGLY LOW TUITION.
CONVENIENT PAYMENT PLAN.

The tuition charges are very moderate—particularly so when you consider the increased earning power which your BURNHAM diploma will immediately enable you to command. Come in this week and let us explain how our convenient method of payment enables you to enroll NOW. There is no reason to delay. If employed days, keep your present position and prepare for a better one in our evening classes.

CONSIDER THESE FACTS:

BURNHAM'S

was established in 1871—OVER HALF A CENTURY AGO. It is the largest, oldest, most celebrated of all beauty culture schools in the world. BURNHAM'S also operates the largest retail beauty establishment. No other school can offer such a background. BURNHAM'S prestige, stability, and reputation are of the utmost value to the BURNHAM graduate throughout her entire business career.

BURNHAM'S

system of training is most modern. The vast experience and research work of BURNHAM'S enables this organization to originate and perfect the most successful methods known in beauty culture. However, a method of instruction at BURNHAM'S must not merely be NEW—it must be PERFECTED TO THE HIGHEST POINT before it is offered as part of the student's training.

BURNHAM'S

Will make you an expert in every phase of Beauty Culture — Facial Massage — Electrolysis — Permanent Waving—Finger and Water Waving—Hair Cutting—Hair Tinting—Manicuring—Making of Wigs, Toupees, and Hair Pieces — Adjustment of Hair Pieces—New Modes of Hair Dressing—Body Massage, etc. Burnham training enables you to pass any state board examination.

NEW CLASSES NOW FORMING

for the manufacture of hair goods in all new styles. This course cannot be obtained in any other school.

VISIT BURNHAM'S.

Be our guest. Talk to us about the wonderful opportunities for YOU in beauty culture. You'll be happy to know that BURNHAM'S, because it is so much apart from the average school, does not find it necessary to use "high pressure" selling methods to secure enrollments. You will enjoy your visit.

DAY OR EVENING CLASSES.

Come any day or Monday, Wednesday or Friday evenings until 9 o'clock. Our large classrooms, the most conveniently located in the city, have been newly decorated—everything is clean, fresh, and new. The very atmosphere typifies A NEW START FOR YOU. Ask for BURNHAM'S new beauty culture book. It's free.

Yau Can Master Languages Only in Small Classes

No matter what language you study—English, French, Spanish, German or Italian—the only way to insure mastery quickly and positively is to enroll for instruction where classes are small. The Berlitz School of Languages never has more than 10 students in any class; generally there are only 5. Thus you are insured individual instruction. That small classes conducted by native instructors are prerequisite to rapid progress, is attested by a constant and unparalleled record of success since 1878. You learn by the famous Berlitz Conversational Method—by talking the language and hearing it spoken—by active participation every minute of the class period. A free trial lesson will suggest the progress you may expect if you enroll here. Just write, call or telephone Harrison 0392 for an appointment. There is no obligation.

SALES EXECUTIVES

This advertisement is addressed to salesmen successful in any line who are interested in bettering their yearly income and anxious to become established in a business where achievement and results are limited only to the personal effort of the individual. An intensive campaign of national scope is planned for the purpose of reaching the individual investor, and we want serious-minded men of high caliber to follow the leads which we will supply. The sponsor for this advertisement is a well established investment house which is willing to arrange liberal compensation for the men who qualify and produce results. Particular attention is called to the fact that experience in the security business is not essential. However, we are naturally interested in talking with men familiar with this type of selling. The merchandise which we are bringing to the public is of the highest quality, and there is a real opportunity for the men who meet our requirements. Please write, stating experience, business associations, age, and nationality. Replies will be held in strict confidence. Our sales organization is aware of this advertisement. Address K S 434, Tribune.

Stratford Manor
520 Stratford-pl.

2-3 ROOMS.
$55 TO $90.

It has been said that the best furnished apartment homes must offer—first, an exterior structural attractiveness in a fine residential neighborhood; second, an interior pleasantness radiating a high standard of service; third, utmost privacy, delightful furnishings promising restful comfort and general appointments one can be proud of.

The Stratford gladly accepts the challenge because it is aware of the fact that it dovetails into the sum total of these specifications perfectly.

Location: In the exclusive Belmont Yacht Harbor District. Bus, Surface, and L transportation.

OUR SERVICE!

In the work of making it less arduous for folks to "discover" just the apartment they didn't believe existed, we have assembled and cross-compiled the records of hundreds of buildings. Surely your new apartment is among them. Simply make known your wants and our available apartment listing service will be extended to you. . . . Furnished and unfurnished apartments alike.

When you're ready to move, call on us. We'll gladly submit lists of our apartments in whichever community you choose to move to and in any rental range.

Yes, this service is cost-free!

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

YOU WILL BE MONEY AHEAD

IF YOU BUY YOUR USED CAR FROM CHICAGO'S MOST RELIABLE DEALER

STUDEBAKER SALES CO. IS THE BIGGEST AND MOST RELIABLE DEALER HANDLING USED CARS IN THIS CITY. WE BUILT UP OUR GREAT FOLLOWING BY MAINTAINING THE LOWEST PRICE SCALE IN THE MERCHANDISING OF USED CARS IN CHICAGO. IT WILL BE WORTH YOUR WHILE TO PERSONALLY INSPECT OUR BUYS BEFORE GOING ANY PLACE ELSE.

Ask about our famous PLEDGE that enables you to buy with positive used car protection. It is the most absolute safeguard for your auto investment today.

PACKARD TOURING. Single Six that's a sporty looking car. Was under the supervision of a trained chauffeur at all times, so it's in wonderful condition now. Many extras. Very good tires. $145.

BUICK SEDAN. This is an ideal car for the family. Sweet running motor. Many extras. Nice original finish and good upholstery. A real bargain at $165.

DODGE SEDAN. Here is a comfortable, serviceable car that looks and runs better than many autos selling for three times the price. Has shock absorbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. $175.

PAIGE SEDAN. It's a beauty and the motor runs smoothly and quietly. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $195.

ERSKINE SEDAN. 1929. Was oiled and greased every 500 miles, so it's in wonderful shape now. Appearance is very attractive and the equipment includes 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, etc. $395.

PEERLESS SEDAN. It's a late model, finished a beautiful blue. The mileage is low as this car was in storage for almost a year. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. The motor is excellent. $345.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1928 Commander that was owned by one of the executives of this company and checked over every morning by one of our service men. Has over $200 worth of extras on it. Expensive mohair upholstery and attractive original finish. $395.

MARMON SEDAN. Late model 8. It's the last word for sparkling performance and attractive appearance. Tires are very good and there is a wealth of extras. Will not remain long at $395.

DE SOTO COACH. 1929 that was used by the vice pres. of a department store only to drive him to the train in the morning. It was only driven a few thousand miles, when he decided he needed a larger car, so we are able to dispose of it at the ridiculously low price of $445.

WILLS-ST. CLAIRE ROADSTER. A late model with a comfortable rumble seat. The finish gleams and the upholstery looks like new. Good tires and the motor is 100%. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, hydraulic shock absorbers, bumpers, etc. Priced at $450 for quick sale.

STUTZ VICTORIA. 4 pass. that looks and runs absolutely like a new car. The attractive two tone green finish has not a mar on it and the upholstery shows no signs of wear. Equipped with spotlight, hydraulic shock absorbers, safety glass, etc. $545.

PONTIAC CONV. COUPE. 1929; painted an attractive color. This car is like new in every respect, for the finish, upholstery and tires do not show any signs of use. Comfortable rumble seat and hundreds of dollars' worth of extras. $495.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN. If you are in the market for a late model, you cannot get a better bargain than this car. Good looking finish, expensive upholstery that looks new. Tires have little mileage. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Special for $545.

LINCOLN SEDAN. This expensive car was owned by a wealthy family and given very careful attention. Has Judkins body, wire wheels, side mounts, 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, seat covers, shutter front, etc. It's a 7 pass. and will not remain long at $645.

CHRYSLER SEDAN. Model 75. This car is in marvelous condition today. Every feature of the upholstery, finish, tires and motor will please the most exacting buyer. 6 wire wheels, side mounts, snubbers, bumpers, etc. $745.

STUDEBAKER VICTORIA. 1929 Pres. 8 four pass. Coupe that we recommend as one of our very best buys. Shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Carries a 60 day free service guarantee. The appearance is unusually attractive. $785.

AUBURN SEDAN. One of the very latest convertible 8's. This Touring Sedan has wire wheels, side mounts, trunk, shock absorbers, Balcrank bumpers, etc. The upholstery is expensive brown Spanish leather. Has unusually low mileage. Sold at a very high price a few months ago. Now $795.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN. 1930 Pres. Str. 8 that was only driven a few thousand miles. It's in such good condition now that it carries a new car guarantee. Has wire wheels, fender wells, Houdaille shock absorbers, spotlight, and every essential extra. Chance to save $1,000 on a car that's almost brand new.

PIERCE-ARROW

OUR USED CARS WILL NOT REMAIN LONG AT OUR REDUCED PRICES

PIERCE-ARROWS. We have 5 late model 80 Pierce-Arrows which include all body types. These cars were owned by wealthy families and were given good attention. Each one is equipped with 4 wheel brakes, Houdaille shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc., and was carefully checked over by expert mechanics. Offered at $485 and up.

CADILLAC BROUGHAM. 1927, 2 dr. model 314B. Painted an attractive gray. This car has been run only a few thousand miles, so it will give new car satisfaction today. Every feature will please the most exacting buyer. Wealth of extras. $685. Also a Cadillac sedan, model 341, with wire wheels and side mounts. Like brand new, for $1,585.

LINCOLN ROADSTER. We sincerely believe that nowhere else could you find as fine a car as this at our low price. It's a late '28 model with wire wheels, fender wells, and rumble seat. The body is low slung and finished a beautiful two tone combination. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, shock absorbers, and many other expensive extras. Driven so little that the motor is actually only broken in. Will not remain long at $1,285.

PIERCE-ARROW 1929 brougham. One of the very latest models. Actually driven only a few thousand miles. This straight 8 is undoubtedly the handsomest and finest performing car in America. Today it is still in the original new condition. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, shock absorbers, shutter front, bumpers, front and ear, spare tire, etc. The motor is 100% and every feature of the appearance could not be improved. Can be obtained at $1,850, although it sold for almost $4,000 a short time ago.

PACKARD CLUB SEDAN. Late 1928 single six. If you are in the market for a late model you cannot get a better bargain than this car. It's the last word for sparkling performance and attractive appearance. Equipped with every essential extra. Offered at a substantial saving.

HUDSON SEDAN. 1929, 7 pass. Custombilt with 6 wire wheels, fender wells, driving light, and many other extras. The finish, upholstery and tires are in wonderful condition. $850.

WHO saw this accident?

A CAR careens madly down the street. Suddenly brakes screech. A limp body drops in a huddle before horrified pedestrians. There is a clash of gears and the car speeds away . . . Hardly a day goes by without its toll of accidents. A child runs in front of a truck. A speeder, racing through the lights, side-swipes a shopper. And on the following morning a little notice appears in the Tribune Want Ad Section. Will the witnesses please step forward?... The uses of want ads are strange and countless. A mother seeks a lost daughter. A farmer seeks a market for his honey. Ambitious youth offers himself and his savings. An antique collector hunts for a prized four poster. To each of these the Want Ad Section gives help quickly.

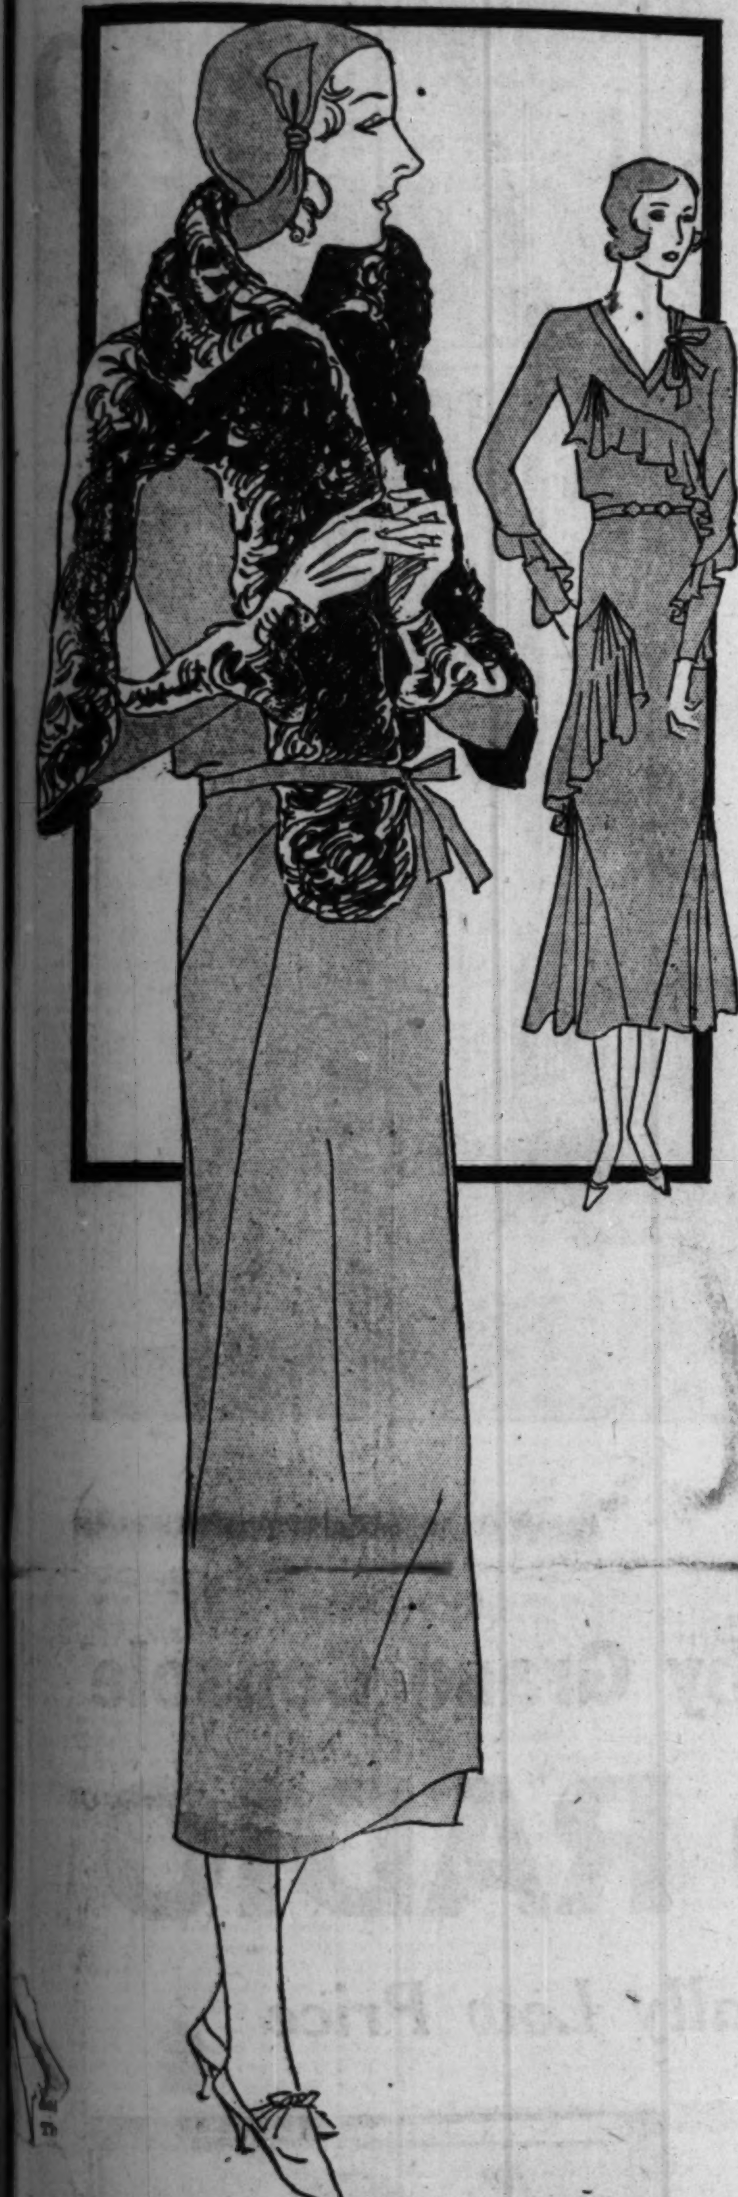
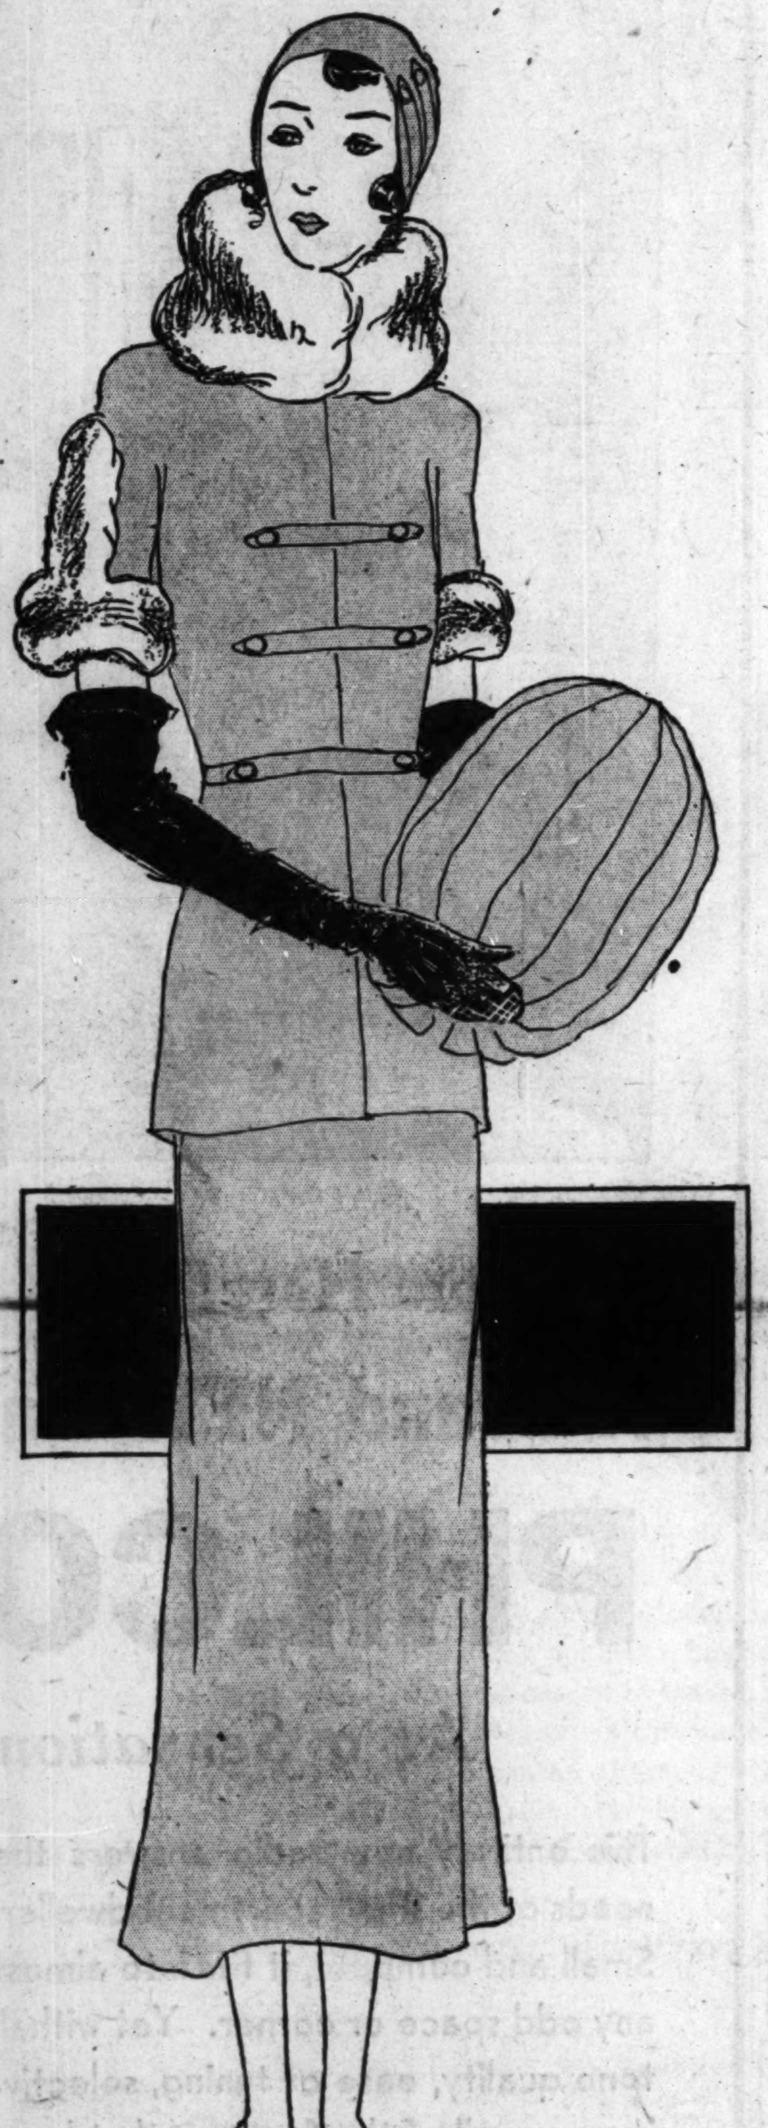
PERSONALITY MOLDS AUTUMN FASHIONS

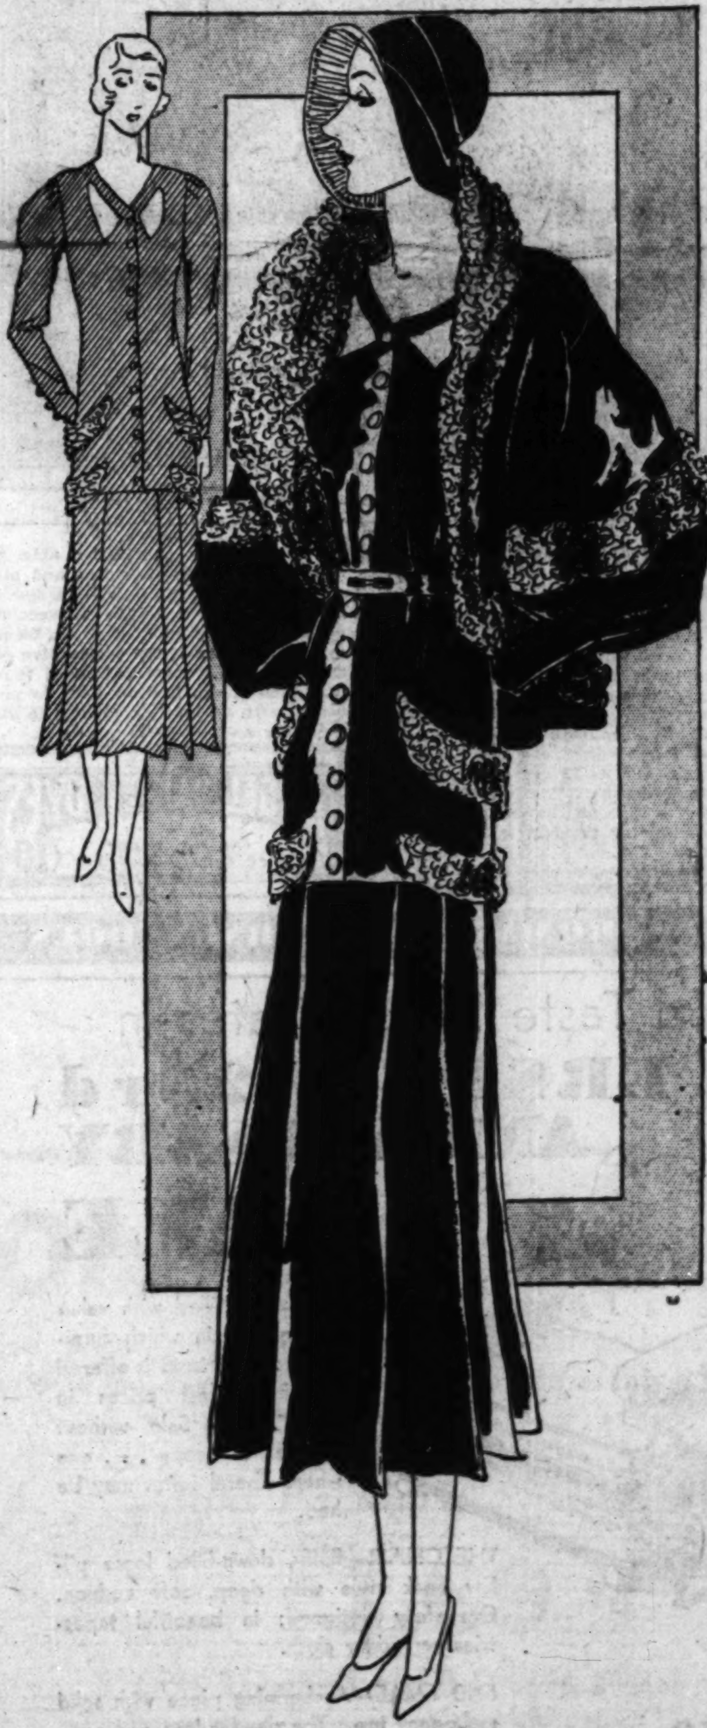
Stereotyped Styles Are Cast Aside in Favor of the More Attractive, Individual Modes That Make Madame a Charming Woman



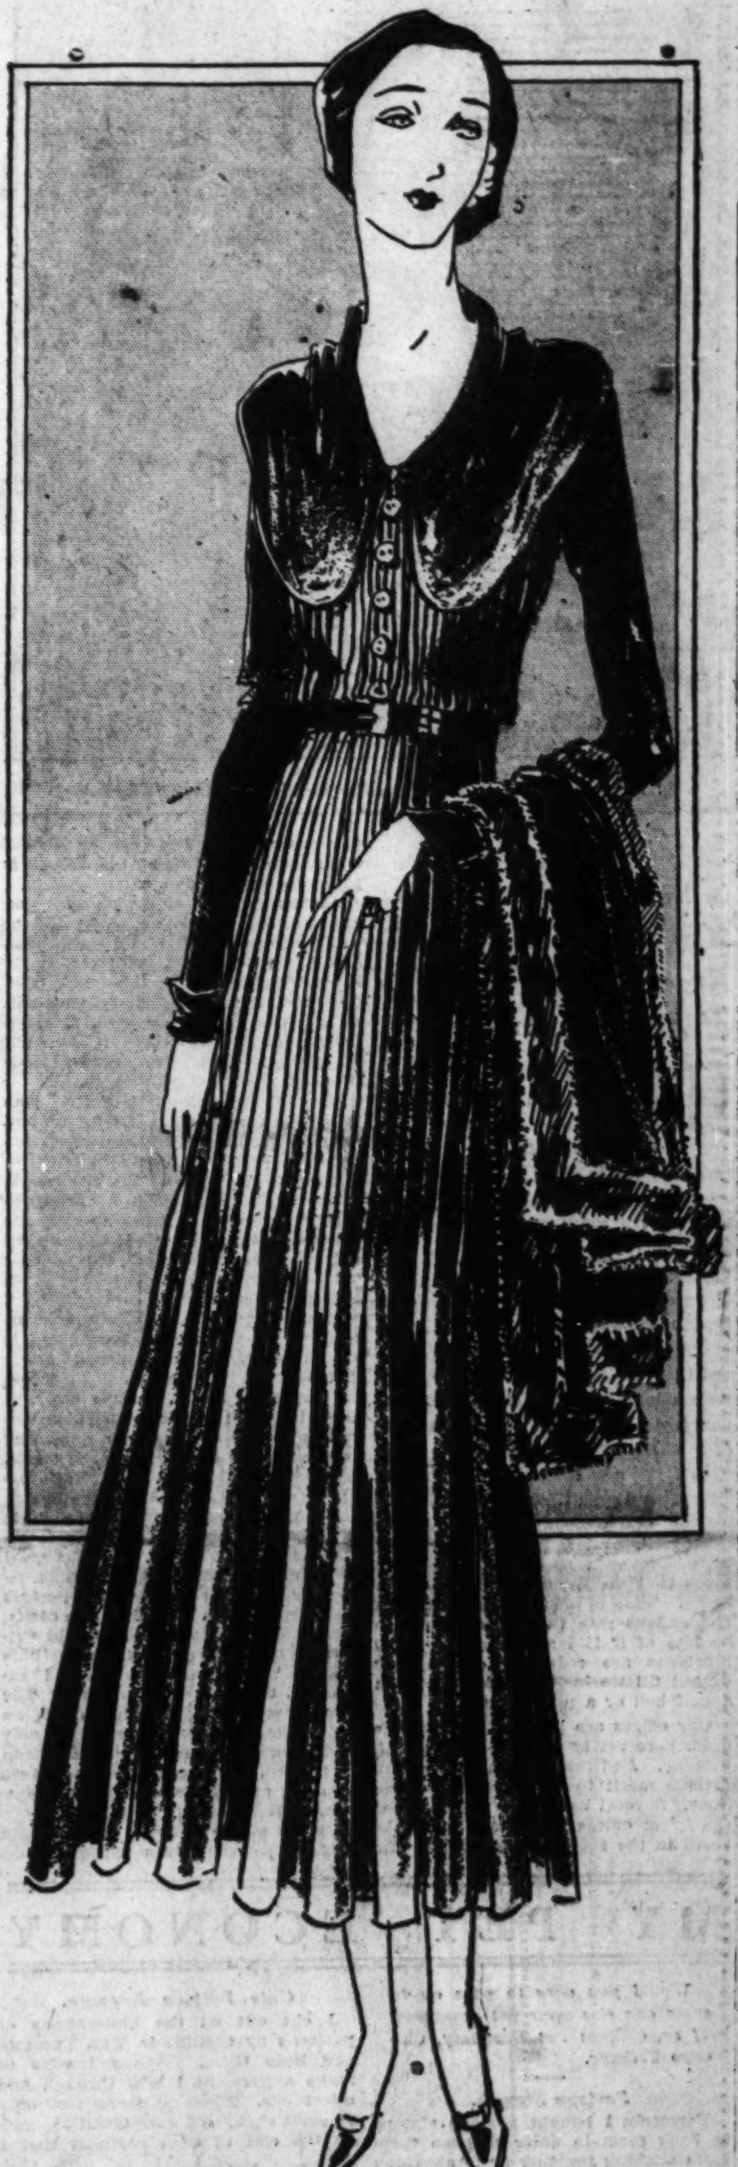
Lucien Lelong makes this distinguished ensemble of darkest brown velvet trimmed with brown caracul. The frock of delustered satin is dark brown to match.



This Suzanne Talbot suit of dark lapis blue wool velour has its short sleeved jacket trimmed with gray chinchilla. The barrel muff is of the blue wool velour. The long gloves are black antelope.



Madeleine makes this ensemble of black chiffon broadcloth and trims its tunic-blouse and its short dolman with midnight blue astrakhan.



Molyneux adapts his new French Revolution silhouette to daytime clothes in this plaited frock of fine black kasha. The belt is black leather and the buttons are black onyx. The shawl scarf is black kasha trimmed with bands of seal.

Paris Snapshots

¶ New evening necklaces are shaped like flat collars formed of many jeweled strands. When they are not diamonds, rubies, and emeralds, they are of delicately carved clear crystals and crystals colored like rubies, sapphires or emeralds.

¶ Molyneux's daytime collar necklets of black onyx and clear or silvered crystal are most effective with his dark gray or black and white costumes. Sometimes he makes belts to match.

¶ Silver kid slippers with dark beige or brown stockings are being sponsored for evening by Lelong, Regny, Patou and others.

¶ Ruffled chiffon handkerchiefs match flounced chiffon evening frocks. They are large enough to be worn as a fichu if you're chilly.

¶ Suede or leather shoes in the new off-black browns, reds, blues and greens are replacing black shoes for daytime wear.

¶ Schiaparelli's white or natural antelope blouses matching hand-sewn antelope slip-on gloves add chic to dark fall suits.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—(Special.)—Fashions this fall have changed from their age-old purpose of conforming femininity to the beauty pattern of the epoch. They are undergoing a personality-building campaign. French dressmakers who make these styles say that personality in clothes is woman's defiance of the machine age. They can't get the women who come to them to be dressed to conform to any standard pattern. No, ma'am. The ladies aren't taking their fashions in gross lots any more. They want clothes built to the measure of their personalities. More than that, they insist that these clothes add to their own special stock of personality, even the most practical of garments.

Some of the far-sighted pessimists claim that this bolt from the standard fashion fold is a sign of the fall of the Fashion Empire. Be that as it may, the new ideal of chic is one that is personal to each woman, and not a standard brand. It is similar to the masculine revolt against the Hercules idea in men's clothes, as demonstrated by the abandoning of padded and pinched coats and skin-tight trousers. Women, too, are accepting their own natural allotments in the way of figures, prizing this as part of their personalities, and playing it up, instead of trying to look like a lot of human sheep.

And the response of fashion creators to this feminine revolt? It is to throw down practically all the fixed barriers of style. There is, for instance, every length and type of coat in Paris fashions this season. You choose your own type, and if you don't know how to express yourself in your choice, it isn't the fault of Paris fashions. A woman wearing a long, simple coat with a waistline adjusted to her height and bulk is smart, and so is the lady who wears a brief, dolman jacket, and she who chooses a fitted and flaring wrap that reaches to the knees or thereabouts.

Your coat may be one length and your dress another. Your coat may be one color and your frock a dissimilar hue. The ensemble is assembled with the greatest liberty in these matters. You choose your colors according to how well they vibrate to your personality, and how neatly they fit your circumstances and environment. You do the same thing with the materials that make your clothes, and with the fur that trims your coat and the decoration of your dress.

Very short women will not be forced into long dresses that make them look like little girls dressed up, and therefore a bit grotesque. The sliding scale of skirt lengths takes care of this, and long and moderately short clothes are equally fashionable, so long as they increase the personal attractiveness of the wearer.

The other side of this allows the extremely tall girl to have her dresses adjusted to her height. She can have the moderation she needs, and wear her daytime clothes longer, though not long enough to give her the aspect of a giantess.

The stout lady is just as stylish as her slim sister, when she keeps her waistline moderately low, and wears her clothes flowing rather than fitted. She will avoid exaggerated sleeves, and choose the simple straight sleeve, while the slender girl with little avoirdupois will take to wider sleeves if they suit her clothes personality. The first will choose her materials from the army of flat fabrics that never look bulky, and the second can go in for fluffy, long-nap stuffs.

Furs are selected with the same care. Fox fur is not for the heavy woman, and the fabric-furs are not for the very, very thin. These fur trimmings that are necessary to the winter coat will also be cut to flatter the figure of the wearer. Applied in diagonal lines, they will make her look taller and slimmer. Horizontal bands will shorten the over-tall and widen the too-thin girl.

The ensemble from Lucien Lelong shown on this page will accentuate the dignified charm of the tall, statuesque woman. The coat is of velvet in the darkest possible shade of brown, trimmed with caracul to match. It's cut on straight, slender lines. The silky, flat fur forms a plastron that extends below the waistline in front and is cut in one with the collar, the shoulder yoke and the upper sleeves, giving the correct square-shouldered line, but without a suggestion of bulk. It also makes the irregular fur cuffs that finish the velvet under sleeves. A narrow belt of the velvet ties the coat snugly in place.

The frock shown on the small figure is of dark brown satin completely delustered, so that it has no shine at all—a surface that is a wizard for slenderizing. It is trimmed with a tricky spiral flounce that begins on the right side of the blouse and ends on the right side of the skirt, making you look about half your weight. The circular flounces at each side of the bottom of the skirt also help along this good work. The narrow satin belt is clasped by two enameled, diamond shaped slides.

The Suzanne Talbot suit shown today has personality plus! Though simple, it takes a bit of wearing, but it will give the right girl an air of naïvé sophistication that is utterly irresistible. It's of dark, lapis blue wool velour trimmed with chinchilla, a lovely fur that has returned to favor with the Paris couturiers this autumn. It makes the ruff collar and is applied to the short kimono sleeves as bands and points reaching nearly to the shoulder, intensifying their upper flared appearance.

The semi-fitted jacket buttons close in front by three graduated tabs that have a slightly military air. A barrel muff made of sections of the blue wool velour reinforces the warmth of the long black antelope gloves flaring at the top, that are a chic necessity with this costume. A tiny bonnet of wool velour is trimmed with buttoned tabs like those on the jacket.

The Madeleine ensemble just brimming over with individuality, must be worn by a pretty young thing with a touch of sauciness in her make-up. It's of black chiffon broadcloth trimmed with midnight blue astrakhan. That's an amusing trick of Madeleine's, by the way, trimming black costumes with colored furs. It has a plaited panel skirt; its leg-o-mutton sleeved tunic blouse, buttoned right up the front, gains extra originality from the cut-out double decollete in front and from double pockets—two on each hip—of the blue fur. The little dolman wrap is cut like a jacket in front and like a cape in back. It is completely surrounded with the blue astrakhan bands, which accentuate the dolman-cut of the sleeves. It is held on by a black patent leather belt that passes through two slits at the waistline in back. Marthe Regnier makes the hat of black felt lined with shirred blue velvet.

Another drawing shows one of the most beautiful creations of this varied fashion season. It shows how Molyneaux adapts his new Revolution silhouette to daytime clothes of perfect simplicity, but with that difference that produces 100 per cent chic. It's made of soft, fine black kasha and gets its line from its many unpressed plaits, stitched flat from the shoulders to about eight inches above the knees and then left free.

The blouse buttons up the front with black onyx buttons. The slightly high waistline is marked by a black leather belt. The round collar is draped into just a suggestion of the French Revolution belle's fichu and finished with a flat bow. Molyneaux makes a rectangular shawl scarf of the black kasha edged with bands of seal, another old fur favorite that has reappeared in the smartest circles. It's worn draped in front and fastened in back by a free end of the inner seal band.

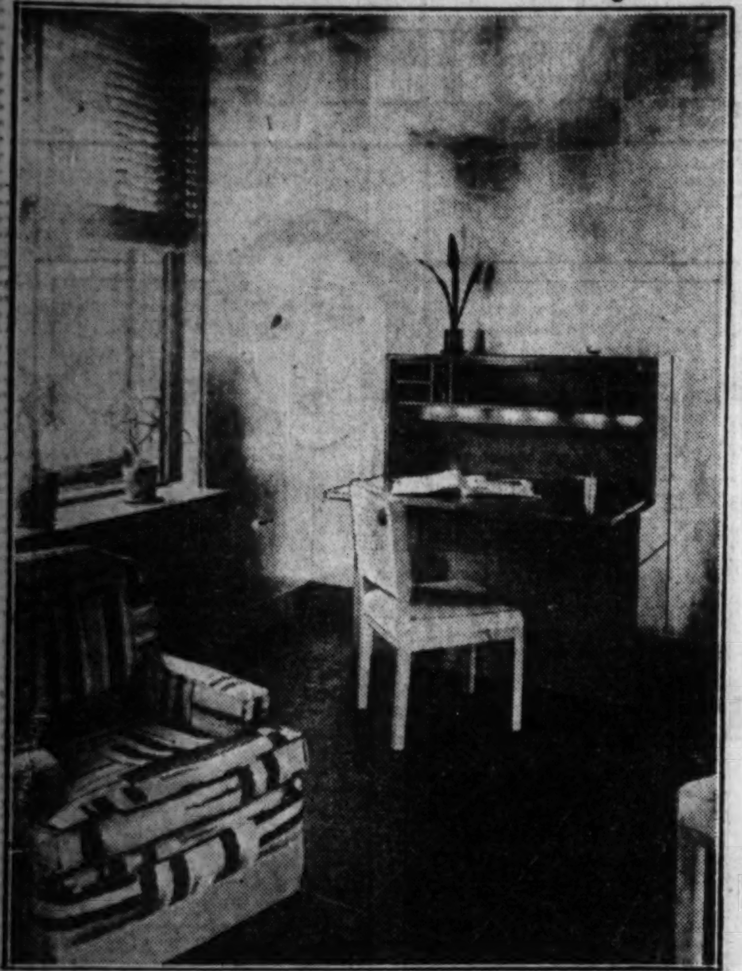
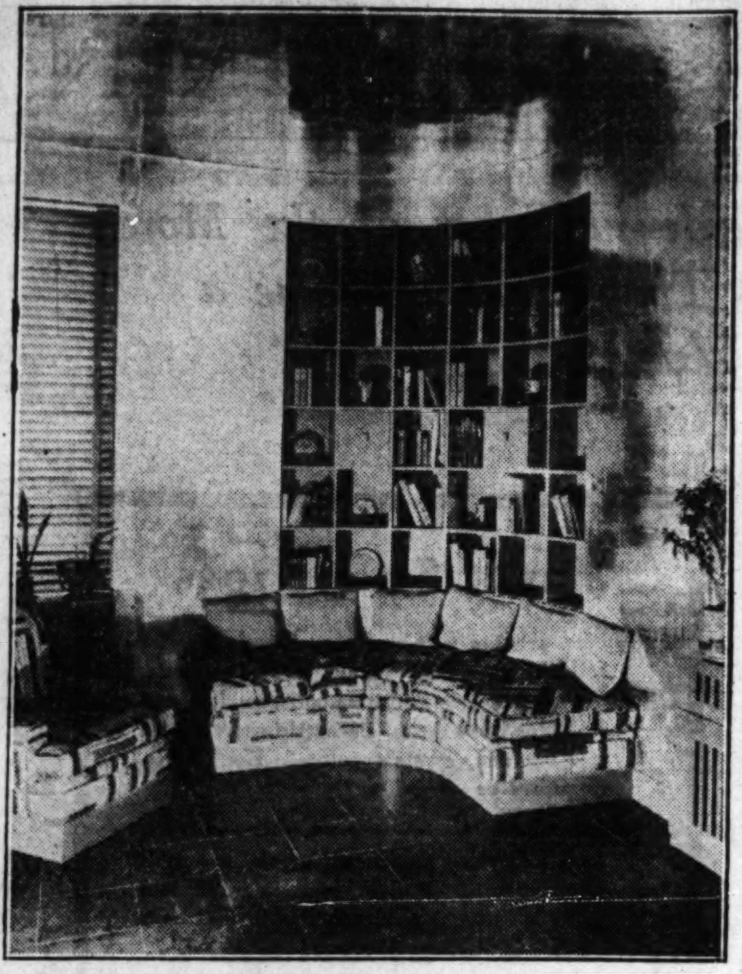
Modern Art in the Office

By Edith Weigle



A corner showing the Venetian blinds and a small desk.



An artistic corner for books and a leisure moment.

Light, Color and Simplicity are the Keynotes of the Beautiful Offices of Frances Hooper.

HOW would you like to return to the days when there were no elevators, and if you attended a business conference you had to climb five or six flights of stairs by foot? How would it seem to go back to the time when the pony express was the fastest means of conveying an important document from one part of the country to another? And how would you like to write everything longhand instead of using the time saving typewriter, or add up long columns of figures on your fingers instead of on the adding machine, or send the office boy around the block with a message instead of telephoning it? Would you like that? Neither should I.

We're living in a pretty clever, neat little age, with so many buttons to press that we hardly know where to begin. Time is being saved at such a tremendous rate that there ought to be lots of it laid away by now, and machines are reducing our energy output till we have to take it out on a golf ball or a polo pony.

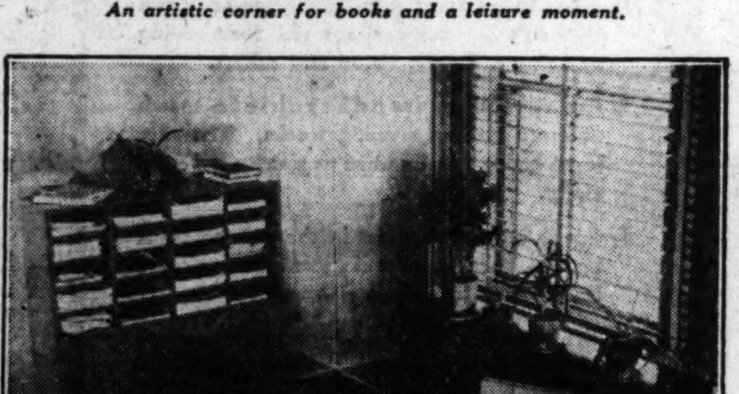
Our offices are keeping up with the swift pace set by modern business efficiency. And they are rapidly adding artistic merit to practical considerations. Several weeks ago a number of the finest offices in Chicago were pictured in the rotogravure section. Today one of these, the Frances Hooper office in the Wrigley building, is given in greater detail.

As you step out of the elevator you are greeted by lovely color—silver walls, black floor, a black bench with a bright orange cushioned seat, and a black Dutch door, the upper half open and disclosing stunning orange curtains, yards and yards of them, hanging straight to the floor. At the right is another black door which leads into the main reception room.

Here again is glorious color. The walls and ceiling are silver aluminum, put on in squares like tea-chest paper, the floor is a new composition, slightly rough and laid in squares. It is black. The furniture, the beautiful Venetian shades, the woodwork, the doors and the radiator covers are all painted a most unusual and artistic shade of turquoise blue, and the paint is flat, not enameled.

The curved book nook is a most attractive feature of this room, and is shown on this page. A modern fabric in turquoise, black, and dull gold covers the curved seat and the comfortable lounging chair. Cushions are soft turquoise and bright orange, and colorful pieces of pottery make bright accents in the shelves. The two square drawers in the shelves pull out, and from the bases come an automatic light for reading.

Howard L. Fisher, who designed these offices, planned the furniture especially for the advertising layouts which were to be viewed on the desks. Most desks are too small to hold outspread newspapers and large blue prints. These, made broad and expansive, are ideal in every way. The large, flat topped one shown has an automatic lighting fixture that may be hidden by the desk when a button is pushed. The other, smaller desk also has an unusual lighting arrangement just below the top shelf.



This desk was designed especially for advertising work.

Cactus plants and ivy in strikingly original pottery bowls especially designed for the room add charming notes of blue, orange, yellow, turquoise, and black.

Adjoining this apartment are Miss Hooper's office, the predominating color of which is bright yellow, and the main work room, which is done in soft orange with linen curtains of brown, tan, and beige, with an orange edging. Amusing imitation plants of gayly colored felt decorate the window sills. The desks are brown with flat tops of orange. There are small bulletin boards on the walls and built-in shelves for records, magazines, files, etc.

In the fascinating environment of these offices one should be able to conquer the world—business and otherwise. I think it would be a simple matter to sell coals to Newecastle against a background of silver, black, and orange, and if the prospective client once sinks down in one of those luxurious chairs I know he'll be possessed with an insatiable desire to buy anything and everything offered.

Would you care to pass on to some one else your pet economy? If so, address Pet Economy, Chicago Tribune.

Postage Stamps.

Formerly I bought postage stamps in book form in order to keep them from sticking together or to anything I might have in my purse. I now put them between two old kodak films, which I carry in an envelope in my purse, and in this manner save several cents in postage during the year. F. D. L.

Stockings.

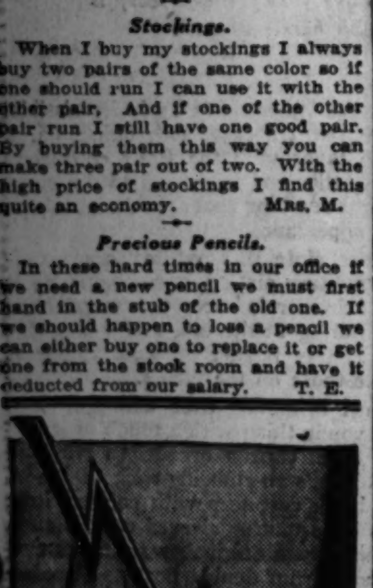
When I buy my stockings I always buy two pairs of the same color so if one should run I can use it with the other pair. And if one of the other pair run I still have one good pair. By buying them this way you can make three pair out of two. With the high price of stockings I find this quite an economy. MRS. M.

Precious Pencils.

In these hard times in our office if we need a new pencil we must first hand in the stub of the old one. If we should happen to lose a pencil we can either buy one to replace it or get one from the stock room and have it deducted from our salary. T. E.

Cuts Pattern Expense.

I cut out all the illustrations of patterns by Clotilde in THE TRIBUNE and keep them. When I wish to make a garment I look through and select one. These patterns cost only 10 cents each, so I save about 35 cents on the cost of each garment that I make. L. G.



Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin beneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

INFORMAL ENTERTAINING

By Helen Bartlett

Charming Parties Can Be Given in a Servantless Household if a Little Time and Forethought Are Spent on Their Preparation.

Miss Bartlett's two booklets, "Table Setting and Service for Luncheon" and "Table Setting and Service for Dinner," may be obtained by sending two stamped, addressed envelopes to this department. Address Helen Bartlett, Sunday Department, Chicago Tribune.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "As the mother of two daughters and one son, all in their teens, I am faced with a social problem that disturbs me a great deal. It is that of entertainment for them and their friends.

"It so happens that most of their companions are sons and daughters of families that, by this town's standards, are quite wealthy, and entertainment for their children, because of large establishments and servants and more or less unlimited expenditure of money is a comparatively simple matter. Sometimes I feel that poor taste is blatantly exhibited in this respect—the parties are too lavish or too sophisticated—but after all, that is not my affair.

Servantless Household.

"My concern is this: I have a house that is neither small nor large—eight good sized rooms. I do not keep a maid, but have a helper three or four days a week. At present our financial condition is such that I must be increasingly careful of expenses. However, my children have a fairly full social life and this, as you can understand, obligates them considerably. Naturally, I want them to have good times and good contacts, but I must find some way to permit them to entertain in return.

"Formal entertainment, for obvious reasons, is quite out of the question. But, what, by way of informal entertainment, can I inaugurate that will not be too much of a strain on our finances and the resources of our servantless household?"

I think there are several courses open to you if you'll work out a system. If your children are able to do things about the house with any sort of skill and grace the lack of a servant becomes negligible. If they aren't able to, it is not too late for them to learn and the learning will serve them will, socially and otherwise.

Lavishness of food, service or entertainment won't insure a successful party. The money problem isn't the greatest. What you want to do more than anything else is to make your home a pleasant haven for your children's friends—a comfortable, hospitable meeting place. More often than not this is accomplished by easy-going hospitality—or by what appears to be easy-going, but really is the result of effort and an inbred understanding of the very word.

If you make your home the sort of establishment where guests are welcome and at home you'll have made great strides in providing a good social background for your children.

For definite entertainments dinner parties, excepting very small ones, are quite out of the question. You'll have to confine yourself to more informal things. Of these, I suggest Sunday night suppers, or Sunday morning breakfasts and occasional teas. At such occasions as these a large number of guests may be accommodated with the least expense and effort. Food is simple, service can be buffet style and the general tone of the whole thing is casual and enjoyable.

The work of preparing and planning for these should be equally divided. Let your children aid in preparations beforehand and share in the straightening up afterwards. Let them divide the guest list amicably.

Sunday Night Suppers.

The Sunday night suppers are simple. They need be no more than two courses well prepared and served. Cold meats, hot biscuits with honey, a bowl of salad, and a dessert with coffee is entirely acceptable. In cold weather one good hot dish is almost a necessity. This can be a generous casserole of spaghetti, fish (creamed tuna, shrimps à la Newburg, etc.), or a meat dish, with a crisp salad and some form of bread—hot biscuits, cheese sticks, or whatever seems most appropriate.

Desserts can be of the sort that may be prepared the day before, or if you have an electric ice box, the heavenly squashy frozen sort young people love. In the winter time there can be hot coffee or chocolate in abundance; in the summer iced drinks will be more popular.

Buffet Style.

By far the best method of service for this kind of party is the buffet style. Put one daughter at the head of the table behind the percolator and an array of cups and saucers and spoons, but let service end there. On your buffet you can have the necessary china and linen neatly stacked up. On the table have the food in platters or trays, as attractively garnished as possible. Here, also, lay out rows of forks and spoons. The guests help themselves to a plate and napkin, then approach the food, select what they want, transfer it with a serving spoon to their plates, pick up their silver, and then find a place—maybe in the dining room, maybe somewhere else—where they may eat in comfort. When ready they can come back to the table for coffee or tea, dispensed by you or one of your daughters and handed to them already creamed or sweetened according to their expressed wishes.

Nothing could be more informal or more simple. If there are hot biscuits they are split and buttered before they are placed on the table, so as to eliminate fuss. The dough may have been prepared hours beforehand and whisked into the oven about twenty minutes before supper is placed on the table.

As many as fifteen or twenty can be easily and inexpensively entertained in this fashion.

Breakfasts Are Fun.

Breakfasts are great fun, but they are a bit more trouble and require more food. Buffet breakfasts, somehow, are not as successful as sit-down ones and this fact must, in a household like yours, cut down the number of guests. But breakfast for eight or ten is easy if you and your children are deft. One can be appointed to the table setting and service, another can be cook. The menus should be selected with an eye to the mechanics of service. For instance, a good sized platter of bacon and eggs, or sausages and eggs, can be passed from one to the other. One person at the table can be guardian of the toaster, another can be appointed to the percolator post. Pancakes for a large crowd would be a poor choice, although some deft hostesses can do marvels with a waffle iron right at the table.

The usual Sunday morning breakfast hour is eleven or twelve o'clock. The supply of food should be generous, and of course there should be quantities and quantities of the great American beverage.

It seems to me that you could leave the entertainment problem almost entirely in the hands of your daughters; they must know and understand the tastes of their companions, and putting them on their own resources should bring excellent results of effort and accomplishment. It is good training for girls, entirely aside from the fact that their sense of responsibility, once aroused, may bring about the most satisfactory results.

Answers to Etiquette Questions.

"In sending out wedding announcements does the inner envelope bear the name and address of the persons to whom they are sent just as the outer envelope does, or should it be left blank?

"And when acknowledging wedding gifts, what sort of note should I write to those friends of my husband with whom I am unacquainted? Would you give me a little sample note?

"B. K."

The outer envelope is addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, with the address written just below it. The inner envelope has "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" written across it, with no address.

In your notes of thanks you should mention the gift specifically. This would do as a model for notes:

"Dear Miss Jones:

"I am sure there never was a handsomer little clock than the one you and Mr. Smith presented to us. Jack joins me in assuring you of our gratitude and requesting that you both come some time soon to see it in its place of honor in our new house.

"Sincerely,

"HELEN MARSHALL JAMES."

How to Choose Powder

By Antoinette Donnelly

Greater Skill Is Needed in Mixing Shades, Now Hats Are Worn off the Face and Complexions are Emphasized.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—With hats worn back off the face, depending only on a few fluffs of hair to relieve the severity, it is to be presumed that complexions this fall and winter are going to be subjected to trying tests.

There will have to be unusual care in putting on the paint and powder. With no brim, an exposed brow and a subsequent projection of the facial features which occurs with the back drop chapeau, the so-called art of makeup is going to be judged on its individual merit and demerit.

It's always an interesting topic—makeup—and the most widely practiced of the beautifying arts. With varying success, however. There are grand jobs, stunning, fair, and terrible to be observed in a day's galavanting. Some women have the instinctive "feel" of the becoming thing in makeup and a natural skill in its application. Some have made such a conscientious study of it that they pass the most penetrating analysis. Some acquire a fair success, and a large group still paint and powder with an obviously amateur hand.

Advice by Beauty Expert.

In an almost encyclopedic volume touching on every phase of the subject closest to woman's heart, "The Art of Feminine Beauty" [Horace Liveright] Helena Rubinstein indites a caution in connection with the older woman and her makeup.

An attitude regarded as rather revolutionary is held by the internationally known authority on beauty. "I approve of the younger woman using makeup more lavishly than the older," she writes. "Please understand that I am not advocating that she overdo. But it is my opinion that a vivid makeup looks bright on a young face, whereas on an older one it not only does not conceal age, but actually accentuates it. It emphasizes whatever hard lines are in the face."

The caution is particularly apropos in face of the new millinery trend, which as already said, exposes every line and shadow, pucker and sag.

A point not frequently enough emphasized, perhaps, about the use of powder on oily skins is called to our attention in the volume on beauty. A heavy powder is the usual choice, the theory being that a fine powder will not stay on. Fine powders, our authority states, cling just as closely as heavy ones if they have the property of adherence. And they are especially necessary for oily skins, which usually have a tendency to enlarged pores, a condition which a heavy powder will aggravate.

The dry skin, on the contrary, needs a powder made on a proper cream base so that it will not dry out the moisture the skin possesses.

Dark Powders Popular.

Only a woman with a dead white camelia-like skin can use white powder and, curiously enough, a few women who have clear and true "olive" skins can use white powder, especially in the evening, when it gives the loveliest and softest effect.

Many changes in popular powder tones have come and gone in the author's thirty years' experience, but the last few years in Paris, Vienna and Rome she observes a strong preference for the darker tones in powder, a preference that is extended to America. The chic Europeans chose these tones originally because they suggest health and outdoors and also because they bring out the whiteness of the teeth.

In using powder this phase of accentuating the whiteness of the teeth has not been stressed enough. Women have been told to watch for this with lipstick purchasing—but not about the deleterious effect on the teeth's own color with an uncomplimentary powder shade.

"If you wish to use a powder fairer than your skin, do so only for evening," we are advised. "Have a second powder for the daytime, which either matches the skin or is fashionably darker. And remember that too thick a coating of powder is ageing."

A few general rules for matching powders and complexions are subscribed to by Mme. Rubinstein:

"The average complexion requires a cream powder; the older woman a creamy pink shade, the so-called 'natural' shade. A blonde should take a creamy natural; a brunette requires a rachel, or a mauresque, and can sometimes use a deep cream with stunning effect. A sallow complexion requires a pinky natural. A very flushed, pink face needs a greenish or mauve. The deeper ochre tints go well with olive or sunburned skins, but may also be used by those whose complexions are too pale, that is, when there is too much of a contrast between the color of the face and that of the hair."

Orange for the Pale.

An orange tinted powder is suggested for those who are too pale and have sunburnt hair. The pale blue and green powders are only to be used under brilliant electric illumination, to obtain special effects with certain costumes. Mauve is used to produce a pronounced pallor in the evening or to tone down a ruddy, windblown complexion. This powder is more popular in England than here. Blondes can use mauve when their coloring is too uniform, with a tendency to insipidity—not enough contrast between the color of the face and that of the hair. Certain types of brunettes can wear mauve mixed with natural, with charming effect.

The ideal way is to do as the Frenchwoman does. For twenty years back she has been used to buying two and three boxes of powder and mixing them herself to suit her gown, her preference and the occasion. She would never allow a girl behind the counter to mix powders for her. If your eye is artistically keen you can learn to do this quickly at home; in any case it can be trained with time.

How to Apply Powder.

Pushing the puff down into the powder and then slapping it on the face nonchalantly is the wrong thing to do. Time has to be taken to put powder on at home, our authority insists, compact use to be construed only for the "pick-me-up" occasions during the day. The right way to put on powder is to dip a cotton ball or lamb's wool puff into the powder, shaking off the coarser particles which will occur even in the finest. Then begin to apply it low down on the neck and work up toward the chin and from there to the cheeks, nose and forehead, pressing the powder on firmly and carefully.

When you have a thick coating all over the face, begin to tone it down, ending with a smoothing of the skin by the finger tips, especially in the neck and the crannies around nose and eyes. The last indispensable touch is to brush all powder out of the eyebrows and lashes with your small eye brush.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown

Warm Clothing That You and Your Family No Longer Need Will Do Much to Alleviate the Cold Weather Suffering of Others.

PEOPLE who live in warm, comfortable homes equipped with modern heating plants to be turned on at the first suggestion of cool weather and those whose wardrobes include the proper kind of clothing for every change of temperature cannot realize that autumn weather is a time of suffering for any one. You do know, however, how draughty your own apartment or house can be at this time of the year and if there isn't a cheerful log fire blazing in the grate or a bit of heat emanating from the furnace one cannot be entirely comfortable.

And for out of doors there are the woolen dresses and tweed suits, top coats and fall wraps that make this the delightful, invigorating season that it is. But can you imagine enjoying it if you were wearing midsummer garments that kept you in a constant state of chill? Or living in a draughty, thin walled and damp place around which the October wind whistled while cold blasts of air seeped in through cracks and openings in faulty windows and doors?

No, if you haven't experienced this lack of sufficient clothing and do not know the discomfort of an unheated house, you can't imagine just what such conditions mean. But they do exist and they are conditions you can help to improve with not a great deal of trouble on your part. You can give any warm or moderately heavy garments which you are planning to discard; blankets and quilts, too worn for use in your home, could be mended and washed to protect some sleeper from the night cold; heating stoves you no longer use but for some reason or other are storing in your attic or basement would remove the damp and chill from uncomfortable rooms; draperies help enormously to keep out draughts, and rugs do their bit in contributing to snugness.

I doubt that there's a household without one of these articles lying about unused and I know that there are hundreds of families who would be happy to have them. If you'll take inventory and let me know what you can give in this comfort campaign I shall see that your gift is placed where it will do much good and will bring great happiness.

Blouse Patterns Needed.

"I wonder if your readers have any patterns for boys' blouses. I have three young sons who keep me busy making shirts for them, and if I had patterns it would be much easier. They wear neck sizes 12½, 13 and 14. MRS. V. C."

I am sure there are other women with growing sons to sew for, and perhaps one of these will help Mrs. V. C. by giving her the patterns she discards and any other helpful information about assembling boys' blouses.

ENVY. IS A SILLY PASTIME

It Drives Away Old Friends, Keeps One from Winning New, and Makes Life Just Generally Miserable.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

LOOKING a bad disposition in the face and calling it by its right name is not a popular pastime. Yet it can be done, as one who signs herself "Bad Disposition" relates:

"I have been married just about one year and I find I am perfectly miserable. The ugly part of it is that it is my own fault," the honest one reports. "I seem to be cranky at the wrong time. When my husband is entertaining his friends or our friends are present I say something which makes people want to steer clear of me. I'm so envious that I always begrudge others what they have.

"After our company is gone, I relent. My husband usually reprimands me and he is right. I simply can't curb myself of saying the wrong things at the wrong time. My husband tells me that I embarrass him and that I am driving away his oldest friends with my stupid remarks—and he's right. I'd like to have my friends and my husband's like me, but at the rate I am going and my stubborn attitude we soon won't have any friends to insult.

"I should be happy, for we have lovely home and my husband is awfully nice."

Fault Not Readily Admitted.

I'll wager that if all the sinners extant could sit down and put their faults on paper with equal candor we would soon be in for that long dreamed Utopia due the world some day. As a matter of fact, I'll wager that the disposition involved in the missive has already undergone improvement.

It is the people who refuse to admit they have bad dispositions that give their friends, relatives, tradesmen, and every one contacted long periods of abuse. The other fellow is always wrong. As was said about one born antagonizer: "When she broke a commandment the commandment was all wrong."

But to get back to the envy that gnaws at the innards when the bitter word clings to the tongue, that is a disease that doesn't grow in a minute. It has been in the bones for years. It is taken out of small children lucky enough to have the right parental guidance. Some unfortunately achieve maturity without the instinct curbed and their way is a hard one indeed. An envious disposition can make life a living hell.

It happens times without number in family relationships, such as between two sisters, or a woman and her sister-in-law. One acquires a possession for herself or for her children and the relative is burned up inside until she or her young can flaunt a thing of equal value. If it were merely the struggle to get the possession, it would not matter, but there's so much bitterness until the envied thing is possessed that the fun is all gone out of its ownership, and a whole train of hurt feelings is involved.

Happiness Is Relative.

Maturity is kind in that it does carry the ability to correct faults such as jealousy and envy, that have been long in breeding. With the vision that ensues in contact with life and people and looking upon the scene with mature eyes, it is a dull ninny, indeed, who cannot see how relative happiness is. Or, more to the point today, how absolutely it depends upon the disposition.

A bit of gossip was told me the other day by a woman in close relationship with a certain individual of considerable press exploitation and whom people are commonly heard to quote as a "lucky one." There is beauty of a sort there, money for every living indulgence, acclaim of a position for companionship in those solitary hours to which even the most colorful life has to submit. The gossip had to do with an almost maniacal exhibition of envy for a coming fair and colorful rival.

"A nasty one inside," was the verdict of the woman in close relationship, "and the most unhappy female it's ever been my misfortune to meet."

There's only one type of individual we may envy with justification. That is, the man or woman who can take life with such placidity as still admits of progress but who can look at his or her blessings with an indulgent smile. Upon this group the world depends for balance. And, happily, there are quite a number to be found even in our chaotic days of the poor wanting what the rich have and the rich wanting what the richer have, and the latter wanting Gods-knows-what.

Healthy in Small Doses.

A certain amount of discontent with what one has is necessary to progress. It would be neither well nor healthy for a bride of a year, say, to forbid herself to dream of the day when she would have the "perfect" home; nor would it be well or her husband's success not to be inspired by the discontent that furthers ambition. But it is one thing to go after the blessings of the world in a wholesome, healthy frame of mind and body and quite another to poison one's mind and delete one's energy envying what the other fellow has already earned.

When you get to know life and people a bit more intimately you must conclude that envy is a silly pastime. The other fellow's lot is really not so envious as it seems. While you are being burned up over his luck, he may be in the same mental condition over some one else's good fortune, or even over yours, as it often turns out.

Anyway there's no cause for saying biting things to people that you think are more fortunate. With a lovely home and an awfully nice husband you should be the object of envy, if any one should be. You draw two out of the three great life prizes for women—a home, husband, and children. Getting this ought to clear the mind of envious thoughts and the tongue of aspish comment.

The College Girl's Room

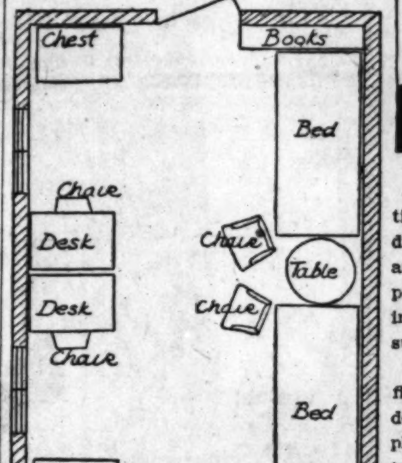
An attractive room for two school girls.

THE air is filled, these days, with the importance of young people going to school and college. Their wardrobes are complete, their smart luggage is ready to start forth toward new destinations. Railroad stations are filled with excited crowds, boarding trains and waving frantic farewells to those who stay behind. Then arrivals, introductions registrations, and the acceptance of a new routine.

Important to their happiness and their success in studying are the rooms the young intellectuals are to occupy during the year. Girls, especially, are often strongly influenced by their surroundings. How much more contented they will be if their own rooms, their temporary homes, are comfortable, restful, and attractive. A restful, quiet quality is conducive to level headed studying, and an attractive appearance leads happily to the gathering of those little intimate groups which make the leisure hours so pleasant.



Today's illustration shows the floor plan and interior view of a delightful room which was especially planned to meet the requirements of two college girls. Decorations are informal and gay, but not so gay as to be distracting. Furnishings are sensibly and agreeably arranged. These are of sturdy, early American style in maple which, with its simplicity and mellow glow of warm color, is particularly well suited to, and well liked by almost every American girl. Another item which favorably advocates this type of furniture is the surprisingly low cost. Public demand has brought down prices which were formerly prohibitive to any but the very wealthy, so that really good reproductions are now within the reach of the most meager allowances.

In this instance the room measures 12 by 17⅓ feet, and two liberal sized closets are provided at one end. In order to make the room seem more spacious than it really is, low post beds of the day bed type are placed with their long sides against the wall. In the space between the two head boards there is a charming little drop leaf table, which holds a pottery lamp with an accordion plaited book linen shade in a red and ivory plaid design. In front of the table there are two comfortable little arm chairs, drawn slightly vis-à-vis. The two wall spaces at the ends of the beds are fitted with open shelves for books and treasured small objects.

At the opposite side of the room, in the space between the two windows, there are two flat top maple desks. These are placed back to back, at right angles to the wall, so that they take up as little space as possible. Maple ladder back chairs accompany the desks.

To complete the furnishings, two chests of drawers with brass escutcheons and handles are placed in the remaining two corners of the room. On the wall over each of these hang mirrors in characteristic maple frames.

Decorations for the room are inexpensive and charmingly appropriate. Wallpaper, showing widely spaced polka dots, in raspberry red on an ivory ground, makes an excellent background for the maple furniture. Woodwork is raspberry red, and the floor is painted black so that colorful hooked rugs show to advantage.

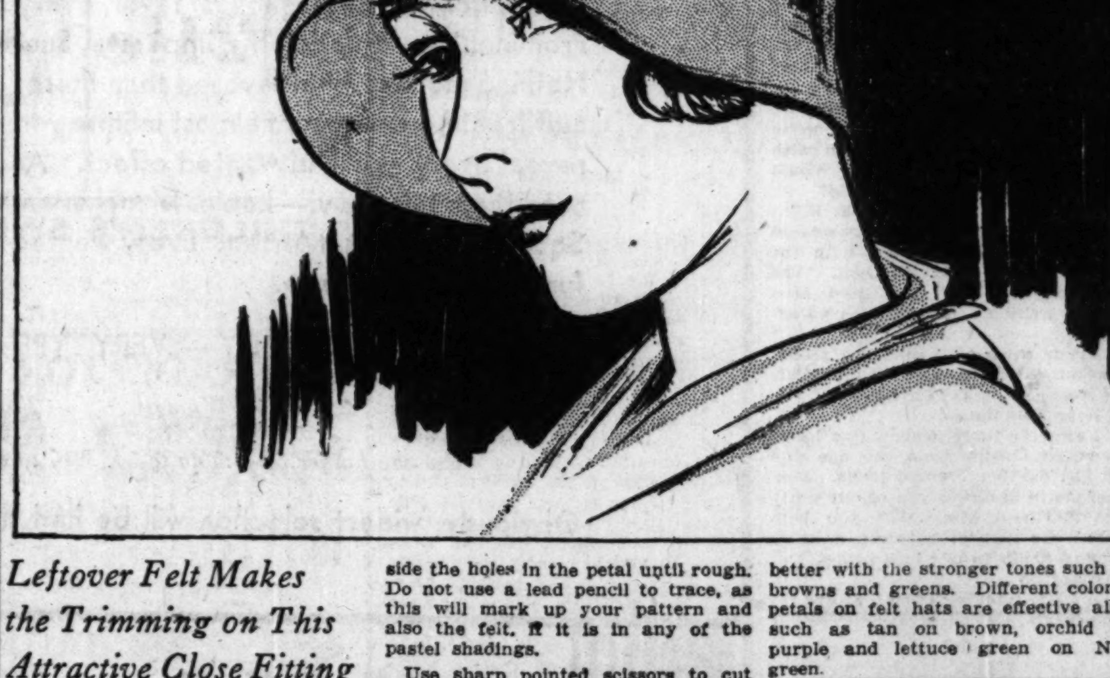
Windows have glass curtains of ivory dotted marquisette, with ruffled edges. The draperies are made of a distinctive but inexpensive cretonne, with a floral pattern in shades of raspberry red, soft green, touches of plum, and gold color on an ivory background. Seat covers for the two desk chairs are covered with the same cretonne. Ivy plants and bowls of flowers are kept on the window sills.

Covers for the beds are of the ever serviceable, washable and marvelously economical candlewick variety. The tufted design is in raspberry red on an ivory ground. Many little cushions piled on the beds are covered with the drapery cretonne, and with plain linen repeating the colors found in the cretonne's pattern.

The two armchairs are upholstered in rep in stripes of plum color and ivory. Lamps on the desks and chests of drawers are copies of old brass candlesticks. Their parchment shades, decorated with floral designs and fashion plates, fit in admirably with the scheme of the room.

Needlework

By Clotilde



Leftover Felt Makes the Trimming on This Attractive Close Fitting Hat.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

THIS smart little close fitting mushroom hat shown today is made from pencil blue felt and is self-trimmed with petals cut out of the material that is left over after making the hat. Scraps in all colors of felt can be used nicely in this petal trimming. The petals can be set on in any way to suit the artist's or designer's taste, but in this special trimming shown they are set in a filet-like effect across the front of the crown. Place your pieces of felt on the ironing board, put a piece of wet muslin over it and press with a hot iron until the muslin is dry.

Lay the petal patterns on the pressed felt, cut around the edge of the pattern, use a pin to scratch inside the holes in the petal until rough. Do not use a lead pencil to trace, as this will mark up your pattern and also the felt, if it is in any of the pastel shadings.

Use sharp pointed scissors to cut out the scratched outline of the holes in the petals. To make the petals more attractive put a small amount of banana oil in the tin cap of any jar. Into this oil shake silver dust until it is quite thick, use a fine camel's hair brush, dip it into this silver paste and trace a line around the outer edge of the petal and also around the holes in the petal.

This dust in both silver and gold and also the banana oil can be bought at any artist's supply store. The silver dust works up better with pastel shades, while the gold dust works up better with the stronger tones such as browns and greens. Different colored petals on felt hats are effective also, such as tan on brown, orchid on purple and lettuce green on Nile green.

Money Made at Home

How you have made or are making money at home is of interest to other women. Would you care to tell them about it? Address Money at Home, Sunday Tribune.

Amateur Photography.

Amateur photography had been my hobby, affording me much pleasure, but little profit financially. I determined to try to make my camera earn the extra money I wanted, so I let it be known that I would take pictures to order of homes, interiors, groups, children with their pets and playthings, or anything desired, charging a reasonable amount for the finished prints.

A small "ad" was placed in the local paper, which soon brought inquiries and a few orders.

I made it a point to watch for notices of picnics, parties, club meetings and other gatherings, and secured permission to take pictures of the affairs and then take orders for pictures from those who desired them.

Many times I was called to take a group of children at a birthday party, or the baby at home with his toys and pets, and as my work was good I worked up quite a profitable business which brought in the coveted pin money. E. M. S.

Illinois Girl is Brightest

From three to twelve. That's the period which is most important to your child's development. And that's the time so many are retarded mentally and physically by energy-sapping constipation.

Watch your child, mother! At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, headache, biliousness, lack of energy or appetite, give a little California Fig Syrup.

This pure vegetable product cleanses, regulates a child's bowels without discomfort. No danger of forming the laxative habit when California Fig Syrup is used. For it tones and strengthens weak bowels so they continue to act naturally, of their own accord. In colds or children's diseases, employ its gentle aid to keep the system from becoming clogged with germs or waste.

Look for the name California when buying or you may get an imitation.

Mothers everywhere are eager to tell of the benefits secured for their children. Mrs. J. D. Andesco, 1500 S. Ridgeland Ave., Berwyn, Chicago, says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Lois Jean for three years in cases of upsets, bad breath, coated tongue or constipation. It keeps her the brightest, happiest four-year-old I know!"

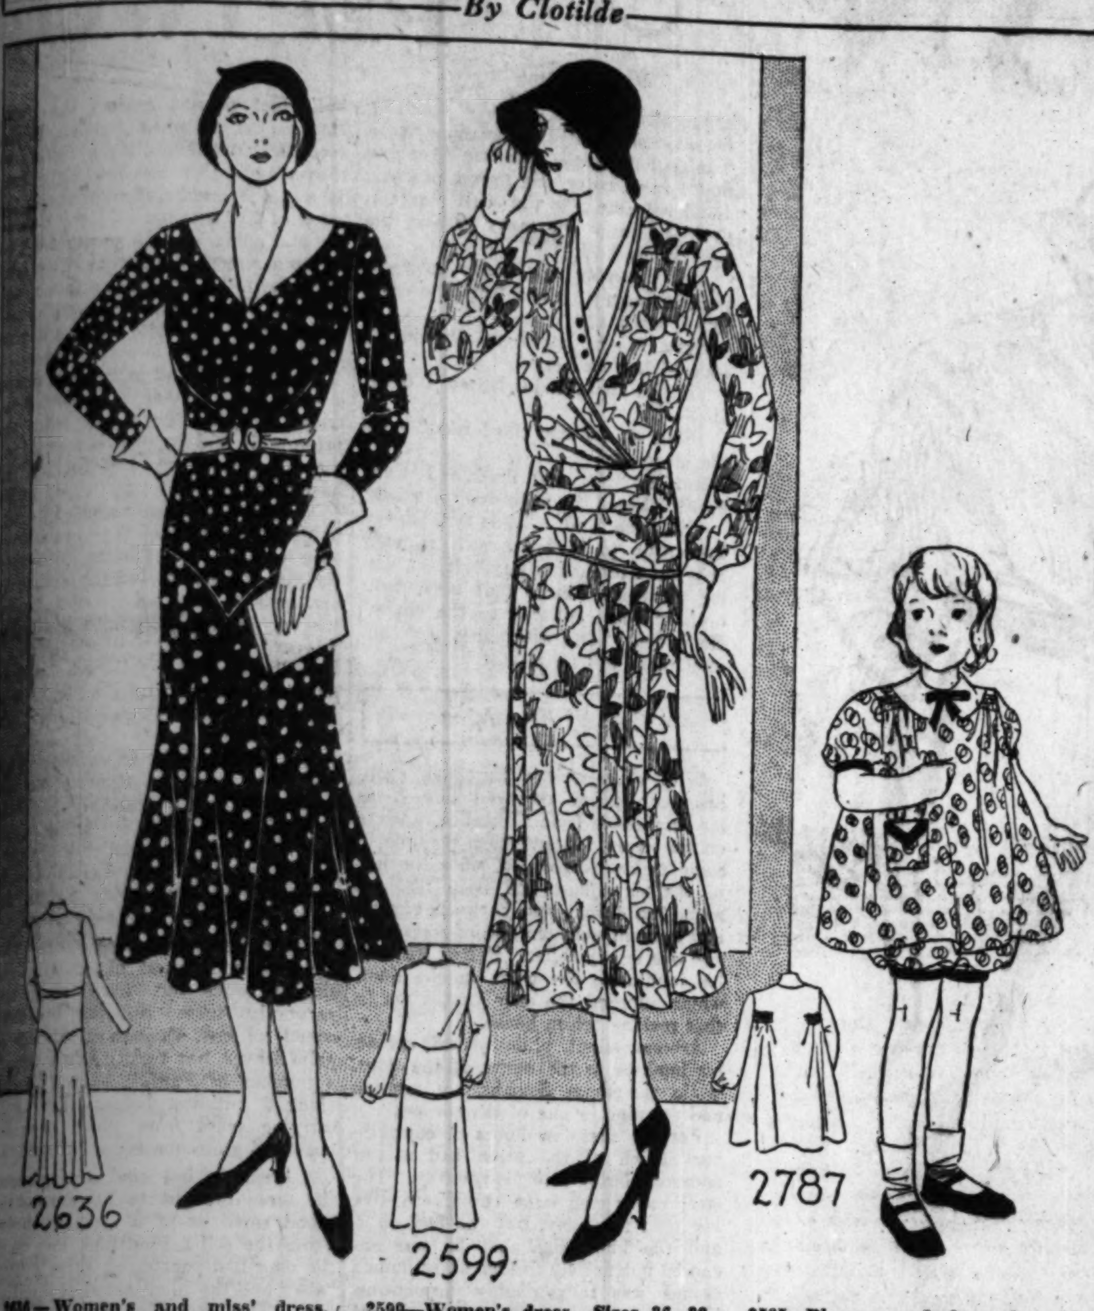
THE RICH, FRUITY LAXATIVE AND TONIC FOR CHILDREN

Patterns and How to Use Them

—By Clotilde—



2636—Women's and miss' dress. Sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

2599—Women's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 27 inch material for the vestee and 3¾ yards of braid.

2787—Bloomer and dress for children. Sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards of 40 inch material with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

Frocks Made from These Chic Patterns Will Retain Their Smartness Through Fall and Winter.

If you want a smart frock for general all day wear you will make a wise choice by using pattern No. 2636.

In this design the bodice is beautifully molded—the curved seaming and pointed outline making the hips appear really slender. A graceful circular skirt is attached to the pointed outline of the bodice, measuring at the bottom, for size 36, about three yards.

Be sure before cutting the material that the length measures are what you need, and see that hips and waist measurements are right for you. Any needed changes may be clearly marked on the pattern piece or pieces, and allowed for in laying the pattern on the material.

A dart at each underarm provides becoming fullness across the bust. The neck is cut in a deep V at the front, which is more generally becoming than any other outline.

The bodice should be tried on after the seams are basted, and when correct, stitch and finish the seams. If one of the heavier crêpes or lightweight woolens is used it will be best to bind the seam edges separately and press open flat. Finish the skirt seams the same way, then, after turning in the bottom of the bodice, taking care to keep the sharp point both in the front and back. Work with the dress on a table, and pin the bodice edge over the top of the skirt, keeping the skirt edge even with the turned under bodice edge. Pin first at the side seams, then at the front and back. Baste carefully. Stitch on the machine close to the edge; then overcast the two edges together before putting in the second row of stitching about three-eighths of an inch above.

When not working on the dress, allow it to hang, so it will stretch. The collar and cuffs can be faced, or the edges finished with a bias binding. In putting the sleeve seams together be sure and have the fold down the outside of the sleeve absolutely smooth. Don't baste together if there is the slightest twist.

A picture chart that comes with this pattern shows clearly how the various parts are put together.

One of the printed wool crêpes in a rich mauve brown coloring would be chic for this dress, making the collar and cuffs of plain brown crêpe. Flat crêpe, Canton crêpe, crêpe marocain and sheer tweed are attractive for early fall wear.

Pattern No. 2787 is a popular bloomer outfit—just the thing for play hours when made of printed cotton broadcloth, with plain pique for contrast. There is a small yoke both on the front and back, and to this the skirt is attached. The dress is slashed down from the neck at the center front, and the edges are bound and finished for closing. A Peter Pan collar finishes the neck attractively, and the tiny bow at the neck, as well as the patch pocket, will be certain to please the small maiden for whom this dress is being made.

The bloomers are easy to make. Care should be taken not to make the leg bands too tight or the elastic at the waist uncomfortably tight. Children are often made irritable by clothes that are uncomfortable and do not always know just what it is that troubles them.

Plaits are smart, and are particularly good for the woman of average figure, for they flare the skirt without adding anything to the silhouette. Pattern No. 2599 should be popular, with the snug appearing hipline secured through a shaped yoke, while the criss-cross lines of the wrapped bodice and vestee detract beautifully from the breadth.

Instead of the usual close fitting sleeve this dress has sleeves that are slightly full at the bottom, where they are gathered into fitted bands. Follow the chart carefully, both in laying the pattern pieces on the material and in making, and you will have no difficulties. Lay the plaits in the skirt from top to bottom, running your fingers underneath each plait before basting to see that there is no twist there. Do this part of the work on a table.

Navy blue and white printed silk crêpe, with the vestee of plain white crêpe is smart, although any of the lightweight woolens would also make up attractively.

My Secret

Maud Miller Hoffmaster

By Eleanor Jewett.

I know a secret I can't tell!
Mother and Jane and Mary Bell
May ask and ask, but I shall not say,
For I won't give my secret away today.

My secret is golden, and little, and dear,
Just the right size for a doll to hear,
But for any one else? I cross my heart
And will not breathe the tiniest part.

I wished my secret upon a star,
And you know the way that fairies are,
If you tell your wish it won't come true
And that's the reason I can't tell you.

Bright Sayings

Please address all bright sayings of children to Aunty Bee, The Tribune.

Having in mind my own school days, I asked my nephew, who had just started to school, if his teacher ever stands him in front of the room with gum on his nose. He drawled out, "O, no, my teacher never does that. She doesn't have any gum." G. R. P.

End Oily, Sallow Skin

A little Calonite powder sprinkled on a wet cloth and rubbed gently over the face each night ends shiny, oily skins—puts new life into sallow skin, and cleans the pores of all dust, dirt and prevents blackheads. It makes the skin feel refreshed and bright, so you will enjoy a good night's rest.

HARLEY AND JOAN

by ROLAND PERTWEE

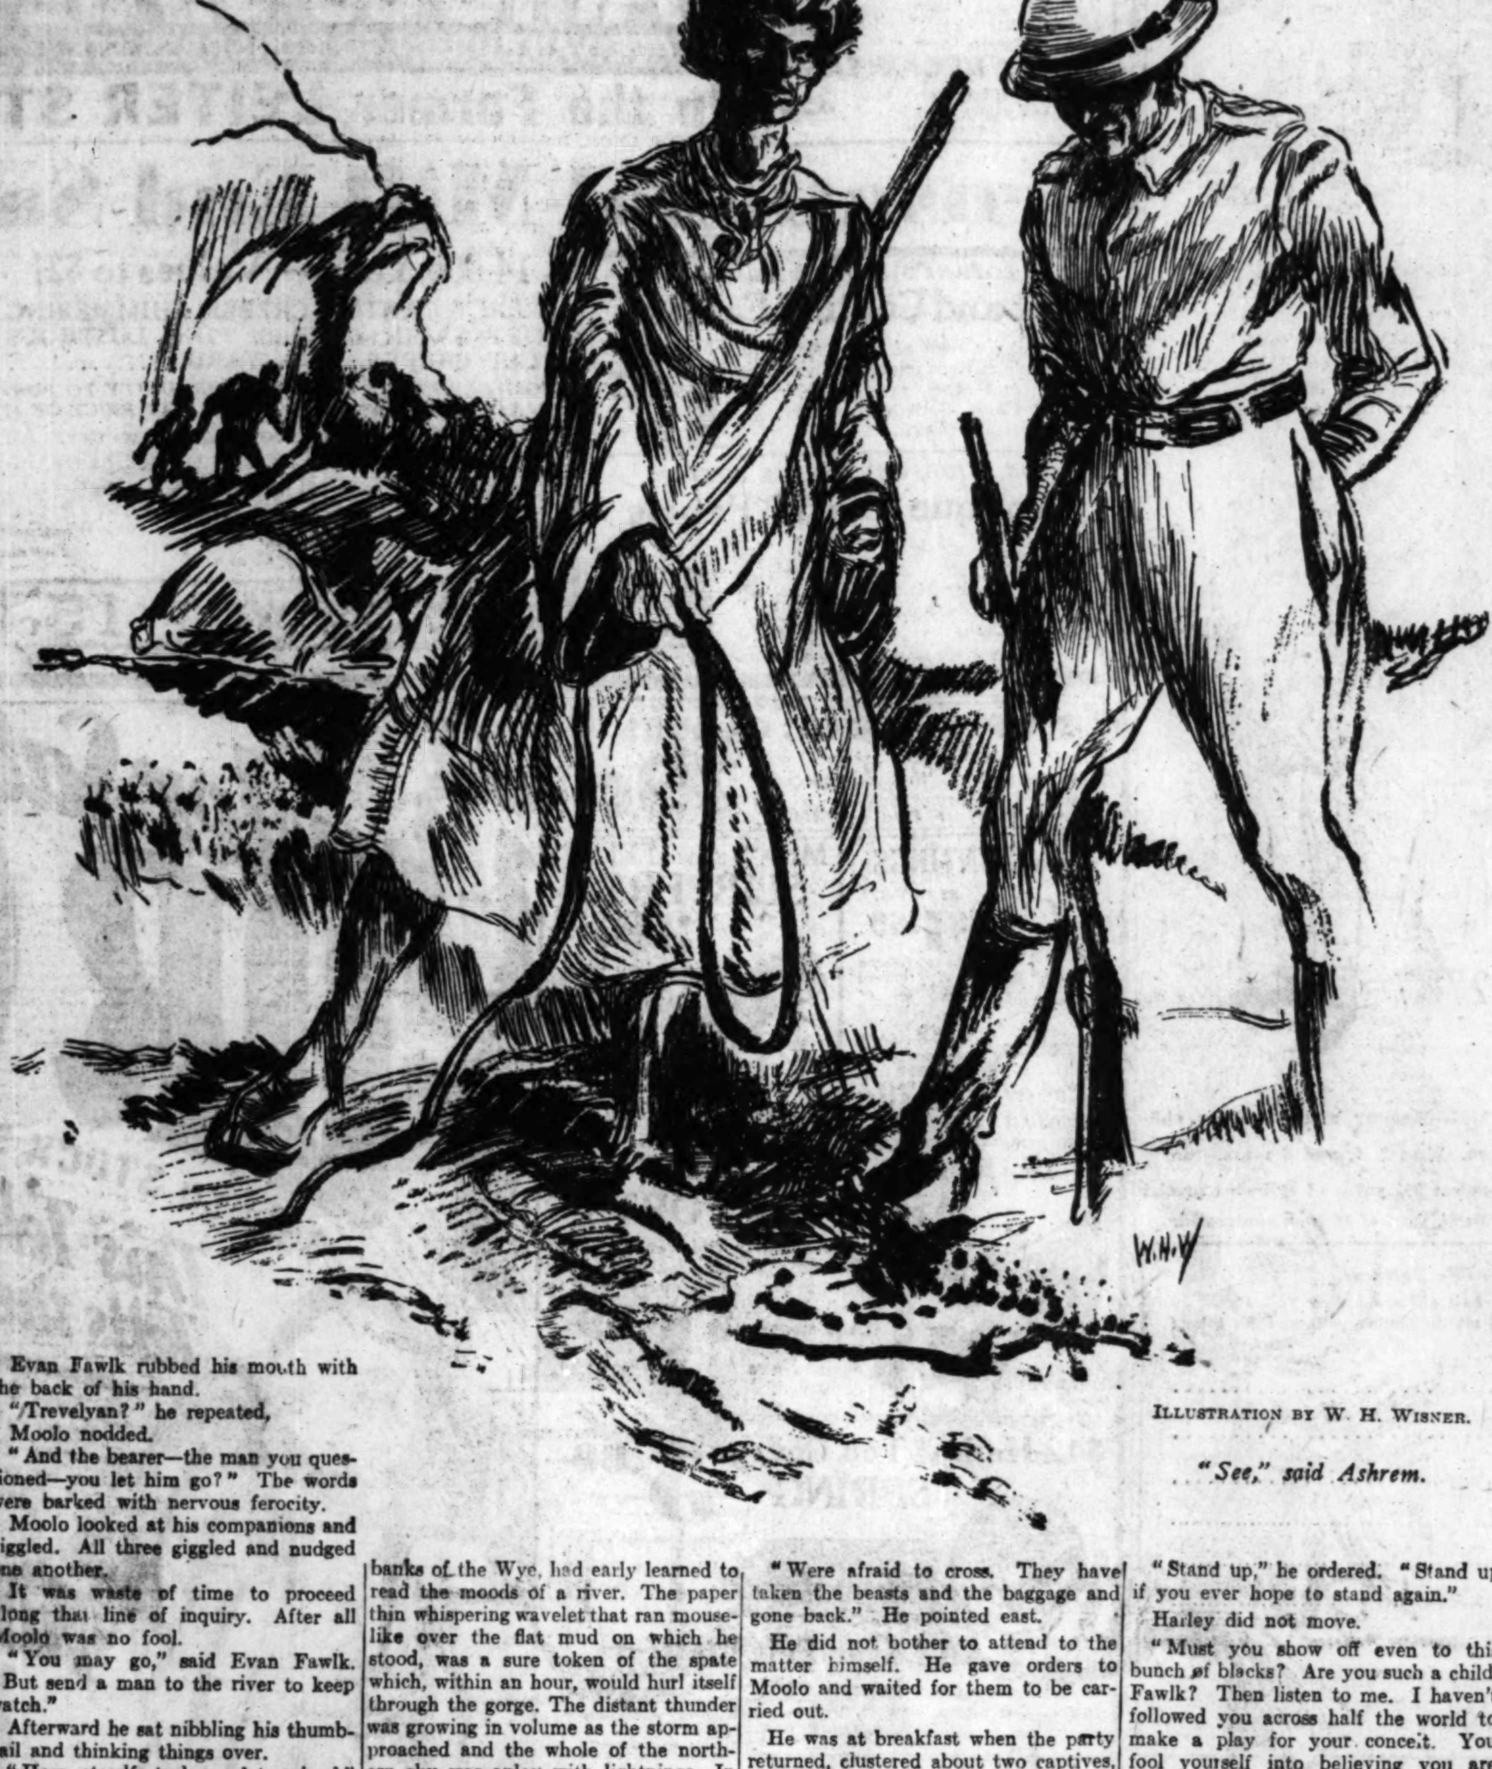

ILLUSTRATION BY W. H. WISNER.

"See," said Ashrem.

THE STORY IN RESUME.

Harley Trevelyan, on leave from the front in London, dines with Paula Drayton, whose younger brother, David Drayton, through Trevelyan's influence, has been assigned to his own battery. Paula tells him she loves him. Harley is walking the streets when the Zeppelins raid London, and, being used to gunfire, does not run to cover. A young woman in a window sends her brother to bring him into the house, and he discovers that the boy is Freddie Miller, an old schoolmate, and the girl is Joan. With Joan he goes up on the roof to watch the air raid, and they see an airplane shoot down one of the Zeps. Harley realizes he is in love with this girl. Freddie and he leave for the front, and when Harley rejoins his battery he discovers that Paula's brother, a second lieutenant, already is on hand. Maj. Fawlk, Harley's commending officer, writes a letter to Joan's father intimating that Harley is in love with Paula, and Joan, wondering, talks with Paula. Paula and Harley become engaged. Young Drayton is killed. Harley is reported killed, but Joan receives a letter from him in a German prison camp, and with it confounds Maj. Fawlk. Harley escapes from prison and gets home in time to take part in the armistice celebration. Fawlk tells Paula that Trevelyan's cowardice caused her brother's death. She goes to kill Trevelyan, but fails to do so. Fawlk manages to have Trevelyan accused of cheating at cards. Freddie commits suicide. Paula confesses that she and Fawlk marked the cards. Joan refuses to see Harley. Harley pursues Fawlk to Italy, but Fawlk eludes him.

INSTALLMENT XV.

Imprisoned.

"HAMDU LILLAH! (Thanks be to God.) We shall have water tonight."

Thus spoke Ashrem, the hare lip, holding up his yellow palms in a gesture of praise.

He was not a pretty sight, Ashrem, his cauliflower head dyed red with quick lime and rendered lustrous with the rancid fat of sheeps tails. His cotton robe was also red, stained by the impalpable red rust of the Jehama. About his throat was a necklace made from the entrails of an antelope, to which was attached a copy of the Koran.

Ashrem carried in one hand a rifle and in the other a fifteen foot leather thonged whip—the terror, although he had never been known to use it, of the native bearers. It was reputed that so great was the power of Ashrem's arm that he could, with a single cut of the whip, sever a man's head from his shoulders. There is no doubt that with it he produced terrifying sounds. Swish crack!

"On, get on!"

Men and beast alike feared it and none could say to what extent it had proved responsible for goading that wretched company over deserts of loose sand, punctured by the myriad holes of hermit crabs, across iron-bound volcanic wastes, and through the mephitic stenches of marsh and lake that had made of the journey from the coast one unrelieved torture.

Save for Ashrem the journey had been impossible, but Ashrem's life had gone to prove the possibility of much that was impossible. Born in a Gothic roofed hut of mud and reeds somewhere in the Danakil country, he had drifted to the seaboard and thence by many ports to Montagu Square, Bloomsbury, and a law degree at the London university. But the call of the wild had whispered to him in crowded Cheapside, and by various stages of travel and forgetfulness he returned to his own people.

In an African port full of liars, cheats and boasters he had encountered Harley—a tall, spare man, who traveled light, with not much more than a single purpose to support his needs.

"If the English lord wishes to shoot a lion, I, Ashrem, will lead him to where the finest may be found."

Harley shook his head.

"It is a man I seek," he said shortly.

Ashrem remembered very well the man. From childhood he remembered that man, and hunched up his shoulders and stressed a word here and there to prove that he did not speak in vain.

This same man was known and feared over many thousands of miles of the African continent.

"Sometimes it is gold or gum or ivory he seeks to buy—sometimes he has slaves and women to sell."

"I want that man," Harley repeated.

Ashrem read something in Harley's eyes—something primitive.

"For a vengeance?"

Harley nodded.

"To kill?" And Ashrem stabbed the air downward—turned his wrist and wrenched the empty hand upward.

Harley shook his head.

"Alive?"

That was more difficult—less attractive.

"It might be done," he said, "but the man is cunning—wise. Also he travels with many bearers and many rifles."

"It must be done," said Harley.

"It shall be."

And then began the endless haggling for camels and mules, threats and promises to native bearers, and the getting together of stores.

When at last they moved from the steaming coastal town Evan Fawlk had had five weeks' start of them.

Ashrem was not discouraged.

"Vengeance travels swifter than trade," said he, "and the man we seek will march to the greediness of his own purse."

Harley's thoughts, concentrated on the future, took no heed of the hardships and miseries of that journey. The war had inured him to discomfort and danger. He was uncomplaining of the heat, sometimes one hundred and twenty-six degrees—of the flies—of thirst—of the stifling exudations from the mouths of rubbish fed camels which by night formed a bubbling, grumbling, roaring circle round the camp.

His one concern was to get on—to make up the lost time for which accident and fate and the nerve breaking dilatoriness and indecision of his followers had been responsible.

The mules were straining restlessly. The leading Eesah camel, a huge rawboned beast with corny knees, roared and broke into a shambling trot.

From the valley below the damp breath of the river stole up to meet them.

The path narrowed into a rock walled chasm towering a hundred feet on either hand and opening funnelwise into a mile wide gorge through which the river, muddy and monstrous, rolled drunkenly.

After the stagnant pools and holes which until then had supplied their needs, the sight of unlimited water was like entrance into paradise.

Footprints in the Mud

The beasts ploughed and wallowed. The men rolled and splashed and gulped. It was a veritable orgy in which they drank until they could hold no more. They drank until they could barely stand from the weight of water with which their bellies were distended. They drank until the business of setting up camp was punctuated by halts and gaspings and sudden collapses.

A little apart, Harley sat upon a slab of rock with the map upon his knees on which at the close of each day he had pricked out the course they had taken. Each halting place was marked by a tiny asterisk and, in brackets beneath, a series of letters and numerals.

Even to Ashrem he had not confided the meaning of these entries; nor why every night when the camp was asleep he had gone out alone and buried in the sand a skin of water and a packet of "Iron Emergency Rations" with the war department stamp upon them. In making these cachés Harley had responded to an instinctive caution.

Harley pricked in their position on the map and looked about him for a hiding place.

"Over there—beside that rock—when night falls," he decided.

Ashrem, to whom maps and compasses meant nothing at all, for Ashrem steered by the stars, by the earth's whispers and smells, by the feel of sand or rock or grass beneath his toes, came hastening along the river bank at a loping run.

"Hamdu lillah!" he cried. "I have found where they crossed the flood. We are less than a day's march behind."

Harley rose, tucked away the map in its canvas case and picked up his rifle. The impatience which had distinguished his actions in the earlier part of the pursuit had given way to an unhurrying resolution—a dogged determined, unremitting preparedness. He had proved the value of walking five miles rather than running two. The lesson learned at Naples where he had overrun his quarry was not forgotten. Time had ceased to be the ruling factor of the chase. Only constancy mattered.

At his own speed he accompanied Ashrem downstream.

"See," said Ashrem.

During the last twenty-four hours the river had in some measure declined, leaving a fringe of crisping mud at the water's edge trampled by the feet of beasts and men. In the tangle of seals and prints made by camel pads, the dainty hoofs of mules and the feet of native carriers were the marks of a pair of European boots.

"The man!" said Ashrem and his fingers closed joyously about an imaginary throat.

Harley nodded.

A hundreds yards away where Harley's natives were clustered by the river bank a flicker of flame crackled into a blaze and a wisp of smoke rose heavenward.

Ashrem's voice swelled to a sudden roar as he raced upstream.

"The fire—put out the fire, pigs and sons of pigs!"

As the startled natives beat with sticks at the faggots a golden rain of sparks ascended and fell.

Ashrem stamped his bare feet upon the glowing ashes. Then turning to Harley he said:

"It is as though we had cried aloud to our enemy—Lo! we are here."

A River of Lightning

Ten miles away a solitary Englishman, amusing himself with the reflection that sunsets epitomized nature's vulgarity, saw in the valley below that flash of fire that was so swiftly extinguished. Being of an inquiring nature, he wondered as to the cause of this phenomenon. For why, he asked himself, should any one light a fire and put it out before it had burned long enough to heat a tin of shaving water. It argued that whoever was responsible had private reasons to keep his presence dark. Turning the matter over in his mind an improbable but unpleasant solution presented itself. In the war, when uncertain of what was happening on the other side, it was the fashion to instruct a party to creep across No Man's land and find out. Although expensive, this method was often fruitful of the happiest results.

"Moolo," said Evan Fawlk to his head man. "You will take two of your best men and the three fastest mules and——"

When Moolo returned some time later he was grinning.

"Did you bring a prisoner?" Evan Fawlk demanded.

Still grinning Moolo shook his woolly head.

Evan Fawlk began to swear slowly—choicely.

"There was no need, Lord," said Moolo. "We found one sleeping apart from the rest and wrapped him in a blanket. Him we questioned with the point of a creese at the throat. So! There are twenty bearers and an Englishman called Tev'len."

Evan Fawlk rubbed his mouth with the back of his hand.

"Trevelyan?" he repeated.

Moolo nodded.

"And the bearer—the man you questioned—you let him go?" The words were barked with nervous ferocity.

Moolo looked at his companions and giggled. All three giggled and nudged one another.

It was waste of time to proceed along that line of inquiry. After all Moolo was no fool.

"You may go," said Evan Fawlk. "But send a man to the river to keep watch."

Afterward he sat nibbling his thumbnail and thinking things over.

"How steadfast—how determined," he thought. "Evidently a man who cannot take a licking gracefully."

Well! If he wanted more!

He stopped biting his fingernail and played with a button on his coat, for doubt and anxiety had given place to a curiously piquant sensation of satisfaction. Trevelyan should be given one more round by all means—and then—his congé.

Rising, he passed out of his tent and along the broken wall of mud and shale, the ashlars of the ancient fortress. Black masses of cloud rolling impetuously across the night sky were blotting out the stars. A glimmer of lightning flowed along the northern horizon and a wind startled from rest in the valley below whispered "hush, hush," to a grumble of sullen thunder.

Where the wall angled was a tiny keep, the one part of the fortress still boasting a roof. Before its door lolled a Danakil warrior, huge, with spear in hand. At the sound of Fawlk's approach he straightened and held the spear aloft.

Fawlk nodded towards the door and the man lifted a drop bar that held it shut. A thick human smell ran out to meet him. Evan Fawlk flashed an electric torch. Its rays were reflected in the whites of three pairs of eyes and upon the links of a steel chain. The eyes dropped near and nearer to the floor as their owners groveled.

Evan Fawlk turned to the sentry.

"How many empty collars are there upon the chain?"

But the sentry had never instructed himself in the art of counting.

"Stand up—come out," he ordered.

Three miserable Somali boys crept out, grunting and gasping at the amazement of fresh air. About their necks were steel collars fastened by spring locks; five feet of chain separated each man from his fellow. Beyond the last three empty collars, gaping wide for fresh victims, trailed clanking across the threshold.

"So many," said Fawlk. "Good! You shall have company tomorrow. White company."

"Mercy," sobbed one of the men. "Mercy, lord, Mercy."

But Fawlk did not seem to hear.

A river of lightning ran across the sky as he dropped the wooden bar into place. The thunder roared and rain like metal rods drilled downward into the earth.

The Price He Paid

Ashrem awoke at the touch of Harley's hand upon his shoulder.

"Listen, Ashrem, a storm. We must make the crossing tonight. By morning the river will be in flood."

In an instant Ashrem's whip was cracking the reveille.

In the confusion that followed Harley walked to the river edge. Already the impalpable signs of approaching flood were evident to him. He had spent much of his boyhood on the banks of the Wye, had early learned to read the moods of a river. The paper thin whispering wavelet that ran mouselike over the flat mud on which he stood, was a sure token of the spate which, within an hour, would hurl itself through the gorge. The distant thunder was growing in volume as the storm approached and the whole of the northern sky was aplay with lightnings. In the rare silences between thunder peals the beat of a mighty rain could be heard approaching.

The first of the camels was being urged into the stream when the forerunner of the spate came sweeping down in a tall wave.

"Back, get back; the heavens have opened," cried a voice.

"On, get on."

The whip cracked, a man screeched in pain. By the lightning flashes Harley saw some of the natives dragging their beasts back from the rising water. Casting off his coat, Harley seized a coil of rope and, making one end fast to a tree stump, he took the other end between his teeth and plunged in. The violence of the flood swept him down stream, but he held on grimly until beneath his feet he could feel the shifting bottom of the further shore. A trailing liana held out its coils to meet him, and seizing it he hauled himself into safety. He paused to recover his breath, then raced up-stream to where his men jabbered and huddled on the opposite bank. Anchoring the rope to a root, he shouted to them to seize it and follow. But although he shouted again and again, no man obeyed. By the intermittent flashes he could see Ashrem pleading—exhorting—threatening—but men and beasts alike were drawing back from the flood, which every moment grew in volume and impetuosity. Through the roar of thunder and rain he heard Ashrem's whip cracking like pistol shots against naked bodies.

A bolder spirit than the rest cried, "Kill. Kill."

Knives were out. Creeses!

Ashrem's rifle spoke twice. Human screams mingled with the scream of the wind. The whole body of the bearers bunched together, swayed irresolutely, then lurched forward, driving down on Ashrem.

Harley saw him raise the rifle above his head, fling it into the thick of them, seize the rope, sever it with a knife, and cast himself into the river.

As the cauliflower head swung round in an arc across the surface of spinning, churning water, stones and spears and curses were thrown after it.

Two minutes later Ashrem stood beside Harley, arms extended, hands knotted into fists, and his body steaming in the rain.

"We have made the crossing, but at what a price," he said.

. . . .

It was an hour before dawn when the man Evan Fawlk had sent to the river to keep watch presented himself, panting and dripping, at his master's tent.

"The white man and one other have crossed the river," he said. "They sleep now along the limb of a great tree by the water's edge. It would be easy——"

Fawlk silenced him with a gesture.

"The rest?" he demanded.

The man grinned.

"Were afraid to cross. They have taken the beasts and the baggage and gone back." He pointed east.

He did not bother to attend to the matter himself. He gave orders to Moolo and waited for them to be carried out.

He was at breakfast when the party returned, clustered about two captives, whose wrists were bound together and who walked with the points of spears resting persuasively between their shoulders.

A runner preceded the party and announced that orders had been obeyed.

"Where is Moolo?" Fawlk demanded.

The runner raised one knee and made a suggestive jerking movement with both hands.

"The white man," he said laconically, and added, "The harelip killed Ali and broke the arm of another."

"Let them wait at twenty paces until I have finished eating," Fawlk said.

Collared to the Chain

The party came to a halt at the appointed place. Evan Fawlk did not waste a glance upon the man he hated. There was plenty of time ahead and to ignore Trevelyan afforded him a delightful sense of power.

After a while he extinguished his cigaret on the heel of his boot, folded a map meticulously and laid a loaded revolver on the folding table.

"Bring the white man here."

The order was repeated and the thongs that bound Harley and Ashrem together were cut with the blade of a spear.

Evan Fawlk did not look up when Harley came forward and stood before him. Had he done so he must have been disappointed for there was nothing of the dejected captive in Harley's appearance—rather he seemed sure of himself—triumphant.

"So you wanted to see me, Trevelyan?"

It was characteristic of him to ask that kind of question and with carefully prepared satire score off the inevitable answer. But Harley said nothing.

"Yes—I guessed you might wish to see me, so I sent my men to bring you here."

"At a waste of two lives. There was no need to bring me, Fawlk, I was coming."

"Moolo and Ali," Fawlk nodded. "They were good men, but life is cheap in Africa, as you may discover, Trevelyan."

"If you have the courage to prove it."

Evan Fawlk flushed and fingered the trigger of his revolver.

"Insubordination dies hard," he said, "but in the end discipline conquers it. I can promise you a taste of severer discipline than any you have met before."

"Threats don't scare me," said Harley, "since there is no woman here to carry them out for you."

Crooking his foot round a kit bag that lay beneath the table he hauled it into the open and sat down.

From the half circle of natives there rose an "Ooo" of amazement at the insolence of the act.

Evan Fawlk came slowly to his feet, the revolver leveled at Harley's head.

"Stand up," he ordered. "Stand up if you ever hope to stand again."

Harley did not move.

"Must you show off even to this bunch of blacks? Are you such a child, Fawlk? Then listen to me. I haven't followed you across half the world to make a play for your conceit. You fool yourself into believing you are master of this show, but you're wrong. Presently you and I will go back to the coast together, and in the presence of witnesses—white witnesses—you're going to make a confession. That surprises you, but it's true. It's going to happen. You aren't man enough to put a bullet through me. If you were it would have been you and not Paula Drayton who set the trap that indirectly cost me the life of a friend and several other things I won't bother to enumerate. No, you skulked in the background as you always have and always will. Skulked and bolted at the first sight of danger. Now, because you're out of reach of the law and have a band of rascally cut throats to carry out your orders you deceive yourself you can do all sorts of dreadful things. Well, so you could, if you had the power and the guts to change your own nature and innoculate that yellow streak with a dash of crimson. But that is something that you can't do. You're brave enough in ideas but you crash badly when it comes to deeds."

"Go on," said Evan Fawlk, licking his lips sweetly. "Go on. It just needed this."

"I am going on, never fear. If there had been real stuff in you, you wouldn't have squealed about court martials and witnesses when that boy David Drayton hit you in your dirty mouth. You wouldn't have groveled under the table until he got clear. You'd have taken off your coat and settled it like a man. And you'd have settled with me like a man instead of jambing that stable door and leaving the job to a more gentlemanly foe."

Evan Fawlk started and his brows went up.

"Who said—what do you mean—jambed——?"

Harley laughed.

"Guess work, and not far short of the mark. I have learned to read your trademark on a job even if I hadn't the wit to read it then. I'm indebted to you for a year in a prison camp and other things. And I'm here to pay."

Fawlk had relapsed into his folding chair. His eyes fixed upon Harley through half lowered lids looked green in the early morning sunlight. Very slowly and choicely he said:

"You may come to look back on that year almost with affection, Trevelyan, for where you are going the years will gather like stones about your neck."

"Rot," said Harley. "Bogy man talk hurts no one. You and I are going back to the coast."

Evan Fawlk shook out the map and pointed with his finger.

"Abyssinia," he said sibilantly. "Abyssinia one of the last lands in this enlightened earth where men and women are still sold into slavery."

"Let me advise you, Fawlk. You've a gun there use it, for——" suddenly he rose and pointed an accusing finger, "unless you settle with me here and now I swear before my maker that you and I will return to the coast together, even if I carry you every yard of the way on my back."

And dropping his hands into his pockets Harley walked from the table like a free man.

Evan Fawlk jerked up the pistol, covered him and cried,

"If you don't stand before I count five——"

"Start at five and shoot now," came the answer.

But no shot was fired and Evan Fawlk allowed the pistol to drop slowly.

"No," he said. "You are clever, Trevelyan, to look for such an easy exit, but I prefer my way." Then raising his voice. "Seize that man—have both of them collared to the chain." He added, "And afterwards my children there will be a feast."

One of Five Men

With characteristic European snobbishness, Harley removed himself as far as possible from the other captives on the chain. It had been possible in some measure to do so, since the last of the six collars had been fastened round his throat and between himself and Ashrem were ten feet of steel links and one empty collar. Harley lay with his mouth to the crack in the door, which afforded the only ventilation in that reeking prison house.

Ashrem, silent, philosophical, sat on his hunkers in the center of the floor, while the there Somalis lay mewing and scraping in one of the corners.

For the first few hours of captivity the stench of the place had almost stunned Harley into insensibility. The steel collar was large enough to give his head free play, but the feel of it, and the knowledge that he was anchored indefinitely to four other human beings was indescribably tormenting. The air was so lifeless that speech of any kind produced exhaustion. And yet, despite the horrors and discomforts of his predicament, Harley's spirits remained perversely high. He had reached his goal—not, it is true, in the manner intended—but the knowledge that he and Fawlk were now in touch transcended all other considerations. The confidence which had borne him company throughout the journey was unshaken. Although he had no clear vision of how his purpose was to be carried out, he was sure of his ability to find a way.

In the ray of light that penetrated through the crack in the door he examined the chain and saw it was a steel forging—case hardened and sound as a bell. Even with a hack saw he doubted his ability to cut the links. Each section was fastened to staples riveted through the collars. But it was the collars that bore the most startling testimony of their aim at permanence. They were made of two halves, hinged and fastened by a snap lock, for which no keyhole was provided. Once the lock was shut it was shut for good. The smith who had made them was no amateur.

Harley wiped the sweat from his brow and licked his lips. He had ceased to be an individual, but had become one of five men anchored together in adversity. From the nature of the gyves it was clear that any attempt to escape must be carried on in concert with the rest.

From the corner where the three blacks lay huddled the mewing and scraping grew louder and more incessant.

"Ashrem," said Harley, speaking for the first time. "What are they doing?"

Ashrem translated the question in a native dialect and received a whispered answer.

"A hole," he said. "They pick at the mortar with their nails to make a hole."

Taking a long breath, Harley crawled over to inspect.

Around the sides and base of a stone, the width of a man's shoulders, the industrious trio had scraped deep into the wall. Here and there, where the mortar had perished, they had delved in to the length of a man's hand. In one spot a pin point of light showed beyond, which, acting like the lens of a camera, threw a picture of palm tops and sky upon the bare knee of one of the natives.

Harley kicked at the stone, but it did not budge.

"Ashrem," he said, "put your back against mine and line up these fellows to brace yourself against. That's the way—now, when I give the word, shove like hell."

Elephant Meat

Grasping the idea, the natives spanned the floor with their feet against each other's back. The last man had the soles of his feet and the palms of his hands pressed to the opposite wall.

With his back against Ashrem's and both feet pressed against the stone Harley gave the word to shove. In the seconds that followed the five prisoners shoved until their arteries nearly burst. It was the middle man who had the worst of the squeeze. He got it coming and going. As the stone shifted he let go a screech which could have been heard for miles, but since screams issuing from that prison house were no unusual event, the sentry did not disturb himself to inquire into the cause.

But the stone had moved, and moved a great deal farther than Harley intended. Before he could relax the pressure it had toppled outward from the wall. If Harley had not had the inspiration to bellow at the top of his voice and drown the sound of its fall, in all probability their work would have been wasted. But nothing more than the yell was heard, and the stone, falling into a mass of creepers, rolled solemnly and silently into the valley below.

In the hush that followed a rush of pure air, refreshed by the night's rain, filled the prison, bringing with it fresh life and hope.

Flat on his chest, Harley wormed his head and shoulders through the gap and looked out. Beneath him the outer wall of the fortress fell some twelve feet into a network of brambly undergrowth. To the right was the broken parapet and fifty yards distant the green canvas top of Fawlk's tent.

Harley was measuring distances in his mind when a burst of shouting and singing broke out from somewhere perilously near. Bringing his head round he saw, through a tapestry of palm leaves, not twenty yards distant, a number of Fawlk's bearers moving along a pathway below. They were carrying poles from which depended huge and grotesque masses of raw flesh.

A breath of hot wind stirring among the trees brought to his nostrils the blood smell as of a slaughter house. From the cell behind him, into which the odor had penetrated, came guttural "ahs" and the juicy sound of smacking lips. The sentry posted outside the door had smelt it, too, and beating a tatoo upon his stomach, he broke into the "Song of Plenty."

Harley felt himself seized by the ankles and hauled back into the cell.

"Your coat, master; quick, your coat."

Before he had time to realize why, Ashrem had stripped off Harley's coat and, winding it about the waist of the smallest of the Somali boys, he bent the creature double and thrust his apex into the gap where the stone had been.

"Stay there, dog, for if you move before night you die by my hands."

Then turning to Harley, Ashrem explained.

"The master's coat is the same color as the stone. If those below hearing the sentry's song had looked up——"

There was no need to say more and Ashrem directed his thoughts into pleasanter avenues.

"My children," he chanted, "by the mercy of Allah and the wisdom of this great lord and mighty hunter, tonight we shall go free."

But the natives had smelled elephant meet and moaned because their bellies were empty, besides which freedom was of small account.

Good Night

Throughout the afternoon and into the night there was singing and dancing and feasting in the camp of Evan Fawlk. Never since the journey started had there been such an orgie of meat as was now provided. Stuffed and comatose, they slept and snored, with gobbets of flesh strewn on the ground about them. It was an immortal feast. Even the sentry outside the prison house dozed at his post, lolling against the door, puffing and blowing like a hippo from the weight of food with which he was incumbered.

At ten o'clock Evan Fawlk made his rounds, pausing outside the prison door to wish Harley a good night.

To his surprise Harley returned the greeting with excellent good humor.

"I trust you find the company in there agreeable, Trevelyan."

"I find it preferable to some I shall have to put up with."

Evan Fawlk said no more. He felt childishly hurt. The answer had pricked his pride. Hatred and rancor were to be expected from his captive, but schoolboy cheekiness was insufferable. After a day in that foul hole there was no excuse for a man's spirit still to run so high.

Lighting the lantern in his tent, he threw himself on the bed and tried to read, but the book—a treatise on contemporary French painters—failed to hold his attention.

Rising on his elbow, he blew out the light, and tucking his revolver under his pillow settled gloomily in the dark.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.
To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

On the Roof of the Harem

[A SAVARAN STORY]

By Douglas Newton

Charleur Smiled at His Treachery as Savaran Fell into a Trap of Devil-Made Cunning; but Savaran Got Full Revenge on the Evil Halfbreed of the Swamp.

SAVARAN moved with that swift stealth that meant war through a night made for love.

Overlooking the heat and the mosquitoes native to such a swamp town as Zatar, the night was a poet's line of beauty—soft velvet aglow with the huge moist diamond fire of stars that vied with the vast low lamp of the moon. Like soft breathing in the dark came the heady sweetness of jasmine flower and lady of the night, for despite the high, blank Arab walls that turned the alleys into cañons, he was in a suburb of rich men and great if hidden gardens. He heard the fluttering trill of moon-piping birds and distant—distant a girl's voice singing slowly a sad song.

Savaran, his spider legs sliding him through the shadows at a speed only half as remarkable as his stealth ignored the night. His business was anything but love. He was calling on the old and evil halfbreed, Charleur, to hear the arguments, if any, why a sly and treacherous rat should not die with violence and dispatch. Savaran held it a point of honor to deal in person with rogues who played him false.

The fierce eagle face bore the smile of genial ferocity that was his danger signal, and there were reasons for his amusement. Even now Charleur must be lolling on his silken divans, happy at evil well done, certain that he had trapped Savaran safe into a British jail four hundred miles away. Charleur, who had all along shown gross ignorance of Savaran and his gifts, was due for a shock.

Charleur had need of such men as Savaran. Subtle and vile from an admixture of French with bad Arab and even more unsavory bloods, he had couched for years in Zatar, bloating himself with wealth won by dubious service to native kings. From the comparatively clean adventures of illicit ivory and diamond smuggling to drink, drug, and gun running and the filth of the slave traffic, all things questionable were one to Charleur, for he never risked his own shrinking and weazened skin.

Zatar was the reason for that. An independent emirate, the industrious lawbreaker can live there in serene immunity from the fretting codes of civilization that make life difficult outside its borders. A fit nest for old Charleur and a necessary one. He had so many base things to his discredit that for him to step outside the frontier was but to begin a journey towards jail. Except, that is, in the case of the neighboring British colony of the Malaria Coast—there awaited him a terror worse than jail.

Charleur Is Insulted

He knew that from experience. Some twenty years ago the present governor of the colony, Sir Ryall Murlin, then plain Mr. Murlin and a police magistrate, had dealt so faithfully with him in a matter of slave trading—lashes from the cat as well as a terrible term in the slate quarries—that ever after the mere mention of Ryall Murlin's name was enough to stir him to a frenzy of almost insane rage.

Thus it was that even native kings had to come to him at Zatar if they wished to speak their secret business face to face, while if such powerful and truculent chieftains as the Han of Shenzi, in the Malaria Coast colony, refused to make the journey, even they had to be content with no more than discreet trysting places just inside the Zatar border or with the attentions of trusted ambassadors like Savaran—that or nothing.

Not that Savaran was ever really a tool of Charleur's He was a freebooter and lawbreaker, but he had his code. Even Charleur knew him well enough not to risk a broken neck by suggesting dirt—but diamond smuggling, that is different. Diamond smuggling breaks the civil, not the moral code, and one pays the risk by jail, not by defilement of conscience. And Charleur had a mass of illicit diamonds accumulated back in the Malaria Coast hills. They were worth millions if he could only find a man brilliant and daring enough to whip them across British territory into Zatar. He saw no hope of such a man until the day Savaran ran from French warrants to the safe harborage of the emirate.

Charleur told Savaran he considered him heaven sent. He was the one man in Africa clever enough to get those diamonds through the devil's net the British police had spread, he whined in his oil-smooth voice. Three journeys was all that was needed—child's play to Savaran.

Savaran admitted that, if anything, Charleur had underestimated his gifts—Savaran had never erred on the side of modesty. There was, he said largely, not the slightest difficulty about fetching those diamonds—save Charleur.

Savaran knew Charleur and his history and, as he explained to the cringing halfbreed, he regarded the mere sound of his name as a stench. Savaran could not think of lending even the shadow of his genius to a creature whose record made all decent men vomit.

Charleur loosed a pencil-screech of laughter at that, as though he heard a neat joke against himself; but the payment he determined to exact for that insult he kept hidden in the slimes of his mind, for Charleur knew how to dissemble and wait. It was also a necessity. He must have Savaran if he was to get those diamonds. Also he knew cunning would get him, for he was aware that the lean adventurer had been left penniless through his flight from the French.

So he hid the rage with fawning grins and wrought slyly with the eagle-fierce man. He knew Savaran's scruples, he said, and would not dream of asking him to touch anything unclean—only these diamonds. And what is more, he would not even ask the tamer of lions and kings to act as his servant.

Hides His Rage

"See, you will serve not Charleur but yourself," he fawned. "You can fetch me those diamonds as an independent venture of your own. I will loan you money to make your first buying from the Baktu hillmen, the loan to be paid back when you resell the stones to me. The price I pay for them will give you fifteen per cent of profit."

Savaran thought swiftly, his fingers on the seven small coins that made all his wealth at the moment; then he said grimly:

"That at least keeps Savaran's name untainted. I will do it. But the profit will be fifty per cent, not fifteen."

They settled at thirty-three per cent after all the hagglings of Africa; a fair deal, for Savaran risked the bullets of police patrols by the score. But the usurer soul of Charleur did not see it like that. Hiding the rage of greed, he stored up yet another reason for vengeance upon this fierce and contemptuous man.

Savaran did not trouble to read what was in the rat's heart. That was his large way—Charleur, he held, knew Savaran too well to dare play him false. He was too busy smuggling those diamonds, anyhow. Two dazzlingly successful journeys he made, delivering the full quota of gems each time into Charleur's hands and receiving credit notes to be cashed when the business was done. A fine, fat sum was awaiting him at the end of his third and last trip—but he did not draw it. Something went wrong with that journey.

Savaran's contempt of the halfbreed undoubtedly blinded him, but, then, Charleur's messages seemed sound warnings also.

As Savaran slipped towards Zatar on that last run Charleur's messengers met him, saying that Verreker, commanding the Malaria Coast police, had word of Savaran's doings and was out after him. He had strung posts along all the likely routes, at Kavu, on the Leopard's road, at Vitoki. There was little chance of Savaran getting through unless he took to the hill or swamp tracks.

Charleur advised this. He suggested splitting the caravan—and the diamonds—into three, so that the smaller parties could creep past the police by the more obscure routes. Thus, even at the worst, one or two parties and their diamonds might be saved.

It was good advice, and Savaran never even suspected guile—wasn't Charleur even more anxious about those diamonds than himself? He divided his caravan and the gems, sending parties under headmen by two easier routes, while with Batwas, a wily local bushman Charleur had supplied, he, being Savaran, took the more difficult trail over the Mattabarri hills. Charleur no doubt counted on this, and, anyhow, there was Batwas to give his road away, for certainly treachery waited on that road. At the most hopeless part of the Mattabarri trail Savaran walked straight into the arms of Verreker.

Savaran Unsuspecting

Not even then did Savaran suspect Charleur. This was but the fortune of war, and he surrendered to superior forces without fighting, as a sensible man should. And Verreker, taking no risks, rushed him to the Malaria Coast capital, where, he being Savaran and the crime grave, no less a person than stern old Sir Ryall Murlin took him in hand.

Sir Ryall was not really old, a matter of the fifties only, but a hard life and a black tragedy in his history had burned him to a harsh, dry bitterness. A terrible man and iron in the service of the law—as Charleur knew to his cost and hoped Savaran would find to his.

Yet it was only as his carrier packs yielded packet after packet of illegal diamonds under the grim eyes of Sir Ryall that Savaran began to sense Charleur's treachery. The diamonds told him. They were the smallest and least valuable of their whole consignment. Some one who was sure that Savaran would be taken meant to lose as little as possible by it. He remembered that Batwas, Charleur's man, had seen to the division and packing of the stones.

But even this was but a prelude to worse. Sir Ryall, fingering amid the raffle of trifles from Savaran's personal baggage, suddenly gave a choking cry. Then he sprang to his feet, face white as a sheet under his tan, mouth working, and his eyes blazed rage and something like agony into Savaran's.

"You cutthroat dog," he cried. "Where did you get these?"

Savaran, astonished by this unexpected outbreak in a man of steely decorum, stared amazed before dropping his eyes to Sir Ryall's hand—yet what he saw there startled him even more. For that hand, which was shaking like a leaf, held a gold locket and an emerald studded bracelet; a woman's jewels found in his, Savaran's personal kit! He was so taken aback by the unexpected sight that he could do no more than gape and cry:

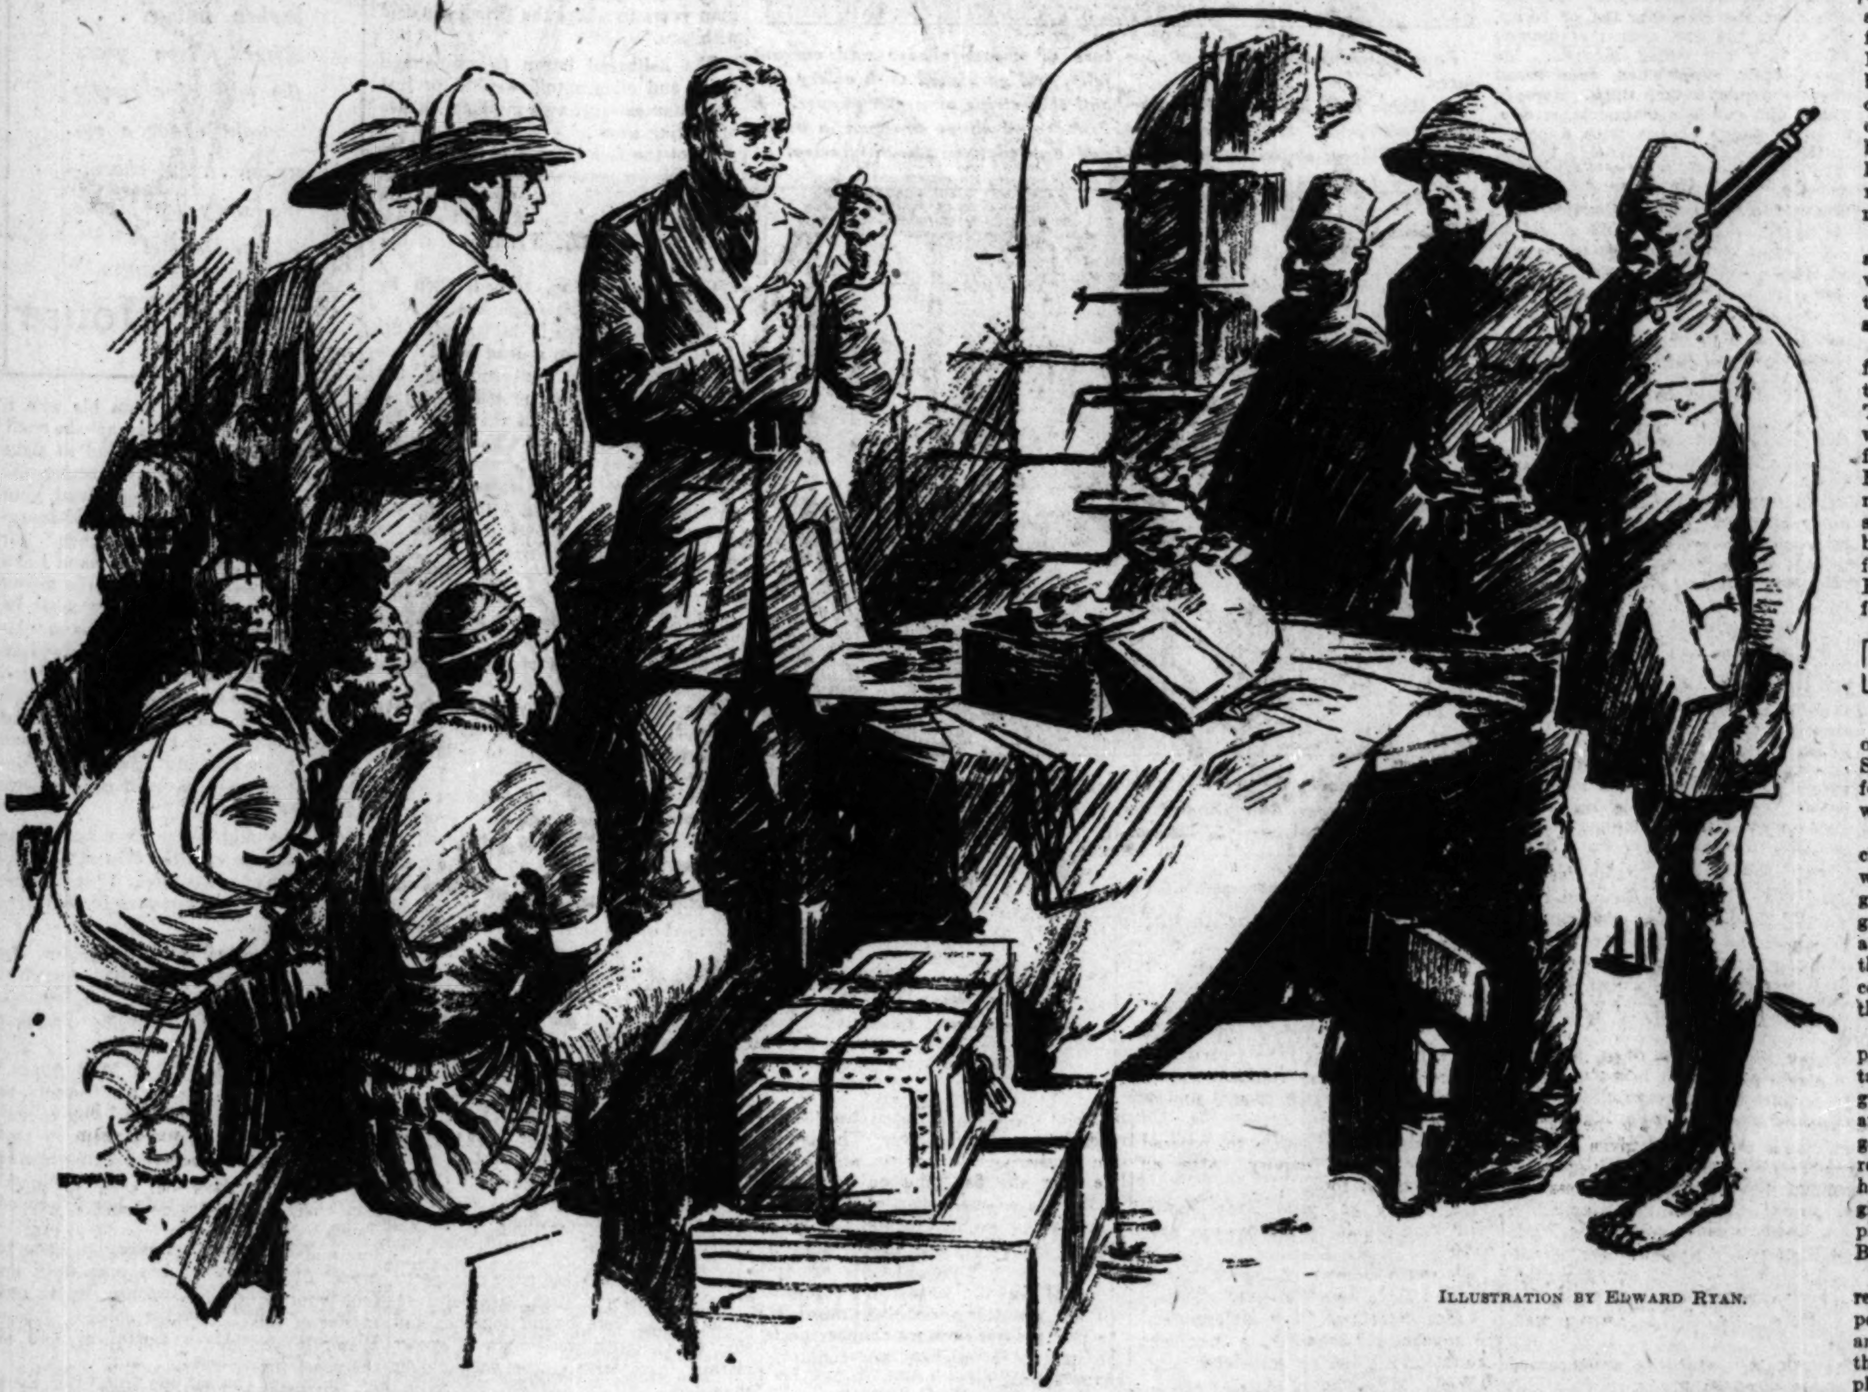

ILLUSTRATION BY EDWARD RYAN.

Sir Ryall, fingering amid the raffle of trifles from Saravan's personal baggage, suddenly gave a choking cry. Then he sprang to his feet, face white as a sheet under his tan, mouth working, and his eyes blazed rage and something like agony into Saravan's.

"I got them nowhere. I never saw them before. They have no right to be in my baggage."

"You lie!" shouted the astounding Sir Ryall. "You lie; but, by God, I'm going to tear the truth from you even if I do it with my own two hands."

He looked ready to do it immediately. He took a furious step to get round his desk, and then a more surprising thing happened—he gave a little moan and collapsed, fainting at Savaran's feet.

In the turmoil that followed this quite astonishing happening Savaran had his opportunity to think; with the result that he met Verreker with a grim face as the police chief turned from the bustle to order him to prison.

"A moment, Maj. Verreker," he said harshly. "You know me, Savaran. Whatever I am, I do not lie; nor do I dabble in unclean things. It seems to me that there is something unclean about those woman's trinkets, which I ask you to believe I never saw before. It also seems, from other things, that some one counted on Sir Ryall finding them on me and dealing more drastically with me in consequence. Because of this you will answer one question. Major, was your capture of me your own work or the result of a secret sent word?"

Verreker stared squarely into the fierce face. Savaran was a breaker of the law, but also he knew him to be straight in his way. He answered quietly:

"Surely those who work with Charleur of Zatar must expect treachery?"

Charleur's Revenge

Savaran's suspicions were certainties. He knew that Charleur, with the bulk of the diamonds safe in his hands, with Savaran's credits unpaid, had taken ample revenge for a few insulting words.

Or Charleur thought he had.

He forgot that Savaran was Savaran, who never lay down lightly under a wrong. And not only he but Verreker overlooked the lean adventurer's uncanny swiftness to act. As the askari escort marched their prisoner across the town from Sir Ryall's office in government house to the prison he suddenly burst through his guards as they threaded the native quarter . . . and Savaran once free in such a warren of twisted alleys and tortuous houses was a Savaran gone for good.

He was not caught. Thus it was that he now walked through the night-still streets of Zatar on his way to seek full explanation—and payment—from Charleur.

He did not attempt the main gate of Charleur's great house—there were too many dagger men there for smooth work—but sought for and found a place in the walls that would take him on to the roof of the lowest of the great ramble of buildings. It was along the roofs, over the heads of Charleur's guards that he meant to reach his prey.

It meant passing through the women's quarter and so a particular danger, but Savaran was indifferent to the risk. The bright eyes of the harem ought to be below and asleep at this hour, but if not—well, he was Savaran, who had a master touch in women as well as war.

Outbuilding after outbuilding he climbed until he came to the high main roof. Along this he crept, elated at the ease of his going until suddenly he crouched back into the shadows, scowling; on the very section of roof that was to give him his road down to Charleur sat a girl.

It was the girl who had sung distantly that sad slow song. She was alone. A frail stem of a thing rocking in soft woman's misery as she sang in the stark, clear light of the African moon.

Savaran, glaring at her, cudgelling his wits for a way to slip by her, found his anger slowly sliding into interest. She was a mere child—fifteen, sixteen; no more—and with none of Africa's early maturity, either. Her face, too, had an unusual delicacy in line and coloring; it was proud, sad, despairing, but cameo cut. There was even that in the timber of her voice that made him frown in puzzlement. How was such a girl as this in such a house as Charleur's?

He Finds the Girl

And why was there such bitter misery in her singing? The very cadence of her words cut down to the heart and, yes, in the clean light of the moon he saw the crystal sparkle of tears on her cheek. A girl's tears—less than that had lost Savaran a kingdom. Vengeance was forgotten and, as her song faltered and died and her face sank shuddering into her hands, he was beside her in the shadows, whispering softly:

"Moon in the sky of love, why does sorrow draw a knife across your heart? Speak without fear. Here is an arm to succor thee!"

She had courage, and that surely came from no Zatar swamp-Arab blood. She did not scream. She did not shrink. And if she trembled at the unexpectedness of a man's presence in such a place, her voice had steadiness enough as she answered Savaran's Zatar with Zatar as fluent.

"Who dares death upon this roof?" she breathed. "Stir but a hand and I strike this gong."

"That I saw before I spoke, O Loveliness," he whispered. "And so I spoke to show you need fear naught from me, yet might ask much."

"Can one ask any good of men who slink in the shadows?" she demanded with unexpected scorn. Yes, there was a strange, brave blood in her.

And he responded to that braveness. He stood out and bold in the moonlight. It might mean the garrotter's cord about his throat, but with Savaran a gesture meant more than a risk.

"I am Savaran," he cried in his large way. "If you have heard of me you will know that women trust me."

She stared up at his spare, bird fierceness. Yes, indeed, she was a child of cloistered innocence—she did not know his fame! A child yet no Zatar woman, for she responded neither with a squeal of fear nor the giggle of easy Arab coquettry, saying simply:

"I know thee not. But thou hast the look of a man a maid might turn to. What want you here?"

"I heard you singing with a broken heart," he said gently, the little matter of Charleur entirely forgotten. "I saw you weeping If you knew Savaran you would know him for a man who can ease such pain."

She examined him steady-eyed as he sank down beside her, and even seeing her fullfaced there was that in her that teased his mind . . . was it a memory?

Charleur's Hatred

"No man can heal me," she said evenly. "Mine is a woman's sorrow. I am about to be married."

"Few maids find that a weeping matter," he said with a surprising flash of white teeth in his gypsy face. "Though, of course, it depends on the husband."

"You have said it." Her voice was tragic. "Mine is to be the Han of Shenzi."

"You, wedded to that hog of cruelty," he cried aghast at such sweetness mating with such vileness. "That is infamy."

"It is truth," she said with the flatness of despair. "Charleur only waits on the Han of Shenzi to come here for the wedding to be accomplished."

"Charleur!" Mention of that name put a look of savagery into his face that made even her courage blench. "What is Charleur to thee?"

"Foster-father," she said huskily. "And as such law and life over me."

"What fatherly love is this that can mate a maid like thee to a ravening beast like the Han of Shenzi?" he cried.

"Love!" she answered. "Charleur does not love me—it is hate of me that made him choose the han for my husband."

"Truly there is a strangeness about this relationship," said Savaran, staring at her in perplexity. "What link binds thee to such a rat as Charleur?"

"You hate Charleur, too," she cried, hope leaping to her eyes. "Relationship—I do not know, but he says my mother was a concubine in his harem."

"Of what race was she?" he demanded, puzzling over her features.

"Circassian, he says," the girl answered. "A fair woman such as I am. I scarcely recall her, only that she was killed. I was but two then, or three. I can only remember cries and strife in the night and my mother covering me with her body as men rushed forward. She fought them and they slew her with daggers."

She paused, shuddering at the memory, and Savaran, suddenly alert and keen-eyed, asked softly, "How long ago was that?"

"Twelve or thirteen years," she said. "I am fifteen. But very little memory of that time remains. I recall being snatched from my bed and a long journey through the jungle, and all the rest of my life has been in Charleur's harem. Long years of his hating me because—because I am a living reminder of a great wrong done to him."

"What wrong?" he asked quickly.

"I know not," she said wearily. "Something connected with my mother. Perhaps she was unfaithful to him. Charleur will not tell me; he just lets memory nurse hate in his heart."

"And the crest of that hate is to marry thee to the wickedest human beast in Africa" said Savaran thoughtfully as he stared at her. "And Shenzi is in the Malaria Coast territory." A flame of understanding began to grow in his face as memory stirred, and he said more softly and more fiercely, "I begin to see that there are fouler depths to Charleur's soul than even I had plumbed. This marriage, when is it to take place?"

"That depends on the Han of Shenzi," she told him. "Charleur demands that he should come here to Zatar to marry me; the han says no. By tribal custom he must be married in his own kingdom and I must go there with Charleur, too to give me away. That is what Charleur fights against—going to Shenzi."

"By the living Allah, he would," cried Savaran with a fierce relish. "And tell me, does he add more and more to your dowry to tempt the han to override tribal law and come to Zatar to wed thee?"

"Yes," she nodded. "Even though he is loathe to venture beyond the Zatar border, Charleur's hate of me is so strong that he is ready to pour out gold to win the han, as win him he will in time."

"Maybe! But maybe also not without rousing suspicion in the han's primitive breast," cried Savaran with a fierce grin. "And before that suspicion can be allayed with an excess of gold Savaran should make his chance."

A Daring Plan

She caught the note of triumph in his voice and clung to him with the abandonment of the frightened child she was.

"You can save me?" she sobbed. "You can rescue me from the han and Charleur? You can—you will?"

His arm was about her, holding her slim, soft, trembling youth while his eagle face was alight with one of his flashing plans.

"Yes, it is more than possible, for am I not Savaran?" he cried. "But listen there will be a part for you to play, and it will need courage."

Holding her tight he talked as only Savaran could his face becoming more and more genial and ferocious as his quick genius found and built up the details of his scheme A daring, a reckless plan, since it was his, yet it won and soothed her. Even then, when he had finished, he went away by the road he had come instead of seeking out Charleur. Charleur's neck was safe from him that night, since there are better ways of dealing with a villain than by hanging him.

Savaran vanished again into the jungle glooms. Neither Verreker, who hunted him like a foxhound, nor Charleur, who, having heard of his escape, waited anxiously for word of him, had as much as a whisper of his movements. Yet even as the Malaria Coast askari and Charleur's spies combed the swamps and the hills for him, a dark and ragged sand-reading sheik with a hawk's face found his way into the court of the Han of Shenzi. There, winning the interest of the chieftain himself, he privately spilled and stirred sand to read heaven's intentions for that black and unlovely ruler's future.

A mere wandering necromancer, this strange, wild sheik; a person of no importance—yet, strangely, when he had left the Han that chieftain's suspicions of Charleur's queer eagerness to lure him to Zatar had become stronger. So strong, in fact, that he sent a curt and brutish message to the halfbreed, declaring that not all the gold or promises in the world would avail to make him break custom. The marriage to Charleur's foster daughter must take place in Shenzi or not at all. More, it must take place there before the present moon died—or never!

Charleur, torn between fear and frustrated rage, sat biting his knuckles in fury for days, seeking some way out but finding none until a gleam of hope came from—of all unexpected quarters—the Malaria Coast and Verreker.

Strange things had been happening to Verreker also.

Utterly baffled in his hunt for the missing Savaran, he was in the jungle, coaxing his helpless patrols to further efforts when word was brought to him that if he came alone to the Ghost Tree by the Vitoki river, he would find one who could undoubtedly bring him face to face with the vanished adventurer.

He Keeps the Tryst

Verreker, as bold in his way as Savaran, kept the tryst, and even as he walked across the clearing to the Ghost Tree there stepped from under its shadow a tall and spidery man, a creature striking if bizzare, in a wasp-waisted major general's uniform, on the breast of which gleamed three rows of medal ribbons—Savaran himself, face to face as promised and thoroughly enjoying the drama of the thing.

Verreker smiled wryly. The audacity of the fellow tickled him, even if the sight of a pistol in the hand of the finest shot in Africa told him that this audacity was not entirely folly.

"Why this palaver, Savaran?" he asked dryly "Are you demanding the unconditional surrender of the British empire or just giving yourself up as a criminal at large?"

"Half an hour's talk is all we need, Verreker," said the lean man genially. "After that you will be coöperating with me."

"Save your breath, my friend," said Verreker grimly. "I don't bandy words with jailbirds."

"No," grinned Savaran. "Well, then, will you allow the hangdog fellow to ask a question? What is the history of that locket and bracelet that caused Sir Ryall Murlin to faint?"

"Good God!" cried Verreker huskily He stared hard at the eagle-faced man, then, quietly, he sat down. "I think you are right, Savaran; there may be grounds for talk"

"Being right is one of my minor attributes," grinned the lean one, and he, too, sat, his pistol on his knee, and talked for two hours. Only his pistol was gone from his knee after the first hour.

It was a week after this talk that Charleur's gleam of hope came. Spies, not one but many, came running with heaven sent news—Verreker had cornered Savaran.

Verreker had run his man to earth in the Baktu hills on the far side of the Malaria Coast colony, eight hundred miles from Zatar. A big business, the spies said. Savaran was well placed, had collected a fighting force, and, moreover, he was Savaran, the devil himself to take. Verreker knew this as well as any man. He was making no mistakes. He had ringed Savaran's stronghold about and was calling up fighting men from all over the colony. Even the frontier police posts were being drained of officers and askari, so determined was Verreker to make his cordon about Savaran strong and sure before attacking. Along the border lines, in Shenzi and elsewhere, there now remained but skeleton detachments of men.

Charleur's spies thought that a golden age for smugglers had dawned. There were not police enough left to patrol the border even. Charleur saw it as something bigger than that.

It was a heaven—or hell—sent chance for consummating the marriage between the girl and the Han of Shenzi. The one opportunity in a lifetime when even his cringing skin need not fear crossing the Zatar frontier into British territory And it came at a moment when he craved it most. The suspicious han was now utterly unbending and the time limit he had set for the marriage had all but expired. He must act on his luck at once or forever fail.

Off for Shenzi

And the hate in him could not think of failure. He snatched at his chance. Sending messengers ahead to prepare for the marriage, he set out for Shenzi with the girl.

And even Charleur grew bold as he crept across the border. The good news was true. Everywhere the frontier guards had been drawn off for the grand hunt for Savaran. There was not a sign of an armed man anywhere, while the border villages were beginning to celebrate in disorder the withdrawal of the law.

In Shenzi itself things were even happier. There was usually a half battalion of African rifles with machine gun companies in Shenzi, for the han and his people were unruly and dangerous subjects. Now not even a rifle remained. Indeed, so rejoiced was the han himself that he was inclined to give his marriage second place to a plan for immediate revolt against his British overlords.

Charleur, his fear gone, his sly heart rejoicing at this talk of rebellion, supported him and promised to supply arms and ammunition—but only after the wedding. With the marriage accomplished beyond recall, he was even willing to meet the han on generous terms, he explained—but that marriage must come first. It was, indeed, a joy for Charleur to insist, for by doing so the girl would become the wife of this gross animal and then both would be captured by the British in this tool revolt. He could not have asked for anything better. It was like an answer of a prayer to the devil.

He prevailed. The marriage was hurried on by the han because he was eager to get at the British, by Charleur because he was even more eager to get away from the British and back to Zatar. The ceremonial day and night feastings began at once and every village for miles emptied itself into Shenzi town to taste and enjoyment. Two days of wild, blind, intoxicating orgy and there came the afternoon when the shrinking girl was led into the great palaver square of the city to join her hand and fate to a bull-necked brute.

High on a golden dais she and the han stepped, their glittering clothes barbaric in the hard, tropical sunlight. And Charleur, his face working with mean joy, stood close by the girl's elbow drinking in every word that consummated his hate.

A big old widad performed the rite, a strong faced old man with a notable beard, but inclined to be longwinded on the job. Twice the han, with his evil eyes on the girl's beauty, cried: "Haste, holy one!" But the priest only droned on, his rapt gaze fixed distantly on the back of the great square. Even Charleur, though he enjoyed every moment of the girl's torture, protested at last:

"O, saintly snail, make ending else the girl will die of strain before her husband's arms clasp her."

Even as he spoke the widad's face relaxed from dreamy volubility to a sharp hawk's smile and he said: "I have finished, O snake of the slimes!"

"Finished!" Charleur was too wrought up to grasp his words. "But you have not begun the marriage rite yet."

Savaran's Revenge

"That is because I have decided to change the ceremony," grinned the fierce lips. "It is no longer a marriage—it is an execution."

"An execution!" Charleur cried. "What do you mean?"

"Turn about," said the widad. "You will understand."

They turned. They looked, the Han of Shenzi as well as Charleur, and stark fear leaped to their faces. They saw Verreker on a great horse riding slowly through the square.

Verreker coming straight at them and behind Verreker a half company of armed askari, and round the square, on the roofs even, more soldiers and many

The Tribune Cook Book

—By Meta Given

These Menus Will Satisfy the Desire of Every Hostess to Make Her Parties Memorable by the Excellence of the Food Served.

Do you sometimes long for a party menu that is different? The most competent hostess is occasionally puzzled to know what to serve. Perhaps she is thinking of her club that is to meet at her house sometime soon. Or she may be planning an engagement party for the nicest girl she knows. Or the time may be rolling around to have a good old fashioned house warming for her friends.

If the club meeting is in the afternoon, there is the delicate problem of not seeming to skimp and yet not to offend with portions that are too large. Something light enough not to spoil one's dinner, something just enough out of the ordinary to lend a special distinction to the occasion is what is needed. Club luncheons served in the late afternoon are not to supply nourishment but more to promote sociability and, therefore, should be light, dainty, pleasing in flavor and always served in small portions.

An effort should be made not to go to extremes in choosing a menu but rather to put one's energy on details of preparation and serving. If one serves unusual and expensive foods it is embarrassing to guests who are soon to be hostesses. Perhaps they cannot afford expensive foods and do not have the time to give to preparation of elaborate menus.

Decoration and Food.

For an announcement party, the appointments and decorations must not only suit the mood of the guest of honor and her friends but the food chosen must also be in keeping with the spirit of the affair in both taste and color appeal.

When the occasion is that jolly get-together of friends, one must have good food. Yet such dull things as ease of preparation must not be forgotten by the hostess who wishes to derive every possible pleasure from the event.

Preparing a delicate feast is an art, but one not too difficult to master. We need to serve foods that are attractive to the eye and soothe but do not satiate when eaten. And this reminds me of the European criticism of American food, which is this: We are too lavish in a multiplicity of dishes at the expense of quality and wholesomeness. Perhaps this criticism is not always fair, but I rather think that most of us could use it constructively in this business of serving food. It is far better to have a few foods well prepared and beautifully served than several that have been slighted in preparation.

Parties Remembered.

In general, our guests remember our party longest by the foods we serve. At all events the ideal party necessarily includes ideal food. This is a natural human weakness. When we were children a party was a flat failure without "good eats," and the better they were the more successful the party. And our ideas do not change much in our mature years. Just think of the receptions that stand out in your memory. In nine cases out of ten you remember them by the food. Men and women alike are voluminous in their praise of good things to eat.

Knowing this, every hostess should take pride in selecting and preparing food that is sure to please. And the only way to make it different is to put one's individuality into the planning and preparation.

The secret of making the preparation and serving of party food a delight is to plan the menus carefully and then work out every detail of preparation so that a large part of the work can be done ahead of time. Only last minute details should be left until just previous or just after the guests arrive. It takes a kitchen engineer to carry out such plans, but many women can with remarkable ease serve quite a number of people with no assistance in preparation. However, almost all women feel the need of some help for cleaning up and rearranging after the party is over.

Utilize Assistance.

This perhaps sounds like a lot of work. Some hostesses do not plan their menus and never struggle over what they consider the minor details of a party, but they leave that to the caterer. Pondering over such weighty questions as chicken mousse versus lobster croquettes and the relative virtues of lemon meringue pie and cherry tarts is too much for them, they say.

They prefer to have energy left for attending to all the nice little details such as table and house decorations, the amount of silver required, seating arrangements, etc. It is wise for them to turn the drudgery work of food preparation over to some capable person. In this way parties are much more of a delight if one can always count on things turning out in the right way. Unless one is perfectly sure of success, it may be wise to share responsibilities—let the caterer help with all activities necessary for the serving of food. Then this will allow the hostess to give more attention to the food. It is true that caterers save much trouble and most of them prepare excellent food. But it is usually much more satisfactory to coöperate with them in planning the menu. With this arrangement, the hostess is assured that her menu will be different.

If the hostess doesn't make her menus individual she may be disturbed to find that she is serving exactly what all of her friends have been serving. Caterers sometimes lose sight of the fact that the menu they chose last week for Mrs. Jones, one of your club members, is exactly what they are serving at your house today. While their pastries and entrees may be perfect, it is most disappointing to guests to be served the same old "sixes and sevens" in foods from party to party.

New Ideas in Food.

Perhaps you are looking for some new ideas in food to serve the next time you entertain. If you are serving your club at your home and you are in a quandary as to what to serve those twenty or twenty-five people menus I. and II. will give you just the ideas you want. Or perhaps they are just what you want to turn over to your caterer or to some one else who will prepare the food under your direction.

For the announcement party menus III. and IV. should help. For the house warming menus V. and VI. may suit your needs.

Club luncheons may be served expediently on trays [the inexpensive kind]. These can be set up in the kitchen for each person with the silver, napkin, and food and when passed giving each person a place for his cup, saucer, and plate. Usually such service is limited to two courses, but a great variety of food may be secured. Coffee, tea, wafers, sandwiches, candies, and nuts can be served from a large table arranged in buffet fashion.

For the announcement party it is better to seat guests at one large table or at small tables for four. For the get together of several friends there is nothing nicer than to have the dining table arranged in buffet fashion with coffee, tea, and a beautiful array of sandwiches, candles, and nuts. Plates large enough to hold cups and sandwiches may be passed to each individual.

Open Faced Sandwiches.

Open faced sandwiches may be served at the elaborate tea or reception or as the first course of dinner, when they are called canapes. To make open sandwiches, slice bread about one-quarter inch thick. Remove crusts and cut into diamonds, circles, or other fancy shapes with a cooky cutter. Spread with creamed butter, then vary the toppings as your fancy dictates. The open sandwiches in illustration are made as follows:

1. Place the caviar in the center, then a ring of mashed egg yolk blended with mayonnaise, and add finely chopped egg white moistened with French dressing.

2. Cut a slice of tomato to fit the circle of bread, then a slice of hard cooked egg, and on top place a thin slice of cucumber.

3. Anchovies surround a mixture of chopped egg and green pepper.

Spreads for other open faced sandwiches are: Anchovy paste and chopped hard cooked eggs; caviar and finely chopped onions; snappy cheese with pimiento strips; jelly and nut with a cream cheese border; chicken paste with chopped pickle, and sardine paste and hard cooked egg.

Checkerboard Sandwiches.

Cut graham and white bread into crosswise slices about 1-3 of an inch thick. Spread with creamed butter, then a mixture of 2-3 cup cream cheese, 2 tablespoons milk and ½ cup finely chopped nuts or 1-3 cup well drained crushed pineapple. Beginning with a slice of white bread and, alternating the white and graham slices, lay together six slices spread with the mixture. Press together firmly. Trim crusts from edges neatly so as to form a perfect sandwich cube. Cut the sandwich cube into 1-3 inch slices.

Have ready another sandwich cube in which the bottom layer is a slice of graham bread and each slice has been spread with a mixture of olives, nuts and mayonnaise. Cut this into 1-3 inch slices. Alternate layers from first and second cube. Wrap firmly in a slightly dampened cloth and keep in a cool place. Cut in 1-3 inch slices to produce checkerboard effect. Yield: One loaf makes 12 sandwiches.

CHICKEN ROLLS.

1 cup chicken (from breast).
1 cup tongue.
1 teaspoon celery salt.
Few grains cayenne.
2 teaspoons anchovy mixed to a paste (may be omitted).
½ cup mayonnaise.

Chop meat and put through a food chopper. Add seasonings and mix well. Remove the crust from a loaf of moist bread. Cut in ¼ inch slices. Trim each slice into a rectangular shape, spread light with soft butter and then with the mixture. As a rule, the good sandwich maker is reasonably generous with her filling so that the morsel is a flavory one. Roll the slices as you would a jelly roll. Wrap in a damp towel and keep in a tightly covered jar until ready to serve. It is highly important that sandwiches be fresh and moist. Just before serving, tie them with ribbon. Insert a little sprig of cress in the end of each roll. Yield: 16 sandwiches.

CREAMED SWEETBREADS WITH PEAS.

8 pairs sweetbreads.
1 pound mushrooms.
2-3 cup butter.
1 quart thin white sauce.
2 cups veal stock.
1 quart peas.

Put sweetbreads into cold water and leave an hour, changing the water twice. This will clean and whiten them. Drain well, add cold water to cover and ¼ cup vinegar and simmer 5 minutes. Again put sweetbreads in cold water. When they are lukewarm, trim away all skin, fat and stringiness. Wrap them in a clean cloth and press to absorb all moisture. Brown sweetbreads in half the butter. Add veal stock and simmer about half an hour. Chop sweetbreads and mushrooms that have been browned in the other half of the butter and simmered 7 or 8 minutes. Combine with white sauce and serve at once on rounds of toast. Serve with a garnish of green peas tossed in butter. Yield: 24 servings.

CHICKEN A LA KING.

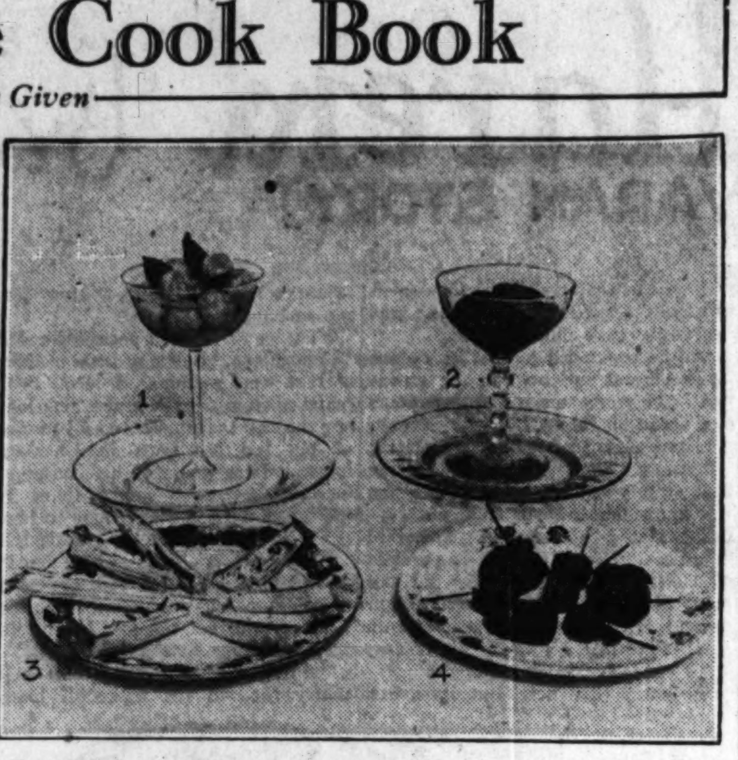
1⅓ green peppers, shredded.
¾ pound mushrooms.
½ cup butter.
1¼ cups flour.
1½ quarts thin cream.
1½ quarts chicken broth.
Salt.
Pepper.
9 cups cold chicken, diced.
1½ pimientos, shredded.

Cook peppers and mushrooms, if they are raw, slowly in butter 8 minutes. Cover while cooking. Remove mushrooms and peppers from fat, add flour, cream, broth, and seasonings. Cook 5 minutes over a low flame, stirring to keep smooth. Add chicken, mushrooms, pimiento and pepper, and reheat in double boiler to prevent curdling. Yield: 24 servings.

CHEESE RING.

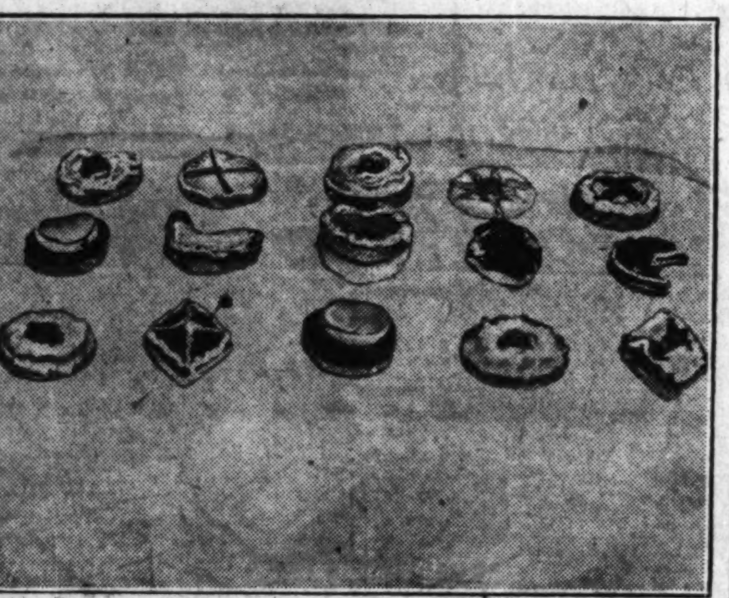
1 tablespoon gelatin.
¼ cup milk.
1 cup cream.
1 cup thick cream.
5 tablespoons grated yellow cheese.
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
¼ teaspoon mustard.
1 teaspoon salt.
⅛ teaspoon cayenne.
¼ teaspoon paprika.

Soak gelatin in milk. Whip cream add cheese and seasonings. Dissolve softened gelatin over hot water and add to cream mixture. Mold in a ring or chill. Unmold and fill center with a crisp green or fruit salad. Serve with French dressing. Yield: 6 servings. Increase the ingredients four times for 24 servings.



Four delicious appetizers for your party.

1. Melon balls in orange juice garnished with mint. 2. A shrimp cocktail. 3. Celery, stuffed with a mixture of cream cheese and currant jelly, and garnished with celery tips and thin strips of green pepper. 4. Prunes and olives wrapped in bacon and broiled until bacon is crisp.



Some gay, saucy little morsels for your party. Open face sandwiches of white and graham bread are easily cut with cookie cutters in many shapes.

STUFFED PRUNE SALAD.

6 dozen large cooked prunes.
6 dozen almonds or
6 dozen whole pecans.
6 dozen marshmallows.
Crisp lettuce leaves.
6 cups French salad dressing.

Remove pits from prunes and preserve shape as well as possible. Chop nuts and marshmallows and fill generously, yet carefully, into hollow of prunes. Lay three prunes on a crisp lettuce leaf. Serve with salad dressing. Yield: 24 servings.

JELLIED FRUIT SALAD.

½ cup granulated gelatin.
½ cup cold water.
2 2-3 cups sirup from canned fruit.
½ cup sugar.
Few grains salt.
1 cup lemon juice.
4 cups ginger ale.
4 cups canned fruit.
½ cup Canton ginger (the kind that comes packed in a sirup).
Mayonnaise dressing.
Whipped cream.

Soak gelatin in cold water to soften. Heat fruit sirup to boiling point. Add softened gelatin, sugar and salt. When cool, add lemon juice and ginger ale. Just as gelatin begins to set stir in both the canned fruit and Canton ginger which has been cut into small pieces. Turn into 24 individual molds. Let stand until firm. Remove from molds and serve with mayonnaise dressing combined with an equal amount of whipped cream.

FRUIT SALAD.

4 slices pineapple.
4 bananas.
2 pears.
¼ cup mayonnaise.
6 maraschino cherries.

Dice pineapples, bananas, and pears. Combine lightly with mayonnaise. Put salad into unmolded cheese ring. Garnish with finely chopped maraschino cherries. Yield: 6 servings. Increase the ingredients four times for 24 servings.

Women the World Over

Women students at Swarthmore college, a Quaker institute of learning in Pennsylvania, have requested a special room in which they may smoke.

Nine women are now serving on a grand jury in the District of Columbia. This is the largest number ever to serve to inquire into charges of crime.

machine guns. They looked once upon this fearful sight, then Charleur screamed in terror and the han swore thickly, while both swung vengefully upon the widad.

He was no longer turban-crested, bearded, or a priest, but an eagle-faced man with a pistol in each hand.

"Savarini!" choked the Han of Shenszi, and would have leaped from the dais but for the menace of those pistols.

"Savarani!" screeched Charleur, and sank to his knees in abject terror.

"Savarani!" mocked the gypsy adventurer, enjoying his gesture. "Savaran here to take payment for treachery, as is his habit, Charleur, and paying you back with your own pretty trick. You sought to trap me on British territory, where imprisonment would be longer and more certain for me, so I have lured you by trickery cleverer than yours to where the Brtish can deal with you."

The halfbreed began to whine and plead and offer untold wealth for just five minutes—just two minutes' chance of getting away.

"Not the flick of an eyelid, Charleur, and not for any sum," said Savaran fiercely. "The day has come when you have to pay in full—look round and see who follows Maj. Verreker to the dais!"

Charleur, shaking, turned, then he cowered back, collapsed in fear.

"Sir Ryall Murlin!" he wailed. "Sir Ryall Murlin—I am a dead man!"

The stern-faced governor of the Malaria Coast was pressing with a strange anxiety towards the dais. But his eyes were not on Charleur; they were on the girl. He thrust his way to her side, stared and stared into her face like a man wrung with a terrible hunger and a terrible fear. Then his strong lips began to tremble.

"You were right, Savaran," he cried hoarsely. "Her mother is in every line of her." His hands reached shaking toward the girl. "Agnes! Agnes! My little girl. Do you remember me at all—your father?"

She fainted in his arms, and it was fully an hour later before she had recovered enough for him to tell her all it meant.

She was indeed his daughter; that was why Charleur hated her. From the moment Sir Ryall had sentenced the halfbreed to the lash and the quarries twenty years before the man had nursed vengeance in his heart. He had escaped from the quarries by bribes, for he was evilly rich even then, and, nursing his hate, he had waited his chance to strike back. That chance had come when Sir Ryall had taken his wife and their three year old baby on a tour of inspection in the colony.

Savaran Vanishes

There had seemed no risk in it; the colony was peaceful and when the men of a distant village had come to his camp to beg him to shoot some man-eating lions which were destroying herds and killing women, he saw no danger in leaving his wife and baby alone, even in taking most of his escort to act as beaters.

The story of those man-eaters was false, of course, a ruse to denude the camp of guards, for on the night after Sir Ryall had left a band of cutthroats burst upon the half-deserted camp and Sir Ryall's wife was killed in defending her baby.

"I thought you were dead, too, my dear," Sir Ryall told the girl. "We had neither word nor trace of you. I thought the killing of both the things I loved most in this world was part of Charleur's revenge. O, he left me in no doubt that it was his work, though he was too vilely clever to give me any definite proof or chance of punishing him—as I shall punish him now. But I did not know that this murder was only part of his revenge on me, that you were still alive and being saved for an even more abominable infamy—this degradation of you, a white girl and my daughter, through marriage to the most unspeakable brute native in my own territory. Horrible! Horrible! I should never have known until I saw you as the Han of Shenzi's wife."

Next Week:

Fate joined with the ghosts of an old house to mend two broken hearts. . . . After fifteen years the puff of a candle brought about a reunion. . . . A charming story by Mollie Panter-Downes:

The House

"As I should have been his wife if it had not been for Savaran," she cried.

"If Charleur had not tried to slake his hate for Savaran by putting the locket that used to hang round your neck and your mother's emerald bracelet among Savaran's baggage," Sir Ryall said. "He knew that when I saw those precious things I would be merciless to Savaran, thinking he must be connected in some way with the murder of your mother and you. If Savaran had not seen how those jewels affected me, seen some sort of likeness to me in your face, remembered my tragedy and Charleur's hate—if his quick wits had not seen all this and acted on his deductions as only Savaran can, we—we might never——"

"You would never have saved me from marriage with the Han of Shenzi," she said as he hesitated. "It is true. My case was hopeless save for Savaran. Where is he?"

They searched everywhere for the gypsy adventurer. He had vanished again and with his usual completeness. But he had left a message. Verreker brought it.

"He sent his love to Miss Agnes," Verreker said. "And his respects to you, Sir Ryall, and begged you to forgive him not presenting them in person. He felt it might be embarrassing for us."

"Embarrassing—but how?" asked the girl.

"Well, it is embarrassing to have to hail as a deliverer the man duty ordains we should sentence to a long term in jail," Verreker smiled. "Savaran is essentially tactful as well as most other things."

That, of course, was true. But there were other reasons for the gypsy adventurer's rapid departure. He was riding hard towards Zatar. He meant to cash in Charleur's credit notes and also take the diamonds before the halfbreeds majordomo learned that his master was to be hanged by the neck until dead.

Savaran believed in getting a complete quittance from all rogues who tried to cheat him.

Home Is a Fine Toy Store

—By Gladys Huntington Bevans

The Simplest Things: Cardboard Boxes, Sand, Water, and All the Treasures of the Kitchen Drawers Will Mean Hours of Joy to the Children.

"Short Reading Reference for the Expectant Mothers" will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Nowadays we can go to the toy departments and toy stores and buy toys perfectly suited to our children—physically, psychologically, educationally, and every other "ally." If for any reason we do not want to do so—for financial or other reasons—we can stay at home and supply our children, out of the contents of the house, with sufficient equipment to keep them happy and contented for many hours.

One great toy and never failing delight is sand. And though you can't have your own beach or your own sand pile [if you live in the city and in an apartment] a large bag of salt will be an almost perfect substitute. The children can play on the floor by either spreading an old sheet on the floor or taking up the rugs. With a train of cars, or a track, or derrick for loading and unloading, or a few boxes with strings for pulling, the children will be happy for a long time. Spoons and cups can be additional utensils. Simple sand chutes, which children love, can be made by folding a long narrow piece of cardboard lengthwise and propping it up against a box, or a stack of books.

Playing Store.

Another thing children a little older can get endless enjoyment from is playing store. There is the grocery store with boxes and bags containing salt, and dried beans, and dried peas, and tea, and coffee, and the canned things [actually or pretendingly], and little sheets of paper, and string, and small paper bags in which to wrap the purchases.

Or they can have a dry goods store. Long narrow strips of cloth wound on little pieces of cardboard for the "yard" goods, stacked in piles on little shelves, and buttons and snaps and pins and various nuggets from the work box and scrap basket can constitute the stock. Yard goods can be measured off and cut, buttons and pins sold and many other imitative details carried out. Shopping lists can be made and sales slips, and there is money to make of disks cut out of cardboard. Market baskets are fun, too, and plenty of paper and bags and string to wrap up the purchases bring a special thrill.

Then next on the list is boxes. There are endless imaginative possibilities in boxes. The large corrugated box the grocer sends your order in and can sometimes be prevailed upon to leave, is a delight to the littlest one. He can climb in and out endlessly and sit down in it and turn it on its side and hide, or play house.

Shoe boxes can be locomotives or trucks or automobiles, depending on the whim of the owner. For the older girls they can be made into doll's houses. Windows and doors can be made by cutting with a knife or sharp scissors a shape like an H turned on its side and folding back the flaps thus made for the shutters and the doors. Furniture can be made of cardboard, and curtains and draperies and upholstery of scraps of cloth. You can have as many rooms in your house as you have shoe boxes. When the children are a little older both the boys and girls can use the shoe boxes for theaters and simple extemporaneous plays can be given.

Treasures in the Kitchen.

Then there is the kitchen. The small kitchen utensils that are usually kept in a drawer are fascinating things to the baby. There's the egg beater to turn, and the potato masher and the large spoons that can make a delightful clatter. [Of course, extract the knives and other dangerous weapons.] And the kitchen shelves with the pots and pans to be taken up and down and fitted together and used as cymbals, not to mention the lids to be matched to the pots. The older children will like to open up the groceries as they come from the store and put the sugar and salt and flour, and coffee, and other provisions from their paper containers into their proper cans.

They like, too, straightening out the bureau drawers. That is really exciting. Ribbons to be wound in little piles and stacked away, stockings to be rolled into buns, jewelry to be sorted and exclaimed over and tried on, and powder boxes and manicure equipment to be arranged in orderly rows—why, that is "the cream in their coffee." Of course, a little bit of praise will not be amiss. "Good! There are my best stockings. I couldn't find them," and "Now, won't it be a comfort to find a pin without having to rummage all through the drawer every time." And the sewing box is another field of endeavor if there are plenty of spools of colored cottons and silks and things to keep the job from seeming drab.

For the older boys permission to use some of the hardier chairs, the more utilitarian pillows and old blankets which can be made into caves and tents will provide lots of excitement. A flashlight or a small electric lamp and a book, or some eats will be the final touch for the pirates or the desperadoes cast on a desert isle who are hiding in their caves.

"Dressing Up."

Then there is "dressing up." The boys, of course, will have a propensity for pillows stuffed into their fronts, but the girls are for more esthetic effects. They can have hilarious afternoons with a few "properties," as the actors say. But they do have to be the right age to enjoy this special form of entertainment, and the right temperament, too, for some children cannot get the endless amusement out of this that others can.

Then there is last of all water, my especial favorite. So many things can be made on it and in it and with it. There is the bath tub for sailing boats and the kitchen faucet and sink for other aquatic sports. Sail boats can be made in many ways. A half inch slice from a large cork makes a seaworthy sailing vessel. The mast can be either a darning needle, a large pin or a beheaded match. The sail will be a piece of colored paper.

Or a boat can be made of a small piece of wood, or a square of paper folded [a trick I suppose we all know]. A little imagination will do the rest.

Makes Them Resourceful.

These are only a few of the possibilities of pastimes to be found in any home, however humble. You probably know many more and your children can devise still others. Let them do it, even if it does mean bother and confusion and work for you, for it tends to make them resourceful and imaginative and able to accommodate themselves to their surroundings. Even the young ones can be taught to be somewhat helpful, too, in clearing up.

Of course, I am not belittling their toys—they should have plenty of the right kind, but there is richness in the contents of a home that can satisfy many phases of the child's desire to play, and through playing to learn manual dexterity and muscular control, creative imaginative play, inventiveness—all those things which the modern toys are especially designed to inculcate and develop.

Incidentally, many of these suggestions are a blessing when one has a convalescent child. I have seen a child play for hours in bed with a little salt on a sheet and a spoon and cup, or making little boats, or tidying up a sewing box. It will help a child during those trying days to be more self-sufficient, and that in turn will shorten the period, after an illness, when he continues to want to be the center of the universe, the hub of your wheel, and the exacting apple of your eye!

Don't Squeeze Blackheads —Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.

Doctor's THREE RULES
Big Help to Bowels

WHAT a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour daily.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other mild ingredients that could not hurt even a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

Clean up that coated tongue, sweeten that bad breath, and get rid of those bilious headaches. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will soon free the bowels from waste. You'll eat better and sleep better, and feel better all over. Generous bottles at all drugstores.

Blend of Races Is Italian Hope in South Tyrol

Rely on Economic Development of Province.

(This is the fifth and last of a series of articles on Italy's conquered provinces and on the Adriatic problem by a Tribune correspondent who has just completed a 2,000 mile trip along the Dalmatian coast and through Italian Tyrol.)

By David Darrah.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Picture in Rotogravure Section.)

BOLZANO. — [Special Correspondence.] — For many years the Italians considered the church an obstacle to the thorough Italianization of the province of Bolzano. The clergy were German and opposed to the Italian rule. And they were powerful, because the people here are devout Catholics and ultraclerical. That obstacle now has partially been removed by the conciliation between state and church. The clergy, if anything, are an advantage to the Italian government. In the country districts the parish priest is the link between the German speaking peasant and his government. The priest reads to the peasant the Italian proclamations and notices which he does not understand.

Before the conciliation the devout Tyroleans were told the Italian government was iniquitous; it imprisoned the pope in the Vatican. Since the conciliation the clergy, even German, are better disposed towards Italy. Their influence is supposed to have made itself felt in the recent election of the chamber of deputies, for the figures of the elections returns from Bolzano, German and antagonistic as it was, were astonishing. Out of 52,-000 voters 41,139 went to the polls and of these 38,243 voted their approval of the Fascist régime and only 2,809 voted against it. The general explanation of this was that the clergy had induced the voters to go to the polls and told them how to vote. Otherwise such an overwhelming vote by a racial minority for a government regarded as an oppressor would have been difficult to explain.

Trouble Surmounted.

Before the conciliation the Vatican's policy toward the Tyrol was a difficult problem. It could not favor Italianization without offending the strong Centrist party in Germany and Bavaria. The Vatican at that time probably sympathized with the desire of the Tyroleans to have their religious instruction in their own language; to have done otherwise would have incurred the risk of being charged by the German Centrists that Vatican policy was identified with Italian nationalism. Now that difficulty has been surmounted by the Lateran pact and the concordat, and the Italian government can at the same time control the appointment of bishops by the clause which makes appointees' names submissible to the Rome government to see if there is no political objection against them. The government exerts as much pressure as possible to secure an infiltration of Italian clergy into the province.

The Vatican's difficulties are illustrated by the case of the bishopric of Bressanone ,or Brixen. That bishopric to which the province belongs was vacant for about four years, and was left so for reasons of prudence. Before the conciliation, had a German bishop been appointed, trouble would have been raised with the Italians. Had an Italian bishop been appointed, on the other hand, the German speaking Catholics would have been aroused against the Vatican, the Centrist party in Germany indignant, and many of the anti-Italian clergy probably would have emigrated.

Last spring the Vatican named Mgr. Geisler to the vacant post. The Rome government approved the choice, although he was of the German tongue, and he seems to fill the bill also with the German population. From his speeches when he was installed he appears circumspect. He speaks well of the Fascist government and loyalty to the new rule, and at the same time seeks to do what he can for the German traditions of his people.

A Bishop's Tact.

Geisler was born in the Zillerthal, in northern Tyrol, and for a long time was professor of theology in the seminary at Brixen, or Bressanone. Before his installation Mgr. Geisler went to Rome, swore allegiance to King Victor Emmanuel, and visited Mussolini, and at his installation, in a speech before the Fascist authorities, he admonished his flock to be loyal to the best of the new conditions, in eulogistic terms of the civilization of Rome. He said: "I swore to respect and make my clergy respect the king and the government. I promised to work for the welfare of the Italian state and to avoid any damage that would menace it. Only by collaboration with the civil authorities can the welfare of the community be promoted."

Expressing gratitude to the Italian government for appointing a German as bishop, he said it behooved the clergy and citizens to give obedience to the state in return for it. The bishop praised Mussolini: "In the breast of that man who seems to be made of iron and marble beats a great and noble heart in which even citizens of German language find affection. If, in the past, he has sometimes made his strong arm felt, we, in the future, will feel more and more his paternal affection for Italy's new citizens. While he is inexorable to Italy's enemies he is kind to those who perform their duty as citizens with conscience."

These words are highly significant of the new influence which is working in the Tyrol. They were described as magnificent in the Italian press and were applauded by the Fascist prefect and other officials who heard them. The town was lighted up and illuminated in honor of the new bish-

ROMANCE [3 Stars]. BIG BOY [3 Stars].
ABRAHAM LINCOLN [4 Stars]. MELODY OF THE HEART [3 Stars].
AFRICA SPEAKS [3 Stars]. MONTE CARLO [3 Stars].

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD morning!

What a lot of lively stepping you did in September! That is, what a lot you did if you took in all the good movies that opened last month.

"ROMANCE" started just before I went away, and, as always, I found Greta Garbo glamorous. The picture is the screen adaptation of Edward Sheldon's play which Doris Keane made the talk of towns a number of years ago and which details the romance between a famous diva, who has been loved by many men, and a young minister who is the first man she has ever really loved.

Said the original review: "Miss Garbo's portrayal of Rita Cavallini is exquisitely sympathetic and appealing. Lewis Stone . . . does distinctive work. . . . From the production standpoint, 'Romance' is a smooth and lovely thing. The dialogue is compelling; minor parts are well played, and the story has body. And Greta Garbo, in the crinolines of 1865, talking in her marvelous, husky voice, is, as ever, the great Garbo."

So saying, deponent left for other parts and Miss Roberta Nangle took possession of the typewriter. She's not in town now or I'd ask her to choose which of the pictures she liked well—she liked the best. But I'm left on my own, so, after a careful scanning of her interesting reviews, I have picked the films catalogued at the top of the column.

"BIG BOY" starred Al Jolson and gave him, said Roberta, a rôle that "fits him like an old shoe. . . . 'Big Boy' in the movies practically is the same hilarious comedy it was on the stage . . . you'll find Jolson's blackface comedy, Jolson's songs, and Jolson's wise cracks. And isn't that enough? . . . Direction, photography, dialogue, and continuity are perfect. . . . There are nice people in the supporting cast, but they don't count, because this picture is all JOLSON. . . ."

"ABRAHAM LINCOLN" Miss Nangle declared a masterpiece, though admitting that a "dangerous word to throw to carping critics." "Never-

City Will Get Ready for Opera by Devoting Week to Publicity

By Edward Moore.

GETTING ready for the opera season, the week of Oct. 13 has been set aside and officially proclaimed as Civic Opera week. You will therefore kindly pause and listen to what may be said to you during that period—and there will probably be quite a bit—about the virtues of the Civic Opera company as a cultural asset to Chicago.

It is going to be a stirring and cheerful scene, so they say. Throughout metropolitan Chicago banks, hotels, department stores, elevated lines, specialty shops, what not, will all be coöperating to call public attention to the fact that the opera season will begin on Oct. 27.

Metropolitan Chicago has been divided into forty-two sections, and the Associated Civic Opera clubs, one for each district, will establish headquarters and sponsor the activities. On Friday evening, Oct. 10, there will be a send-off meeting of the forty-two committees of these clubs and their chairmen, wherein final plans will be polished for the success of the week. In the forty-two headquarters there will be a selected group throughout the day and evening ready to answer questions about the opera season, and it is possible that matters of season subscription may be touched upon in the course of the conversation.

Window Displays, Speeches.

Stores will have window displays, banks will inclose circulars, 1,500 wagons as well as the Yellow Cab company machines will bear streamers, hotels and restaurants, loop and outlying, will print lines on their menu cards, all testifying to Civic Opera, and each of the forty-two districts will appoint three minute speakers to go before clubs and schools to talk upon opera as a cultural asset.

On Oct. 6 the officials of twenty-one prominent loop clubs are meeting at a luncheon in the Palmer house to coöperate with the Associated Civic Opera clubs in the campaign. On Oct. 16 the various Kiwanis clubs of metropolitan Chicago will hold a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman and have designated that date as Civic Opera day for their members.

So, in one way or another, the golden throats of 20 Wacker drive will be brought to the attention of the public. It may be that there are still a few unregenerate souls who prefer to consider opera on the basis of the entertainment it may afford them rather than on that of being culturally uplifted, but these can be taken care of through operatic announcements regarding répertoire, casts, and the general merits of the performances. After all, these are a more specialized variety of operatic patrons.

Singers Are Returning.

Songbirds of the Civic Opera company are beginning to gather in preparation for the coming season. Already in Chicago are Hilda Burke, Coe Glade, Sonia Sharnova, Chase Baromeo, Desire Defrere and Frank St. Leger.

Oscar Colcaire, American tenor who will make his debut early in the season, arrived in Chicago yesterday. Charles Hackett is expected to be here this week for a day or two, returning about Oct. 20 to remain for the season.

Cyrena Van Gordon, whose home is in Chicago, was in New York last week for a concert and has several

ANOTHER INVASION

By Tom Pettey.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—From time to time British, German and Russian talking pictures have been shown along Broadway or up and down its quieter side paths. They have been met with varying enthusiasm, and scant attention has been paid to any suspicion of a steady fare in imported exposed celluloid. In other words, the pictures in the past have been imported but unimportant.

Of late, however, the foreign talkies have been growing longer, better and more frequent. The period of novelty has passed. Russia has sent us half a dozen feature length talkies remarkable for their photographic treatment and entertaining in spite of their obvious propaganda. Germany has contributed a couple of dramas sparkling with originality. The British, probably, have shipped more "home made" films across the Atlantic than any other foreign "competitor," but until recently they have been nothing to raise the tariff about. Now, the best of the English talkies has arrived in the picturization of "Young Woodley," the stage play in which Glenn Hunter played a few years ago.

Not only have the British film makers sent over a hit, but they have entered into active competition with American producers for a share of Broadway's bankroll.

British Films Lease Cohan.

British International Films, Ltd., of which Capt. Harold Auten is New York representative, has leased the George M. Cohan theater for the exhibition of British talking films, and "Young Woodley" is the first of a long list of feature productions.

The Cohan theater, long the home of plays by, of and for George M. Cohan, America's best known flag unfurler, has gone British with a bang. Following "Young Woodley" will come "Atlantic," directed by A. E. Du Pont. "Atlantic" will be on view at the Cohan Oct. 3, and the picture in a German talking version will be shown at the same time at the 55th Street playhouse.

Other British attractions to be seen at the Cohan this fall include "Loose Ends," "Murder," "The W. Plan," "Suspense," and "Two Worlds."

"Young Woodley" is a delicate, touching story and the talkie version has been done in a restrained, simple manner that retains all of the charming essence of the play. The dramatic scenes are all intact, although the

Gotham Comedy Ridicules the Movie Industry

Kaufman-Hart Opus Makes Audience Roar.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — After sitting through three acts of a savagely satirical comedy, "Once in a Lifetime," and seeing the moving picture industry and its dumber executives held up to ridicule, Adolph Zukor slyly suggested that it seemed to him as though the authors were making sport of the movies.

It seemed that way to a house filled with Broadway celebrants, too. Half of them were of the movies or had had experience in the movies. And they laughed themselves into various states of exhaustion. This play will probably never have another audience like that. Not, at least, until it is shown in Los Angeles. I should greatly admire being in Los Angeles that night.

And yet most of the sport that Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman get out of their satirical flings at Hollywood is inspired by the industry as a loosely organized, extravagant, wasteful, stupidly managed business rather than by the dumb ones who run it. They [the dumb ones] are themselves victims of a business that has developed so suddenly and to such astounding profits that no one yet knows exactly what has happened or is happening in or to it.

Another Gold Rush.

The Kaufman-Hart opus catches the cinema folk about the time the talking picture has thrown everybody in pictures into a fever of apprehension. The talkies are coming; nothing can stop them; the silent drama and all its pudden-faced little beauties and all its strong, silent heroes are certain to be thrown out. What is to be done about it?

The smalltime vaudeville team of George Lewis, May Daniels, and Jerry Hyland catch the fever in New York. They sell their act and start west. They are '29ers following a trail of '49ers into another gold rush.

On the way out they meet an influential Hollywooder [Helen Hobart, the great movie critic, no less] and hit upon the scheme of opening a voice studio to teach the shallow sisters how to use their chest tones as well as their dimples. In Hollywood they are set up in business and become engulfed in the prevailing chaos. Mr. Glogauer, their barker, bobbing around helplessly in the whirlpool, finally deserts them. The official "name remover," hired by the week to take old names off and put new names on office doors, dispossesses them with his brushes.

Error Makes a Hit.

But immediately they regain their prestige when the dumbest among them decides to talk up to Mr. Glogauer, to tell him that what is ruining the picture business is the sheer incompetence of its directors. Mr. Glogauer is not used to being talked up to. The experience enthralls him. He appoints the dumb one a general supervisor, As a supervisor the dumb one makes a picture from a ten year old script by mistake. An old time Biograph copy with a sweetly simple wedding at the end. Picking Parts for Future Use of Miss Cornell

Critics Hope She'll Drop "Green Hat" Sinners.

By Charles Collins.

KATHARINE CORNELL, the somber and sultry enchantress of "Dishonored Lady," has caused some of her applauding reviewers to wonder when she will snap out of her "Green Hat" complex. Mr. Stevens urges her toward reformation by suggesting that she turn her attention toward Hedda Gabler — an Ibsen heroine who does nothing more desperate than nag her husband, flirt with an author, lend the latter a horse pistol to blow out his brains, and use its partner upon herself. He is confident that Miss Cornell will find artistic health in a course under Dr. Ibsen.

Mr. Lewis, successor to Amy Leslie, believes, on the other hand, that Miss Cornell will be able to cure herself of the Michael Arlen mood if she turns back in the American drama some seventeen years to Edward Sheldon's "Romance." There she will find the rôle of an Italian prima donna with a conventional operatic past whose present contains nothing more sinful than the seduction of a high-minded and high-churched clergyman.

I am not strongly in favor of either suggestion. I prefer my Heddas with a slight Scandinavian, or Greta Garbo, flavor; and Miss Cornnell is too dark and tropical of mask to fit into my ideas of small-town life somewhere in Nordland. As for "Romance," that play has become "dated," and is already film-fodder. Moreover, its heroine must use a pseudo-Italian accent, pronouncing "with" as "wiz," and I should greatly miss the clear-cut English diction that falls from Miss Cornell's lips.

Why Not Lady Macbeth?

Well, then, why not Lady Macbeth for this admirable actress of high-born ladies of unbleached lusts and homicidal rages? There is an answer to this rhetorical question: Miss Cornell is "different." She not only refuses to mime for the films; she also has no desire to appear in Shakespeare. Jane Cowl has set her an encouraging example this season by going over to the Bard [in "Twelfth Night"], but apparently Miss Cornell is too much of a realist to yearn for blank verse, either in tragedy or comedy. If she were a French actress, however, she would find herself completely at home in Racine's "Phèdre"—the lady who had an unhallowed hankering for her chaste son-in-law.

But whatever her tastes in the matter of rôles, Miss Cornell's future should not be a cause for alarm among dramatic critics. She will find better plays than the sensational vehicle called "Dishonored Lady"; she will represent more normal characters than Iris Fenwick of "The Green Hat"—an amateur harlot; Leslie Crosbie of "The Letter"—an adulteress and gun woman; or Madeleine Cary of "Dishonored Lady"—a wanton and a poisoner. She will interpret them, incidentally, with the distinction, vividness, and glamour that have made her the most brilliant of younger American actresses.

Miss Cornell, it is said, is now considering the rôle of a poetess for her next appearances—none other than Elizabeth Barrett Browning, as depicted by Rudolph Besier in a play recently staged in England under the title of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." It would be difficult for any dramatist, no matter how eager for melodrama, to inject a passional crime into the literary romance that begot the "Sonnets from the Portuguese."

Model Murderess.

The prototype of the elegant but satanic lady whose neurotic soul is so cleverly dissected by Miss Cornell was discovered by the authors of "Dishonored Lady" in accounts of a murder trial in Glasgow almost a hundred years ago. It was a "cause célèbre" which fascinated Great Britain, and it has been recorded by several literary criminologists, among them F. Tennyson Jesse.

This girl, named Madeleine Smith, daughter of a respected Glasgow family, had an amour with a certain L'Angelier, a clerk of French pedigree; accepted the proposal of marriage of an English gentleman; poisoned her lover when he threatened to expose their affair; and was acquitted at her trial. The facts in the case were followed closely by Margaret Ayer Barnes and Edward Sheldon in constructing the play, but they gave the story a modern dress.

F. Tennyson Jesse writes about the earlier Madeleine:

"She was born before her time. She had all the profound physical passion with which the northern woman so often makes her southern sister seem insipid; and this passion, of the essence of her being, was a thing supposed at that particular date not to exist in a 'nice' woman. Nowadays Madeleine would have had various outlets for the violence of her personality. She could have become a business woman, or gone on the stage, or lived in a bachelor flat and had love affairs without the end of the world having resulted. In the eighteen-fifties none of these solutions were available."

And here, too, it seems, is the reason why the Madeleine of "Dishonored Lady" seems a preposterous invention. She had all the outlets that her forerunner of [illegible] life lacked—but still she ran amuck [illegible] dissolved a handful of strychnine tablets in her lover's coffee. She would have been more plausible if placed in the costumes of her original period. As a modern woman she is an incredible monster.

Alas, Poor Yorick!

The sudden death of Jack Donahue at the age of thirty-eight was a shock to play-goers. He was a younger Fred Stone—a dancing comedian of such amazing skill and whimsical personality that he surpassed all of his generation of competitors. He began as a mere "hoofer," like thousands of others; he was a "hoofer" until the end, but he was also a star of the first magnitude in musical comedy.

other concert engagements before the season opens. Giorgio Polacco, musical director of the company, sailed from Cherbourg on Friday aboard the Bremen, and Emil Cooper, conductor, sailed yesterday aboard the new Lafayette, as did Mary McCormic. They will arrive in Chicago on the 13th.

Vanni-Marcoux, Edouard Cotreuil and Jean Vieuille will be aboard the France when she leaves Cherbourg Oct. 8, as will René Maison. These artists will all arrive in Chicago about the middle of the month. Cesare Formichi will be here about the 20th.

Frida Leider, Maria Olszewska, Maria Rajdl, Lotte Lehmann, Hans Hermann Nissen, Eduard Habich, Alexander Kipnis, with Mrs. Kipnis and the baby, and Egon Pollak will sail from Bremen Oct. 15 aboard the Europa and will arrive in Chicago on the 24th. Maestro Moranzoni will arrive in Chicago probably on the 12th.

Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini will arrive in Chicago about the 15th or 16th of October.

Orchestra rehearsals are scheduled to begin on Monday, Oct. 13, when all of the conducting staff with the exception of Mr. Pollak will be in Chicago.

Report of Ravinia Season.

Turning for a moment from what is about to happen operatically and otherwise to look back at what has just finished happening at Ravinia, one comes to the conclusion that there is considerable sporting blood in the veins of Louis Eckstein. With imperturbable, not to say cheerful countenance, he sends a report to his guarantors, showing that while artistically Ravinia had its best season, financially it was its worst.

He analyzes the season, remarks offhand that the deficit was $241,178.95, tells how $139,107.20 of this is to be paid by himself and Mrs. Eckstein, and then says that Ravinia never will lower its standards. Here is part of his report. It is interesting reading.

Faced Difficult Year.

"Long before the season opened, in fact when the plans for the season could still have been altered to meet conditions, it was known that from the financial standpoint Ravinia was facing what would undoubtedly be the hardest year in its history. All things pointed to this, commercial and cultural institutions being affected alike. Nineteen-thirty was admittedly the worst summer in the history of the theater. All legitimate playhouses but one in Chicago were closed. But Ravinia's plans were not changed. The roster of artists not only equaled but surpassed that of previous seasons. The three new works added to the répertoire involved the building of the new scenic equipment in the Ravinia studios. Opera was presented every night in the week, there were the usual Sunday afternoon national concerts and the educational work in behalf of the children continued throughout the season through the medium of the Thursday afternoon concerts designed especially for them.

weather bureau, this prevailed almost continuously from July 17 to July 28, the thermometer registering as high as 101 degrees, the highest temperature Chicago had experienced in more than ten years. The endurance flight at Sky Harbor in late June and July attracted thousands of spectators, while the International Air Races at Curtiss field attracted even larger crowds during that part of August when Ravinia attendance is normally at its peak.

Founded on an Ideal.

"What of Ravinia's future? (Next year it will have reached its twentieth milestone.)

"This is a question that has been asked time and again. It is difficult to answer. On the present basis of loss, it would require an endowment fund of $5,000,000 to finance it. The guarantee fund, as it exists at present, is as unstable at it is inadequate, but Ravinia will never be permitted to pass into the hands of those who would devote it to cheap amusement. It was founded on an ideal and thus it should continue—a musical center of real worth and importance.

"Chicago, and especially the North Shore, needs Ravinia. It is of importance to every man and woman of this community."

NEW COMEDIAN

SALVATORE BACCALONI.

A new member of the Civic Opera company, he classifies as a bass-baritone in the buffo or comic subsection, a specialty indicated by his expression, if not his costume. He comes here from Milan's famous theater, La Scala, where they say he has done well and created a personal success in rôles of this character.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—A new war drama, a colored musical show, and a Scotch comedy represent this week's promised additions to the Broadway playbills. Here is the first nighters' guide:

"Stepdaughters of War"—Opens tomorrow night at the Empire theater. This is Chester Erskin's first production for the Frohman company, the play being Kenyon Nicholson's dramatization of an English novel. In the cast are Katherine Alexander, Warren William, Ethel Griffies, Mary Arbenz, Winifred Fraser, Olive Reeves-Smith, Eda Heinemann, and G. P. Huntley Jr.

"Brown Buddies"—Opens Tuesday night at the Liberty theater. A Negro musical comedy of military flavor. Bill Robinson will dance in it, and the company will also include Adelaide Hall and Shelton Brooks.

"Marigold"—Opens Wednesday night at the 49th street theater. This is a Scotch comedy, ran nearly two years in London on its first production there and has since been revived. Its authors are Allen Harker and F. R. Pryor, and it will be acted by an imported cast which includes Jean Clyde, Sophie Stewart, Walter Roy, and Lionel Gadson.

in the Plays of Shakespeare
Second Annual Season, Oct. 27 to Dec. 20
The new season will be for eight weeks, of eight performances each, and eight plays. The calendar is so arranged that the whole series of plays will be given on the same evening of the week in successive weeks. The Wednesday and Saturday matinees, however, list four performances of "Hamlet," three each of "As You Like It," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Julius Caesar," and one each of "King Lear," "Macbeth," and "Twelfth Night."
The repertory is a notable one, including many of the prime Shakespearean favorites and being equally divided between tragedy and comedy: "Hamlet," "The Merchant of Venice," "As You Like It," "King Lear," "Twelfth Night," "Macbeth," "Julius Caesar," and "Richard the Third."

Picking Parts for Future Use of Miss Cornell

Critics Hope She'll Drop "Green Hat" Sinners.

By Charles Collins.

He represented the age of jazz in its dapper phase; he stood for the best in eccentric humor.

From the "Follies of 1920" to "Sons o' Guns" of 1930 his career as an entertainer of national reputation ran. His performances in "Molly Darling," "Be Yourself," "Sunny," and "Rosalie" [the latter his last in Chicago] cannot be easily forgotten. He had a genius for complex, acrobatic rhythms in dancing; and he was also a skillful comedian, accurately adapting his personality to types of rough-and-ready American youth. During the last year, moreover, he had branched out as a producing manager with definite success; and he promised to become a lively contributor to lyric entertainment.

A rare clown was Jack Donahue; and a friendly one. . . . Alas, poor Yorick!

Civic Shakespeare.

Fritz Leiber, now preparing for his second season of Shakespeare under the auspices of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare society, expects to be well prepared for the grinding routine of a new play every night and matinée when he begins his eight weeks' session at the Civic theater Oct. 27. A preliminary tour will help to season his performances.

He will appear at Urbana in the Lincoln Hall theater of the University of Illinois, Oct. 9, 10, and 11. He will then move on to St. Louis for a week's stay, offering seven of the eight plays in his repertory. A group of St. Louis citizens, headed by Dr. William Roy Mackenzie of the English department of Washington university, is sponsoring the engagement.

When the Chicago season closes Mr. Leiber will take his Civic Shakespeareans on a four months' tour of the principal cities of the east, ending in New York. Last season's tour, it is said, showed a box office profit which wiped out the "red" on the books of the organization.

Vox Playgoer

To the Dramatic Editor:

Campaign Ill., Sept. 30.—The writer, in common with many other parents, is badly fed up with "flaming youth" plays. It is refreshing to learn from your review of "Young Sinners" that at last there has been staged a play in which some effort is made to regenerate at least one of the young idiots.

I agree with you, however, that it is a pity that the author lost his nerve, or something, and did not extend the corrective treatment to the 17 year old flapper as well. As you say, a stalwart policewoman armed with a paddle [and using it in the proper way] would have fortified the young woman's character considerably and incidentally strengthened the play. An irate parent swinging a good old fashioned hairbrush would have done as well.

Seriously, I think the time is ripe for a wild youth film or play in which the parents are not the spineless jellyfish type commonly represented, but real red blooded men and women who take control of their wild young offspring with a hairbrush, if necessary.

"PARENT."

IN RUSSIAN PLAY

LILLIAN GISH.

"UNCLE VANYA," the play by Tchekov which is famous in the repertory of the Moscow Art theater, will begin a two weeks' engagement at the Harris theater Oct. 20 with Lillian Gish, a celebrity of the motion pictures, in the leading role. This production by Jed Harris won high praise when staged in New York last spring. By her performance in the role of Helena Miss Gish has qualified for stellar rank in the real-life drama.

Gotham Comedy Ridicules the Movie Industry

Kaufman-Hart Opus Makes Audience Roar.

By Burns Mantle.

ple wedding without even a live dove in it.

The supervisor is fired for leaving the doves out and getting the wrong script, until the picture reviewers agree that the new picture is a great relief from all the new backstage stories and very original in not having any doves. They think it is entitled to a four star rating.

Back into power go the vaudevillians. At the play's close their inspired idiot has ordered 2,000 airplanes and thus tied up the supply for war pictures, and calmly advised the tearing down of the existing studios. Mr. Glogauer is both dumfounded and delighted.

Running through the satire is the experience of a popular playwright hired by Mr. Glogauer to write scripts and kept waiting in the outer offices for eight months. At the end of that time he goes to a sanitarium to get back his strength. Mr. Kaufman, the co-author, plays this rôle himself, earnestly and with sufficient expertness to enthuse his friends. The comedy hits are made by Hugh O'Connell as the dumb vaudevillian and Jean Dixon as the cynical but wise member of the act.

Hemingway Story Muddled.

Much was expected of Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms," put into play shape by Laurence Stallings, co-author of "What Price Glory?" and the scenarist of "The Big Parade."

Something was realized on that expectation, but not everything. The play is as jerky and theatrical as most dramatized novels are and no one seems agreed that the stirring romance of Catherine Barkley, nurse, and Frederick Henry, adventuring American ambulance driver, is satisfactorily realized.

That was certain to happen. The Hemingway story was probably the most widely read novel of last year's production. And probably no two readers' mental pictures of hero and heroine are alike. Furthermore, descriptively the most stunning adventure in the story: The night on the lake, the escape into Switzerland, the exciting retreat and the tragedy of Catherine's death—are beyond stage realization.

Mr. Stallings has done a good job of stringing together the disillusioned and romantic lovers' meetings; their hospital experience in Milan during Henry's convalescence and their pathetic separation Then he has dovetailed the Caporetto retreat with Catherine's tragedy for a last act.

As a result the fore part of the play must be abrupt and puzzling to any who have not read the book, and the last part muddling to those who have. Out of the staged play one particular satisfaction has developed. An English actress, Elissa Landi, playing Catherine, has been welcomed, even hailed, as the most engagingly competent actress come from England in a long time. She is blonde and pretty, experienced and magnetic, and has done much to help the play. Glen Anders plays opposite as Henry, doing fairly well, and Crane Wilbur makes considerable of Rinaldi.

Shocking, but Interesting.

Even the most calloused of us have been shocked a little by the comedy called "The Greeks Had a Word for It," which is Zoe Akins' gift to the new season. Both shocked and steadily interested by it.

Curious how interesting a drama can be when it seems real, however questionable its characters or shallow its theme. This one is the frankly, boldly written story of three ex-Follies girls on the make.

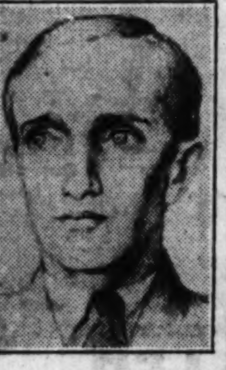
It has practically no beginning, no climax, and no more than a comic but highly plausible end.

ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

IN CHICAGO.

"The Apple Cart," opening the Theater Guild season tomorrow night, has not, as yet, been published so that armchair playgoers may not attend the opening vicariously, but they may put themselves into a Bernard Shaw mood, for everything else that Shaw has written has been published. There is no one writing today with more sparkle than Bernard Shaw. His plays for many years were said to be too literary for the stage. They were read and discussed—shyly at first, because they were supposed to be slightly naughty.



LIAM O'FLAHERTY.
[Drawing by K. S. Woerner.]

When they were produced, and were extremely popular, it was always such a surprise that the "literary" atmosphere never wholly lost its hold on the public mind. As a matter of fact, there isn't a Shaw play that isn't exactly as much fun to see as it is to read and, because they are rich with ideas as well as with dialogue, there isn't one of them that is a bore to read aloud.

As you know, there is gold in them thar hills of Shaw's prefaces, rich gold of amusement as well as mental stimulation. The reason that "The Apple Cart" has not yet been published in book form is because Shaw has not yet written the traditional preface to it and a Shaw play without its preface would be like a penguin without a white vest—just unthinkable.

IN NEW YORK.

The presentation of "Mr. Gilhooley" will send armchair playgoers to the work of that young Irish novelist, Liam O'Flaherty, who has had an enormous critical acclaim if, up to the present, not an overwhelmingly popular one. "Mr. Gilhooley" is laid in the Dublin slums and is the utmost in squalor, vice, and depravity. It is what the world cals an "unpleasant" book. But it is a picture of unquestioned power, terrific, vital.

There has just been published a volume of reminiscences from the pen of its author which tells of his adventures after the war. "Two Years" he calls it, and in it he records his fierce struggle to readjust himself to a world that had gone crazy with the war. He traveled across half the globe, met men of all sorts and kinds, did jobs of strange assortment. He shipped first to Rio de Janiero and drifted about, mixing with beachcombers. Then he went to Cardiff and to Mediterranean ports, finally to Smyrna where after a week's debauch he suffered delirium tremens. He went afterwards to Canada, sneaked across the American border without a passport, worked in Boston and New York at everything from printer's devil to waiter—until he threw a tray at a headwaiter.

He was a wanderer, strong, zestful, reckless. It is the raw material of dozens of novels. It is a spiritual confession rarely spirited. A real human document. Mr. O'Flaherty's recent welcome to New York as a popular novelist and the author of a popular play is very different from his last entrance ten years ago into our social capital, where he worked as a porter at the Knickerbocker hotel.

The long awaited dramatization of "Bad Girl" [presented this week] recalls that ferociously popular novel of 1928. "Bad Girl" was such a startling piece of work because it told, for the first time, the complete, unsentimental story of marriage without either tremendous love to give it beauty or enough money to give it grace. Dumb creatures, the hero and heroine, never able to share their thoughts, pulled apart by daily scrimmages with pennies, the gulf widened by a baby—and everything set down with complete frankness.

Theater Guild and Dramatic League Debuts

Shaw's New Play and Hit from Paris at Hand.

THE openings of two impressive programs of plays for "organized audiences" — the Theater guild's, at the Blackstone, with Shaw's "The Apple Cart," and the Dramatic league's, at the Princess, with "Topaze"—make this week the most important of the dramatic season in Chicago. Musical comedy patrons also have reason to rejoice at the arrival of "Strike Up the Band" at the Selwyn.

Announcements of these three premières follow:

"Strike Up the Band": This musical comedy, with Clark and McCullough as its stars, and with a score by George Gershwin, will begin an engagement at the Selwyn theater tonight. It was one of the popular amusements on Broadway last season. The libretto was written by George S. Kaufman and Morris Ryskind, who collaborated on "Animal Crackers," and the lyrics represent the rhyming of Ira Gershwin. The stellar comedians who have returned to the stage in this show after two years in talking pictures, are supported by Dudley Clements, Gordon Smith, Mary Williams, Frances Neilson, Doris Carson, Jack Hartley, Gordon Smith, John B. Walsh, and Harold Woolf. "Strike Up the Band" represents Edgar Selwyn's debut as a producer of musical comedies.

"The Apple Cart": This new play by Bernard Shaw will begin the Theater guild's third subscription season in Chicago at the Blackstone theater tomorrow night. It is a fantastic satire on British politics and allied subjects, placed in the future, "when every one now living is dead." Shaw himself labels it as an extravaganza. It was first staged in Warsaw, Poland, about a year ago, and has since been acted in London, Berlin, Vienna and New York.

The Theater Guild's cast for "The Apple Cart" contains many of its leading players. The company includes Tom Powers, Violet Kemble Cooper, Claude Rains, Ernest Cossart, Frederick Truesdell, Jane Wheatley, Eva Leonard-Boyne, Barbara Allen, W. H. Sams, John Dunn, Hannam C. Clark, George Graham, Audrey Ridgewill, George Colouris and Ferdinand Hast. The engagement is for three weeks.

"Topaze": The Dramatic League of Chicago will begin its second annual subscription season at the Princess theater tomorrow night with "Topaze," by Marcel Pagnol—a French comedy of international popularity. This play has had a two years' run in Paris, and has been acted in practically every capital of Europe. It was a marked hit in New York last winter, and its run carried over into the present season.

Frank Morgan is the star of the company, in the rôle of a quaint French schoolmaster who forsakes his scholarly ideals to turn grafter, with amusing results. Catherine Willard is the leading woman, and others in the cast are Harry Davenport, John Craig, Clarence Derwent, Barbara Barondess, Florence Edney, Nicholas Joy, Leslie Smith, Fanny Davenport, Alf Helton, and a group of boy actors for the schoolroom scenes.

"Topaze" was translated and adapted by Benn W. Levy, an English playwright, known here for his dramatization of Hugh Walpole's "Story of a Man with Red Hair." It will remain at the Princess for four weeks.

"Lost Sheep," which will be supplanted on the stage of the Selwyn tonight by "Strike Up the Band," will move to the Adelphi theater to continue its run in Chicago.

Quiet Funeral Strange Sight in Hollywood

By Rosalind Shaffer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.] — Hollywood funerals are always a problem for those bereaved ones who wish to keep the funeral dignified and not in the class of a spectacle for curious throngs. The funeral of Lon Chaney attracted a mob of disorderly and unsightly spectators, some of whom took picnic lunches to the cemetery, throwing papers, orange peels and banana skins about, and pushed and shouldered to get a glimpse of the cortége.

Other funerals such as Barbara La Marr's attracted mobs of well meaning but disorderly spectators. The funeral of Milton Sills was conducted in a way to avoid this as much as was humanly possible.

Private Funeral.

The funeral of Sills was held at the Wee Kirk of the Heather, a tiny chapel in Forest Lawn cemetery, with no floral offerings, no honorary pallbearers, and none of the pomp usually associated with the funeral of a celebrity. A single floral piece, a blanket of orchids, covered the casket. In life Sills had been devoted to the growing of prize orchids.

The tiny chapel held only his kinfolk, close friends, and the family retainers who had served him for years. No honorary pallbearers were named, as Sills had often expressed himself as against this selecting of friends.

* *

Memorial Services.

Floral offerings and tributes from friends were received at the memorial services by the members of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences at All Souls church.

Sills was one of the founders of the academy and had identified himself for years with all the movements to obtain better working conditions for the under dog in the industry His death leaves his widow, Doris Kenyon Sills, and a three and a half year old son, Kenyon. A daughter, 18, by a former marriage, is now working in pictures.

Wonderful Face Tonic

After the day's accumulation of dust, dirt, make-up and oily secretions the pores become clogged and your face becomes tired. Get a little Calonite powder from your druggist. Before retiring sprinkle it on your wash cloth—rub over your face and notice the wonderful feeling you have—puts new life into your face and you enjoy a good night's rest.

AT STATE-LAKE

LUCILLE HALEY.

A musical comedy skit called "They're Funny That Way" will be the leading number on the vaudeville program at the State-Lake theater this week. Norton and Haley are its performers; and this is a picture of the second half of the sketch.

Galaxy of Fine Movie Dramas Seen Last Month

From the List Critic Chooses Ablest.

By Mae Tinee.

theless," said she, "it stands, for despite historical inaccuracies, despite a cheapening touch of melodrama toward the finish, despite a lot of things that undoubtedly will cause controversy, 'Abraham Lincoln' remains one of the very finest of the audible films. . . . Walter Huston is magnificent in that most difficult of all rôles—the characterization of a historical figure. . . . His portrayal has poignant tenderness, awkward charm, and a sense of humor that saves it from sentimentality. . . . The supporting cast is able. . . . The old master's [David Wark Griffith's] touch is evident everywhere in the superb direction, showing that the man who made 'The Birth of a Nation' came back after a long absence to the head of his profession. . . ."

(I'm going to see "Abraham Lincoln" tonight and I can't wait!)

"AFRICA SPEAKS," a jungle picture, struck Roberta as being the real stuff. She thought the explorers didn't appear as men who would fool the public, and rose to remind her readers that the movie bears the endorsement of the Smithsonian institution. She remarked in part: "The picture takes you over to Africa, up the Niger river, through the Belgian Congo, and into Tanganyika. The natives and the animals you meet along the way are so superbly filmed that you won't have to see any more similar pictures until somebody finds some new animals and some new tribes."

* *

"MELODY OF THE HEART," a UFA production, is, said Roberta, "just that—a melody as true and haunting, as unforgettable, as a folk song. The story has a Hungarian background with the dialogue in German. . . . The plot is just a simple, sometimes heart-breaking tale of a Hungarian soldier and a servant girl, but its poignant beauty seems to embody the spirit of the peasants of Hungary. There is not one artificial gesture, not a single, unnecessary sequence, to mar the realistic procession of scenes from start to finish. . . . The acting is a joy to behold. . . . Direction is expert and sound effects, including some lovely bits of plaintive Hungarian music, are all that can be desired."

* *

"MONTE CARLO" was thought by the reviewer to be "one of the most entertaining variations of the boudoir drama that the talkies have produced." It was directed by Ernst Lubitsch and featured Jeanette MacDonald and Jack Buchanan. To quote: "Situations . . . give Mr. Lubitsch an opportunity to exhibit his gift for presenting risque scenes with a delicate, amusing touch. . . . There are pleasant interludes of singing by Miss MacDonald and Mr. Buchanan. Large song and dance ensembles, thank heaven, are omitted. The photography and lighting effects are cleverly handled."

And so to—October!

Blend of Races Is Italian Hope in South Tyrol

Rely on Economic Development of Province.

By David Darrah.

sp. Since his installation he cultivates cordial relations with the Fascists and the authorities and has recently been paying visits to the Fascist establishments and organizations.

* *

In Two Languages.

Contrary to the practice with the Slavs, the Italian government has not tampered much with religion in the Tyrol. Sermons are in both German and Italian, and notices are normally in German.

Part of the province of Bolzano is in the Italian diocese of Trento, but the bulk is in Bressanone, which until recently also had several parishes north of the Brenner, in Austria.

It must not be inferred that many of the clergy are still not anti-Italian and that hostility has been reflected in the educational question. By Italian law religious instruction is imparted by the priest and must be in Italian. Many of the clergy inducted parents to apply for exemption of their children from religious instruction in the schools, which they were entitled to do, and instituted special classes in religious instruction and in German.

The Italians charge that the hostile clergy employed this method not only to teach religion but also German and that lessons were given every day, lasting for two hours, whereas religious instruction is usually given for one hour and only on Sunday. The Fascists say this is a ruse to keep up clerical influence over the rising generation and does not promote fusion between the Italian and German elements or good feeling between the two. This condition, however, I am told, is being attenuated since the conciliation.

No Loss of Business.

Before the war the South Tyrol was the summer vacation center and playground of central Europe. The elegance and luxury of Vienna and the Balkan capitals was transplanted to the Dolomites from spring to autumn. The Italian government seeks to keep up the pre-war record. Although the pan-Germans maintain that the province has fallen into economic decadence since the new frontier was established, the statistics for the last year do not bear this out. Merano and Bolzano both give the appearance of luxury and wealth.

According to the statistics the Germans and Austrians still continue to visit the Tyrol and Dolomites in equal numbers with the Italians. Out of 144,699 tourists registered in Bolzano in the last year 66,605 were Italians and 61,117 were Austrians and Germans. There were diverse other nationalities, including 2,376 Americans, 1,693 British, 2,232 Dutch, 1,223 Swiss, and 1,023 Hungarians. Since last January out of 26,510 tourists in Bolzano 12,865 have been German. In the same period in Merano 25,000 have registered, with the proportion of Germans about the same. These figures are cited by the Italians to show that South Tyrol has not lost business by the new régime. Both here and in Bolzano the hotel people told me that the season had been good. The height comes in July and August.

The locality has singular advantages for summer residence. You can remain in the larger towns in the valleys before the hot weather begins. After that the vacationists can go up to the higher mountain towns, between three and four thousand feet, where there is another and cooler level of comfortable hotels and playgrounds. The main disadvantage for tourists is railroad connections. You can get directly to the Swiss resorts without change of train. To get to the Dolomites it is necessary to change at Milan or else cross a couple of frontiers by passing through Basel and Innsbruck. The local industry is agitating with the Italian government for the establishment of more through train services.

The Italians are spending great sums on improving the roads. Especially the one from Verona to the Brenner. Such a road has its military as well as its touristic importance. Since last March work has been going on to make a great highway over the 270 kilometers between Verona and the Brenner. On it 50,000,000 lire are being spent and about 10,000 men are employed. The work, it is expected, will be complete by a year from March. More than 5,000 men are employed now on the 113 kilometer stretch between Bolzano and the Brenner. With such a road it is hoped that the Venice and Lido visitors in August will move north to the Tyrol to prolong their holidays. Thus, in addition to the German pre-war visitors, it is hoped to give the Tyrol a new source of tourist supply from the south.

Everybody Happy.

After twelve years of Italian rule what, then, is the attitude of the people of South Tyrol toward the Italians and how does it look to the peasant? The Italian viewpoint is that "things in the Upper Adige are going on well; not more than 5 per cent of the people are disaffected."

This viewpoint is further summed up as follows:

The great bulk of the people are peasants, who are indifferent to political conditions, there as in other countries, provided their religion is not interfered with, taxes not too high, and they can sell their produce at profitable prices. Resentment was caused by the institution of purely Italian schools two years ago, but this is being attenuated and the Italian school is being taken as a matter of course. The merchant and shopkeeping class attends primarily to business and bothers itself little about politics. There remain the intellectuals, the professional men, and the school teachers, who are anti-Italian, inevitably, but they represent a small element in a country which is mostly agricultural and mountainous. The aristocracy, a small class, on the whole is not anti-Italian. The establishment here of the permanent residence of the duke of Pistoia is expected to reconcile this class somewhat.

Converting the Young.

Although Italy's policy is one of complete Italianization, the impossibility of converting the great bulk of the present generation into enthusiastic Italians is recognized, continue the spokesmen of Italian policy. But the new generation, it is hoped, can by a wise and kindly policy be converted into a body of good Italian citizens who happen to speak German. There is no intention of crushing out the German language. If there had not been such a rabidly anti-Italian propaganda in the first years of the occupation, and if the government of those days had not been so feeble, perhaps it would not have been necessary to adopt so complete and rapid a system of Italianization in the schools; in fact, every further step in this system has been preceded by some manifestation of disloyalty on the part of local leaders and still more by attempted interference by foreigners in what Italians regard as an internal Italian question.

What should help to blend the two peoples together is the economic development of the province through tourism, agriculture, and in the development of hydro-electric power. And while few Germans have joined the Fascist party, great numbers of them have entered the Fascist syndicates. Once all traces of irredentist propaganda has disappeared, the two races should live peaceably as neighbors without language differences preventing a common national sentiment.

Laying the Foundations.

A visitor to the South Tyrol can subscribe to much of what the Italians say. Through the schools, the military service of young Tyroleans in the Italian army, the Dopolavora activities, the church, the syndicates, the newspapers, new architecture, archaeological discoveries showing the country was Latin in ancient days, and through trips to Rome, and especially through an undoubted policy now of restraint, patience and tolerance, the Italian government is laying the foundations for a changed mentality in the new generations, slow as that may be. That will be more apparent in succeeding generations. The youth at present learn Italian in schools, but they talk German at home with their parents, who know no Italian. But they, in their turn, will be parents who will be able to understand Italian, which their children will learn in the schools.

In a week's contact with the people of Bolzano, Merano, and in villages, I have found no signs that the Italian regime was severe or onerous. It seemed the contrary. By those people whose memories go back of 1918 it may be regarded as foreign and annoying, if not unreal. The peasants with whom I have conversed along the mountain roads know no Italian. I have seen their faces light up when, after having asked them directions in Italian, I repeated them in German. Yet these peasants' traditions and habits are not interfered with. I have sat in albergos and inns at Colle, formerly Kohlern, above Bolzano; Fiè and other places, and heard the Tyroleans sing their German songs of Walther von der Vogelweid, while the picture of King Victor and Queen Helena and Mussolini looked down from the walls and often with an appreciative Italian audience.

No Discrimination.

At an inn at Virgl last Sunday diverse groups of Germans and Italians were singing in their respective languages, and both drinking beer. Often I have heard Italian officers addressing waiters and waitresses in the restaurants in German, although the latter understood enough Italian to get their orders. Two years ago all the designations in hotels were Italianized, but the food menu is still given in both German and Italian. I have already spoken of how in church matters German remains supreme. In the Merano cathedral not only were the pew name plates intact with their German names, but the notices on the bulletin board were originally in German and translated into Italian, instead of the reverse.

In the towns you will hear that taxation is high under the Italians, that local government has been abolished, that there is the foreign podesta and the prefect; these conditions, however, are not different here from any other province of Italy, which always has been Italian. You will hear also that the former wine and fruit trade which flourished formerly has been hit by the annexation and the establishment of the Austrian customs barrier. Some of this, however, the Italians say has found new markets in Italy and Switzerland.

For the foreign observer it is difficult to estimate the validity of the claims that subsidized Italian businesses have sprung up in competition with the local ones, that there is discrimination against Germans, or that the banks suffer from having an Italian management imposed. These things if they exist do not appear to be the outcome of a policy.

School Problem Vexes.

The school question, which has been previously touched on, remains the most difficult. Here the source of friction at present is largely in the country districts, where, as I indicated in a previous article, the teacher had formerly sometimes to be guarded by grendarmes. That condition has been mostly outlived. It may be still a question of how much of a hold the Italian language has on the children now in school. The children I heard talking among themselves outside of school were all speaking German. Getting proper teachers, the Italians tell me, is one of the problems. Here as everywhere the teaching profession is not highly paid and many prefer other regions to Bolzano, which is a center of tourism and prices are high.

Up until last year pupils in secondary schools got their instruction in German in six places, but now the language of tuition is entirely Italian. The system was to extend it year by year up through the various graduations of classes. The dilemma at present for the child, however, comes with the clash between the ideals of nationality and Rome, taught him by his Italian teacher who, in many cases, he comes to like and respect, and what he hears when he goes home. There is no regulation against private tuition in German provided that the teacher also can pass an examination in Italian.

The situation is awkward and annoying for the Tyrolean, but it is not impossible or oppressive. On the other hand, Italy has a northern frontier at the Brenner, the former road of invasion against her, which she regards now as absolutely secure.

COMING TO STUDEBAKER

WALKER WHITESIDE

A PLAY called "A Chinese Bungalow" will be staged at the Studebaker theater Oct. 12 with Mr. Whiteside, well-known actor of romantic roles and demon Chinese villains, as its star. In this case he will have a role which was originated in England by Matheson Lang. Mr. Whiteside began his stage career as a boy Hamlet, about a quarter of a century ago, and he has been a star ever since.

My Best Joke

What is the best joke you ever heard? Address Best Jokes Editor, The Tribune.

Pickpocket Probably.

First clerk—See that woman over there? She is a payroll bandit.

Second clerk—How do you know?

First clerk—I married her! O. H.

Hard Feller.

Smart Little Boy—Do you know why I am so strong?

His brother—No. Why?

Smart Little Boy—Because I eat rock candy, brick ice cream, and marble cake.—D. B.

Parade Ground.

He—My mouth feels like a parade ground.

She—How so?

He—Two dentists have been drilling on it all afternoon. A. C.

'Young Woodley' Makes Hit on the Screen.

By Tom Pettey.

original has been compressed a bit in regard to the unfavorable side of English public school life.

Woodley falls in love with the head master's young wife and finds his love returned. They are caught in an embrace by the husband and Woodley is expelled some time later, after threatening a classmate with a knife when taunted about his tragic romance. The best shot is at the end when Woodley's father leads him away broken hearted over a romance that never should have happened. The photography could be improved.

"Whoopee" Comes to Town.

A popeyed whoopee maker came to Broadway this week in picture and in person. Eddie Cantor made a personal singing appearance at the premiere of his latest opus, "Whoopee"—the Ziegfeld-Goldwyn music show—at the Rivoli. Mr. Cantor has a rival across Broadway at the Capitol, for Al Jolson, the movie ballad singer, has been moaning his mammy songs there.

"Whoopee" already has been given the once over in this column, and every prediction has been upheld. Its jokes are quite broad, its girls beautiful, its songs tuneful, and it is a hit. Mr. Cantor has all the vulgar little stage tricks that Broadway so loves and, given a star spot in one of the most beautiful backgrounds the talking screen ever has produced, he moves through the picture with amazing rapidity, lending a helping eye, hand, and voice.

"Whoopee" will make a lot of money.

Goings and Comings of Stars.

We will lead our travelogue this week with Master Charles "Buddy" Rogers. Just why the coming and going of movie personages is of any more importance than the coming and going of migratory birds we never have been able to figure, but it remains that their wanderings are of certain importance, so:

"Buddy" Rogers is occupying the best suite in the Ambassador hotel before sailing for Europe with his mother. He has been to Europe before—on a mule boat when he was just a school boy.

Richard Barthelmess and Mrs. Barthelmess are in New York for six weeks. They have taken a housekeeping apartment and have shunned the hotels. Elliott Nugent, the actor-writer-director, is here from Hollywood for a holiday. Sidney Blackmer still is commuting between the oceans.

Colleen Moore, the screen star, is making an interesting experiment. She is trying out her new stage play, "On the Loose," in Toronto. Colleen is said to have picked Toronto because it's a safe distance from Broadway in case of adverse criticism and because Toronto twice voted her its favorite film star. Miss Moore's effort is the first of the test plays for picture stars.

Writing of the legitimate stage reminds this column of the fact that John Kirkland's "Frankie and Johnnie," the police reviewed drama of life on the St. Louis waterfront, will have its rivals on the screen in a few weeks.

The old, old story of the girl who "shot her man" because he "done her wrong" and then "hired a rubber-tired carriage and a decorated hack to drive him to the graveyard, but not to bring him back," will be done by Pathé and an English company. The Pathé version carries the title of "Her Man," and is pictured on the Havana waterfront. Marjorie Rambeau, Helen Twelvetrees, Phillip Holmes, and Ricardo Cortez head the cast.

The English account of the romance of "Frankie and Johnnie" will arrive in two weeks, it is reported, and will be shown on the screen of the new Bronx playhouse.

Another Shylock.

Charles Dillingham announces that he, in association with the Erlanger Productions, Inc., has made arrangements with Maurice Moscovitch for American appearances as Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." This rôle brought Moscovitch into prominence in London, where he played for ten months at the Royal Court and Duke of York theaters.

The company that will support Mr. Moscovitch will be assembled to start rehearsals on Oct. 15. The piece will open at the Tremont theater in Boston on Nov. 10, going into New York a fortnight later.

Shakespeare Matinees.

Lillian Braithwaite, featured in Ivor Novello's "Sympathy in Two Flats," in New York, will repeat there a series of Shakespearean matinées she gave in London this year. She will act four rôles: Beatrice in "Much Ado About Nothing," Portia in "The Merchant of Venice," Queen Katherine in "Henry VIII.," and Hermione in "A Winter's Tale." The settings will consist of draperies. Miss Braithwaite is choosing the casts from well known actors now appearing on Broadway.

4 Million Women Said Gray Hair No More and Used 14,579,820 Bottles

so it must be the better way

If you are looking for a way to restore gray, streaked or faded hair to its natural youth color . . . don't endanger the health of hair or take chances on its appearance by experimenting with a new and untried preparation. You don't have to. Here's the restorer that has been used successfully by more than 4 million women who refuse to be gray. They will all tell you it is the surest and very quickest way to give hair the exact shade you desire—without harming the hair or scalp in the least. As a matter of fact it darkens the hair so evenly and naturally that no one will ever know. So don't take foolish chances with your hair. Just ask any druggist for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur.

Casino Opens Its Doors for Winter Season

Arts Club Gives First Fall Party.

By Mlle. X.

THE Casino, smartest of Chicago clubs and center of the gayest life here during the busy winter months, has hung out its hospitable latchstring again after its annual summer holiday. Socially speaking, nothing goes on there from June until late September, but this year, while most of the members were scattered over the face of the globe, there's been an artistic flurry behind those closed doors and drawn curtains.

The trio of private dining rooms at the east end of the club has undergone a complete change, and is, at the moment, cause for much admiring comment from every one who's had a glimpse of them. As all three rooms may be thrown into one when the occasion demands, they have been done just alike, with walls of a bright light green; white Venetian blinds for the glass canopies of the ceiling; pendant lights that look like nothing so much as old gold filigree jewelry; white chairs, and table tops painted to resemble pink marble.

Mirrors Perfect Fountain.

A large mirror panel at the end of each room reflects the play of a cheery little fountain. The mirrors not only reflect but triple the shimmering effect, as a delicate fountain spray is etched on each shining surface—one of the many clever and exquisite touches that make the Casino the most attractive thing of its kind in this part of the world.

Great painted pots of flowers adorn the white walls of the airy promenade on which the new rooms open, and are visible through the high French doors of the ballroom, making lovely garden pictures for those lunching or dining in the larger room.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter is responsible for the charm and beauty of the club's interior, and has been ever since the idea of the Casino first saw the light of day in her Rush street drawing room nearly two decades ago, when Mrs. Howard Linn [then Miss Lucy Blair] suggested it to a small group of well known Chicago folk, among them Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, the Arthur Meekers, the Howard Gillettes, the Harold Howards, the late Mrs. James Keeley, the John H. Winterbothams, and Eames MacVeagh. From that time to this Mrs. Carpenter has guided the artistic activities of the club and Mrs. Coleman has been its president. Small wonder that it's attained its present distinction and fame with those two energetic and gifted leaders at the helm.

Tea Opens Arts Club.

The Arts club, another creation of Mrs. Carpenter's ingenuity and fertile brain—and an organization of which she is president—has also swung open its doors on the second floor of the north Wrigley building for the whirl of winter festivities. A well attended tea on Wednesday of the week just past ushered in the new season, and the enthusiasm that greeted the fresh decorations there would have delighted the dea ex machina, had she been on hand to observe it.

However, she is still in the east, enjoying the crisp, colorful days and the cool, clear nights of early October in Vermont, where, at Charlotte, on the rolling shores of Lake Champlain, she and her husband have one of the most delightful of summer places. Thither they repair each year in June, and there they stay as late as possible each autumn, although, to be sure, Mrs. Carpenter made a flying visit to Chicago in September to supervise the mixing of paints and cast her practiced eye over things at the Casino and the Arts club—labors of love on her part, but no less important in matters of perfection. Mr. Carpenter is now in Chicago, and their daughter, "Ginny," who has given up her job at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, arrives this week for a few weeks here with her parents.

Friends Praise Chicago Author.

Mrs. Coleman has returned from Santa Barbara, where she spends the summer, and is established in her charming Astor street apartment. She looks extremely well and handsome after her long sojourn in the west, and was one of the many friends of the author applauding the opening of "Dishonored Lady" last Monday night at the Harris theater—that thrilling and dramatic play written by Edward Sheldon and our own Margaret Ayer Barnes [Mrs. Cecil Barnes], in which the dark and slender Katharine Cornell has the leading role.

The George A. McKinlocks and Mrs. Coleman were members of the same party on that gala first night—the former have only recently come back from Maine, whither they go each

New York Tells This Tale About Roving Mallet

Polo Story Carries Its Own Moral.

By Nancy Randolph.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—There are no end of things to tell this week. Just as soon as autumn comes and the air is tangy with winy coolness, society seems intent on doing things that make one smile, frown or merely lift one's brows.

One of the most interesting bits of chatter going the rounds at present concerns England, America and polo, past and present. The scene, too, ranges from this side of the Atlantic to the other and back again. The moral of the tale somewhat escapes me, but there must be one.

Many, many years ago, in 1911, to be exact, England and America vied for the international cup and America won. Devereux Milburn was the great man for America and Leslie Cheap was the star for England. I think, if I'm not mistaken, America won by exactly one goal advantage. The mallet that hit in the winning shot was autographed by all the American team and by all but one of the British four. It was given to an Englishman and went back to England in his possession.

The great war came. Three of the four Englishmen who made part of the 1911 team died in action.

Returns to America.

Time passed. Things got perfectly frightful in England. A few weeks ago one of my friends, in England for the summer, came across the man who owned the autographed stick. The poor fellow was absolutely penniless. He offered the stick for a ten pound note, but my friend offered instead to bring it to this country. "There are no end of sportsmen who will pay a decent sum for such an historic relic," he said, and took custody of the mallet.

The final stage of the tale comes at the Long Island home of the F. Ambrose Clark. "Brose" Clark is without doubt the premier sportsman of New York. No polo meet is complete without "Brose" driving up, his gray topper at an angle, with his coach crowded with notables. His nephews, the Bostwick lads, are famous riders and poloists. Open house is ever the thing at the Clarks.

And so it was decided that at a gathering of notables at the Ambrose Clarks the mallet should be put up for auction. W. F. Cooper was the auctioneer. I don't remember exactly all who were there, but few of the polo enthusiasts were missing. The mallet was bid in finally for almost a thousand dollars, but—it was bought by Samuel Salvagt, an Englishman.

As I said before, there must be some moral to the tale, even if the moral escapes me.

RECEPTION OPENS WOMAN'S CLUB SEASON

MRS. THOMAS BOUCHIER.

MRS. HYDE WALLACE PERCE.

MRS. JOHN T. BUNTING JR.

MRS. THOMAS BOUCHIER, president of the first district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will preside at the opening meeting and luncheon of the district to be held tomorrow at the Morrison hotel.

Mrs. Hyde Wallace Perce is the new chairman of the program committee of the Chicago Woman's club, which inaugurated its season this week.

The seventh district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs will hold an all day meeting on Thursday at the First Congregational church in Des Plaines, with the Des Plaines Woman's club as hostess. The president, Mrs. John T. Bunting Jr., will preside.

Organization Plans Continuation of Activities in the Civic, Philanthropic and Charitable Fields.

By Roberta Nangle.

THE Chicago Woman's club opened its season last Wednesday with the annual reception for its president, Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton. The affair was the formal launching of the club into its second year in the imposing quarters at 11th street just off Michigan avenue.

Throughout its career of more than half a century the Chicago Woman's club has maintained a membership that has been constantly identified with the civic, philanthropic, and charitable work in Chicago. It has always been fortunate in selecting officers with the qualities of leadership so necessary to inspire members to exert a united effort toward the completion of every project attempted.

Visitors at the club building cannot fail to note the pleasant, industrious hum that pervades the offices and committee rooms. The building itself is perfectly adapted to both work and recreation. The work is carried on quietly and efficiently, with the president, just like any good business man, keeping office hours almost every day and the committee heads holding department conferences regularly.

Maintains High Standard.

A wide variety of subjects on the club's schedule makes the task of the program chairman and her committee one of the most interesting and at the same time most difficult jobs in the organization. The test of her success is the attendance at the regular club meetings throughout the season. Thus far the Chicago Woman's club's programs have always attracted a large portion of the membership, the high standard set long ago being maintained by each succeeding program chairman.

Mrs. Hyde Wallace Perce is the woman responsible for the current season's programs. She is the daughter of Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, who twice occupied the presiding officer's chair. A bird's-eye view of some of the programs arranged for the winter will give an idea of the topics in which the club members are interested.

The science department is sponsoring the meeting for Oct. 15. The subject is to be "An Anthropologist's View of the Race," with Fay Cooper Cole of the National Research council as the speaker. Gloria Hollister, a zoologist, will talk on "Jungle Lore."

A Chicago Program.

On Nov. 5 there will be a Chicago program, with a talk on the 1933 World's fair by Dr. Allen Albert, secretary to Ambassador Dawes, and a lecture about the Rosenwald Industrial museum by its head, Waldemar Keampffert.

The drama will have its share of attention later in November at a program including talks on "The Drama as a Social Force," by George Pierce Baker, head of the dramatic art school of Yale university, and "The Little Theater Movement," by Frederick Donaghey. Frederick Warde, a Shakespearian actor, will contribute "Sixty Years of Make Believe."

At a program devoted to international relations Henry Noel Brailsford, an English labor journalist, will talk on "Cruisers and Coöperation, a Study of the Anglo-American Future."

Additional Lectures.

Other topics of which discussions have been planned include literature, with John Erskine and Grace Hazard Conklin, poet and professor of English at Smith college; philosophy, with a talk by Prof. T. B. Smith of the University of Chicago on "The Philosophic Way of Life," and world affairs, with talks by Syud Hossian, representative of India at the Washington conference on "The India of Today and Tomorrow," and by Dr. P. C. Chang, dean of Naukai university, on "China."

Mrs. Perce's committee includes Mrs. Bertram G. Nelson, Mrs. Harold M. Pitman, Mrs. John D. Hoefels, Mrs. William F. Harpel, Mrs. Sidney Stein, Mrs. Ida Dorsey, Mrs. Frederick G. Harris, Mrs. James B. Herrick, Mrs. George E. Cook, Mrs. Sylvan Hirschberg, Mrs. Charles H. Betts, and Mrs. Thurlow G. Essington.

Downtown Clubs

The Forum of the League of Women Voters will hold its opening fall meeting on Saturday at 2 o'clock in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. Judge Leonard D. Verdier of the Superior court of Grand Rapids and Judge John P. McGoorty will be the speakers for the afternoon.

The following events will take place at the Chicago Woman's club the coming week. Monday, finance committee meeting at 10; luncheon study class, subject: "Tradition and Authority," Prof. Arthur E. Murphy. Tuesday—Board of managers meeting, 10 a. m. Wednesday—Club business meeting, 2 p. m. Friday—Forestry class trip to Pilcher arboretum, Joliet, Ill. Saturday—A benefit performance of American folk music in the club theater at 10:30 a. m.

Following the meeting of the board of managers of the Woman's City club tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., there will be the regular afternoon program. Sydney Landon will delineate operatic rôles for this Civic Opera day. Enrico Clausi is the soloist and Grace Nelson the accompanist. "Is Five Cent Bread Practicable?" will be the subject for discussion at the meeting of the foods and markets committee on Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. On Thursday there will be a joint meeting of the bathing beaches and parks and playgrounds committee at noon and at 2 p. m. the current book review committee will discuss the autumn bookshelf. Miss Esther Dunshee will speak at the Civic Form luncheon on Friday at 12:15.

The Chicago Woman's Aid will open its doors for the season on Tuesday. Mischa Mischakoff, the new concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will make his Chicago debut in a violin recital at the auditorium of the Medical and Dental Arts building, fifth floor, at 2 o'clock. Harold Van Horne will accompany him. Following the program, a reception and tea in honor of the club's past presidents will be held in the club rooms. On Thursday at 10 o'clock the civics and philanthropy board of managers, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert P. Frank, will reconvene for the second time. The child study committee will have its first meeting at a breakfast at 12 o'clock on Friday, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Paul Levy. Dr. Frank L. Slutz, lecturer and consultant of the Chicago Teachers' college, will speak on "Child Power."

The Native Daughters of Illinois will hold their fourth opening luncheon on Tuesday at 12 noon at the Chicago Athletic club.

The Chicago Drama league will meet in the Gold ballroom of the Drake hotel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock to hear A. E. [George W. Russell] discuss "Some Personalities of the Irish Literary Movement."

The Chicago Literary score will hold its opening meeting on Tuesday with a luncheon at the Great Northern hotel at 12:30.

The Phi Beta Alumnae club of Chicago announces a program to be given at the Phi Beta house, 1320 Astor street, on Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock.

The Illinois Women's Athletic club will celebrate Chicago day, Oct. 9, at the Hawthorne races. The Illinois Women's Athletic club's cup will be awarded to the winner of the purse, named in honor of the occasion.

The Woman's Allied Drug club will open its 19th season Thursday with a luncheon at the Morrison hotel at 12 o'clock.

The Ladies of Isabella will receive 100 new members at a general initiation to be held at the La Salle hotel on Sunday afternoon.

MRS. THOMAS G. ENGLISH.

[Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

Mrs. Thomas G. English is president of the Chicago Children's Benefit league, which is to hold its twenty-third annual tag day tomorrow. The league is composed of fifty children's charities, of all creeds and denominations, and is nonsectarian.

MRS. CHARLES L. ROBERTS.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"EVERYBODY'S here. Let's begin," said the Kansas delegate when a group of delegates to the biennial met at lunch the second time to continue a discussion of successful club making.

"Of course, the social side of a club is important," stated the Idaho delegate, "but most women I know want to do more in a club than just to get acquainted with the other members."

"That's what I say, too," agreed the Oregon delegate. "Put them to work and they'll soon get acquainted. We have an activities committee in my club whose business is to see that those members who aren't serving the club in some regular capacity are asked to do some special thing every once in a while. If they're old members it keeps them interested and if they're new members it eases them into the regular work."

"Just what do you ask them to do?" inquired the Kansas delegate.

"It may be addressing, or telephoning, or emergency work, or special committee work of one kind and another. Our social committee always plans to use several of these 'unattached' members at each meeting of our club."

"The more members working, the more successful the club," offered the Iowa delegate.

"To be successful a club must have interesting programs, too, and study classes if the members want them, and dramatic work helps, and so does a chorus," argued the Wisconsin delegate. "We must appeal to many interests."

"And we must be active in community betterment, and in state and national movements, also," added the Idaho delegate.

"Behind every successful club has been an unlimited supply of thought, planning, vision, and creative ability with the courage to see a thing through," reflected the Kansas delegate.

"Not forgetting our common goal," the Oregon delegate reminded them. "Working toward it is the sure road to club success. It's summed up in the new slogan of the federation, 'Our common goal is an enrichment of life through a better adjustment of human relations.'"

Question.

"Can you suggest a roll call for a legislative meeting?—M. I. H."

Reply.

You might have your members give in a sentence the gist of the important bills under consideration at the present time.

two flattering hats

—one with a brim, one without —both masterpieces by Dunlap

Dunlap has contrived many ways of doing lovely things with hats that make a point of being flattering as well as smart. And so one—with a brim that has a sly slant over the eyes and a bewitching new cut-away at the back—achieves sophisticated contrast by using the satin and dull sides of Vis-a-Vis. The other—a beret-turban of fur-felt—understands the great art of a simple drape and a couple of well-placed little feathers.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

summer, and they are embarking this week on a six weeks' trip to Italy. While in Chicago they've been busy going over plans for the new house they are to build next spring on their Lake Bluff property, just north of Lake Forest. They have a fine piece of land there, overlooking the lake, and as both Mr. and Mrs. McKinlock have excellent taste and take a real interest in making their surroundings beautiful, it will doubtless be a great addition to an already lovely landscape.

Others noted in the audience at the Harris last Monday evening were the John R. Winterbothams, Miss Eleanor Holden, Billy Fuller, the Philip Maheras, the Joseph T. Ryersons, the Charles T. Atkinsons, Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, the Charles W. Dempsters, and, of course, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, with the latter's sister and her husband, the Kellogg Fairbanks.

The feminine co-author of "Dishonored Lady" is one of those talented women who add so much to the gayety of things wherever they chance to be. She is a descendant of a pioneer Chicago family, being the youngest of the three Ayer sisters, daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ayer. One of her sisters, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, is an amateur writer of delightful jingles, and the other, Mrs. Fairbank, has two much talked of novels to her credit—"The Cortlands of Washington Square" and "The Smiths."

Stumbled on a Career.

Mrs. Barnes stumbled into her literary career quite by accident—a real accident, as it happens, for she embarked on it during a six months' convalescence after an automobile smash-up. She emerged a writer, starting off with a group of short stories [accepted and published] and following them with a volume of tales, "Prevailing Winds"; three plays, "Jenny," "The Age of Innocence," and "Dishonored Lady," and her first novel, "Years of Grace."

While on the subject of Chicago literati, I am reminded that a number of our young men and women are writing these days. Harry Hansen's second novel, "Paradise City," is about to come out. The young Ewing Webbs have finished their two year piece of work, "Strategy in Handling People," in collaboration with John J. B. Morgan, professor of psychology at Northwestern, a sizeable and instructive volume, to accomplish which they retired from the world of frivolity and devoted themselves to research and much study. It will be in the book shops next week and is well worth investigating.

Mary Baker has written a series of Venetian sketches which she has sent to this country for publication. Dorothy Aldis [Mrs. Graham Aldis] has been hard at work all summer, pounding out fiction on her typewriter on a sheltered little upstairs porch overlooking the gardens and tennis courts of the Arthur Aldis compound in Lake Forest. Mrs. Arthur Aldis is continuing the delightful occupation of playwriting. Constance Bridges [Mrs. C. B. Jones], has been enjoying the summer at Old Lyme, Conn., in an enchanting old house that has lent itself admirably to her literary tastes and endeavors. Sheldon Dick and Arthur Meeker, Jr., have both been busy on books for the last few months—the young Dicks, I believe, have been so pleased with Provincetown, on Cape Cod, that they are planning to build or buy a house there and make it their permanent headquarters. And I'm told that the Alden Swifts' enterprising young daughter, Narcissa, has almost finished a novel which she hopes to bring out this winter.

With all these new volumes coming along to crowd the shelves of loyal Chicago bibliophiles, there are surely any number of older books looking for a home. And here, just in the nick of time, comes a plea from the American Merchant Marine Library association, by way of Mrs. John Borden, to save all such for them.

Outgrowth of War Service.

This association is an outgrowth of the social service bureau of the recruiting service of the United States Shipping board, which, with the assistance of the American Library association, provided reading matter for the men of the American Merchant Marine during the war. Mrs. Henry Howard, of New York and Newport, was chief of the social service bureau, and when, in 1921, the American Merchant Marine Library association was formed, she was made its president.

Since then, it has branched out into various communities. Washington, Cleveland, Bar Harbor, Newport, and now Chicago are all intensely interested in the project that has come to be known as the "public library of the high seas." Mrs. Borden is chairman of the Chicago division, with Mrs. Burt Massee and Mrs. Farwell Winston as vice chairmen; and Mrs. James A. Cathcart as secretary. The active committee includes Mrs. Hale Holden Jr., Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Mrs. Carl H. Milam, Mrs. Louis Yager, Mrs. Edwin T. Johnson Jr., Mrs. H. E. Bradley, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Miss Clara Laughlin, Mrs. Murry Nelson, Mrs. William Nitze, and a number of similarly well known women.

Albert D. Lasker and Edward N. Hurley, former presidents of the shipping board, are serving on the honorary committee, as are Benjamin Affleck, Robert Allerton, Laurance Armour, John Borden, the Rev. Duncan H. Browne, Howard Gillette, Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago; John T. McCutcheon, Burt Massee, Carl B. Roden, Silas Strawn and some fifteen or twenty others.

Mrs. Borden's committee will start its drive for books two weeks from tomorrow with offices in the Palmolive building. That gives all of you a fortnight to unearth a lot of fine donations for them. Twenty thousand is their quota, but from the looks of my own small library, filled to overflowing, I am sure that our contribution as a city will far exceed that number.

Many of those who have contributed volumes in the past have written their names and addresses in them, with amusing and interesting results. The following letter is only one of hundreds that have been received from appreciative men on the high seas:

"Dear friend

for such I have library are to the merchant servace for they Have bin neglected as fur as the library Have bin conserned for the navy and army but at last some one Has though of us & I do thank you from the bottom of my Hart & hop you gods Speed in your work for we need it bad enough Thanking you for the books & all past favors yours ———————"

MRS. ROBERT A. WACHSMAN.

THE marriage of Miss Reba Saunders of Little Rock, Ark., to Robert A. Wachsman of the Drake hotel took place on Sept. 18. Mrs. Wachsman is the daughter of Mrs. M. B. Saunders.

An Exciting Possibility.

And there's always the exciting possibility that in going over your shelves, an unexpectedly valuable book might turn up, as happened a year or so ago in the east. Mrs. Bradford Norman whose daughter married Mrs. Kent Clow's brother, Daniel Jones of St. Louis, discovered a first edition of Louisa Alcott in a collection sent her for distribution. Instead of forwarding it to headquarters, she sold it for a good round sum, and presented the money to the astonished and delighted committee. Mrs. Clow, by the way, accepted the post of co-chairman with Mrs. Holden for Lake Forest when the lists were first made up, but she has since changed her plans and is going to California for a month with her husband, so Mrs. Thorne Donnelley has taken her place in the ranks.

As we announced earlier in the summer, that distinguished Irish patriot George W. Russell [Æ], who is a poet and painter, as well as an essayist and philosopher, is to be one of the first of the autumn's celebrated visitors. He has already arrived in Chicago, where his son, Diarmuid, has already made a number of friends since arriving here last spring, and tomorrow will lecture under the auspices of the Chicago Drama league, on "Some Personalities of the Irish Literary Movement."

His talk is to be given at three o'clock in the gold ballroom of the Drake, and he plans to discuss other writers with whom he has been intimately associated. W. B. Yeats, George Moore, Standish O'Grady, George Bernard Shaw, Lord Dunsany, James Joyce, Padriac Pearse and Thomas MacDonagh are only a few of the well known names said to stroll through his discourses.

Cathedral Redecorated.

This morning when Dean Duncan H. Browne greets the parishioners of St. James for the first time since the beginning of the summer holidays—which he and his wife spend on Cape Cod—he will do so in an atmosphere pleasantly redolent of fresh paint and varnish. During the last few weeks the fine old cathedral has been entirely redecorated, thanks to the generosity of one of its most devoted and best loved members, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson.

For several years the women of the St. James guild have put on a snappy and profitable bazaar just about Thanksgiving time, but this autumn they've evolved a new way to raise funds. They are planning to have a tea at the parish house on Tuesday, Oct. 14, from 2 until 6, and at the tea there'll be an exhibit of all sorts of fascinating bits of fine sewing and other handiwork, for which orders will be taken that afternoon.

Mrs. A. C. Cox is general chairman of the occasion and Mrs. Orville Taylor is making the tea arrangements. Mrs. E. L. Ryerson Jr. will preside over the gay display of children's and babies' garments, while Mrs. Clement Studebaker is getting up a model clothes cupboard with chic modern fittings that can be ordered in your favorite color combinations. Mrs. Duncan H. Browne is in charge of the lingerie, Mrs. Charles Robinson the pincushions, Mrs. Frederick Belknap the towels, and Mrs. Alan C. Dixon the blanket covers. Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling has taken over the job of managing the publicity, and among the many other women putting their efficient shoulders to the wheel are Mrs. Patrick Valentine, Mrs. Henry Hooper Jr., Mrs. Harold O. Evensen, Mrs. John L. Senior, Mrs. Edward Morrell, Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr., Mrs. Fremont A. Chandler, and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson.

Map Italy's Catacombs.

VATICAN CITY.—(UP)—Complete mapping of all the catacombs in Italy—not only the famous ones in Rome, but also those at Naples, Nola, Syracuse, Siena, Volterra, Chiusi, Bolsena, and in Sardinia—has been begun by the Institute of Christian Archæology.

Stops Nose Shine

A shiny nose is most disagreeable—looks bad and makes you feel uneasy. You can stop nose shine at once—get a little Calonite powder from your druggist, sprinkle a little on a wet cloth—apply to nose, and presto! The shine is all gone and the skin is left soft and smooth.

New York Tells This Tale About Roving Mallet

two day meet, with yesterday closing the fiesta and every one in country society turning out, from Greenwich, Sound Beach, Westport, and the rest of the Connecticut pied-a-terres and Rye, Pelham and the Long Island towns as well.

There is a vast difference between the meets at Belmont and these at Bowman park. Most of the members of the united hunts are subscribers to the Westchester Biltmore steeplechase, but whereas Belmont is ever formal and stiff, even if brilliant, Bowman park is as county as anything that England can offer.

All the notables turned out on Wednesday in all the garbs imaginable. Riding clothes, plus fours, white flannel bags, tweeds and ensembles with silver foxes and what not.

Luncheon, in the huge marquee alongside the track, was a gust of laughter and chatter. No one stayed in the boxes. Every one dashed about visiting and skylarking. It was the jolliest sort of party set in the loveliest of autumn settings, for the trees here are just beginning to turn from their summer green to their autumnal riot of color.

Among those who attended were Harry Payne Whitney, Stephen Sanford, F. Ambrose Clark, Robert Law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Welles Durant, Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville, Hugh J. Chisholm, Joseph Wilshir, Mrs. Basil Harris and H. R. Knowlton.

Important Engagement.

There is so much to tell and so much happening that to choose between bits is difficult. However, quite the important event of the week was the announcement of the engagement of Barbara Schieffelin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schieffelin, to Charles Ian Carr Bosanquet of Rock Moor, Alnwick, Northumberland, England.

Barbara is a great-granddaughter of John Jay and a great-great-great-granddaughter of the John Jay who was first justice of the United States Supreme court.

She made her debut in 1925 and since then has taken her A. B. at Barnard and gone in deeply for eugenics research. Her sisters are Mrs Fredrick H. Osborn and Mrs. Charles S. Brown Jr. Her brothers are William Jay Schieffelin Jr., John Jay Bayard, Elliott, and Henry Schieffelin.

Charles Bosanquet is the oldest son of the Robert Carr Bosanquets of Rock Moor, Mr. Bosanquet being former head of the British archæological school at Athens, Greece. Young Bosanquet's cousin, William Bosanquet, married Esther Cleveland, daughter of the late President Cleveland.

Mr. Bosanquet attended Winchester and Trinity college, Cambridge. He was private secretary to Sir Hilton Young at Geneva in 1925. At present he is in the banking business. He is a member of the London clubs of Brooks, the New University, and the Leander Boat.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Romans Order Cats to Vacate Famous Forum

Find Their Upkeep Too Expensive.

ROME.—(AP)—

"Now many a cat
"Has sat and sat,
"And wondered why
"He had to die,
"Beneath the shade
"Old Trajan made!"

For generations this was said of the feline occupants of the famous Forum of Trajan here. Hundreds of them lived amid the columns of a once great portion of Imperial Rome, surrounded by high walls and protected by the city fathers.

New Versions.

But now the doggerel will have to be changed to read something like this:

"Now many a cat
"Which sat and sat
"Beneath the shade
"Old Trajan made
"Would like to know
"Who made him go."

For the governor of Rome, Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi, has said the cats must leave the Forum of Trajan and be transferred to a shelter on the outskirts of the city. There people may go and select a household pet if they desire.

No one knows exactly when and how Trajan's Forum became a refuge for cats. But for generations they have gathered there and multiplied, subsisting on bread and meat thrown down by daily visitors.

Daily Additions.

And every day a householder brings another, perhaps a whole litter of kittens he does not know what to do with. Tourists have marveled that such a place could exist in this day and age.

The city publicly recognized the Forum as a cat refuge several years ago, when Signor Saracco was president of the council. He found that the expense of tripe for the cats of the various government departments was excessive. So he decreed that the "official cats" should be reduced to one for each department, and that the others be confined in the Forum of Trajan.

WHEN CHICAGO WAS YOUNG

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

By Herma Clark.

Chicago, Oct. 18, 1874.

DEAR JULIA:

I wish you had been in Chicago the last week to attend the sessions of the Women's Congress. It has been wonderfully interesting. I had never had much sympathy for the promoters of women's rights, but hearing all these notable speakers has changed my mind, and with the zeal of the convert, I shall write you all about the meetings. I really think this gathering has advanced the women's cause to a great degree, for many Chicago women are like myself. I don't want to vote, but I think such brilliant women as we have heard this week surely are entitled to the ballot.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore is president of the Association for the Advancement of Women, and her fine service during the civil war makes her a commanding figure all over the country. She has presided with dignity and tact. Mrs. Kate N. Doggett of Chicago is another brilliant figure in the meetings. She did a great deal to make the congress a success, and made all the preliminary arrangements, besides entertaining many of the visiting delegates. Susan B. Anthony is another notable much in evidence. I didn't enjoy her speaking very much. She clasps her hands behind her back in talking, and has a rather unpleasant didactic manner of addressing her audience.

Two professional women stood out quite prominently. These were: First, the Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, the first woman to be ordained a minister in the United States. Second, Miss Phoebe Couzins of St. Louis, the first woman to be admitted to practice law in the United States.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," was another distinguished member of the congress. Mrs. Howe read an excellent paper on "finance." Have you ever seen her? She is a blonde, dresses tastefully in black or gray, and impresses one as being very ladylike and religious. She never takes off her hat in public meetings, as many of the other ladies do.

We Chicagoans were all proud of Mrs. C. V. Waite, a splendid advocate for the cause of women's rights. Mrs. Waite has a wonderful mind. She is a graduate of Oberlin college, as are Lucy Stone and Antoinette Brown Blackwell. Though Mrs. Waite is married and the mother of six children, she has done much important public work, having been principal of the Hyde Park seminary from 1858 to 1870. Three years ago, she made application to have her name registered as a voter, but, of course, was refused. She then filed a petition in the Supreme court, asking that the election board be compelled to put her name on the register. Though her husband, Judge C. B. Waite, made an argument in favor of his wife's petition, it was not granted. But the discussion stirred up by her action has advanced the woman suffrage cause, it was said at the meeting today.

The largest audience was present when the subject of dress reform was discussed. Men were excluded, at first, when the undergarments were shown. An underdress of red flannel was shown by Mrs. Flynt, the famous Boston dressmaker. It is a garment combining chemise, corset cover, under sleeves, habit shirt, and bustle supporter.

Mrs. Flynt, who weighs 200 pounds, showed how fat women were annoyed by puffiness above and below the waistline, and after donning the dress which she wore over this underdress, she walked up and down the platform to show how active she was in the dress reform costume. The outer dress has a waist to which skirts may be attached, and with a single effort, it can be dropped off in one piece. It would be fine for use in traveling.

ENGAGED

MISS LOIS SHUBERT.
[Swisher Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jackson of 2330 North Clark street announce the engagement of their daughter, Lois Shubert, to Charles W. Reynolds.

During the dress reform discussion, Mrs. Livermore, presiding, said she found it necessary to wear corsets for that "all-gone feeling." I feel, with her, that the new dress leaves much to be desired in the way of comfort, but we do need something different from our present mode, which is not healthful.

The most prominent women in the city were in attendance at the meetings, and I saw Mrs. Henry Forsyth, whose mother, Mrs. A. H. Hoge, had worked with Mrs. Livermore in the Sanitary Fair in Chicago, during the civil war. One afternoon I sat with Mrs. Laflin, Mrs. Albert Keep, and Mrs. Jesse Whitehead, all of whom are much interested in church work, but are somewhat dubious yet about women's rights.

It is interesting to notice that the newspapers are quite respectful toward the women, and well they may be, with such a galaxy as were present here. Several prominent men in the east have allied themselves with the women, to demand the vote for them, you know, such as T. W. Higginson and Henry Blackwell, husband of Lucy Stone. I was so disappointed that Lucy Stone couldn't be here. They say she is very pretty and a remarkably eloquent speaker.

Yours for women's rights,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Footnotes.

Mrs. C. V. Waite, mentioned in the letter today, was graduated from Union College of Law, 1886, and edited the Chicago Law Times and the Crusader, a suffrage paper. In 1888, she was elected president of the Women's International Bar association. She died in 1913.

Mrs. Kate N. Doggett founded, and was first president of the Fortnightly of Chicago.

Jesse A. White of Pewaukee, Wis., sends us a stanza of a favorite poem, which seems to express the purpose of this column.

By the flickering light of a dying blaze,
We sit and dream of bygone days.
Though we know not why, there is something then
That fetches the old things back again.
And, gazing deep in the dying flames,
We think of faces, remember names.
No land is far, in the firelight glow,
And it isn't so long to the Long Ago.

[If you have a favorite poem of long ago days, or about the old days, send it in to Herma Clark, CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.]

Does She Smile or Pout?

Smiles mean good digestion. The pouty girl is likely suffering from malnutrition. Give her two spoonfuls of Thompson's in a glass of milk two or three times a day with meals. It is a wonderfully digestible food and aids the digesting of other foods. Thousands of pouty girls have been changed to smilers through improved digestion—nearly all druggists and grocers handle Thompson's.

Circumstances and present conditions have forced us to take immediate action for three definite reasons. First, fire destroyed part of our floor stock in our Michigan Avenue Store. Also, our lease is expiring shortly. Secondly, we are closing up our Madison Street Store. And third, our three story warehouse must be cleared of immense stocks at once.

In the face of this situation we have gone through our huge stocks and marked every piece of this fine furniture at a fraction of its real value, disregarding original costs or present values and putting such unheard of prices on this merchandise that it will go out in a hurry. Here you will find an exclusive line of living room, bedroom, and dining room suites, occasional pieces and objects of art, of the quality that has made Arthur A. Salon Nautique Holds Attention of Parisians

American's Work Made Feature of Show.

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—Society expositions burgeon here in the autumn like the trees and flowers in the spring time. The wireless show opened a few days ago and this week the automobile display is bringing crowds to the Grand Palais. Also the Salon Nautique, which is always a notable affair, has just opened and welcomes its clientele earlier than usual with a handsome and varied exhibition spread along the Seine just outside of the Grand Palais.

With the growing interest in water sports, especially motor boats and yachting, this exposition attracts society. Last year when the Salon Nautique was given at the Grand Palais thousands awaited their turns to inspect the Lilliputian steamboats constructed by an American, Maj. Arthur W. Kipling. This year his miniature craftsmanship and inventive flair again is the greatest drawing card of the show. He is displaying boats less than a yard long, complete working models of dreadnaughts and ocean liners which on being brought to the attention of Minister of Marine Jacques-Louis Dumesnil impressed him so that he insisted in making them the feature of this salon.

Models That Really Work.

Since last year Maj. Kipling has exercised his skill principally in devising motors, which, although microscopic, really work. Twenty-five years' experience has enabled him to produce working models on the scale of sixteen millimeters to a meter and four and one-half grammes to a ton. For years experts have told him they would not run.

Crowds gather daily at the Kipling stand to see the miniature seaport having houses an inch high and boats three inches long in a basin with wonderful day-night light effects, diminutive dwellings, illuminated gleams from the ships' port holes, storms bursting, and lighthouse flashing, all run by electric motors so small that a hand can close over them easily.

Both Maj. Kipling and his wife have long been identified with the American colony here and have taken an active interest in the American Legion and the financing of the organization, particularly with their charitable undertakings.

Chicagoans at Longchamps.

Longchamps reached the peak of the season last Sunday with a tremendous gathering of fashionables. Chicagoans present included Mrs. Honore Palmer, who is going in more extensively for racing than ever, her stable having purchased eleven yearlings amounting to $34,000 at the Deauville August sales.

Misses Jessie and Catherine Colvin are now in Paris after a cure at Vichy and will return to Lake Forest some time late in October. Also Mrs. George Lytton with her daughter, Rosemary, is here for a short visit. Mrs. Harry Spenser Brown is spending a last few weeks at the Château de Ranville, sailing for home on Oct. 16.

Free-Spending American Becomes a Myth.

NICE, France.—(AP)—Individual tourists spent less in France this year than at any period since the war, according to estimates of the riviera casinos and the Monte Carlo gambling palace.

The difference is hard to estimate, but the Monte Carlo casino figures show that while a hundred thousand more people entered the establishment in the five months beginning with May than did last year, the receipts dropped nearly $75,000.

Statistics from other casinos show that the same situation exists all along the coast.

Frugal Clients.

Juan les Pins is so crowded that though the bath houses have been tripled in twelve months it is now impossible to hire one except by the month. Hotels there are crowded, but the managers bewail the fact that their clients are too frugal.

At the famous Café de Paris in Monte Carlo sixteen waiters and a ten piece orchestra served one day the solitary German tourist who strolled in for lunch. A nearby restaurant, where the prices are lower, was filled to overflowing.

That the proverbial free spending American is fast becoming a myth is the belief of French, English, and American business men on the riviera.

* *

Change Drinking Habits.

One British proprietor of a de luxe bar in Nice discovered that six of his best English and American customers, who for three years had met twice daily in his establishment, had changed their habits. They came in the morning, had one whisky instead of two, and departed. They never returned in the evening.

He found that the men were frequenting a workman's bar where they saved 20 cents on each drink.

According to a local lawyer the number of "rubber" checks that will bounce into the approaching court sessions will be three times as great as ever before. Americans run the British a close second in the race for getting the largest amount of money on worthless checks.

Parties and Golf Fill Busy Week at White Sulphur

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. W. Henry was a hostess at bridge at the Casino this week. Mrs. Lindsay Russell concluded her stay here and is in Washington before going north to New York.

Among those playing golf this week at the Greenbrier club were Martin Littleton Jr., Frank J. O'Neill, A. Duncan Reid, Francis X. Mellory, Hudson Lott, William B. Joyce, and Mrs. J. W. Henry.

Guests at luncheon on the lawns of the Casino included Mr. and Mrs. George T. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Balfe, Dorr C. Price, J. K. Walker, Clarence C. Wysong, Dr. Armistead Doble, Natalie Davis, Mrs. L. Frederick Bruce, and Mrs. E. A. St. John.

Reptile Skins to U. S.

MEXICO CITY.—(AP)—The United States buys more than $1,000,000 worth of crocodile and snake skins from Mexico annually to use in making women's shoes and handbags, but the department of commerce suggests that a more careful selection of sizes would bring increased income from this trade.

Nuts and Goat's Milk Restore Gandhi's Health

Ready for Future Years of Agitation.

LONDON.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi's health has been restored by goat's milk and the 60 year old Hindu nationalist should lead his people many more years, in the opinion of his personal physician and friend, Dr. David Chowry Muthu, who is in England after 17 years' health work in India.

Dr. Muthu was called to examine Gandhi a few months ago when he was suffering from high blood pressure due to stomach disorder.

* *

Too Much Fasting.

"I found that he had injured himself through too much fasting," Dr. Muthu related. "I put him on a diet which varied goat's milk with salads, vegetables, fruits and nuts and his blood pressure went down immediately.

"But the mahatma didn't like the salads so he went back to goat's milk and nuts. Twice a day he would drink a cup of goat's milk in which peeled and ground nuts had been mixed.

"He continues to do this even in prison. The mahatma suffers somewhat from his teeth, several of which have been taken out and he has mostly liquid foods.

Needed Relaxation.

"One of the greatest difficulties was to get the mahatma to relax. He was constantly occupied many hours a day with people interrupting him all the time from morning until night. He is so well loved by his people that they would not give him a moment's peace. I stopped all that.

"It was a big help, as far as his health was concerned, when the mahatma agreed to observe daily periods of two or three hours silence for then he could relax and meditate and his nervous system had a chance to recover from the great strain under which he labors.

Health Is Normal.

"Gandhi's heart and lungs are perfectly normal. I examined them thoroughly and I know. Do not be misled by rumors that his health is bad. His whole trouble was due to the irregularity of his meals and too much fasting. He never had the proper food at the proper time.

Construct Theater in Manila to Show Only Native Films

MANILA, P. I.—(AP)—Native films depicting Filipino legends and stories are to be shown exclusively in a new picture theater under construction here.

Native movies are "terrible" so far as Americans and Europeans are concerned, and the foreigners go to see them only out of curiosity. But they go over big with the Filipinos and there is a steady demand for them.

Movies have been made here for ten years, but the producers have not reached a stage where they can promise talkies. The best they have done thus far is to synchronize their silent films with music and sound effects. Subtitles are in English, Spanish, and Tagalog.

With the Cats Away, Mice Have Their Day

LISBON.—(AP)—Lisbon authorities, who fought public opinion and irate cat owners when they recently captured and killed 1,000 stray cats, are now paying the piper.

Widespread damage has been done to warehouses and shop stocks since the "cat riots" ended, the mice frisking gayly and devouring fabrics and foodstuffs at will.

LOVELINESS RETURNS SWIFTLY IN THE SALONS OF ELIZABETH ARDEN

SKY and wind and ocean and sun, you have enjoyed this summer. Sport . . . exhilarating . . . breathless! Fun . . . no end! But this same wild air . . . and strong sun rays that strengthened and leaned and firmed your body, have . . . let us be frank about it . . . they have done damaging things to your skin . . . things you must correct at once! Little crinkly lines simply baked around your eyes . . . little brown freckles, perhaps . . . and, of a surety, an unwanted thickening which is the skin's own protection from exposure. Most unattractive! Especially when the new clothes demand a soft prettiness . . . a dainty and feminine face. You will need a few reconditioning treatments at Elizabeth Arden's Salon to bleach and soften and refine your skin. It is amazing how quickly this is done. You will rejoice to see the smooth whiteness of your face after using that famous enemy of tan . . . Elizabeth Arden's Anti-Brown Spot Ointment or her special bleaching creams. Or if you wish to keep your tan, you may have simply the refining treatments that will leave your skin creamy and silky-soft.

Germans Keep Wary Eye on French Moves

Object to Generals' Visits in Poland and Rumania.

BERLIN.—(AP)—In the attendance of two French generals at this year's maneuvers in Poland and Rumania, Marshal Henri Petain in Poland and Gen. Henri Berthelot of the French general staff, in Rumania, German political circles see a twofold French demonstration against Germany and Italy respectively.

"Germany's persistent demand for a revision of the German-Polish frontier and corridor settlement and the lively echo these demands have gradually been finding in other countries, including France, have engendered a general state of nervousness in Poland," says the Boersen Zeitung, "that calls for just such a demonstration as the visit of Marshal Petain, as much for the purpose of administering a sedative to Polish perturbation as to show Poland and the rest of the world that in the German-Polish border question France continues to side with Poland."

Gesture Against Turkey.

An equally demonstrative gesture preëminently against Italy, but also directed at Russia and Turkey, is seen in the visit to the Rumanian maneuvers of Gen. Berthelot, who, incidentally, headed the French military mission sent to Rumania in the early part of the world war.

Assumedly at the instigation of Italy, a new version was recently given to the Russian-Turkish amity agreement signed in 1925 whereby the treaty receives a distinctly offensive character against Rumania. This interpretation of the apparently harmless agreement was further emphasized by an article in the usually inspired Turkish newspaper Millet advocating a determined stand against Rumania in the dispute about Bessarabia between that country and Russia.

Italy's Changed Policy.

The German newspapers recall how Italy, after many unsuccessful attempts to break up the French-Rumanian connections with the object of then corralling Rumania in the maze of the Italian southeastern Europe agreements, has of late adopted the diametrically opposite policy of trying to isolate Rumania in a manner similar to that employed with Jugoslavia.

France's answers to this move were the trips to Rumania of Gen. Gouraud, military governor of Paris, and of Secretary General Dumaine of the Schneider-Creuzot arms and ammunition factory. This countermove, enhanced by the more recent visit of Gen. Berthelot, the Germans say, was intended as a reminder to Italy, Russia and Turkey that intimate, cordial relations existed between France and Rumania.

But the Boersen Zeitung is convinced that aside from these political objects, the visits of Marshal Petain and Gen. Berthelot to Poland and Rumania also have a military purpose.

* *

Wards of Doubtful Value.

The newspaper says that both the Polish and the Rumanian armies have been wards of the French general staff and alleges that on previous visits Generals l'Azan and Gouraud found the Polish and Rumanian forces to be military factors of doubtful value.

Gen. l'Azan is reported to have criticised the inefficient training of Polish officers of the upper ranks and to have urged a material strengthening of the Polish border fortifications, while Gen. Gouraud is said to have proposed to the general staff in Bucharest a complete reorganization of the Rumanian army and offered his services for that purpose.

Catholics Plan Festivities for Golden Jubilee

Mark 50th Anniversary of Archdiocese.

By the Rev. John Evans.

GOLDEN JUBILEE festivities, marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, will be marked this fall with an elaborate celebration. This was announced by the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, in charge of arrangements. The ceremonies will open with a pontifical mass in Holy Name cathedral in the presence of His Eminence George Cardinal Mundelein and will close with a banquet at which the cardinal will be the chief speaker.

ARCHBISHOP FEEHAN.
[Steffens Photo.]

The Chicago diocese was founded by the Rt. Rev. William Quarter who was consecrated bishop on May 10, 1844. His brother, the Rev. Walter J. Quarter, founded the first Catholic church of the city—now Old St. Patrick's, now located at Adams and Des Plaines street—at Randolph and Des Plaines streets. Old St. Patrick's, at its present location is 74 years old. The first mass was said in it on Christmas day, 1856.

The first archbishop to serve the archdiocese was the Most Rev. Patrick Feehan who was elevated to the archepiscopate on Sept. 10, 1880 and his elevation marks the beginning of the local archepiscopal see. The celebration of this event will be the first major enterprise of the recently organized Federation of Catholic women. The second meeting of that body was held at Quigley Preparatory seminary Saturday afternoon, Sept. 20.

At that time Bishop Sheil announced that it had been suggested to Cardinal Mundelein that the federation might desire to promote the jubilee festivities and that his eminence had consented. After Bishop Sheil had given a review of the history of the archdiocese down to the time of the founding of the federation, a resolution was offered by Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder of the Catholic Daughters of America that the offer of the cardinal be accepted. The direction of the festivities of the jubilee was accepted by the federation unanimously.

Prohibition pro and con will be discussed by members of nine young peoples' religious societies of Protestant churches next Saturday afternoon and evening at the Chicago temple. According to D. Emerson O. Bradshaw, secretary of the Chicago council of religious education, the leaders of the youths' groups have developed the program in their own way under the chairmanship of H. Lynn Parker. More than 25,000 Chicago young people will be represented in the coming prohibition convention.

Two speakers of international recognition will introduce what the young people regard the important phases of the issue. The first speaker, Ben Spence, director of the Canadian prohibition bureau, will explain the workings of government control of liquor sales in that country. Following his address the convention will become an open forum. A similar forum will follow the address of Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist prohibition board, Washington, D. C. Mr. Pickett will represent prohibition in America.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club will open its 24th season tonight in Orchestra hall. A feature of the early service will be the special numbers by the Hamilton Club Male chorus, who will sing from 7 to 7:35. Following this special music, Clifford W. Barnes, the president of the Sunday Evening club, will give his first informal Bible talk on "The Trail of a Pathfinder."

The address of the evening will be given by Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the Boston Federation of Churches. Dr. Eliot is the son of the late President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard university. Dr. Eliot's subject will be "Our Heritage of Christian Citizenship." Bishop William Frazer McDowell, who is presiding at the sessions of the Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Wilmette, will be an early speaker at the Sunday Evening club. The bishop will be the matriculation day preacher at Garrett Biblical institute on Oct. 7.

The Feast of the Rosary, which dates back to the year 1571, when the victory of the Christian forces under Don Juan of Austria over the Turkish fleet came as a response to the prayers of the rosary confraternities of Rome, will be celebrated on Sunday, Oct. 5.

There will be solemn mass at 11 o'clock at the Holy Name cathedral, with special music by the Holy Name cathedral men's choir and boy choristers, directed by the Rev. Philip F. Mahoney, and with the chanting of the proper of the mass by the Quigley Seminary Plain Chant choir, directed by the Rev. Edwin V. Hoover.

The men's choir and the choristers will sing the Regina Pacis mass of Pietro Yon, with solos by Franz Schultz, bass; Prof. Edouard Dufresne, baritone; and Earl Alexander, tenor; and Masters Rosario Lombardo and Edgar Strong of the choristers. A number of new voices have been added to the choristers this season, from among whom Father Mahoney expects to develop some new soloists.

During the month of October rosary devotions, consisting of rosary, litany, special prayers and benediction of the blessed sacrament, will be held in the Holy Name cathedral every evening at 8 o'clock.

The forty-eighth academic year of the Western Theological seminary (Episcopal) will open Monday, Oct. 6 with a record enrollment, according to announcement by the Very Rev. Frederick C. Grant, dean and president. The opening will mark completion of the new $750,000 plant on the Evanston site, across the street from Patten gymnasium of Northwestern university. The last dormitory, a $150,000 structure, is just now being completed and will be occupied for the first time this fall. The new plant is said to be one of the finest seminary groups in the country.

The entering class will be the largest in the history of the seminary, the enrollment being nearly twice as large as when the seminary was located on the west side in Chicago.

The seminary faculty as announced by Dean Grant will include the Rev. A. Haire Forster, professor of Hellenistic Greek and lecturer in Biblical literature; the Rev. Daniel A. McGregor, professor of dogmatic theology; the Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, lecturer in homiletics [preaching]; the Rev. Frank H. Hallock, librarian; Peter Christian Lutkin, lecturer in church music; and Cornelius C. Cunningham, instructor in public speaking. Dean Grant will serve as professor of literature and interpretation of the Old Testament and lecturer in systematic theology.

Coincidences

Your strange coincidence will be printed if you will submit it to "Strange Coincidences," Chicago Tribune.

Hit by Cupid.

I went with a young man a long time last year and then he got a position in another city and we separated without becoming engaged, neither of us being quite sure we wanted to marry. We agreed, however, to see each other at the end of six months and decide for sure.

At the end of three months I decided that I had made a mistake in not accepting Joe, for absence made the heart grow fonder. So I sat down and wrote him to this effect. I went down to the postoffice box on the corner and mailed the letter and when I returned to the house the postman was just putting a letter in our mail box. It was from Joe, and he begged me not to make him wait six months. We were married July 1, and we both believe in coincidence with all our hearts. E. L. R.

Money, Money.

I was getting ready for my vacation and found that the cash on hand was none too much. On my way down the street I met the mail man, who handed me two letters. One contained a check for $10 for an accepted story and the other contained a returned loan of $20 which I never expected to see again. A fortunate coincidence and a lucky break. H. D.

Idle Words Came True.

One evening some time ago, a few of us fellows decided to have a small beach party. I called up a girl friend and asked her if she would like to go. She said that she was going dancing that evening. Jokingly, I told her that the dance hall had burned down during the afternoon.

She said, "O, no, it didn't."

I answered "Well, it will, if you go there tonight."

In the morning I was much surprised when I read in the paper that that particular dance hall burned to the ground three hours after the dance had ended. J. C.

Gotham Starts on Successful Musical Year

Concert Is 2,548th for Philharmonic.

By Joan King.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Marked by unusual brilliance even for a first night of symphony, Gotham commenced Thursday evening a brand new musical season. For the first time in a number of years the inaugurating honors did not go to an individual recitalist. The New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra took to itself the privilege of sounding the initial notes of the year 1930-'31.

The performance Thursday evening opened the Philharmonic's 89th season—the third since the consolidation with the New York Symphony. It was, according to official record, the 2,548th concert in the history of that ancient and honorable organization.

Although New York has been suffering throughout the entire month of September with summer heat and, as a result, many European sojourners have delayed returning to their home town, nevertheless, when the curtain went up Thursday night at good old Carnegie the boxes glittered with just as much social brilliance as ever. Indeed, the list of box holders for the opening this year even surpassed that of former seasons in point of representation from the renowned Four Hundred.

Erich Kleiber Conducts.

At the helm of the orchestra for this auspicious occasion, which began a year of symphony, that, according to official forecast, is to stand out as unusual even by comparison with that organization's distinguished history, was a conductor new to America—Erich Kleiber. Mr. Kleiber is not only new to symphonic leadership here, but he had never before set foot upon our shores. He is general music director of the Berlin State opera, and it was at the urging of Arturo Toscanini that he was persuaded to take the baton of the Philharmonic for the first six weeks of 1930-'31. His is the first of a list of imposing names announced as the chosen leaders of the orchestra this season. The others are Arturo Toscanini, Bernardino Molinari, and Leopold Stokowski.

The program which the Viennese leader chose as his introductory offering to America, although conservative, nevertheless included a novelty—Mozart's serenade No. 9 [Kochel No. 320] for small orchestra. This composition, according to the conductor, had never before been heard here. It was found in the Berlin State library by Mr. Kleiber himself while he was searching for new works to bring with him to America. Berlin has never even heard the work.

For the rest, Mr. Kleiber gave the Weber overture to "Freischutz"; Beethoven's eighth symphony, and Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel." While in this country he intends to treat his Philharmonic audiences to a rich fare of novelties.

"Aida" at the Metropolitan.

Contrary to the Chicago Civic opera's decision to depart from regular custom and offer a work outside the standard repertory as its opening opera, Giulio Gatti-Casazza has chosen "Aida" for the Metropolitan's gala night, Oct. 27. Maria Mueller, Karin Branzell, Aida Doninelli, Giovanni Martinelli, Giuseppe de Luca, Ezio Pinza and Joseph MacPherson will sing, and Tullio Serafin will lead.

Impresario Gatti-Casazza has also announced the engagement of two more new artists for his roster this year in addition to eight named in the spring. Maria Ranzow, mezzo-soprano of Vienna, Beireuth, Nuremburg and Berlin, and Hans Clemens, tenor, of Berlin and Covent Garden are the latest additions. Those already announced include besides the Americans Beatrice Belkin, soprano; Myrna Sharlow, soprano, and Claudio Frigerio, baritone; Olga Didur, soprano; Faina Petrova, mezzo; George Thill, tenor; Ivar Firthjof Andreson, basso, and Lilly Pons, coloratura.

As for novelties to be offered the season's frequenters of Gotham's good old emporium of grand opera, there will be Deems Taylor's new opera, "Peter Ibbetson," early in February; Moussorksky's "The Fair at Sorotchinsk," the end of November; Franz von Suppe's "Boccaccio" early in January, and "Le Preziose Ridicole," by Felice Lattuada, based on Moliere's "Les Preciuses Ridicules," in December.

DREAMS

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you care to see it in print address "Dreams," Chicago Tribune.

House Gone.

Across the street from my home there are two small houses. I have been away from home for several months, hearing from my neighbors occasionally. Several nights ago I dreamed that I was at home again and that instead of the two houses across the street, there was just a vast space. I wakened somewhat surprised by the dream. The next night I dreamed the same thing again. I wrote to one of the neighbors and told about the strange dream I had had. Almost by return mail she wrote to me, telling me that fire had broken out in one of the houses and that the wind being the right—or the wrong!—way, the other house had caught fire. "There is nothing but space across the street from your house now," wrote this neighbor, "so your dream came true." L. R. M.

Lover Comes Back!

When America entered the world war I was engaged to a young musician in a large city in the middle west. He enlisted and was sent to France. The day we parted I gave him a tiny ivory plaque with a miniature of myself painted when I graduated from high school.

We corresponded until after one of the great drives his letters stopped coming. I never heard from him again. His name was among the "missing," and I gradually gave up hope of ever seeing him again. Since then I have moved to several different cities.

A few months ago I dreamed that he was standing in front of a beautiful skyscraper with the miniature in his hand, eagerly watching the crowds that passed, occasionally calling my name. Just as I caught his eye the dream was over. I awoke just as I said "Here I am!"

Two days later I received a letter from that city. Imagine my feelings as I read that my soldier lover was alive and well after months in a hospital. He said that he had searched for me for all these years, and finally had opened a studio in the building of my dream. On the night of my dream, as he was leaving the studio, he had met an old friend of mine who told him where I was. Now I believe in dreams! A. R.

Recording of "Iolanthe" Will Please Operetta Fans

By Edward Moore.

FOR a pleasant hour and a half to be spent during an evening home it would be hard to find a better recommendation than "Iolanthe," which has just come out of Victor's record making laboratory. If you are a Gilbert and Sullivan fan, your former memories will be rather brilliantly revived; if you are not, the present set will probably make you one. The last statement can be easily proved. I have personal acquaintance of one household where it has already worked that way.

Some day I hope that there may be another "Iolanthe" performance on the stage, cast with an assemblage of the best artists who have appeared in it during past years, Bettina Hall as Iolanthe, Kate Condon as the Fairy Queen, De Wolf Hopper as the Lord Chancellor might do for a start, the others to be filled in later. Failing these, Victor presents the D'Oyly Carte Opera company under the supervision of Rupert D'Oyly Carte himself, with Nellie Briercliffe as Iolanthe, Bertha Lewis as the queen of the fairies, George Baker as the Lord Chancellor, Winifred Lawson as Phyllis, Leslie Rands as Strephon, Sydney Granville as Private Willis, other minor members, and chorus from the D'Oyly Carte Opera company, and conducted by Dr. Malcolm Sargent, and a highly competent lot they turn out to be. The set comes in the Victor Album C-10, eleven double faced records containing all the music of the piece but not the spoken dialog. An accompanying booklet prints the verses and tells a running story.

Admirable Recording.

Perhaps it would be as well to prelude the "Iolanthe" evening with something which is not Gilbert and Sullivan at all. Brunswick, in the Hall of Fame-International series, obliges with a record of the overture to "The Bartered Bride" [90034], played by the Philharmonic orchestra of Berlin under the direction of Dr. Julius Pruewer.

There are several reasons why this disk makes a good beginning. It is an admirable piece of recording, for one thing, with melodic outlines clear and the tone quality of the instruments faithfully reproduced; likewise the mood of the piece, which comes out even better than faithfully. It is a memory of the brilliant performance of the opera given at Ravinia last summer and a reminder that the Chicago Civic Opera company promises to do it this winter. Finally, it is in itself a bit of joyous high spirits, just the sort of thing to put you in the state of mind to enjoy Gilbert and Sullivan.

Possibly you will get along better if, at first, you use the booklet in connection with the records. The choristers, excellent melody makers though they are, do not always get the words across with 100 per cent clarity. For that matter, they never have in stage performances of the piece. Some of the delights of the Gilbert verse are sure to be submerged in the delights of the Sullivan tunes. And where Sullivan went complex and had two or three sets of different words going simultaneously the case is hopeless.

A Lesson to Amateurs.

But this is only a comparatively small part of the picture. The choral march of the peers, "Bow, Bow, Ye Lower Middle Classes," is immense. Every amateur chorus planning to do this excerpt in concert can get a valuable lesson in how to do it by listening to this record. The bit a little later telling about how the party we claim to belong to is the party we're singing this song to is likely to adhere tenaciously to the memory for days afterwards. And if you want to hear how a comic song should really be sung, turn on the record where Mr. Baker makes the Lord Chancellor's announcement that the law is the true embodiment of everything that's excellent.

I have never been a great admirer of the famous nightmare patter song that later falls to the lord chancellor. Admitting the great difficulty of intelligently directing any such overflowing freshet of syllables as is in this singing, admitting also the accuracy with which Mr. Baker directs it, I would rather listen to Private Willis' song, one of the best things in this set, or let Lord Tolloller proclaim that hearts just as pure and fair may beat in Belgrave square as in the lowly air of Seven Dials, or be present when Lords Tolloller and Mountararat carol that faint heart never won fair lady.

The entire set is full of good things. The finale to the first act is more ambitious than many a scene in grand opera, and Victor and the D'Oyly Carte Opera company between them are bringing it to you in the finest possible manner.

This is the third of the Gilbert & Sullivan operettas to be recorded by Victor. "Trial by Jury" and "The Pirates of Penzance" have preceded it. Later we may have "Pinafore" and "The Mikado." Before Victor gets through with this rich vein, however, there is one person who would like to cast a vote for "The Gondoliers" and especially for "Patience."

* *

In Lighter Vein.

In some lighter vein, Victor puts out a flock of best steppers, mostly fox trots. Some of them are:

22,492—"Little White Lies" and "Gee, But I'd like to Make You Happy," by Waring's Pennsylvanians.

22,493—"I'd Like to Find the Guy that Wrote the Stein Song" (wonder whether a music critic has been recording) and "What's the Use," by J. Johnson's orchestra.

22,500—"When Love Comes in the Moonlight" and "We're on the Highway to Heaven," by Taylor's orchestra.

22,489—"Good Evenin'" and "Just a Little Closer," by Vallée's Yankees.

22,499—"My Baby Just Cares for Me" and "A Girl Friend of a Boy Friend of Mine," by F. T. Weems' orchestra.

22,501—"Tomorrow Is Another Day," by Fiorito's orchestra, and "Looking for the Lovelight in the Dark," by Taylor's orchestra.

22,505—"Go Home and Tell Your Mother" and "I'm Doin' that Thing," by Arnheim's Cocoanut Grove orchestra.

22,506—"Confessin'" and "My Bluebird Was Caught in the Rain," again by Vallée's Yankees.

Dance Numbers.

Brunswick likewise obliges with a collection of dance numbers. Again a few are here listed:

4,868—"Miss Hannah" and "There's a Wah-Wah Girl in Agua Caliente," by Isham Jones and his orchestra with vocal chorus.

4,882—"When the Organ Played at Twilight," waltz with vocal trio by Tom Gerun and his orchestra, and "It Seems to Be Spring," from the film, "Let's Go Native," by Meyer Davis Hotel Astor orchestra.

4,869—"F'r Instance" and "Venetia," by Ben Bernie and his orchestra.

4,870—"Looking for the Lovelight in the Dark" and "As Long as I Have You," both from the film "Top Speed," the Davis organization.

4,872—"Go Home and Tell Your Mother" and "I'm Doing That Thing,"

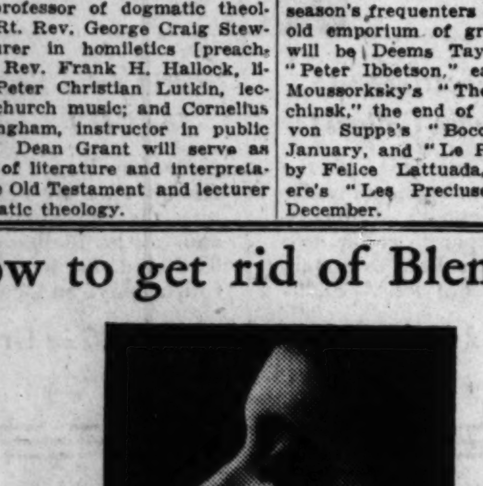
4,881—"Little White Lies" and "I Wonder How It Feels," by the Burnett orchestra.

4,883—"Why Have You Forgotten Waikiki?" and "Moonlight on the Colorado," by Irving Aaronson and his Commanders.

4,895—"If I Could Be with You" and "A Big Bouquet for You," by Tom Gerun.

4,858—"Hittin' the Bottle" and "Out of a Clear Blue Sky," both from the Earl Carroll Vanities, by the Colonial Club orchestra.

4,866—"In Memory of You," by the Anglo-Persians, and "How Are You Tonight in Hawaii?" by the Colonial Club orchestra.



How to get rid of Blemishes

CLEAR UP SKIN
while you sleep

When you are bothered with pimples, blackheads, eruptions or itchy spots . . . don't pick and squeeze . . . don't gamble with relief. Just before retiring for the night anoint the infected areas with Rowles Mentho Sulphur.

While you sleep this safe ointment, just the color of skin, swiftly erases blemishes and soon clears the skin right up. Results, even in stubborn cases, are so satisfactory because Rowles Mentho Sulphur contains the 3 valuable ingredients that soothe, heal and cleanse the skin of impurities.

Keep a small jar of Rowles Mentho Sulphur handy. At the first sign of a pimple, itch or rash use this safe ointment freely. It is recognized by leading authorities as a fine way to clear up the skin and keep it beautiful.

To avoid that spotty skin
Shun light shades of powder

HERE'S A POWDER THAT BECOMES PART OF THE SKIN

Smart women have learned one of the most important lessons in make-up—that a natural skin only comes when the powder actually blends with the natural skin tone. The new Beige powder from Primrose House is the favorite this fall because it brings out all the lights and color of the skin without that horrid spotty appearance everyone wants to avoid. So fine in texture that it never clogs or cakes, yet it clings like the stone in a peach. Really a $3 powder, it may now be had in dollar portions. One-third the amount for one-third the cost.

At all better class drug and department stores, in boxes, $1 and $3. Primrose House, 595 Fifth Avenue, New York.

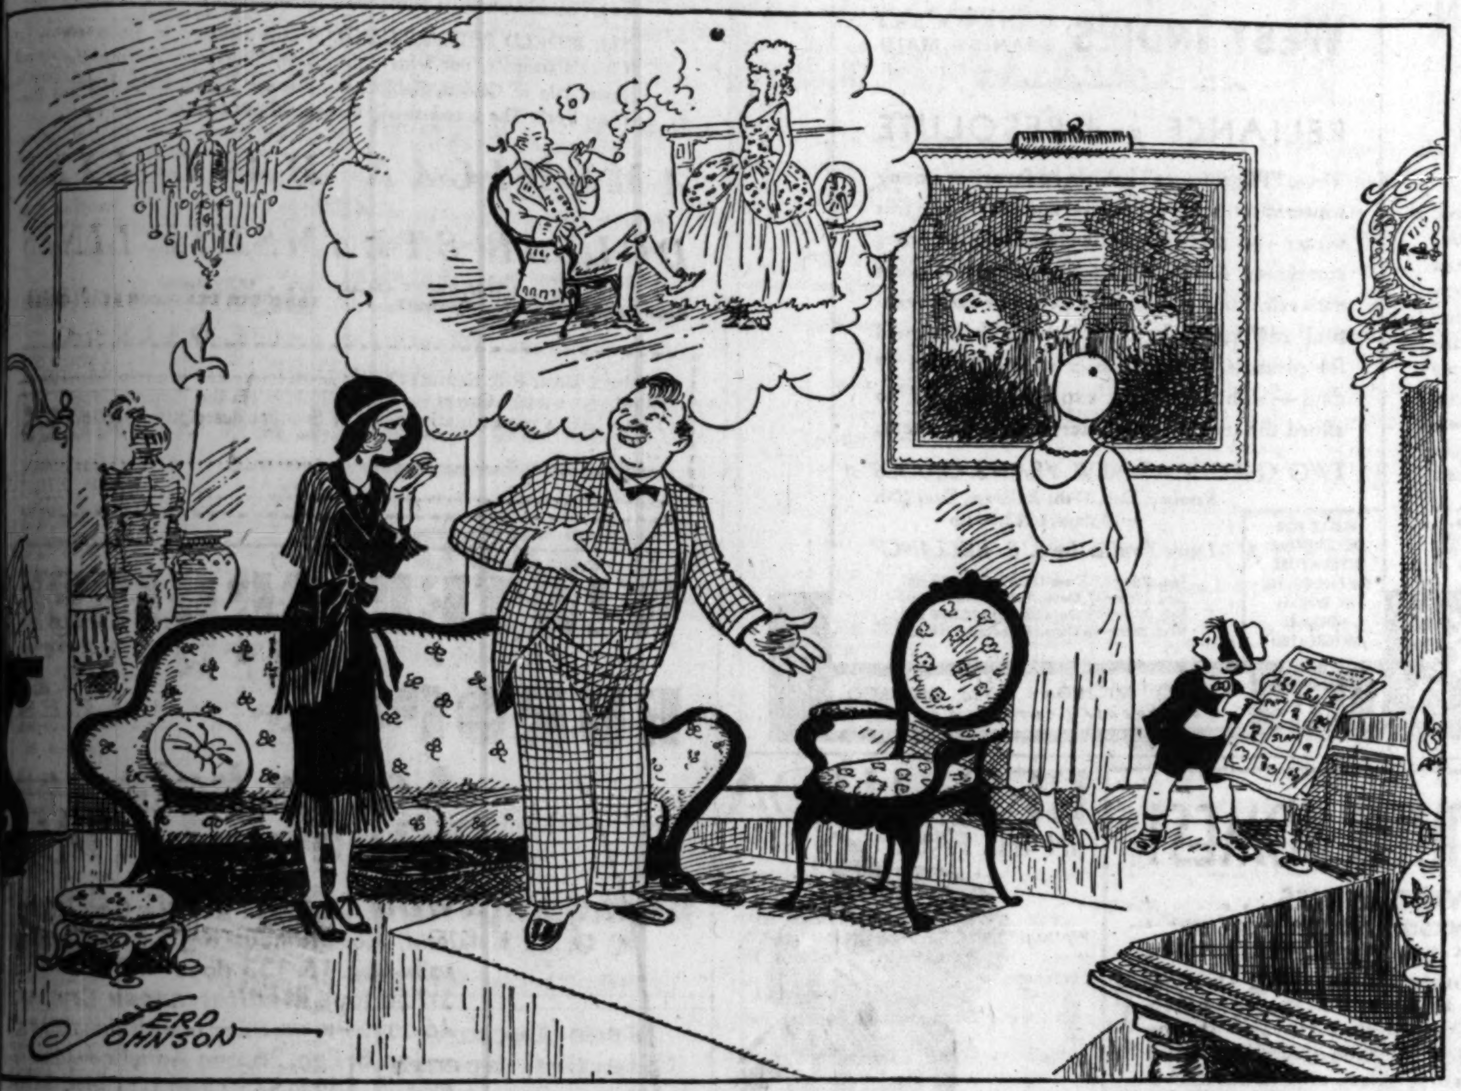
ALL RIGHT, you sleuths, here's Want-Ad Wanda again with a Brand-new Chicago Tribune Treasure Hunt Game!

"FOLLOW THE TRAIL AND FIND THE HIDDEN WANT ADS"

New Clues! New Fun! New Excitement!



CLUE: This picture represents one of the Want Ad classifications in today's Want Ad Section. Study the picture and decide which classification you think the artist had in mind. Then turn to the Want Ad Section and run through the ads under that heading until you find Wanda's first Hidden Want Ad. The first Hidden Want Ad will tell you where to look for the next one, and so on. Read the simple directions and start now!

$100.00 TODAY in cash prizes

then turn to Today's Want Ad Section

The Name of the Classification represented by this picture is in this list:

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE
BARTER AND EXCHANGE
REAL ESTATE
ARTS AND ANTIQUES HOME FURNISHINGS
TRADE SCHOOLS

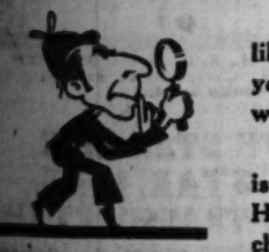
APARTMENTS TO RENT
ROOMS TO RENT

What Want Ad Classification does this picture represent?



Can you follow a trail? Do you like to figure out secret messages? Do you like games that make you use your wits?

Then get busy! Want-Ad Wanda is back with a brand-new series of Hidden Want Ad games. Again she challenges you to follow her trail and find the want ads which she has hidden in the want ad columns of today's Tribune. Loads of fun for everybody—a real treasure hunt, mysterious messages, baffling clues, lots of excitement!

Just Follow These Simple Directions:

In the want ad columns of today's Tribune there has been inserted a number of mysterious want ads. These want ads look exactly like regular want ads, except the wording is different. All together there are between 10 and 15 of these Hidden Want Ads. You are invited to hunt for the Hidden Want Ads and try for the $100 in cash prizes which the Tribune will pay.

The game starts with the picture on this page. This picture represents one of the main classifications of Tribune Want Ads. Study the picture and decide which classification you think the artist had in mind. Then turn to that classification in today's want ad section and look through the want ads under that heading until you find the first Hidden Want Ad. You can't possibly miss it.

After you have found this first Hidden Want Ad, read it over carefully. THE WORDING OF EACH HIDDEN WANT AD GIVES A HINT OR CLUE TO THE HIDING PLACE OF THE NEXT ONE. It's just like a treasure hunt. You don't have to search through the entire want ad section to find the Hidden Want Ads if you will just keep your wits about you. The Hidden Want Ads all tie up with each other. The picture helps you find the first one. The first one helps you find the second one. The second helps you find the third, and so on.

Remember, there are no less than 10 Hidden Want Ads and no more than 15. It's up to you to decide when you have found them all.

Awards will be made to the persons who send in the most nearly complete sets of Hidden Want Ads arranged in the most nearly correct order in accordance with these rules. Neatness and ingenuity of presenting them will count. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

You may clip the Hidden Want Ads from the paper and paste them on the handy blank provided at the right, or you may copy them down on separate sheets of paper. You may indicate what you believe to be their proper order or sequence by numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc.

This offer is open to all—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

Entries should be mailed to "HIDDEN WANT ADS 'B'," the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Ill. All entries for today's game must be received in the Tribune office not later than 6:00 P. M. on Thursday, October 9th, 1930.

You need not purchase the Tribune to compete. Copies of the Tribune may be examined at the Tribune's office or at public libraries free of charge.

No entries will be returned, nor can the Tribune engage in correspondence on this subject. The prize winners of today's game will be announced two weeks from today.

THESE PRIZES EVERY SUNDAY

1st Prize	$50.00
Next 8 Prizes, $5.00 each	40.00
Next 10 Prizes, $1.00 each	10.00
Total Every Sunday .	$100.00

Winners of Game "A" will be announced next Sunday, October 12.

Galleries Show Varied Exhibits

Subjects Range from Wagoner's Vivid Landscapes of the Moody Desert to Griffith's Representations of Placid Brown County

By Eleanor Jewett.

"ROBERT TYRE JONES JR."—(in which you may or may not recognize Bobby Jones)—"Winning the British Open Championship." This is the first of a series of American sporting prints published by Currier & Ives. The prints are shown in the Walden Book Shop gallery and in the Palmolive gallery. They should make history as fascinating as did their predecessors, the old Currier & Ives prints for which now not infrequently small fortunes are offered. The edition is limited to 999 prints.

WHEN two galleries have really fine exhibitions running at this time of the year we may as well admit that the new season is under way. At the Anderson galleries is a superb group of desert landscapes by Harry B. Wagoner. The desert is a fickle subject. To the casual visitor she shows a face as innocent of expression as the proverbial blind wall. To the initiate she turns a rippling tide of aspect, now still, now violent with wind, now red at night and rosy at dawn, purple at dusk, and white at noon. She clothes herself in weird growth, huge cactus succulent and green, great red rocks of monstrous formation, a carpet of flowers delicately and beautifully pink or blue or yellow. She can be cruel and she can be kind, but through all her changes is eternally herself.

Mr. Wagoner has read many of her moods. He has caught her in her wrath, with wind and rain a whirling threat of gray. He has caught her laughing, her plains a sea of blossoms. He has caught her aloof, in the grim stillness of evening. He has caught her threatening, in the furious red of the afterglow.

There is not much more to be said. In technique the paintings are free. No mannerisms rub one the wrong way. Mr. Wagoner paints easily and flowingly. He is a conservative, but not a hint of the academician hardens his work or forces it within bounds. He gives us an excellent portrait of a too little known part of our country and leaves us to fall in love with it or not, as we choose.

At the Chicago Galleries.

The second essentially formal exhibit of the week is that at the Chicago Galleries association, 220 North Michigan avenue. Here three of our painters show themselves in attractive guise. L. O. Griffith offers landscapes in oil from Brown county and from Texas. Tunis Ponsen has a sheaf of New England and Dutch subjects. Richard A. Chase submits fifty water color paintings of Chicago. There will be more about this exhibition later.

At the Art institute the summer exhibits are still in place and the one new element, the showing of architectural designs and models by Frank Lloyd Wright, is of the greatest interest. Most spectacular is his steel and glass office building now under construction in New York. In Tulsa Mr. Wright is building for Richard Lloyd Jones a unique house with a frame partly of steel and walls of glass and concrete. A more general use of glass apparently is Mr. Wright's latest contribution to architecture.

Charles L. Morgan, who is showing a number of prepossessing lithographs and etchings and water colors in the Kroch gallery, shows too a fine portrait of Mr. Wright and an excellent illustration of the famous office building in New York. This exhibit, though one of the smaller ones now running, is full of charming and delightful incident. Mr. Morgan has a remarkable talent. He is artist as well as architect. His architectural renderings have given him a national reputation. In the current exhibit he submits a number of portraits and pictures of subjects other than architecture, and holds one's interest with every fresh undertaking. He is, without doubt, one of the most gifted artists working in Chicago today.

The Arts club opened its rooms last Wednesday. The first exhibition is still to be announced.

Opens School of Sculpture.

Viola Norman, a graduate of the Art institute art school and later an assistant instructor in modeling—later still instructor in sculpture at the National Academy of Art—opens her own studio school tomorrow at 1011 Auditorium building under the name of the "Chicago School of Sculpture." Miss Norman is a pupil of Polasek and Mestrovic. She has great talent and great ability both in teaching and in accomplishing her own work. The two do not always go together. The most recent piece of modeling to gain her public appreciation is her figure of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge's chow.

Emile Zoir, the noted Swedish painter, who was here last winter with an interesting group of modern paintings, writes that he is on his way back to Chicago. He expects to arrive the first week in October. He plans to start teaching in the North Shore Art league immediately. Also he will take over the class which was formed last year by a group of women in Highland Park. Another class in Chicago concerned with modern art and anatomy will be an added work of Mr. Zoir. He plans an exhibition of his summer's paintings in the Wilmette Woman's club and another exhibition in Chicago later in the winter.

The Chicago Academy of Fine Arts announces Saturday classes for teachers. The course of study will include illustration, color, design, poster and construction methods adapted to the interests and capacities of pupils of elementary and junior high school age. Emphasis is placed on developing units of instruction that are related to other subjects in the curriculum. Edna Wetton, district art supervisor in the Chicago public schools, will teach from 9:30 to 12:30 in the morning and Edward Mathews, professional industrial designer, will teach in the afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30 o'clock. The classes start Oct. 18.

Notes on Art and Artists.

Enid Vognild tells in a letter of a delightful summer spent visiting and painting in and about Seattle. She has just left for a six weeks' trip to Paris.

The Needlework and Textile guild of the Art institute opened its fall season last Wednesday. The class in needlework begins tomorrow under the charge of Josephine M. Christie, a graduate of the Royal School of Needlework, London. She will teach all kinds of English needlework as well as Italian.

◆

News just received by the Art institute indicates that Chicago has been made a port of entry for antique furniture. This has been done at the instigation and after the pleading of a number of prominent Chicagoans. It is a sensible move and one that will undoubtedly prove beneficial to many interests in Chicago.

◆

Miss Florence Odell, assistant dean of the Art institute and a member of its staff for the last ten years, has resigned and is to marry Dr. Warner Fite, professor of philosophy at Princeton.

The Art club of the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A. is holding its fall art exhibit from Oct. 7 to Oct. 14 at the Association building.

● Here are Canadian Pacific's two major cruises, planned by the travel "know-how" of the world's greatest travel system . . . in its 8th World and Mediterranean Cruise Season.

ROUND · THE · WORLD

. . . on the distinguished cruise ship, Empress of Australia, 21,850 gross tons. From New York Dec. 2. A glorious high-spot itinerary of 137 days of spring-around-the-world. As low as $2,000.

MEDITERRANEAN

. . . from New York Feb. 3. 73 sunshine days in the fascinating ports and places of North Africa and Southern Europe. About 3 weeks in the Holy Land and Egypt. A cruise epic on the yacht-like Empress of France. As low as $900.

Behind both these cruises is Canadian Pacific's world-round network of ship, hotel and key-city offices, its famous one management, ship and shore. This assures you preferred entrée, every travel luxury that the great Empresses can give in cuisine and service. It leaves you nothing to do but enjoy.

One-way, go-as-you-please tickets also available. For choice accommodations at your price, reserve at once. Ask for booklets, ship plans.

ORIENT

via HAWAII or direct express

● Canadian Pacific's great new Empress of Japan brings transatlantic size, speed and luxury to the Pacific crossing. Her 26,000 gross tons, 39,000 tons displacement, her 21-knot speed, make her the largest, fastest liner to the Orient.

From sun-porch suites to swimming pool café, from her decorative scheme of fine fabrics, natural woods and metals to her truly metropolitan cuisine and service, this Queen of the White Empress fleet is "transatlantic" in the best "to Cherbourg" manner. Second and third cabin equally superior.

Christmas in BERMUDA · New Year's in HAVANA

ANCHORS AWEIGH! Off on an exhilarating, luxurious Christmas and New Year's Holiday Cruise to Bermuda, Nassau and Havana. In addition to enjoying delightful excursions ashore, be our guest at Christmas Dinner in sunny Bermuda and the New Year's Eve festivities in gay, exotic Havana.

The Lloyd Sabaudo Line invites you to join their twelve days' cruise away from the Northern Winter to the sunshine and invigorating tonic of the Tropical Climate on their magnificent new de luxe liner "Conte Grande"—the latest 26,000 tons addition to their already famous transatlantic fleet.

Leaving New York December twenty-third, 1930, and returning January fourth, 1931, this Christmas and New Year's Holiday Cruise offers eight delightful daylight days on Tropical shores and four sparkling daylight days at sea.

Come, join this happy party and bathe in the Tropical health-giving Sunshine and Azure seas, at the season of the year when it may be most enjoyed. And do it at a cost that barely exceeds the cost of spending the Christmas Holidays at home. In fact, the cruise may be made for as little as $222.50, including the entertainment ashore.

A VIEW IN THE BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE

The Art of Dining

Is a Tradition Here

THE first oysters that ever appeared on a Chicago table were served in the Boston Oyster House, the predecessor of the famous restaurant now occupying the same site in the

MORRISON HOTEL

CORNER MADISON AND CLARK STREETS

The first Boston Oyster House achieved an international reputation for excellent menus. That reputation is still maintained. The sea foods served here are always fresh and delicious—and expertly prepared. There is a wide variety to choose from and the prices are extremely moderate.

1950 Rooms, $2.50 Up

In addition to the economies offered in all Morrison Hotel restaurants, room rates, too, are low. Each guest room is outside, with bath, running ice water, bed-head lamp, telephone and Servidor. The location, at Chicago's very center, has established sub-rentals that pay all the ground rent. The saving is passed on to guests in reduced room rates.

LOVELIEST SEASON OF THEM ALL

If you are one of those connoisseurs of life who know Asheville and its gorgeous seasons, you agree that Autumn in The Land of the Sky is the most zestful, generous with beauty. Bracing air that sparkles with sunshine, a setting of mountains flaming with reds and golds and evergreens bring rare inspiration for strength-building rest or vigorous outdoor sport . . . as you choose. Golf on five Donald Ross courses. Riding over sun-flecked trails. Motoring through vistas of eye-filling splendor; crystal lakes, rock-churned streams and tumbling falls. America's most famous chateau, Biltmore House, now open. From distinguished hotels to private homes, accommodations please every purse and person. It's just an overnight Pullman ride to this land so richly favored by the gods. For motor routings, hotel information and 52-page booklet about Asheville and "The Land of the Sky," write Dept. 49 Chamber of Commerce.
